LONDON, June 24.—The members of the Gladstone ministry went to Windsor to-day and delivered up the seals of office. Soon after they had retired, the new ministry arrived and went through the ceremony of accepting office from the Queen and receiving the seals, making acts of obeisance by kissing the hand of Her Majesty. Great crowds of people assembled at the depot on the arrival of the train bearing the new ministry. The Marquis of Salisbury and Lord Northcote were loudly cheered, and Lord Churchill was received with mingled cheers and groans.

The Duke of Marlborough is organizing opposition to the re-election of his brother, Lord Randolph Churchill, for Woodstock. Sir John Bennett is mentioned as the Liberal candidate.

The Parnellites accept the appointment of Sir William Hart Dyke as an indication of the intention of the government to moderate the coercion act. Mr. Parnell's motion to investigate the Maamtrasna and Barbavilla cases is intended to test the new government's policy.

DUBLIN, June 24.—The Freeman's Journal approves of the appointment of Sir William Hart Dyke as chief secretary for Ireland.

MR. GLADSTONE IN OPPOSITION.

LONDON, June 24.—Mr. Gladstone has no intention of giving his presence to the House of Commons, as he has invariably done, but will lead the Opposition without constant attendance, and will attend all important debates, and not leave his party without his personal influence in any crisis that may arise.

SPECULATING ON THE EMPEROR WILLIAM'S DEATH.

LONDON, June 24.—The health of the Emperor William of Germany is one of the most important matters that concern the Lord Salisbury Ministry. It is in such a precarious condition that it is confessed that his present illness may at any moment result fatally. This, to put it bluntly, would be a benefit to the Tories. In the event of the emperor's death there would be the greatest likelihood of an Anglo-German alliance following the natural and expected dissolution of the strong continental triple alliance which now exists with Mr. Gladstone as premier.

"OCCUPANTS AT ONCE."

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—Would you kindly point out "the proper management" under which the buildings on the property of The Dickson Co. may secure "occupants at once" and insure the forthcoming of "plenty of capital" to purchase "the plant and business" referred to in to-day's editorial under the above caption.

The managers of the company will gratefully receive "a pointer" from yourself or any other equally well-qualified to assume the position of mentor, and shall endeavor to carry out any feasible scheme that approves itself to their judgment.

I may, however, say en passant, that the idea of procuring funds from Peterborough capitalists to purchase a "plant and business," which, after so many years, finds itself looking for some one to buy, to me appears rather a chimerical undertaking.

I may also say that as soon as it can be shown that there is any reasonable prospect of procuring "occupants at once"—to occupy buildings as manufactories—the managers of the Dickson Company are prepared to proceed at once with such erections as the nature of the business requires, and to give you, Mr. Editor, an opportunity of unearthing a small portion of the "capital" referred to, but which has hitherto resisted all the allurements of the manufacturing mania.

Yours, etc.,
T. G. H.

Peterborough, June 25th, 1885.

[Our esteemed correspondent puts an interpretation upon the item complained of, entirely foreign to our intention in writing it. The idea we sought to be conveyed was that the buildings proposed to be erected by the Dickson Estate Company would greatly facilitate the acquisition of new industries by the town. It was not at all intended to insinuate a reproach for the buildings not being built: it was the expression of a friendly regret, such as one neighbor might make to another, to the effect that it's a pity your new house is not completed, I know of an eligible tenant. The idea may have been, in the haste incidental to the preparation of matter for a daily newspaper, inaptly clothed in words, and we exceedingly regret that we expressed ourselves in such a manner as to admit of a construction so utterly at variance with our meaning, which was that of commending the wisdom of the proposal to provide accommodation for new manufacturing industries in Peterborough. The phrase "proper management" referred to the desirability of judicious efforts being made to bring the work in question to town; the reason of the business being on the market is, we are informed, the death of one partner and the ill health of the other member of the firm. We have always, as a journal, recognized the energy, enterprise and public-spirited character of the manager of the Dickson estate, and would not under any consideration do him the slightest injustice or refuse to accord full credit. We have noticed with pleasure the great improvements that have taken place under the management of the Dickson estate, in the way of new buildings, improvement of existing ones, extension of water power, etc., and have frequently made them the subject of congratulatory comment in our columns.—[ED. EXAMINER.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 12d-25w

A SPLENDID SHOT.

Mr. Frank Newby, of the Guards Sharpshooters, is credited with having made by far the best shot of the campaign. During the Cut Hill battle, and at a time when a lull in hostilities occurred, Frank spying an Indian a long way off quite indifferently told a few of his companions that he thought he would "have a crack at him;" and proceeded to sight his rifle. One or two of the small squad standing around estimated the distance at about eleven hundred yards, but Newby sighted for 950 yards. The Indian still stood in the same place. Everything in readiness, Frank laid down, his companions stood at his heels in breathless suspense. After wriggling into an easy position, and drawing a good bead on the savage, he fired. The Indian was seen to jump into the air, fall to the ground; and one more "poor Lo" hit the the dust.

AN IRISHMAN'S TRIBUTE TO GLADSTONE.

One of the latest of Mr. Gladstone's critics, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, says of his appearance in the House of Commons. "He is the very genius of the place: his presence or absence makes all the difference whether Parliament is infinitely interesting or abysmally dull. The chief reason of this is that he is so frankly human. There is not an emotion of the sensitive and weak human heart of which he is not the ready victim; attack enrages, praise delights, trouble worries, disaster grieves him. Though the gamut of human feeling he passes in a single night; and he has a temperament that brings the expression of every emotion without a second's delay to his face. The changeable and infinite play of passion is a drama which is carried on nightly in the House of Commons before the general and public eye; it is a mighty and porent personality displaying before the whole attentively gazing world the "nudity of his soul." Every deduction from Mr. Gladstone's character still leaves him supreme eminence as England's greatest member of Parliament

Progress of Cholera Plague Throughout the Empire—Official Figures.

MADRID, June 24.—The official reports for Monday from the cholera infected districts are as follows:—Valencia city—New cases 27, deaths 15. Valencia province—New cases 43, deaths 108. Castellon de la Plana province—New cases 100, deaths 26. Murcia city—New cases 32, deaths 29. Murcia province—New cases 207, deaths 73. Cartagena—New cases none, deaths 1. Cien Pazuelos—New cases 8, deaths 4. In Madrid on Tuesday there was 1 new case of cholera and 3 deaths.

In the Cortes the Minister of the Interior stated that in consequence of the favorable report made by the commission appointed to inquire into the subject of inoculation with cholera microbe as a preventative against the spread of cholera, the practice of inoculation would be allowed to be continued, but only as an experiment.

King Alfonso received a deputation from the Mercantile club, who presented a protest against the official declaration of the existence of cholera in Madrid. The king deprecated demonstrations like that of Saturday, more particularly when they are attended with such deplorable results.

The return from the cholera districts for Tuesday are as follows:—Valencia city, 31 new cases, 9 deaths; Valencia province (outside of the city) 518 new cases, 235 deaths; Castellon de la Rana, 75 new cases, 46 deaths; Murcia city, 85 new cases, 41 deaths; Murcia province (outside of the city) 206 new cases, 72 deaths. The cholera has appeared in Carthagena and Saragossa.

Unsatisfactory Street Watering.

There are indignant complaints made of the perfunctory and inefficient manner in which the street watering is done on George street, especially north of Hunter. Merchants and residents are alike vigorous in their remarks on the subject. The manner in which the work is done does not keep the dust down except in a very slight degree. Last year Mr. McClelland, who covered the same ground, did the work thoroughly and left no cause of complaint. Even on Sundays, we are informed, the streets, from a late watering on Saturday night, were in better condition than they are on some week days at present. The local tax is paid without grumling, but those who pay it insist on having the work well done. It is to be hoped that enquiry will be made at the Council meeting to-night and the grievance to which our attention has been called, and which for observation in front of the EXAMINER office, we can testify, is not unfounded.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

The death of Mrs. James McPherson, of Mount Pleasant, has cast a gloom over that section. Deceased had been ill for three or four weeks, during which she had suffered a great deal, and her death was not unlooked for. The remains were interred in the Cavanville burying ground. The family have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in their bereavement.—Port Hope Times.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The spectacle of the Solicitor of the Canada Pacific Railway holding a seat in the House of Commons, and drafting all legislative measures affecting the company is not a very exhilirating thing for the people of Canada. But it has several incidental advantages for the company.

When one comes to think of it, the proposition that the Tories of England should be allowed to govern without being opposed by the supporters of the late Government, is about as cheeky as could well be imagined. Why' it is pertinently asked, did they vote to upset the Gladstone Government if they were not prepared to undertake the government of the country?

In the fight between labour and capital in Toronto, the muscle and sweat have scored a victory. The master builders, to the number of thirty, have yielded to the demands of the striking building labourers, and have decided to give the 18 cents per hour insisted on, or an increase of 20 cents per day. This may seem a small advance, but 20 cents per day amounts, in 300 days to $60--a considerable gain; equivalent to free rent and fuel to many a family whose struggle to make ends meet is a hard one.

The Port Hope Times feels called upon to remark:—"The bad, naughty, naughty Franchise Bill has also passed through committee, and the Grit Indignationists (?) and Obstructionists have again proved themselves utter failures." The Opposition have simply done their duty in opposing an unjust and oppressive measure, and have succeeded in securing a considerable modification of the Franchise Bill. They have succeeded in cutting Poundmaker, Big Bear, and other Indian murderers out of the votes which Sir John had declared it was his intention to give them. True, the Opposition has failed to secure the defeat of the bill, and whether that is a failure or triumph remains yet to be seen. The victory of the government in this respect may yet prove like that of the Tories in England, of very doubtful character.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Fine weather, with high winds. Crops looking well.

Roads are good, except where those who have to work a few days in the year for the Queen are trying their best to spoil them. They are not only trying, but do it effectually. They ought to be compelled to take the big stones off the road or break them.

Picnics and excursions are the order of the day. One this day on Rice Lake; big crowd and a big wind; won't they get it? I should laugh.

Mr. John Moyes is once more allowed to leave Culver's Hotel, Cobourg, and is at large.

South Monaghan Agricultural Society has decided to have a concert in their new hall on July 3rd, when the best talent from Peterborough and Millbrook will be on the boards.

Fairdale cheese factory is now in full blast and we think the company have secured the services of a first class cheese maker.

We hear that Martin & Ball, of Centreville, have now a first class tailor in the person of T. N. Pitts, formerly of Port Hope. Where is O'Donnel?

PARLIAMENTARY SUMMARY.

TUESDAY, JUNE 23rd.

The supplementary estimates for 1884-5, brought down to-night, provide for an expenditure chargeable to capital of $1,328,289, to consolidated fund, $1,564,667; unprovided items from previous year, $676,529, making a total of $3,569,485. Under the head of Public Works there are appropriated for the Montreal armories, $13,000; Montreal examining warehouse, $7,000; Grosse Isle quarantine building, $3,300, and Chicoutimi marine hospital, $1,250 The Deputy Speaker's salary, fixed at $2,000, is included. The sum of $52,000 is appropriated to pay remuneration to Commissioners and Inspectors under the Liquor License Act of 1883, in districts where the expenditure exceeded the revenue, and $6,000 to pay contingencies in connection with the same, making all $60,000. To meet the expenses of elections under the Canada Temperance Act $25,000 is included. To take measures for extirpating the disease of sheep scab in the Province of Quebec, $10,000. The Chinese Commission expenses, $11,500, and the Half-breed Commission, $6,000, are a few of the items.

The greater part of the sittings was spent in Supply, and a large number of items were passed after the usual enquiries and explanations. No amendment was offered in Supply, an arrangement having been made between the sides to that effect, but it is understood that the Opposition intend availing themselves pretty freely of their constitutional right to express want of confidence in the administration through amendments moved in Supply, and there is probably some lively debating in store for the House before the Supply bill is passed. Sir John Macdonald asked Mr. Blake the other night to observe the usual custom of giving Government a day's notice of amendments, but Mr. Blake intimated to the Premier that since that rule had been violated on one or two occasions by the Government side by springing on the Opposition amendments endorsing the Government's policy in some particular line, he did not feel any longer bound to observe it. The fisheries question came up on the enquiry of Mr. Peter Mitchell, whether or not for the balance of the fishing season, after the expiry of the Fishery clauses in the Washington treaty of July 1st, our fishing grounds will be open to Americans, while a duty is to be placed on our fish and fish products entering the American markets. Sir John Macdonald gave no direct answer to the question, but said the placing of duties again on Canadian fish would only be a re-imposition of the duties which were suspended during the currency of the Fishery clauses.

NORWOOD.

An excursion from Peterborough to this village, under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sabbath School, will be held on Thursday, July 16th. The George Methodist Sabbath School will also run an excursion to this village, on Monday, 20th of July.

The date of the Presbyterian excursion to Toronto has been changed from the 8th and 9th to the 7th and 8th of July. Tickets will be good from Havelock and Norwood at the following rates:—Adults, $1.25, and children, 90c. Excursion train will leave Havelock at 6 o'clock, and Norwood at 6.16. Tickets good to return by any regular train on any of the above days.—Register.

LITTLE FALLS, June 23.—Five hundred boxes cheese sold at 6c., 1,200 6¼c., 3,400 at 6½c., 126 at private terms, and 936 dairy at 6c. to 7c.; 50 packages of butter at 17c. to 21c.

PHOTOGRAPHED ON THE FIELD.

VALUABLE ADDITION TO THE HISTORY OF THE REBELLION.

Mr. Livernois, photographer of Quebec, has received from Batoche a cartridge box full of photographic plates, sent by Captain Peters, of "A" Battery. These plates were taken by Captain Peters with his portable camera during the progress of the fights at Fish Creek and Batoche, and represent the troops in various places of the actions. They are considered very valuable, as this is believed to be the first instance on record of photographs of battles in progress. They have been copy-righted.

THE KAMINISTIQUIA.

ANOTHER VINDICATION OF THE MACKENZIE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 24.—The utility of the Kaministiquia harbor has again been demonstrated; and the fine Clyde steel steamer can enter it without any difficulty. The other morning Capt. Anderson brought the Alberta through the channel and alongside the elevator, where a cargo of twenty-five thousand bushels of grain was loaded. The Alberta was drawing twelve feet nine inches aft and six feet forward. Captain Anderson said that he came up the river without any difficulty, although at some places the motion of the wheel disturbed the bottom. The three dredges are still at work and when the contract of the C.P.R. company is completed, the additional appropriation of $30,000 granted by the Government will be used in making the river a uniform depth.

ROSEATE REPORTS

OF CROP PROSPECTS IN THE NORTH-WEST.

The Manitoba Department of Agriculture has issued the first bulletin of the season, based on the returns of 300 correspondents. The weather during seeding was exceedingly favorable, and the season is two weeks earlier than the average. Summer fallowing has largely increased. The total land plowed is 519,738 acres, compared with 444,915 in 1884. Fall wheat is not grown; the spring wheat acreage is 357,013 acres, compared with 307,020 in 1884. The oats acreage is 151,368 acres, compared with 172,345 in 1884. Both crops are reported to be in the most favorable condition in all portions of the Province. Ample rain fell during seeding to give the grain a good start and keep up continuous growth. There is every indication of an early harvest.

The total product of wheat expected is 7,179,531 bushels, leaving a surplus of 5,675,000 bushels for export. Other crops are all reported in a satisfactory condition. Hay promises an abundant yield. Live stock came through the winter in fair condition and free of disease. In every branch farming prospects are better than in any previous year in the history of the Province. The construction of branch railways during the summer will give additional impetus to farming operations, and much additional land is being broken in consequence.

The Same.

Shakespeare!—to whom nothing's sounding what the depth
Filly as silence? Falter forth the spell—
Act follows word, the speaker knows full well,
Has tampers with its magic more than mortal.
Two armies there are: That which lies at Babrow treads
With His soul only; if from Hps it fall,
Echo, back thundered by earth, heaven and hell,
Would own "Thou didst create us!" Naught impedes
We voice the other name, man's most of might,
Awesomely, lovingly; let awe and love
Mately await their working, leave to sight
All of the issues so, below, above,
Shakspeare's creation rises; one remove,
Though dread—this finite from that infinite.
—Robert Browning, in the Pall Mall Gazette.

The Outlook.

Dark o'er the cliff there hangs a heavy cloud,
Big with the storm that breaks upon the night;
The sea-gulls shriek as in their hurried flight
They gather by the beach—a clustered crowd
Shrill wantons of the waves whose chorus loud
Heralds the coming wind from yonder height,
Companions of the storm whose awful might
Sways the tall masts from keel to topmost shroud.

We heed it not beside our hearth-stone fires,
Close curtained from its wrath in niches warm;
We hear the mingling of these martial quires
And look but on the picture of a storm;
Heaven bring the sailor rest his ship at sea, to the haven where he fain would be!

Anticipation.

A colored man o'er whose head about seventy summers had passed, was quietly but earnestly wrestling with a watermelon near the market, when he was disturbed by the appearance of a small boy of his color. The boy sat down on a box and looked grudgingly at the melon, and the old man looked up at him and queried:

"Young man, I reckons I could give you half dis mollyon an' hab plenty left."

"Thanks, Uncle."

"But I shan't do it, kase it might be de spilin' of ye. In de fust place, de law am plain an' cl'ar on de pint dat what I leave behind goes to my natural heirs. In de second place, a pusson widout anticipashun mus' be dreffully onhappy. As de case now stands you anticipate. You anticipate dat half dis yere mellyon will stuff me full an' I'll have to leave all de rest. You anticipate dat I'll get choked on de seeds, or git sun-struck, or be 'tacked by de colic. As de mellyon gradually disappears you'll anticipate dat I won't gnaw de rinds werry clus. As de rinds disappear you'll console yourself wid de fack dat de seeds am left. As I wrap de seeds up in my handkerchief you'll reckon on lickin' de bo'd whar' de mellyon was cut an' eaten, but as I lif' up dat bo'd an' gin ye a whack on de back ye'll anticipate better dan to crowd in whar ye ain't wanted. Now you skip!"—Detroit Free Press.

Johnnie Had It.

Colonel Bumgardner got up yesterday morning worse mixed than were the drinks he had taken the night before. When he was ready to start on his usual cocktail expedition, he cried:

"Marier, where's my hat?"

"I don't know, dear, unless Johnnie has it."

"Well, and what the darnation is he doing with it?"

"I don't know—but he said he wanted a brick to sharpen the knives on and I told him to look in your hat. You said you had one there."

The colonel wore his last summer straw hat down town.

Little Johnny Samuelson goes to school, and has become quite proficient in arithmetic. Johnny is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Samuelson, but the latter was a widow with six children when she married Mr. Samuelson. "How are your little brothers and sisters coming on?" asked a lady friend of the family. "All three of them are well," responded Johnny. "Why, there are six of them, Johnny." "Yes, ma'am, but you forget they are only half brothers and half sisters, and it takes two halves to make a whole one."—Texas Siftings.

PRACTICAL ADVICE

—TO—

YOUNG MEN

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. Procrastination is the Devil's deception." Go to-morrow morning and pay for a Policy.

IN THE GLOAMING.

feel kindly towards it? Do you not remember its glorious summer and autumn beauty, its kindly winter hospitalities, its free, pure, simple life? Is there nothing that can compensate for the glare and glitter of your town life? Would an existence in the country be so very miserable?"

Geraldine hesitated; other glories and triumphs rose up, before which the simple natural pleasures of a country life grew pale and insipid—a vision of luxury, of courtly flattery and dazzling homage, a whirl of excitement, which left no time for dullness or ennui.

"Perhaps not exactly miserable, but very dismal," she replied thinking of her triumphs and successes.

"But would it be quite insupportable?" he urged.

"I don't know; you speak so seriously, Mr. Scarsdale."

"I speak as I feel. I never felt more serious in my life," he said briefly.

"I suppose some people are happy here—my sister and her husband, for instance," said Geraldine slowly. "Perhaps with a home and friends, and pursuits and interests like theirs, one might be happy even in the country."

A sudden glow lighted up his face as he turned quickly towards her.

"Ah, Geraldine——"

"It's my birfday; me shall have some valentines to morrow," interrupted irrepressible Mollie, "and auntie won't—she telled me so. Nobody won't send her none."

Mr. Scarsdale caught Mollie round the waist and lifted her up.

"How do you know, Miss Spoilt? Did she tell you that valentines were only for children?"

"No; auntie telled me nobody would send her none. Poor auntie! Will 'oo send her one and me too," added Mollie insinuatingly—roses and snow and ice and ickle boys wis wings blowing trumpets like Freddy's? Please do, Mr. Scarsdale!"

"Very well, Mollie; you shall have one, all roses and snow and Cupids. What must auntie's be like?" he asked, smiling down at Mollie.

"I know," said Mollie shaking her head very wisely—"a nice big boy like 'oo, and——"

"Don't be tiresome, Mollie!" interrupted Geraldine crossly. "Mr. Scarsdale, you quite spoil her. As to valentines, I think they get more objectionable and vulgar every year."

"Nevertheless it is a good old institution, and we will do it all honor. The roses and Cupids and spangles please the little ones; don't they, Mollie? Good-bye, Miss Spoilt," he said, patting her down.—"You shall have your valentine. And now, Miss Cameron, I will wish you good evening."

"Good-bye, Mr. Scarsdale," was the brief reply, as for a moment she suffered him to take her hand.

Though the words were so coldly spoken, Geraldine got up after he had left the room and went to the window. She watched the dark figure walking away in the gathering gloom till the dense masses of the shrubbery hid it from sight. What did he mean? Why had he uttered her name and then broken off suddenly?—Why did that half-smile cross his lips at her stiff "good-bye"? Above all, what did his doings or sayings signify to her?

She stood listening to the dreary plash of the rain-drops against the window and the wild moan of the wind as it tossed the branches to and fro. She shivered as she looked into the blank dimness, and detested the country and all it contained more bitterly than ever.

"No," she thought discontentedly; "not for worlds would I drag on an existence in the dismal monotonous country. How Alice and Harry contrive to exist here I don't know. With nothing to do, nothing to think of, nobody to see, and every day exactly like the one before it, it is horrible! Nothing should induce me to live such a life!"

Notwithstanding these conclusions, Geraldine had a dim conception she was wrong, a secret conviction that the whirl of gayety in which she lived was all glitter and emptiness. But, knowing it, she had no wish to remedy it or turn her back on the fascinations of her pleasant frivolous life, which hitherto had been all-sufficient for her. She had no desire for anything higher or better than the ease and luxury, the small social successes and triumphs which seemed irresistible in their fresh variety.

Presently her sister and Sir Henry Netherby came down. Dinner followed, which was a slight break in the monotony of the quiet evening, but not enough to dissipate Geraldine's weariness and discontent. At the earliest possible moment she went to bed, and dreamt an unsatisfactory dream. She thought she dwelt in a moated grange surrounded by a vast forest; from the huge weird branches of the trees dropped perpetually streams of tiny rain-drops, and in each window of the house was an Æolian harp, which moaned to every gust of the wild wind.

In the morning the sun shone brilliantly, the great shrouding curtain of fog had lifted, and the blue sky was flecked with white cloudlets. It was all very fair, she allowed; but what of that? To-morrow the rain and the mist might come again, and dulness and melancholy reign supreme.

On reaching the breakfast-room she was greeted by Mollie's clamorous little voice.

"Auntie, auntie, me got four—twenty valentines! And there's one for 'oo too—papa said so—auntie's valentine! Here!"—and the busy small fingers seized a letter lying on Geraldine's plate and gave it to her.

Sir Henry looked up from his letters.

"Good morning, Gera. I thought your ladyship would not condescend to such frivolities as valentines?"

"The valentine exists only in Mollie's imagination; it is a letter," she said quietly.

With a pang of sorrow, shame, and anger she had guessed who had sent it, and what was in it. She quietly put it into her pocket, to Mollie's disgust, that astute little damsel being in a morbid state of jealousy for fear any valentine should surpass the glowing beauty of her own, and quite convinced that auntie Gera's was not a letter at all but "an ugly penny valentine!"

"Was not Arthur Scarsdale here last night?" asked Sir Henry presently. "I met him at the gate as I came in."

"No," said Lady Netherby.

"Yes," corrected Geraldine. "He stayed only a short time, Alice, and would not let me call you. I forgot to tell you afterwards."

Sir Henry gave a sharp glance at his sister-in-law; but the quiet proud face baffled his scrutiny.

After a time Geraldine made her escape to her own room; and a few bitter remorseful tears rose to her eyes as she opened her letter and read what Arthur Scarsdale had to say. The note was quite short, but it took her a long time to read. His wife! Yes; and in her heart she felt that the love of which he told so quietly was tender and true. His wife! She folded the letter and stayed a long long time looking dreamily out of the window over to where Branscombe Woods stood out dark against the sky. At last she roused herself, turned away from the fair prospect, and opened her writing-desk.

"I could not do it," she said. The monotonous life would kill me."

Then she thought of her brilliant butterfly existence in London, and its ever-changing round of pleasure, its luxury, sparkle and flattery, and all the other glories and, as she thought, necessaries of her life. Not even for Arthur Scarsdale's love could she give them up.

"After all, I do not care for him; it only grieves me to give him pain. No, no, I dare not risk it. But I wish I had never come here, never seen him. I am sorry for his sake!"

* * * * * * *

Four years passed away before Geraldine Cameron saw Silverlands again.—Then she came down on a long visit to her sister's home to recruit after a season of unusual gaiety.

It was a dull February evening, misty and chill outside, bright with firelight within. Geraldine was seated on her old favorite couch near the fire. Mr. Scarsdale stood opposite to her so much in the same attitude, and with so much of the grave quiet manner, that but four minutes, instead of four years, might have passed since the twilight evening so long before.

"Was it all a dream?" thought Geraldine, noting the quiet composure of his face. It was just as determined-looking as ever, with no added lines telling of regret or sorrow; his eyes were as steady in meeting hers as if no past lay between them. Only in one thing was he changed. He saw in her simply a lady to be treated with all deference and courtesy, nothing more.

They knew nothing of each other's thoughts, these two once so nearly close together. Between them now was but stiff politeness, the elaborate courtesy of mere acquaintances, which was worse by many degrees than downright rudeness, as there was nothing to hope for or resent in it.

"A quarrel would be such a relief!" thought Geraldine, as she answered quietly his easy unconcerned remarks. "If he would but be stern, bitter, or even angry, it would be better than this frigid civility."

Seemingly indifferent, Mr. Scarsdale went on talking. He was speaking of skating, which an unusually long frost had made a fashionable pastime, and in which she knew he excelled.

"We had quite a gathering at Silvermere yesterday, Miss Cameron. Do you not skate?"

Mr. Irving Tells a Good Story.

The queen, as he who wishes may read, has often made visits both of pleasure and policy, to her estates in Scotland, being at such times more than heartily welcomed by the canny Scots, who, almost without exception, highly reverence her and indorse all that she does.

On one occasion, shortly after a visit to her castle in the outskirts of Balmoral, (blessed aptness), Mr. Irving, who was traveling through the country met an old Scotchwoman with whom he spoke of her Majesty.

"The Queen's a good woman," said he.

"I suppose she's gude enough, but there are things I canna bear."

"What do you mean?" asked Mr. Irving.

"Well, I think there are things that even the Queen has no recht to do. For one thing, she goes rowin on the lak on Soonday—and it's not a Chreestian thing to do!"

"But you know the bible tells us——"

"I knaw," she interrupted angrily. "I've read the bible since I was so high, an' I knaw every word in't. I knaw about th Sunday fishing and a' the other things the good Lord did, but I want ye to know, too, that I don't think any the more o'em of Him, for adoin' of it."—Boston Cor. N. Y. Graphic.

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed."

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

"Cable."

The oldest and most reliable brand of cigars in the market. Free from all chemicals and artificial flavourings. 13d-25w-1y

Salvation Army.

The female portion of the Salvation Army marched up George street last night, attired in very attractive costumes of navy blue and scarlet.

Chords of Music.

A worthy son of sunny Italy attracted a considerable crowd near the Grand Central last evening, by furnishing the "Rocky Road" from a harp, whilst a Hibernian tripped the "light fantastic" to its quick and lively time.

Remember.

The grand concert and closing exercises of the Convent of Notre Dame will take place on Friday, the 26th, inst., at 7:30 o'clock p. m., in Bradburn's Opera House. Doors open at 7 o'clock. Admission 25 cents, reserved seats 50 cents. 21-4d

Peterborough to the Rescue Again.

The Port Hope Times says:—"Plate glass windows are being put in the stores in the Grand Opera House block, by the owners, Messrs. Geo. A. Cox and James Stevenson, of Peterborough. It will greatly improve their appearance and value."

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Light to moderate, south east and south west winds, fair warm weather.

Come to Stay.

The Hamilton Times says:—The Peterborough EXAMINER now publishes an evening edition. Judging by the past few issues, the daily is come to stay. Its news is carefully selected, and its editorial utterances have the right ring about them. The new venture merits success.

Abundance of Musical Instruments.

Four pianos and two organs were placed in Bradburn's Opera House yesterday, to be used at the grand musical concert which will be given by the pupils of the Convent de Notre Dame, assisted by the choir of St. Peter's Cathedral, in the ball to-morrow evening.

New Office and Workshops.

Carpenters are at present engaged in erecting a frame building for the Peterborough Water Works Co., on Hunter street, opposite the residence of Sheriff Hall. The building will be 18x40 feet, having a 13-feet ceiling; and when completed will be utilized as a place where all the plumbing, etc., in connection with the company will be done.

Dominion Day Doings.

Whilst Mr. J. S. Garvin of the Toronto Lacrosse Club was in town on Tuesday, the Peterborough Lacrosse Club committee made all the necessary arrangements with him, with regard to the team which will represent the Queen city against our boys on Dominion day. Mr. Garvin promises that a first class team will make their appearance here on that date. Large posters may be seen in the various windows and most conspicuous places around town, giving a detailed account of the programme of events which will be carried out at the Driving Park. The various braves with their followers will conduct the pageant from the Post Office corner shortly after 1 o'clock, and headed by the band and followed by the lacrosse teams, in uniform, will proceed to the park. It is expected that an immense throng will assemble to witness the events which will take place. The Lacrosse Club has gone to a considerable expense in fitting up the grounds to their present condition; and certainly deserve the patronage of the general public.

Smokers!

Beware of cigars artificially flavored for the purpose of hiding the poor quality of tobacco used in flavored cigars. Insist upon having the old reliable brands—"CABLE" and "EL PADRE." 13d-25w-1y

Fancher's Park.

About 20 ladies and gentlemen went down the river this morning to Fancher's Park, to spend the day.

Ladies Bible Class.

There will be no meeting of the above class this week. The Rev. Mr. Munro will meet the class again on Friday July 3rd, at 4.15, p., m.

"Tara" Park.

A large number from Peterborough are enjoying themselves at the Tara Park to-day, being the date of the Enniamore annual pic-nic.

Georgia Minstrels.

The celebrated Georgia Minstrels give an entertainment in Bradburn's Opera House this evening. Admission 25 cents; reserved seats 35 cents.

Strawberries.

Oakville and home picked berries fresh every day. Any amount supplied at one days' notice. Cherries, green peas, green beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers, cabbages, and all kinds of green vegetables. Smith's market.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer:—

Visitors Coming.

A large excursion party will arrive in town to-morrow (Friday) on the Grand Junction Div. G.T.R., under the management of the Oddfellows of Stirling and Madoc, accompanied by their band, to take part in the Oddfellows Decoration.

Tastefully Got Up.

The Lindsay Warder says:—The Peterborough EXAMINER now appears as a daily as well as weekly. This makes three dailies in Peterborough. The EXAMINER is tastefully got up and is apparently well supported by advertisers.

Lacrosse at Auburn.

On Wednesday evening two lacrosse clubs at Auburn, the fourth ward "Slashers" and the "Checkers," played a very interesting match. The latter club won two games and were declared winners when darkness set in and put a stop to the game.

To-morrow Evening's Race.

The race which is billed to take place to-morrow evening at the Lansdowne Roller Rink is expected to be a very interesting one. The contestants—Messrs. Lech and Logan—are both practising hard, and it is expected that good time will be made.

Oddfellows' Decoration.

All Oddfellows who may not be members of either of the Peterborough lodges, residing or visiting in town, are cordially invited to meet at the hall of the Otonabee Lodge, corner George and Hunter streets, at 2 p.m. sharp, to-morrow, Friday, the 26th inst., to take part in the decoration ceremonies.

Police Court.

This morning H. Lynch and T. McAvilea were up before the Magistrate, the former on a charge of being drunk, and the latter for obstructing a police officer in the lawful discharge of his duty. R. Pidgeon was the "charger." They were found guilty and fined $2 and $5, respectively, which they paid.

Fall.

The Little Lake at present presents an appearance such as it has not shown for a number of years. During the past few years many large drives have passed through the lake, but none equal to this. The logs cover its surface so completely as to obscure entirely the sight of the water, giving it the appearance of a gigantic slab with the bark on.

Masonic Excursion.

The five hundred persons that accompanied the excursion to Toronto yesterday, under the management of the Peterborough Masonic Lodges enjoyed themselves immensely in the Queen City. Owing to some mismanagement the corner stone of the new building in connection with the Orient Lodge, Toronto, was not laid yesterday, and consequently the excursionists were scattered all through the city, taking in the sights in the various quarters. Many of them remained over until to-day. It is the intention of a number of the brethren to visit Lindsay on Dominion Day, when the corner stone of the new St. Paul's Church will be laid.

Quick and Creditable.

The street inspector is to be complimented for the manner in which he is attending to the work in No. 1 ward, which work was mentioned as a matter of immediate necessity at a recent meeting of the council. The new walk from Sherbrooke street to the C. P. R. is now finished, and we must say that it is an excellent one. The walk on Aylmer street, from Lake to Rink street, is nearing completion. The hammer and nail quartette is now engaged in tearing up the old walk in front of Lundy's terrace, preparatory to laying down a new one, and a number of men are also working at the repairs which were deemed necessary to put Westcotte and Park streets in first-class shape.

Laying Corner Stone.

The corner stone of the new St. Andrew's Church will be laid by Mrs. Robert Nicholls on Monday next at 4 o'clock p. m. The Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, M. A., B. D., Toronto, will be present at the ceremony and will remain during the evening. A large representation from the Presbytery of Peterborough and other friends from a distance are expected. Refreshments will be served immediately after the ceremony in the S. S. room adjoining. Addresses by visitors and friends during the evening. 23-2t

THE LENNOX ELECTION CASE.

The court of appeal yesterday gave judgment on the application in the Lennox election case to increase the penalties adjudged to be paid by Miles, Thompson and O'Brien, three of the convicted bribers. The court did not entertain the real question at issue, which was whether, several offences having been proved, there should or should not be a seperate penalty for each offance, but held that the appeal was irregular on technical grounds and quashed it.

A Centralia, Ill., telegram says; Hundreds of crates of strawberries have gone to waste in this locality, the prices getting so low that it did not pay to ship them.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

A MIDLAND MAN'S LETTER.

How the Boys Battled with the Sandbars.

Down the Swift Saskatchewan.

Soaking Wet Six Hours at a Stretch.

CAMP ON NORTH SASKATCHEWAN.
JUNE 7th, 1885.

DEAR EXAMINER,—To resume; we left Saskatchewan Ferry on Monday, May 11th, two companies of the Midland Batt., "G" and "H" and the 7th Fusiliers, of London, in all about 360 men on 12 barges. The flotilla presented, a rather picturesque appearance, decked out with small Union Jack's, and where these were not obtainable, scarlet and blue handerchiefs were used. On the start each two barges was lashed together, men placed on the fore and aft sweeps and others sounding the depth of water and everythingg seemed to go smoothly. The river, on an average, is twice as wide as the Otonabee, but is

SHALLOW AVD TREACHEROUS,

as we soon found to our sorrow. It is filled with reefs, quicksands, shoals and obstructions of every description. Just as we were pushing off we found poor Dick Kelly lying on the barge very sick. He was sent ashore, with some others, to be sent back to the hospital at Swift Current, and, at the present writing, he has not joined us. About noon we ran aground on our first reef, and about half of us had to take to the water and prise and haul her off. The barges now separated, finding they could do better alone. Nine of them were managed by the 7th and three by the two Midland companies, the whole force under the command of Col. Deacon. Our barge was in charge of Lieut. Brennan and carried the majority of our company, and a cargo of about 20 tons, consisting of supplies for Middleton—ammunition, etc. For the next ten days we were buried seeing nobody but our own men until we arrived at Saskatoon, on the ninth day. From beginning to end it was hard, laborious and dangerous work, from daylight until dark. Everything would seem to be going all right, the men on the bow singing out, "Eight feet on the right!" "Seven feet on the left!" when it would suddenly be "Three feet and a half," "Two feet," and then would come a "chuck" and we were fast—aground. Then "All hands out!" would be the cry, and into the water we would plunge, some on the ropes and some with hand prises, and we had to tow her into deep water,

IN A COMPLETE WILDERNESS,

FREQUENTLY HAVING TO SWIM

after her when she got afloat, and the water intensely cold. As we got further down the river we got into the reserve of the Sioux Chief, White Cap, and were in nightly expectation of an attack. The guard mounted every night, with loaded rifles, and strict orders to fire on any one who could not give a good account of himhimself after nightfall. On Thursday, 14th May, we got orders to all snub up together at night, for mutual protection; but we had bad luck, and found ourselves at ten o'clock at night surrounded on all sides by shoals, and unable to find a channel out of them. There was a heavy storm on, and it was very cold; so we let her drive on the sand bar, went to sleep annd slept calmly until five in the morning, when we had to spring into the water and drag her off. The boys did all this hard work in the expectation of getting to the Crossing in time to join Middleton. On Sunday, May 17th, we were working away the same as ever, and no one would know it was Sunday at all; but some of the boys—Billy Reynolds, Billy Browne, Joe Chrow, Ed. Daly, J. Beach, J. Roberts, and others—formed themselves into a choir and gave us some sacred music in good style. The singing was at its height and we were going finely on in a very swift current when a

WITHOUT A MURMUR,

GRINDING CRASH WAS HEARD

and we were swung violently around into the stream, and there we remained, stuck on a huge rock, with fifteen feet of swift water all around us. At first we thought she was stove in, but we soon found that not to be the case. Fortunately the shore was not far distant; so a dozen of us swam ashore with a line, and after a very hard tug we got her afloat and again had to swim for it. This, however, did not affect the health of the boys in the least, and they were often in the water for five or six hours in the day; not a day passing without our having a couple of hours of it at least. On the 19th we arrived at Saskatoon, and for the first time heard of the battle of Battoche—long after it was known at home The boys all hurried up to the village to see

THE POOR FELLOWS WHO WERE WOUNDED

there, at Fish Creek, and Cut Knife Creek. There were about a hundred of them altogether, most of them hopeful and cheery, but some of them, alas, beyond hope in this world. This sight stirred the angry and revengeful feelings of the men, and the wish to get at the "breeds" was stronger than ever. There were two of Riel's men here prisoners. I have forgotten their jaw-breaking French names, but one of them was one of the arch-rebel's councillors. He was desperately wounded, and bitterly regretted having anything to do with the rebellion, which is the feeling of the whole of them now. They both visibly shrank with fear at the sight of the red coats crowding forward to see them, evidently expecting us to destroy them at once. Here, also, we heard that Riel was captured, which DISAPPOINTED MORE THAN PLEASED US.

It seemed to destroy our chance of having a shot at them at all. That afternoon we met the "Northcote," coming up the river with a body of troops on board. We hailed them and passed on, little surmising that the man who has caused all the trouble, grief and bloodshed was a closely guarded prisoner on the boat, but such was the fact, as we found it when we reached the crossing next day. If the men had had the least suspicion that Riel was there I think he would have never cost the Government much for a trial, for the feeling against him is terribly bitter and our DISAPPOINTMENT WAS FREELY EXPRESSED.

Arrived at Clarke's Crossing we found, to our disappointment, that we were to remain there for some time, and we were not idle either, for all the stores which we had brought with us had to be handled two or three times. On Sunday, May 24th, we had divine service in the evening along with the 7th, which the men joined in very devoutly, but immediately after church we had to go to work, and work hard for three or four hours, for the river was rising, and, as it often rises 20 feet in one night, we had to move all the oats and provisions up the steep bank out of the way; but it only rose about three feet and went down again, so our labor was in vain, and we had to move it back again when we loaded the scows. On the next day with a parade and field day, all to ourselves, however, for the population of this place fled when the war broke out.

WE CELEBRATED THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY

I suppose you have seen astonishing accounts in the London papers of the time some of their barges made on the trip. Well, the reason they did so was because they threw their cargo overboard, and our barges were the only ones who brought a full cargo through. On Monday, the 1st of June, the first of the reached us, and reached us in good time too, for our cattle had strayed off and got lost, and we were reduced to fat pork, tea and hard tack and the boys were feeling very glum in consequence, but this was soon changed to the most boisterous jollity and kind wishes for the givers were heard on every side. On Friday, June the 1st, we got orders to march to the North Saskatchewan, and had to leave the most of our things behind, much to our disapointment. Ed. Daley of our tent received a pillow from home, and it is such a luxury that we take turns in borrowing it from him to sleep on, and No. 1 tent is bound to fetch that pillow through or

DIE IN THE ATTEMPT.

We arrived here on Saturday night an expect to leave soon for Battleford, and as they report Big Bear's band all broken up, the chances are we shall soon be at home again. The boys would like to be home again, but not without having a shot at the Indians, but the chances at present are much against that.

SCHOOL BOARD.

Special Session—Increase of Salary to Mr. Coleman and the Janitors—A Lady Teacher to be Advertised For.

A special meeting of the School Board was held on Thursday evening. There were present the chairman, Mr. J. Stevenson, and Messrs. Millar, Deane, Errett, Wrighton, Weir, Sproule, Stratton, Burnham, Rutherford and Sawers.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

ACCOUNTS.

An account from the Review Printing Co'y, for $5 60, was ordered to be paid on motion of Mr. Stratton.

RESIGNATION.

Mr. H. K. Colman handed in his resignation as Principal of the Public Schools, to take effect at the end of the term.

Mr. Dumble said Mr. Colman was a good teacher and must have some reason for resigning. His pupils all liked him, and he was, from all he could learn, doing good work. He would like to hear Mr. Colman give the reasons which actuated him in the matter. It was not desirable for this Board to part with a good teacher unless for some good cause.

Mr. Coleman, on being sent for, in reply said, a few weeks ago he applied for an increase of salary, which was refused him. When he came here he could have had $125 a year more elsewhere, but he thought, as the town was a good one, and growing, that if he did his work satisfactorily and well, that this board would be willing to pay him what he thought his services were worth. He was perfectly willing to remain here if the board wanted him, but they must increase his salary. He could get more elsewhere, and it was only to better his position financially that the thought of moving. In fact he had partly accepted a position—one of four offered him.

Mr. Rutherford thought the advance given Mr. Coleman should be in the way of promotion to a higher form.

Mr. Errett said there was no higher form in the public schools. He was at present as high as he could get.

The matter was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

ATTENDANCE AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Dr. Tassie's statement gave the number of pupils on the roll of the Institute for April as 130. The average attendance being 112. —Received.

ATTENDANCE AT PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The returns from the Public Schools gave the total number on the roll for May as 1047. The average attendance being 825.—Received.

FEES RECEIVED.

The Secretary stated the amount received as fees from the High School for the months of April and May to be $75 and $67. That from the Public Schools for the same months $12 and $13.50.

FINANCE REPORT.

Mr. Millar, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported verbally recommending the payment of Mr. Long's account, amounting to $10.50.—The report was adopted.

CLOSING OF THE SCHOOLS.

Dr. Tassie regretted the absence from school of a number of the pupils attending the High Schools so soon previous to the holidays. He believed this defection from what he could learn occurred regularly had at this season of the year, and had existed for a number years. He would lay before the Board at its next sitting the reasons as far as he would be able to ascertain. He thought it advisable under existing circumstances to close the schools on Friday evening.

Moved by Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Sproule.—That the High Schools close on Friday evening, 26th inst, and the Public Schools on Tuesday evening, the 30th.—Carried.

SEPARATION OF THE BOARDS.

On motion the matter of separating the High and Public School Boards and providing additional school accommodation was laid over, Mr. Dumble giving notice that he would bring it up at the next meeting.

INCREASE FOR JANITORS.

Mr. Sproule called the attention of the Board to the application for an increase of salary from Mr. Cole Barrett, janitor of the West Ward School. He thought that he was entitled to an increase, as he had additional duties and expenses in connection with his work.

It was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

The Board then resolved itself into a COMMITTEE OF APPOINTMENTS, and after dealing with the matters referred to them, resumed into a

MEETING OF THE BOARD,

when Mr. Dumble, as chairman of the Committee of Appointments, reported, recommending that the salary of Mr. Coleman be increased to $850, and that the janitors of the West and South Wards Schools be paid at the rate of $120 per annum, to take effect on the 1st of September.

Mr. Rutherford raised a point of order as to expenditure of money.

Mr. Stevenson held that the point was not well taken, giving as his ruling that the rule did not apply to reports of committees.

Mr. Rutherford moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Sawers, that that portion of the report referring to the janitors' salaries, be adopted, but that the increase of salary to Mr. Coleman be not adopted.

The report was adopted on the following division:

YEAS.—Messrs. Dumble, Errett, Millar, Stratton, Burnham, Weir, and Stevenson.

NAYS.—Messrs. Rutherford, Deane, Sproule, Sawyers and Wrighton.

A LADY TEACHER.

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Sproule that the secretary be instructed to advertise for a female teacher. Duties to commence after the holidays.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

A JUDGE ASSAULTED.

A Lakefield Litigant Lays Unlawful hands on him.

George Tanner attacks Judge Dennistoun.

The uncertainty of the Law, the bottom of the business.

The pretty little hamlet of Lakefield was stirred yesterday to its very depths with the excitement of a most painful and unusual instance of assault and battery, the assailant being a merchant of the village, and the assailed being the worthy County Judge of Peterborough, whose office as well as his venerable length of years should, one would think, have protected him from so unprovoked and serious an assault.

THE PRETENDED PROVOCATION.

It will be necessary, to have a full understanding of the matter to go a little into detail of the circumstances, that led up to the assault. Yesterday was Division Court day in Lakefield, and among the cases there was the suit of White vs. Tanner, to recover the price of a buffalo robe, which the plaintiff alleged the defendant was unlawfully detaining. Not long since, White lost a buffalo robe, it being stated that some parties, by way of practical joke, had taken it and thrown it on George Tanner's porch. Mr. Tanner advertised the robe, driving to Peterborough for the purpose. In the meantime, without having seen the advertisement, Mr. White heard of the robe in question and on going to Mr. Tanner's gave such a description of it as established his right of ownership. This Mr. Tanner acknowledged and was willing to surrender the robe but insisted on being repaid the $1.50 of expenses he had incurred in advertising it. White objected to paying this sum and Tanner refusing to give up the robe on any other conditions, the suit tried yesterday was the result. Mr. Tanner conducted his own defence and with the result, that often happens in case of a man being his own lawyer, that he was defeated in the case. Considerable feeling was displayed in the course of the trial and when a verdict was rendered against Tanner, he became considerably incensed and employed language towards Judge Dennistoun of a very violent and disrespectful nature, asserting that in the course of 20 years he had never got justice from his Honor. He also assumed that since the Judge had decided that he was to pay $15, the price of the robe in question, he was entitled to it, and proceeded to take the robe out of court, where it had been produced for purposes of identification. This the Judge refused to allow. Tanner becoming very violent, his Honor ordered his removal from court, which was done with the amount of force his resistance rendered necessary.

THE ATTACK.

It was thought that the matter would end here. Tanner had gone to his home, and after the court rose, the Judge was proceeding to his hotel in company with the Clerk, Mr. S. Sherin. The appearance of his Honor on the opposite side of the street seemed to revive Mr. Tanner's sense of his injuries, and crossing the street, as eye witnesses assert, without a word of warning, he with clenched fist on the side of the Judge's head, knocking him down. Of course all was great confusion. Judge Dennistoun was assisted to his feet, and Mr. Hull, J. P., and Mr. George McIlmoyle, constable, being at hand, Mr. Tanner was at once arrested, and after a preliminary hearing, committed to the county jail.

Though the assault is a serious matter, the judge being, as we are informed, according to an old statute, practically as on the bench, when going to or from court, yet the circumstances have

A HUMOROUS ASPECT.

It appears that George McIlmoyle, bailiff, brought suit against Sheriff Hall, to recover the amount of $32, as fees for taking charge of goods under seizure. The suit went against the plaintiff, and his indignation and disappointment roused his feelings against the sheriff, instead of the judge. At the very moment, or just preceding his assault upon Judge Dennistoun, Mr. Tanner was playing the part of peace maker and endeavoring to persuade Mr. McIlmoyle to forego any intention of visiting the latter's indignation upon the Sheriff. But the sight of Judge Dennistoun across the street seemed to have the same effect upon Mr. Tanner as a red rag does upon a bull. He suddenly forgot his pacific intentions, and, rushing across the street, committed the assault as above related.

We are glad to be able to report that Judge Dannistoun was not seriously injured, yet the consequences might have been very serious. His Honor is now three score years and ten of age, having been born in the memorable year of the battle of Waterloo—1815.

MR. TANNER'S VERSION.

In order to carry out the motto, "hear both sides," our reporter visited Mr. Tanner in jail this morning. His version of the story chiefly relates to his allegations of the injustice and unfair treatment he asserts he suffered during the trial. He says the Judge refused to allow him (Mr. Tanner) to examine the plaintiff; refused to accept the defendant's daughter's testimony; would not condescend to examine papers connected with the case, and that after deciding that the defendant was to pay the price of the robe, refused to let him have it, and had him ejected from the Court room with considerable violence. Mr. Tanner says the assault directly originated in this way. He crossed the road with the intention of appealing to Judge Dennistoun for a "re-hearing." As he advanced towards the Judge, the latter turned away his head with a "meering sort of smile," and then, Mr. Tanner says, he forget himself, and acted in a manner which he heartily regrets.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, JUNE 26, 1885.

OUR VOLUNTEERS.

We have had a great many suggestions offered recently as to the manner in which we should show our appreciation and admiration of the gallant services rendered to the country by the volunteers, on their return from the front. The subject is one of such importance that we may be pardoned if we refer to it again.

That the faithful, self-denying services of our volunteers in suppressing rebellion should be ackowledged in a fitting and proper manner, all certainly must willingly agree. On th at point there is, in fact, quite a consensus of public opinion.

But, in discussing the manner or form which this proposition should take, we find a great diversity of views. We have noticed that many advocate a public reception, a street parade, a banquet, a huge fete, a provincial holiday and an immense gathering, to be held (of course) in the city of Toronto. With all due respect, we fail to see that these "big shows," for which Toronto is famous, would be very gratifying to the returning volunteers. The men will come back in no proper condition for a public display, after such a severe contest with a retreating enemy, and with their clothing worn to tatters. Besides, as soon as they reach Ontario, all will be most anxious to return to their respective towns and villages, and, we submit, that it would only be a species of refined cruelty, to ask them to remain under canvas, for even a brief space, either in Toronto or elsewhere, that they might partake of proffered hospitality or be regaled by the most eloquent and patriotic speeches.

One writer says that massing the volunteers thus in Toronto and making arrangements for cheap fares with the railroads centreing there "will pay, by the promotion of acquaintanceship, brotherly feeling, mutual respect and esteem among the members of the Confederation, besides showing our appreciation of their services and sacrifices and by still further extending and establishing the spirit of patriotism and loyalty which the North-West rebellion has evoked."

There are surely better methods of rewarding the gallant men. Should we, should our country, refuse to offer them more substantial gifts? We grant that they have endured hardships and dangers. Whatever some of them thought on setting out for the front, their's been no pleasure excursion. They have borne trials and difficulties with unflinching courage and patient fortitude. Some of them have incurred no inconsiderable expense in furnishing (with shame be it said) their own outfits. They have all lost valuable time; and some could but ill afford it. They have given up good situations and left friends and luxurious, or, at least, comfortable homes at duty's call. Will it be said the mere pittance they will receive from the Government can compensate them for their faithful services? The loss of many a brave and gallant citizen soldier proves that they went forth to encounter both danger and death. And the number of wounded and suffering now in hospitals or sent home invalided, abundantly testifies their readiness to die on the battlefield, if needs be, in defence of their country. Under such circumstances, would it be honorable or just to refuse or neglect to offer them substantial rewards?

The Government has stated that it is their intention to give pensions to those deprived of their breadwinners in the unfortunate uprising.

They also declare that they purpose calling attention to the conduct of Canada's brave defenders and also to the necessity of showing them some special mark of appreciation for their faithful services. Now, could there be a better, a more fitting reward offered these men than an interest in the soil of the country in which they have so gallantly fought and to which they have restored, let us hope, a lasting peace. Many thousands of acres in the Northwest have been bestowed on political partizans and given away recklessly to railway corporations and colonizing companies' composed of friends of the Government. Surely it is only meet and right to reward our brave volunteers by granting each of them a quarter section of land for their invaluable services and as a token of appreciation? This would tend to the advantage of the Northwest, doubtless, in the end, and would unquestionably advance the settlement of the country at least to a limited extent. At any rate, it seems to us a very excellent and a praiseworthy plan for marking in an adequate way our appreciation of the noble work our volunteers have accomplished in the great Northwest and we hope when the question is considered in Parliament that a suitable grant of land will be made to each of these gallant men.

LAKEFIELD.

Strickland's New Steam Yacht Launched.

General Runaway and Smash up.

Camping and Huckleberries.

LAUNCH.

Geo. W. R. Strickland's new steam yacht "Sunbeam" was successfully launched on Wednesday morning and made a trial trip up the lake a mile or two in the afternoon and fully answered the expectations formed of her. She was designed and built by Mr. Strickland, the boiler and engine being supplied by Mr. Hamilton, of Peterborough. She is very handsomely finished and is a credit to her owner. She will be used for the work of the firm of R. & G. Strickland and for pleasure purposes.

ACCIDENT.

On Wednesday two men and a woman (the former heavily loaded with forty rod) with a livery rig from town, while turning the corner at Mrs. Phelan's on the full run upset, making a general smash up. The top was knocked off, shaft broken, seat damaged and one of the men knocked senseless. The woman escaped the horse; showed the marks of brutal usage, being covered with whales from the whip and hardly able to stand. The owner should make an example as it is often disgraceful the condition horses are in when they arrive here from town.

CAMPING.

The camping season has now set in and the prospects are that a larger number than ever before will visit our back lakes for a week or two of recreation and gipsy life. Strawberries are very plentiful and large this season, while the huckleberries give promise to be more plentiful than for some years past. Dr. Bell's family have already taken up summer quarters in his camp near Mount Julian; and a large party arrived by train on Thursday from Rochester, Bowmanville, Port Hope and Lindsay and proceeded by steamer Crwiser to the Burleigh Falls Hotel or camping grounds in Stony Lake.

Campbellford.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Thos. Rutherford, President of I X L cheese factory, the new building erected in Seymour west, a few weeks ago, sold the first make of cheese, comprising 45 boxes. He obtained 7 cents per pound for the lot.

The factory is now making about 300 pounds of cheese per day, and is receiving about 3,000 pounds of milk. This quantity comes from nearly 200 cows.—Herald.

PETERBORO'S PRIME CHEESE.

Meeting of Manufacturers.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held in the Council Chamber here yesterday afternoon There was a large attendance of members, including the President, Mr. Wm. Drummond, and Mr. Warren Taylor, Secretary. The buyers were Messrs. Green and Wrighton, Peterborough; Mr. C. E. Bartlett, Napanee; Mr. W. J. Flavelle, Lindsay, and Mr. Wm. Cook, Belleville. The following table shows the factories whose cheese was represented, with board and the quality and quantity for each:—

Factory.	Quality.	Boxes.

The bulk of the cheese offered was of the first half of June, the remainder being the last half of May, and all was of the prime quality which places the Peterborough cheese on a par with the best on the market. The bidding was not of the most spirited character. The highest offer was 6¾. till Mr. Cook made a tentative offer of 7⅛, but it was declined. Some disposition was shown to close if 7⅛ had been offered. No sale, however, was effected and in view of this fact the meeting was adjourned till next Thursday, the regular meeting to follow as usual. The cable quotation placed before the board was 37 shillings.

Cooking as an Art.

The man who presides over the kitchen in a first-class hotel is an absolute monarch. Nobody ventures to question his acts, and even his employers make their feeble suggestion in a deferential way. The modern chef is an artist as well as a student, and for his use is provided a library filled with all the standard works upon his art. Here he consults his authorities, and plans his campaigns of gastronomic conquest. In the kitchen are subordinates of many grades who look up to him with awe. The chef of a leading hotel in New York lately admitted a reporter to his inner sanctum, and there confided to him the great secret of the cooking art. This, it appears, is the making of sauces. "Everything in its raw state," says the oracle, "has a distinctive taste, but the cook's art is to bring it to the surface so that it reaches the palate. The secret in our profession is to supply flavors where they are absent and develop them when they are there, just as the painter makes his effect stand out from the canvas."—Boston Herald.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"I wouldn't worry about the cholera, dear," said a wife to her husband; "it isn't at all likely that it will reach this country." "I don't know about that," he replied nervously; "it might break out at any moment and we might have a frightful time. I—I think I had better pay the back pew rent, anyway."

"But I can't cook in that way, Henry; I don't know how." "Then why don't you keep trying till you learn how?" "Oh, I can't; I always spoil it." "Plague take a woman anyhow; she can't ever do anything a body wants done. A man can do anything." "No he can't. I'll tell you what a man can't do." "What's that?" "He can't mind his own business.

"What's the matter, Tom?" exclaimed a dozen sympathizing friends. "Matter?" blarted out the Texan, who imagined everybody must have heard of his misfortune. "Matter? Why, I have lost $10,000—twice the pay of a member of this house—on the races yesterday. Matter, Great Scott!" "It's too bad, Tom, but then——" "Yes, and the worst of it is," added Col. Ochiltree, savagely, "$10 of it was in cash."

IN THE GLOAMING.

"No; I have never had an opportunity of learning."

"Really! You miss a great pleasure."

"So I suppose; it is one of those pleasures of which I have always been compelled to be a spectator, the natural consequence of living in London," she said rather bitterly, for the polite indifference of his words stung her.

"Hard lines, Miss Cameron," he returned lightly, but with a quick upward glance at her.

"Which?" she asked sharply. "Living in London or not being able to skate?"

"Both, I should say."

"Ah, you were always devoted to the country!"

"And you to town," he retorted

They had stumbled upon an unlucky subject. His tone was suspiciously indifferent, his eyes looked determinedly at the fire, and the old restless trick of moving the ornaments seemed to have returned.

"How different he is!" thought Geraldine in the sudden silence that followed the introduction of the dangerous topic.—"I wish Alice would come."

In a few moments the door opened, and Lady Netherby, in full evening dress came into the room.

"Why, Geraldine, the carraige is ready, and you are not dressed! Do you know how late it is?" she said.

"I am not going, Alice. I hate dinner-parties!" was the pettish reply.

"Not going! But, Geraldine I can't go——"

"Oh, yes, Alice, you can, I know! I hate dinner-parties and all belonging to them; but say, something pleasant in my behalf to Mrs. Preston."

Lady Netherby unfurled her delicate ivory fan in dismay.

"Harry," she called out to her husband, "here's Gera at the last minute refusing to go! What is to be done?"

Sir Henry came in.

"Why, what's the matter, Gera?"

"Nothing! Don't tease me; I'm tired of dissipation. You must let me off this time."

"Let you off! Nonsense, Gera!"

She raised her eyes appealingly to him.

"You were always good to me, Harry," she said. "Don't make me go; I am so tired."

Sir Henry gave a sharp glance at her, and uttered an emphatic "Hem!"

"What a capricious girl you are! Come along, Alice," he said offering his arm to his wife to lead her to the carriage. "Scarsdale, we can give you a lift to Branscombe."

"No, thanks; I shall walk, replied Mr. Scarsdale, moving from his place by the fire. "But I promised Mollie to go and see the new school-room this evening. Is she up there?"

"Yes," said Lady Netherby, "and will be only too delighted at any interruption to her lessons. Gera, I think you will have a fit of repentance in five minutes' time," she added as she left the room.

A grave "Good-night" and the most formal of bows from Mr. Scarsdale, and he was gone also. Had he seen the pained wistful look on the fair face before him, he might not made his farewell either so brief or so cold.

So Geraldine was left alone with her own thoughts, which were not very profitable ones. She sat on in her low seat by the fire, looking with sad yearning eyes into the past. What had those four years of luxurious gaiety, of brilliant success, done for her—four years of the great world! Were they not all a confused medley of driving, dancing, dining, of rushing from house to house, from soiree to conversazione, from fete to ball, from scientific reunions to five-o'clock kettle-drums—a weary toil of slight shams and social delusions! And now what was left her! A dreary loneliness, a longing for rest, a passionate wish that she could stay forever where she was, and never go back to the whirl of excitement, the memory of which made her brain ache and throb.

But it was her own fault, her own choice. Four years ago she had put her chance of happiness away from her—she would none of it; and now nobody wanted her, nobody was the better or happier for her existence. She had bartered the true love of a good man for the fascinations and glitter of her world and they turned to dust and ashes in her mouth.

"No, he does not care—he does not even remember!" she sobbed. "Too late—too late! I did love him; but I loved myself better."

After a while she brushed aside the tears with an impatient gesture, and rising moved about the room, taking up now a book, now an ornament, and replacing it mechanically. At the piano she stopped, and then sat down and began to play low dreamy melodies, at last breaking into the accompaniment of a song. Presently she began to sing the words softly.

A door behind her was partly open, and the shadow of a man, fantastic and shapely, fell upon the firelit wall; but she did not see it. In the quiet gloaming with nothing but the firelight shadows and silence in the room, she sang softly and sweetly the mournful refrain of the sad passionate song—

"How could I tell I should love thee to-day
Whom that day I bade not dear?
How could I know I should love thee away
When I did not love thee anear?

Over and over again she sang these words, as if their mournful passion had some charm for her till at last her voice failed, and, with her eyes full of tears she turned again to the fire. She stood close in front of it, and rested her head against the chimney-piece, never noticing a tall figure standing in the deep shadow of the recess on the right-hand side. Presently the figure moved forward; the man's face was grave and stern.

"Geraldine!"

She started and looked up.

"Mr. Scarsdale!" she said in astonishment.

"Yes, it is I. Do you remember this day four years ago?"

"Yes," she replied, avoiding his steady look.

"Did you 'hold me dear' that day?"

No answer came at first; but a vivid blush rose slowly to her cheeks and crept over neck and brow.

"I wait your answer. Did you 'hold me dear' that day?" he asked gravely.

"Yes," she said simply.

"Then why did you send me away?"

There was a long pause. Geraldine glanced at his face—it was inflexibly grave and stern.

"Because—because," she faltered; then recovering herself—"I will not be questioned; you have no right to ask."

"I take upon myself the right. Will you answer me?"

"No," she said defiantly, roused by his cool persistence.

A slight smile crossed his face.

"I think you will," he said quietly.—"You loved me, yet you sent me away. Did you think my love would fail you?"

"No," she replied unwillingly, compelled to answer by the authority of his manner.

"Did you doubt your own for me?"

"Only for a while; then I knew," she said mechanically as a child answers questions.

He smiled again.

"Were you afraid of your life with me?"

She hesitated for a few moments. To answer that would be virtually to own herself wrong, and be a confession of her pride and her foolishness. She glanced again at him; but his grave face showed no sign of relenting. At last her better self conquered.

"No—only the manner of it," she said humbly.

He put out his hand took hers, drew her close to him, and bent down and kissed her lips.

"Do you fear it now, Geraldine?"

"No—oh, no!" she murmured, resting her head on his shoulder. "Arthur will you forgive me?"

"Some day perhaps. Ah, lady mine, you have kept me waiting long; but I knew you would be true to yourself at last; and I could afford to wait for my wife!"

THE END.

A little Common Sense and a worn-out Joke met on the bank of the canal. "Where have you been?" queried the Joke. "Been having a mighty hard time of it," said the little Common Sense. "I tried to get employment in the coming convention at Chicago, but the democrats say they will have no use for me. What are you doing nowadays?" "Me? oh, I have plenty of work," responded the Joke, cheerfully. "When the evening papers drop me I go the rounds of the New York City police justices."—Troy Telegram.

They sat side by side on the car, says the Detroit Free Press, talking politics, and presently the man in the white plug hat inquired: "Colonel, whom do you consider the greatest living orator?" The colonel coughed, stroked his chin whiskers, and made no reply. At the end of the block he got off without a word, and a passenger on the opposite seat leaned forward and said to the white hat man: "That's a pretty blunder you made! Why he's the very man himself!" "Is that so?" gasped the other, and he ran to the platform to watch him out of sight.

An English electric journal has discovered the following popular fallacies concerning lightning, viz: That chewing the splinters from a tree struck by lightning, will cure the toothache; that such splinters will not burn; that the bodies of those killed by lightning shock do not become corrupt, and that no one is killed by lightning when asleep.

When General Sherman visited the Atlanta Cotton Exposition he passed through a small town in North Georgia which, when he last saw it, was a small forest of chimneys. The population of the town came to the depot to see the old warrior, who stood on the rear platform of his car shaking hands while the train stood still. One man in the crowd sang out: Hello, Giner'l; you ain't forgot us, has you?" "Not quite, my friend; I was here about twenty years ago. But what have you done with all your chimneys?" "O, they're standin' yet. We have just built new houses around 'em." The General laughed heartily at this. He said afterwards it was one of the best evidences of the rebuilding of the South.

Clocks are comparatively a modern invention. The sundial was the first time measurer. Before that, time was regulated by the length of shadows cast from a fixed object. The book of Job refers to it. Then there was the water clock, first used by the Chaldeans; they were also used in Babylon, and the Romans had them in 160 B. C. Calmet speaks of the custom of the Cistercian monks being called to their devotions in 1120, by a striking clock. Dante, who died in 1321, also refers to one. In 1364 Henry de Wyck erected a clock in the palace of Charles V. of France. Richard Harris, of London, invented the pendulum in 1641. Clocks, as we have them, originated in England. In 1790 wooden clocks were first made by James Harrison, of Waterbury, Ct. Gradually the demand sprang up for a better article, until now we have clock factories manufacturing this indispensable article by the thousand, at prices ranging from $1 into the thousands.

AND HAVE THEM SUBSTANTIALLY BOUND.

—READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:—

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed."

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Prof's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Light to moderate, winds, fair warm weather, with a few local showers, mostly in south-western Ontario.

Well Done.

The Montreal Times says :—The Peterborough EXAMINER is prospering. It now appears daily as an evening paper. Well done, EXAMINER. Long may you continue to exist in that form, and carry on the good work of instructing the people in principles of Reform and honest Government.

The Race at the Rink.

The mile race between W. Logan and W. Loch takes place to-night, the latter having consented to use the small rollers which Mr. Logan thinks will put him on an equality with his opponent. A close and exciting race may be expected. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. Don't fail to see this exciting race.

Musical Concert To-Night.

A rich treat is in store for all who will assemble at Bradburn's Opera House this evening; when the children of the convent, assisted by the St. Peter's Cathedral choir, will give their annual musical concert. Programmes have been issued, and by them it will be seen, that the music throughout the entire list of numbers is from some of the best authors; and we have no doubt it will receive most creditable interpretation from those who will take part in the concert.

Laying Corner Stone.

The corner stone of the new St. Andrew's Church will be laid by Mrs. Robert Nicholls on Monday next at 4 o'clock p. m. The Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, M. A., B. D., Toronto, will be present at the ceremony and will remain during the evening. A large representation from the Presbytery of Peterborough and other friends from a distance are expected. Refreshments will be served immediately after the ceremony in the S. S. room adjoining. Addresses by visitors and friends during the evening. 23-2t

Visiting Oddfellows Arrive.

The Oddfellows from Stirling to the number of about 50, accompanied by many other residents of that village, arrived in town this morning at 10.20 by the Grand Junction Railway. They were met at the station by a deputation of the local brethren and escorted to the Hall of Otonabee Lodge. The Stirling Brass Band, numbering thirteen pieces, accompanied the excursion and played during the progress of the brethren from the station to the hall. The visitors—at least the majority of them—visited the Foresters' hall and were struck with admiration at the beauty of the spacious room

James Norley's Body Found.

The body of James Norley, the little fellow who was drowned on last Saturday evening, above Roger's dam, was found about 11 o'clock to-day by one of the river men, at present engaged in letting the logs out of the Little Lake. The man was, at the time, looking for stray logs in the dead water of Point St. Charles; and noticed the body of the boy floating in the water, and at once communicated the news to Chief Johnston, from whom the parents received the information about 12 o'clock. The remains were at once conveyed to Ashburnham to the residence of Mr. James Norley, the father of the unfortunate child; and were interred this afternoon in the Little Lake Cemetery, in compliance with medical advice.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 12d-25w-1y

FUN, FROLIC AND FRESH AIR.

Tara Grove, Ennismore, the Scene of Festivity.

The annual pic-nic held in connection with the Roman Catholic Church of Ennismore, came off yesterday at Tara grove, in a shaded spot, in that township, about two miles from the lake, and a beautiful place it is for such gatherings. It was customary in former years to have it at Chemong Lake park, situated at this side of the lake, and had it been held there yesterday, we are of the opinion that a greater number of our towns-people would have been present, as the objection which a great number of persons have towards crossing the lake on the floating bridge would not then present itself. As it was, however, a large crowd from town put aside their daily labor, and donning their best "bib" repaired to the grove in vehicles of various descriptions. One of our prominent merchants engaged Abraham McIlrim, the Italian harper, who has been in town for the past two or three days, and drove that worthy musician to the pic-nic grounds in a hack on one-leafed springs, behind the best pair of steel-greysto be had in Peterborough. Others followed, and the time passed joyously on the way by the rendition of the "Marseillaise," in vocal and instrumental music. The majority of the Peterborough people reached the scene of festivity about 1 o'clock, and judging from the appearands of the crowd, one would naturally conclude that in Ennismore was there assembled. Among the visitors were noticed Rev. Father Conway and Father O'Brien, Peterborough; Rev. Father Connolly, Downeyville; and the Rev. Father McEvoy, Fenelon Falls; Mr. Page, of Montreal. Of course the Rev. Father Keilty was there, and by his genial and hospitable ways saw that everybody enjoyed themselves, and enjoyed themselves well. Old and young were to be seen, taking part alike, in innocent and healthful amusement. Those who had ample scope to indulge in that recreation; and during the course of the afternoon the spacious pavilion, which was erected for that purpose, was scarcely five minutes without having its surface covered by twenty-four couples, who danced jigs and reels to the music of a first-class string band. We might here mention, that the event of the day was an Irish reel, which was danced by Mr. Patrick Galvin, a gentleman eighty-two years of age, who, although having survived over four score of winters, beat excellent time to "The Wind that Shakes the Barley," and other airs dear to him, in a manner which would do credit to one half his age. The committee of ladies who were in charge of the five large tables, where an excellent dinner and tea were provided, are to be congratulated on the manner in which they performed the duties assigned them, and the Rev. Father Keilty should feel proud of having such parishioners to second his efforts towards making a success of everything that he undertakes to further the interests of his parish. About three o'clock were commenced and at five ended with the following result :

EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD

THE ATHLETIC SPORTS

PUTTING THE STONE.—1st, M. C. Collins, 27 ft. 7 in.; 2nd, C. Flynn.

HOP STEP AND JUMP.—1st, M. C. Collins, 40 ft 5 in.; 2nd, J. Sullivan, 38 ft. 4 in.

STANDING HIGH JUMP.—1st, M. C. Collins, 4 ft. 8 in.; 2nd, L. Connors, 4 ft. 6 in.

VAULTING WITH POLE.—1st, J. Hawkey, ft. 6 in.; 2nd, P. Flood and L. Connors (ties), 8 ft. 5 in.

ONE HUNDRED YARDS' RACE.—1st, A. W. Vance; 2nd, M. C. Collins.

QUARTER MILE RACE.—1st, J. J. Sheehy; nd, A. W. Vance.

THREE QUICK JUMP.—1st, M. C. Collins, 34 ft., 10 in.; 2nd, J. F. Sullivan, 33 feet, 10 in.

CLOG DANCE.—1st prize, Patrick Toomey.

IRISH JIG.—1st, R. Tierney and Miss Collins.

About 6 o'clock the day's engagement was over and some of the visitors on their way to town favoured the Bridgenorth villagers, and other residents on the way, with music from "Abraham," and impromptu choruses.

Remember.

The grand concert and closing exercises of the Convent of Notre Dame will take place on Friday, the 26th, inst., at 7:30 o'clock p. m., in Bradburn's Opera House. Doors open at 7 o'clock. Admission 25 cents, reserved seats 50 cents. 21-4d

Worthy of Warm Support.

The Dundas Banner says :—The Peterborough Weekly EXAMINER has for a long time held a place in the front rank of progressive local papers, and its enterprising proprietor has now begun the issue of a daily edition, which is a credit to him and to Peterborough. The new venture is worthy of warm support.

Off The Track.

Last evening, at about twenty minutes past seven, as engine No. 141, with a heavy load of square timber, in charge of Conductor Bell, was nearing the switch off from the Lakefield branch on to the Grand Junction division, the engineer saw that the switch was open, and immediately whistled for brakes, at the same time "plugging" his engine; but, owing to the heavy up grade, it had been necessary to put on full steam in order to get over this grade, and consequently the engineer could not stop the engine in time to prevent her running off, leaving the tender with the remainder of the train on the rails. The Belleville passenger train, due here at 7:50 was, of course, unable to pass over until the track was cleared. The passengers and mail were conveyed from Ashburnham to town in carriages, without much delay. It seems that the gang of men in charge of the timber train had not been over this branch more than once, and were not posted about this switch. However, with the assistance of an engine from town, the damage was soon repaired.

Police Court.

Mr. Ed. Brown was up before the magistrate this morning on a charge preferred against him by Thos. Beavis, Town License Inspector, for running a roller rink without a license. Ed's case was adjourned until to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock, when the popular manager will again occupy an orchestra chair before his worship.

Wedding Bells.

Captain Carson, who has been sailing on the waters of the Otonabee river for a number of years, decided recently that he had been ploughing the deep too long without the assistance of a mate, to guide him in his way through life; and on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock St. Peter's Cathedral was the joyful scene of the marriage of that gentleman, to Miss Mary Collins, of this town. The bride, who wore a lovely dress of cinnamon brown, was assisted in the ceremony by Miss Nora Powers, who was tastefully attired in a harmonizing costume of golden brown. The captain was assisted by James Strain. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Conway. The happy couple were the recepients of numerous gifts including a handsome china tea set, from the employes of Mr. H. LeBrun.

BOROUGH BREVITIES.

—Decoration day has made a brisk demand for flowers.

—The Cemetery looked at its finest to-day. Mr. Kelly has shown himself equal to the occasion.

—The Oriental floats its flag in honor of Decoration Day.

The High Schools close on the 26th inst., and Public Schools on the 30th.

—The uniform of the Stirling brass band, in town to-day, is striking in appearance, and their music is also very creditable.

—The value of the cheese on sale at the Cheese Board here yesterday amounted at the figure offered, to over $10,000.

—There was practice at the butts yesterday, by the members of the Rifle Association.

—Mr. H. Kay Coleman, principal of the Peterborough Public Schools, has tendered his resignation to the board.

Loch and Logan will toe the scratch once more to-night, at the Lansdowne Roller Rink, for a mile race for a private medal.

Mr. G.S. Mathews of thistown, went last night via C. P. R. to Quebec, from which port his two sisters will sail on Saturday, for England.

George and Willy were the best men on the way to the Ennismore pic-nic yesterday; but on the road back, both of these gentlemen had to succumb to the winning graces of the hack driver.

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade.

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1885.

DECORATION DAY.

The Oddfellows Order's Odorous Oblations.

Beautifying the Abodes of the Brethren of the Bright Beyond.

Little Lake's Silent City the Scene of the Ceremony.

Yesterday was Odddfellow's day, a day which was observed for the third time in Peterborough by that Society, in a manner most appropriate for the occasion, the ceremony of decorating the graves of their departed brethren, being carried out at the Little Lake Cemetery. The day was intensely hot, a circumstance that was noticeable all along the route to the necropolis, many persons resting by the wayside in every spot where the slightest shade was afforded.

We stated in yesterday's edition of the EXAMINER that the Stirling order of the brethren had arrived to take part in the ceremony, and at two o'clock in the afternoon, the visiting representations, together with the local brethren, assembled at the Otonabee Lodge rooms, Cluxton's block, preparatory to falling in for the procession. George street was alive with pedestrians, eagerly waiting for the commencement of the march. Every business place in Peterborough was closed, with one or two exceptions, which fact added even more to the immense throng that had gathered in the streets to witness the proceedings. Shortly after two o'clock the brethren assembled and began the line of march, and as passed down George street, headed by the Stirling brass band, each member bearing in his hand a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers, with his breast also decorated with a smaller one, and a ribbon badge or official jewel, the walks on either side crowded with spectators, the scene was a most impressive one, and demonstrated how the idea of decoration day and the solemn ceremonies and associations surrounding the occasion had taken possession, not only of the minds and fancy of the brethren of the order, but also of the general public. The following was the order of the procession:

W. Galley, Marshall.
Stirling Band.
Stirling Lodge.
United Lodges of Otonabee and Peterboro'.
Fire Brigade Band.
Officers of United Lodges including visiting Officers.
Mount Hebron Encampment.
Carriages with officers, containing Mr. W. Cluxton one of the oldest Past Grands of the order, Mr. James Stevenson, P. G., Robert Rowe, Treasurer, Mr. J. C. T. Lacey, P. G., Peterborough Lodge No. 111, and Dr. R. W. Bell, D.D.G.M.

The greater portion of the road leading to the cemetery had, very thoughtfully, been watered and consequently there was not that stifling cloud of dust attending the usual parades. The cemetery was reached about 3 o'clock, when the ceremony of decorating the graves was commenced after the recitation of the Noble Grand's address and Chaplain's prayer, which were read by Brothers G. B. Sproule, N. G. of Otonabee Lodge, and W. J. Minore, Chaplain, respectively. Below is the list of the graves which were decorated in the following order:—

Bro. S. Albro, Otonabee Lodge.
" Col. McDonald, Otonabee Lodge.
" Conger, " "
" Reed, " "
" Dr. McNab, " "
" Baptie, Peterborough Lodge.
" Bell, Otonabee Lodge.
" Hamilton, " "
" Hall, " "
" Wrighton, " "
" Jenkins, " "
" Sawyers, Peterborough Lodge.
" Ferguson, Otonabee Lodge.
" Scott, Peterborough Lodge.
" Harvey, Otonabee Lodge.
" Martin, Peterborough Lodge.
" Beckett, " "
" Hall, Otonabee Lodge.
" Hughes, " "
" Robertson, " "
" Perry, " "
" Fortye, " "
" Dr. Allen, " "
" Dr. Bennet, Peterborough Lodge.
" Tully, Otonabee Lodge.
" Carlyle, Peterborough Lodge.
" Beal, " "
" Vizard, Otonabee Lodge.
" White, Peterborough Lodge.
" Foley, Otonabee Lodge.
" Rubidge, Peterborough Lodge.
" Haggart, Otonabee Lodge.
" Fraser, " "

At the Cemetery there was an unusual attendance. The crowd seemed deeply interested in the solemn and impressive ceremony. The graves of the Oddfellows, after the floral offerings had been deposited, were literal mounds of brilliant bloom. The Cemetery was in its richest garb of green and highest state of culture and care. On leaving the "silent city," the band appropriately played "The west By e and Bye," and was assisted by the brethren chanting the same in a soft, mournful voice, which had the effect of adding considerably to to the solemnity of the occasion. On account of the lateness of the hour, the Stirling brethren had to leave a little before the proceedings were concluded, in order to be in ample time for the train, which did not leave, however, until after five o'clock. The Peterborough contingent marched back to town, the Fire Brigade Band leading, and repaired to the G. T. R. station, where a selection of beautiful airs were played, as the train moved off with its two hundred and fifty passengers for the east.

NOTES.

The main entrances to the cemetery were beautifully decorated with evergreens dotted with small floral wreaths, bouquets of flowers, etc., and bore the following mottoes: "Glory to God in the Highest," "Abide in Him," "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord," "Rejoice in the Lord," and "Nearer my God to Thee."

Previous to the decorating of the graves of the departed brethren the procession was drawn up in line near the Mortuary Chapel and the hymn, "Nearer my God to Thee," was beautifully rendered by the members of the various lodges, assisted by the soft accompaniment from the first and second cornets, tenor and euphonrum of the band.

Creditable.

The Colborne Express says:—"The Peterborough EXAMINER commenced as a daily on Saturday last—good size and otherwise creditable."

New Uniforms.

No. 3 Company (Ashburnham) of the 57th has received forty-two suits of new uniforms. Application was made for the other companies, but they have not yet received their new uniforms.

Murray St. Baptist Church.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will preach at 11, a. m., and 7, p., m. His subject in the morning will be "A thing to think about;" and in the evening "The son of Shaphab."

Loch and Logan, Lap for Lap.

The mile race on rollers at the Lansdowne last night, between W. Loch and W. Logan, drew a crowd of between 800 and 1,000 spectators, and was a most exciting contest. Each man made lap for lap, with Loch, however, leading from the start, and coming in a winner by about three yards. Messrs. Wm. Lasher and W. H. Wrighton were judges. The first heat, best three in five, of the boys race for silver cup was won by Willie McFarlane. The Fire Brigade Band was present, and the floor was covered with skaters between and after the races. Everything passed off smoothly.

BOROUGH BREVITIES.

—Workmen are making George street much smoother by removing the large cobble stones that were so frequent on its surface.

—The water works company has received a large consignment of six inch mains, to be used in extending the system.

—There was no quorum of the members last night when the hour for beginning Town Council operations arrived.

—Barnum's circus gives Peterborough the go-by this time. It must have deteriorated, for it shows in Cobourg in September.

—The timber trade is booming. Half a dozen drives have passed down the river this spring with several more to be heard from.

—Matthews' new slaughter house for his pork packing establishment is in use.

—Last Tuesday's lacrosse lesson has had its effect. The members are getting down to diligent practice.

—"The Pearl" is the name of Mr. Faucher's new steam pleasure yacht.

—The new fountain in the Court House Park is in running order. It presents a beautiful appearance.

PARLIAMENTARY SUMMARY.

The first amendment in Supply of the session was moved last night by Sir Richard Cartwright, and supported in a speech in which he reviewed, with his usual ability, the financial condition of the Dominion. He compared the rate of increase in expenditure and taxation under the periods of Conservative Government with that of the Mackenzie administration, from 1874 to 1878, to show that the figures had run up much more rapidly under Tory rule. He likewise drew a comparison with the financial condition of the United States, which showed that while our rate of taxation is going up year by year theirs was rapidly on the decrease. The whole showing, he alleged, was the natural result of a Government by bribery and extravagance. He contended that instead of having increased our gross debt by two hundred millions since confederation, we should have been able to get along with at least half that sum, and there was nothing to have prevented us from being a lightly taxed people, if inability had not marked the management of our finances from the outset.

His amendments set forth the facts of his speech and declared the necessity for stronger measures to reduce the expenditure and lighten the burdens of the people. In the absence of the Finance Minister in England Mr McLelan replied on behalf of the Government. Mr. Charlton followed in support of the amendment at an early hour when there were few listening, and Supply was reached after negativing the amendment at two o'clock in the morning. The Canadian Pacific Railway resolutions were concurred in yesterday after a number of Opposition amendments had been voted down by the House. The amendments were all in the line of throwing greater safeguards around the large interest held in the enterprise by the Government and the public. A bill to carry the resolutions into effect was introduced by Mr. Pope and read a first time.

Lindsay Cheese Market.

The regular fortnightly cheese market was held in the council chamber, Lindsay, Wednesday afternoon. There was a good attendance and the market showed a better condition than at the previous gathering, though there is still plenty of room for improvement. 751 boxes of cheese (first half of June) were reported by salesmen and offered for sale:—

J. W. Flavelle bid 6¾.; sold for 7c. subject to inspection at the factory, to Dundas & Flavelle Bros. The next cheese market will be held in two weeks—Wednesday July 8.

Lindsay.

The energetic action by the committee and directors of the central exhibition with regard to having a grand stand erected at once on the fair grounds is worthy of recommendation. It will be, in rough figures, 20x200 feet and of height sufficient to give a fine view of the grounds.

It has been deemed advisable to have the church service in connection with the laying the corner stone of the new St. Paul's church on Tuesday evening, 30th June, so as not to interfere with the holiday festivities on the morning of Dominion Day. Canon DuMoulin of St. James cathedral, Toronto, will preach.

There is much sympathy expressed for Mr. Edward Daly, of this town, in the great affliction that has happened to him in the death of his wife. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Mrs. O'Connell, of Downeyville, one of the first settlers of Emily, and was greatly esteemed by all who knew her.

The vote on the Scott Act will take place on Thursday, July 23rd. The central committee are making arrangements for a vigorous prosecution of the campaign during the next three weeks.

A TRIPLE VICTORY.

Mr. Mowat Carries all the By-elections.

Hon. Mr. Mowat scored a triple victory yesterday in the by-elections. The Liberal candidate was elected in the cat-constituency, Lennox by a majority of 13, Mr. Drury defeated the Ottawa candidate in west Simcoe, and in West Algoma the Reform candidate was elected by a handsome majority, and it is almost certain that the election on Monday will return Mr. Lyon, in which case Mr. Mowat's majority in the house will be increased to 17.

Released on Bail.

Mr. George Tanner, committed for assaulting Judge Dennistoun, was admitted to bail last night, and released from confinement.

Severe Shaking Up.

About 1 o'clock to-day Mr. A. Ball, a gentleman advanced in years, fell down the stairs between the two stores of Messrs. T. Dolan & Co. It was thought at first that Mr. Ball was badly hurt, but on Dr. O'Shea being brought in it was found that the injuries sustained were not very severe.

Canoe Parade.

There was a good turn-out of canoes last night, but owing to threatening weather the parade was postponed till Monday evening, when the Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance, using the occasion to give their usual weekly public concert.

Magnificent Steamers.

Diagrams of the magnificent C.P.R. steamers, that ply on the upper lakes, are now placed in Mr. A. Elliott's, C.P.R. office, and passengers can secure their staterooms on these steamers, before leaving Peterborough, by application at Mr. Elliott's office. This will add to the popularity of the Canadian Pacific Railway route, west.

Methodist Church Services.

Sunday services in the Methodist churches to-morrow will be as follows:—Charlotte street church—11 a. m., Rev. I. Tovell; 7 p. m., Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D. George street church—11 a. m., Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D.; 7 p. m., Rev. I. Tovell,—evening subject, "A woman's beautiful life."

Personal.

Mr. H. K. Coleman has we understand decided to accept the increased salary of the Board and remain in town.

Mr. H. H. Smith, Dominion Land Commissioner, Winnipeg, arrived in town last night.

Rev. F. H. Wallace will occupy the pulpit of the George street Methodist church on Sunday morning, and the Charlotte street in the evening.

Mr. Stone, of Peterborough, addressed several meetings in the interest of Mr. Hawly, in Lennox last week. By the result of this election yesterday, the Mowat government speakers seem to have the confidence of the electors of Lennox.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

Stole His Melons.

Over on the West market square a vegetable farmer stood by the side of his wagon, which was piled high with watermelons, telling some of the dealers in cabbages and onions of his experience in raising a crop.

"I hef der most troubles mit der schmall poys, but I ketch on alretty, and I betcher finif tollar dey don't forget it pretty gwick. Der schmall American poy ish too fly, what you call 'ems. Vell, vos day ven der melons vas getting ripe pretty gwick I saw a schmall poy over der fence looking around, and I sayt, 'You skip owit or I'll take you in to der perlesces.' Den he sayt, 'I vas lose my pase pall in here, and vould you please let me find him alretty?' and I sayt, 'Yes, of course; get der pall, mine fine little man, and then get yourselluff ober dot fence so gwick as will surprise yourselluff.' Vell, every day ten or twelluff times der poys vould lose der pall in der melons and come to me and ask if they could find him again. Bimeby I sayt, 'Poys, you vas good poys, and I will gif you a melon.' So we walked down to der patch and so help me gracious more as a wagon load had pin stholen avay alretty. Efery times dot dose doys hat gone in for der pall dey had taken avay a melon. Ven dey shump der fence and call me 'Dutchy,' I sthand on der top board and sayt: 'Oh, yes, you call up Dutchy, but I'll betcher you dont forget right avay Dutchy's little party in the melon patch. Who vas it proke your poses, eh? Who vas it make der schwelling on your het? Who vas it dat make your coat-tails schnap?' Vell, ven dey carry each odder avay I picks der melons and prings dem to town for sale."—Chicago Herald.

Mr. T. Matsdaira, a Japanese, has been elected to the office of chief engineer of the city of Bradford, Pa. He is probably the first representative of Japan ever elected to any civil office in the United States.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1885.

PROGRESS OF THE TOWN.

The observer cannot help but note with surprise, whether he be a resident or casual visitor, the great growth of Peterborough, and the activity of her building operations. There are, indeed, few of the minor cities that can approach the town in the general excellence of her business blocks, public buildings, private residence or tenement erections. Compared with other towns, the advantage is entirely with Peterborough. A spirit of enterprise in one way accounts for the facts alluded to, but the influence of good example has had an important effect. Much credit is due in this respect to Mr. Geo. A. Cox. The rapid progress in the improvement of the buildings on George and Hunter streets especially, have followed the erection of that fine pile of buildings known as the Cox block on George Street. This was speedily followed by the erection of the post-office block, and the infection of example spreading, other fine business blocks rose on George and Hunter srteets; existing structures were remodelled and improved, furnished with mansard roofs, etc., till George street has grown an avenue of beautiful business structures unsurpassed by any town in Canada. Not only in business blocks, but in the erection of creditable tenement erections has the good example alluded to been set. The beautiful new tenement row on Rubidge street would be a credit to the finest avenues of a city; and the new residence for Mr. Roper, on Hunter street, now nearly completed, is a splendid sample of the more pretentious residences. The contributions of such gentlemen as Messrs. James Stevenson, Thomas Bradburn, Wm. Cluxton and others to the erection of the fine class of public and private houses that distinguishes Peterborough, have also been of a very important character. The example thus set has led to a general imitation, and every year we can notice a great number of superior structures going up in every quarter of the town. The development of a higher architectural taste has been very decided and general, and the new buildings of all kinds that have gone up within the past two or three years have been of a first-class order, whether business block, church, villa residence or cottage. No less surprising than the excellence of the class of buildings added every year to Peterborough is the unusual number. But in spite of all this activity in adding to the roof trees of the town, house hunting is a very discouraging and difficult undertaking. A drive over the town will hardly reveal a single vacant tenement, and where such may exist, by some chance, it will be found that some unfortunate tenant has had to desert it and "double up" with some obliging friend or enter a boarding house or hotel, so that the building he occupied may be improved or enlarged. Croakers may have been heard within the last two or three years dismally predicting that the building business was being outdone. But so long as tenants for both business and residence buildings are more plentiful than these houses, there need be no fear of any danger from the application of undue enterprise to building operations. Not only in public and private buildings, but also in their surroundings is a beautifying spirit observable. Peterborough people have every reason to be proud of their beautiful town and its enterprising citizens, and they can accept with the complaisance of conscious merit th complimentary praises that all visitors invariably bestow upon the veritable hub of the Midland district.

Cobourg.

The Cobourg Lacrosse Club has accepted an invitation to play a match game at Kingston on Dominion Day.

On Friday last the Oshawa Cricket Club visited Cobourg and played a match game at the Lakeside Park with the first eleven. The visiting club was badly "scooped" by a majority of 49 runs and one innings to spare.

The June matriculation examinations in connection with Victoria University are in progress during the present week. There are 27 candidates, of whom one is a lady. This is a good number for June; and these, added to the ones who will come up at the regular matriculation in September, will constitute a large Freshman class—that is, if all succeed in passing, as we hope they may. The outlook is, thus, very favorable.—World.

KEENE.

The New Presbyterian Church Dedicated.

Splendid and Searching Sermon on Sunday.

Able Addresses on Monday Evening.

As there is somewhat of a dearth of local or special items this week, it may be as well to confine ourselves to the topic of the day, that is, the dedication for Divine worship of the new Presbyterian church here, which took place on Sabbath last. Rev. Principal Caven, of Knox College, Toronto, arrived on Saturday, and was entertained by James McNeil, Esq., to whom is due much commendation, for his great zeal and untiring exertions on behalf of this (for the country) unusually handsome edifice. On Sabbath morning the weather seemed a little doubtful, but the clouds dispersed, and long before service time, carriages, filled with well dressed visitors, lined the different roads to Keene as far as the eye could reach.

THE CHURCH WAS CROWDED,

benches and chairs being placed in every available space, even the pulpit platform was filled. From far and near, across the lake, Cobourg, Toronto, Lindsay, Peterborough Lakefield, Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford, and other adjacent localities they came, aye, and came early, so that the service was not interrupted by rustling entrances, or distracting goings to and fro, as is sometimes the case on such occasions. Everything was done "decently and in order."

The pastor of the church opened the proceedings with the usual order of service and the Rev. Mr. Tozeland followed the sermon with a most beautiful and fervent prayer for the well-being of the church, the congregation and all who were to come after in this noble work.

PRINCIPAL CAVEN

took the tenth verse of the eighty-fourth psalm as his text. "For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand and, &c., &c.," and in a masterly manner made clear to his hearers the true meaning of those words of David regarding divine worship. He is a most impressive speaker, his ideas are arranged in perfection of simplicity, and yet are profound in their reasoning depths—clear and terse in their expression, earnest and persuasive in their delivery; some peculiar truths were brought home to us with vivid eloquence, especially the memory of the opening of the great Jewish Temple, when the presence of the Creator in the form of a cloud moved in and took possession of the Holy of Holies. This thought was presented with such startling reality that a peculiar hush was felt and the people seemed to be under the overshadowing influence of the same mighty presence around and above us all. It was a wonderful sermon and was listened to with unbroken attention by the entranced audience.

IN THE EVENING

the Rev. gentleman discoursed from the sixteenth verse of the fourteenth chapter of St. John, which is the beautiful promise of the Comforter, that is to be sent to abide forever with the believers. Again he charmed his eager hearers with the rich treasures of his mind and heart, and made us feel the power of the truth. Truly he showed us the blessings of the new covenant, and the way to obtain "the Comforter," and most fervently did he implore all present to be wise in time. We will never forget those grand sermons, they are engraved indelibly on many a heart. The plate collections on Sunday amounted to over three hundred dollars, and the social or tea meeting on Monday, realized above two hundred more.

THE SPEAKERS ON MONDAY EVENING

were the Rev. Messrs. Tozeland, of Keene, Bell and Torrance of Peterborough, Carmichael of Norwood, and the pastor of the Church. It is impossible for us to do justice to the eloquence of those gentlemen. One followed the other in a flashing stream of wit and humor, and, mingled with these lighter elements was a powerful tone of religious fervor. Each speech was unique, Mr. Bell's being highly logical in argument and pungently persuasive. May his shadow never grow less. Mr. Tozeland's, earnest and affectionate, generously delighted with a sister church's prosperity. Mr. Carmichael, taking for a subject "The age in which we flourish," was brilliant, eloquent, impressive or amusing, as the spirit moved him, and carried his audience with him in breathless enthusiasm. Mr. Torrance followed in a short but most effective speech, delighting his hearers with his graphic touches, and making us wish heartily that his address was much longer. Then Mr. Andrews gave us many incidents and reminiscences of his earlier career in this locality, convulsing his delighted hearers with his quaint and witty descriptions of the ways, manners and means of the olden time, and giving us many delightful thoughts to carry away and smile over when we would recall the "then and now." James McNeil, Esq., also made a speech, though not on the platform. It was to the point, and, when referring to the ladies, eloquent in the extreme. Also Mr. James Drummond gave us a short speech from the floor of the house that showed the professional gentlemen on the platform that all the talent and fire were not confined to "the cloth" but were developing in our staunch yeomanry, and may yet be heard in higher halls.

The chair

and between the speeches the newly organized choir, with Miss Moore as organist, made sweet music, and added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. The usual votes of thanks were given and accepted, and the meeting broke up at a late hour and all went to their homes satisfied that "the opening" had been a grand success, and all that had begun, continued, and ended well.

On Tuesday afternoon following, there was an auction sale of the many tempting edibles that were left over from the social. Such quantities of lovely cakes, delicious pies etc., could not help but go quickly. The sale passed off pleasantly, bidding was rapid and satisfactory, all being sold at good value. The result of the auction was over twenty dollars, making the aggregate nearly five hundred and fifty dollars cash, which is not bad for such an occasion in a tiny country village—but the township is a generous and well to do one—the whole community a cheerful giver, and such must needs develop their principles in practice as well as theory.

The Dominion election in South Grenville has been hurried on, in the belief that the Liberals may be taken at a disadvantage, but it is reported that the supporters of Mr. Blake are preparing to make a stout fight for that seat. The nominations have been fixed for July 4th.

Bobcaygeon.

The three drives of logs have passed through. Hazlitt's and Ulyott's are down in the Narrows, and Hilliard's is following close behind.

Wild strawberries came into the market on the 17th. They were then ten cents a pound. The crop is abundant, and almost any quantity can be bought at eight cents a pound.

There are some 43 applications for the lockmastership rendered vacant by the death of Mr. Edward Kelly. The salary attached to the position is $300 a year. The patronage is in the hands of the local member, Mr. Dundas. Not to be partial we wish them success.—Independent.

Omemee.

On Tuesday and Wednesday last Messrs. Jos. Hayes, A. H. Toole, Thos. Newman and three others, went down to Pigeon Lake and were successful in catching sixty-five maskinonge. On the same days Messrs. S. Grandy and W. Bradburn caught in Pigeon river, seventeen bass and lunge.

On Sunday evening last, Ethel, youngest daughter of Dr. Norris, had a narrow escape from death by drowning. She was on the iron bridge, and by some means fell off the end of the stone abutment to the water below, a distance of about twelve feet. Fortunately the water was deep or she might have been dashed to pieces on the stones nearer shore. Mr. Robert Johnston, who was on his way to church, saw her fall, and as quick as a flash he jumped in and rescued her from a watery grave.—Herald.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. DR WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. We Met at Toulon.

THE ROMANCE OF A VOYAGE.

It was at Toulon railway station. Why I was there, or where I was going, I don't exactly remember, so much having happened since, and I, at the time, having no reason to go to one place more than to another.

The express train from Paris had just come in.

She was standing a little aside, just out of the crowd and bustle, looking on, scanning every face as it passed and repassed, mine among others, and, as I fancied, with more interest than others. Her face was very pale, and her eyes were anxious, but she looked calm and self-possessed.

By-and-by I saw her speak to an elderly woman who stood near. She received, I fancied, a hurried, not over-courteous answer, for I saw a flush rise to her face as she turned away.

By this time the platform was almost clear. Such passengers as were going on had departed to refresh themselves; others had gone to their resting-places. The railway officials began to regard this solitary figure curiously.

Raising my hat, speaking to her in French, I ventured to ask if I could be in any way of any service to her.

A shade of perplexity or disappointment crossed her face when I thus addressed her.

She answered, in better French than mine:

"I was to have been met here, but I see nobody. I am disappointed. I must wait here."

Again lifting my hat, I left her, but only to pace the platform and think about her.

As the minutes passed by, I thought she looked paler and paler. At last, as I approached her nearer than in my other turns, she came a few steps toward me."

"Will you be so kind—" she began, in English; then correcting herself she spoke French.

I smiled.

"I am English, as you are."

"O, I am so glad!" she said, quite childishly. Then she added: "Will you tell me what to do? I am come direct from London. I am going to my brother, who is ill in Rome. Some one was to have met me at Toulon, and I know nothing about the route beyond this."

"Were you to go by land?"

"Yes; my brother forbade me to travel by water. Sea-traveling half killed him, and he won't let me try it."

"Well, if you wanted to go by land, and quickly, you ought to have gone by Chambery, across Mount Cenis, by Susa, Turin, Milan—"

She turned so pale that I paused. She looked about for some resting-place. I gave her my arm, led her to the waiting-room, got her a glass of water and a cup of coffee, begging her to drink the latter.

She obeyed me, and as soon as she could speak, it was:

"You will tell me what to do now? My brother is very ill, perhaps dying. Will it be best to go back to—to the place you spoke of, or, as I am here, to push on by this route? Which way is the quicker?"

"Where is your luggage? The train starts for Nice in five minutes. Perhaps it were better to push on by this route, now that you are here."

She rose directly.

"I have no luggage but what is in that bag," pointing to one I had taken from her when I gave her my arm. "I left London at an hour's notice, in consequence of a telegram. Are you going any further by this route?"

"Yes."

"Would you kindly, while you are traveling the next stage, write me down directions?"

"Certainly."

The ladies' carriage into which I looked was full, so I handed her into another, and got in myself; and as that small hand rested in mine, a curiously strong conviction entered my mind and rested there.

I seated myself opposite to her, and having said, "We shall have plenty of time to talk it over before we get to Nice," I feigned to be fully occupied with route-books and maps, in order to give her time to recover herself.

She did not speak to me; she turned her face to the window. I thought she was interested in the fascinatingly romantic scenes past which we were flying.

By-and-by a gentle, stealthy movement of hers, a little hand slipped into her pocket, and then her handkerchief lifted to her face assured me she was crying.

I am always afraid of a woman who is crying. A man is a brute who can speak a harsh word to a weeping woman, and a kind one often changes a mild trickling of the salt waters to a deluge; so I left her alone.

She kept her hand, and her handkerchief in it, and her face turned toward the window as much as possible. I began to hope she would fall asleep. I believe I myself did fall asleep for a few moments. By-and-by I was roused by the falling of a book from my hand. When I opened my eyes I found my opposite neighbor's fixed upon me with a look of waiting for the opportunity of addressing me. She had left off crying then, but she was looking very wan and "

She had her purse open in her hand.

"Shall I have money enough?" she asked me, holding it toward me, when I gave signs of being fully awake.

I took the little, poorly-furnished purse in my hand.

"O yes if you don't get cheated; and, as I am going to Rome by this route, I will see to that, if you will allow me."

"You are going to Rome?"

Such a light in the eyes and such a pretty, transient flush over the delicate face!

"Yes."

It was the state of her purse that had finally decided me.

She put the purse I returned to her back in her bag. After that, and when I pretended to be looking in another direction, I saw her small hands folded together, and was confident that her lips formed the words, "Thank God." Somehow I was more touched than I could have told reason for by this.

Two old ladies and old gentleman were nodding in the other compartment of the carriage.

For a long time I did not stir hand or foot, or look at my neighbor, hoping that, her mind more at ease, she might catch the infection of their drowsiness. She did. When I did venture to look at her she was asleep. Her hat lay on her knee; her head was leaned back in the angle of the cushions. The light of the carriage-lamp—it had grown dusk now—slanted down from the bright hair, threw a shadow of long lashes on the pale cheek, fell on the pretty, round white throat; but it did not look easeful sleep—the mouth retained lines of anxiety and depression.

Contemplating the graceful little figure before me, I fell into musing as to who she was. From a ticket affixed to her little bag, I discovered that her name was not unfamiliar to me, and yet the familiarity of it carried me far back into the past.

"Hawtree!" I kept repeating. I questioned and perplexed myself to no purpose; but, by-and-by, when I had given up, or imagined that I had, thinking about the matter, it all came to me.

Hawtree was the name of an old drawingmaster of mine; Hawtree was the name of a young schoolfellow of mine; Hawtree was a name that for two or three years I had seen in the Royal Academy's catalogue as a painter of pictures which had struck my fancy—mostly scenes in the country round Rome, cattle and peasants of the Campagna.

For the sake of the name as much as for the pictures themselves, I had purchased some two or three, wondering if that young artist Hawtree was my young schoolfellow Hawtree.

I now determined that the two should certainly be one, and that one the brother of my little companion, who must as certainly be the "Sister Ruth" of whom he had often talked—a baby girl then, and the object of his almost idolatrous affection.

While she slept, I furbished up my memory as to all matters regarding the two Hawtrees—father and son; and at length I was anxious the tired little sleeper should awake, quite resolved that Frank Hawtree, her brother, was my very dear friend.

My charge—so I now regarded Ruth Hawtree—moaned in her sleep in a faint, distressful sort of way.

I bent toward her. We were stopping at a station. She roused herself.

"Could you get me a glass of water?" she asked. "I am so sorry to give you trouble."

"You feel ill—faint? I'll be back directly." I sprang out. I brought her a glass of water, into which I had put a little cognac. "You needn't be afraid—it's not too strong; it will do you good. I'm a sort of a doctor."

She took it with a grateful, confiding look, and drank it.

"You are better now?" I said, as I jumped into the carriage.

"O, yes, thank you! I had been dreaming painfully of Frank, my brother."

"I have made a very pleasant discovery while you were asleep, Miss Hawtree," I said, pointing to the ticket

Rhymes in the Mails.

Some very curious and funny letters are received at the Dead-Letter Office. The outside of some is more unique than the inside. The following are the addresses on the envelopes of several which have found their way to the Dead-Letter Office. They show the poetical bent of the writers:

"Fly little messenger, quick and straight,
To Humboldt County of Iowa State:
Fly, little messenger, and seek with care
For Miss Annie Fahey, you'll find her there."

Unfortunately there was no stamp on it, and the matter-of-fact P. M. hustled it off to the Dead-Letter Office.

A trusting parent writes on the envelope of his letter:

"Please send this letter to my son, who drives a team of red oxen, and the railroad runs through his place."

Another envelope has:

"Bummer's letter, send it ahead,
Dead broke and nary a red;
Postmaster, put this letter through,
And when I get paid I'll pay you."

Another envelope has this address:

"James Irwin. Try all over the State."

Still another brief address is:

"H. A. Kenyon, P. M., Ill."

A would-be housekeeper puts on the envelope:

"P. M. Please forward to the physician who was looking for a housekeeper in St. Louis last week; is a widower with two children; don't know his name."

This is no doubt an answer to an advertisement. It is a pity the widow did not get it.

Another envelope has:

"To General W. Knowles this letter is sent,
To the town of Brighton where the other one went.
No matter who wrote it—a friend or a foe—
To the State of New York I hope it will go."

But it went to the Dead-Letter Office instead.

Another envelope has:

"Hello! Uncle Sam; let me go in your mail,
As I've taken a notion to ride on a rail
To Illinois State, and there let me stop,
And in McLean Co. just please let me drop;
In LeRoy P. O. there let me lay,
Until Reason K. Gay takes me away."

But the P. M.'s reply just below says—

"Played out, my dear boy.
There is no use in talking,
If you can't pay your way
You'll have to try walking."

One who was careful to pay postage wrote—

"Now haste with this letter as fast as you can,
I've just paid your fare to good Uncle Sam;
The case is quite urgent, so don't stop to think,
Don't tarry for lunches or even a drink,
Lyman street you will very soon find,
Where the people are honest, good-natured and kind,
Frank Taylor, the man to whom you must go,
Is 46 Lyman street, Cleveland, Ohio."

—Washington Capital.

"Let's drive a spike," is now the proper way to invite a Montana man to take something.

The Midland Employes' Pic nic.

"After discussing," says the Lindsay Post, the advantages offered by a number of points the committee having charge of the details connected with the annual pic-nic of the Midland Railway employes (it comes awkward to say Grand Trunk) have decided that Lindsay is the most central point. Hutton's grove has been selected, and the date fixed for it is Saturday, July 25th. We wish the employes a jovial holiday, and they well deserve the utmost pleasure that can be taken out of the occasion.

Reported for Duty.

Yesterday noon Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D., the newly appointed pastor of the Charlotte Street Church, and family arrived in town. They were met at the station and welcomed by the officials of the church, Messrs. James Stevenson and W. A. Morrow, and were driven to the residence of Mr. Stevenson. They will be his guests pending the preparation of the parsonage, for their reception. Considerable improvements are being made; new carpets are being laid and the devout Dorcases of the congregation in the character of careful and trouble martbas, for the occasion, are attending to numberless little details, necessary to make the new home of the new minister as comfortable as possible.

Dominion Day.

The grandest exhibition that has taken place in Peterborough for many years, will come off in Peterborough on July 1st, Dominion Day. As we stated some time ago, the great military pageant will strike the trail at 1:30 p. m., sharp, moving from the post-office corner, headed by bands of music, bands of Indians, and the competing lacrosse clubs. In the procession will be represented the celebrties of the Northwest rebellion, conspicuously prominent, being characters of Middleton, Riel, Otter, Strange, Dumont, Big Bear, Spotted Tail, Beardy's Ghost, Yellow Calf and Strike-him-on-the-Back. Each of the noted chiefs will be guarded by bands of their faithful braves, bedecked with war paint, locks and feathers. The noble commanders of "our boys" will be guarded by mounted police, sunburned veterans and Gatlings. During the afternoon, prizes will be awarded at the Driving Park to the winners of the various Indian races, as well as to those wearing the finest costumes. The lacrosse match between the Torontos and the home team promises to be the best contest which has taken place so far, and the largest crowd of the season is expected on the grand stand.

You cannot get Pedestal Bottom Extension Tables for $7.00, worth $12.50. Call him Extension Tables for $6.50, worth $8.50. Handsome Bedsteads for $3.50, worth $5.00, all hardwood, at McKee's Furniture Warerooms, Water street, three doors north of Simcoe street. 1-d

MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT.

By the Convent of the Congregation de Notre Dame.

The annual closing exercises of the Convent de Notre Dame, took place in Bradburn's Opera House last evening, and were a rare treat to all who had the good fortune to be in attendance.

His Lordship, the Right Rev. Bishop Jamot presided, attended by several clergymen, and a most appreciative audience filled all the seats for over two hours. The musical exercises were of a superior order, and reflected the highest credit upon this department of the branches taught.

The programme opened by the "March Triumphale," a trio upon four pianos, two organs and violin, the latter played by Prof. Doucet, a musician of great ability, who, kindly consented to mingle the soft and melodious tones of the violin, with almost all the pieces played during the evening. The young ladies who took part were, Misses A. Lynch, E. Ladgate, C. Menzies, E. Ormond, B. Menzies, E. Halpin, A. Mercier, M. E. Cahill, P. Simons, L. Green, E. Hartley, on the piano, the organs being handled by Misses B. Lech and E. Cook.

The "Salutatory," "Youthful Memories" "Exhibition in Calesthenics," were then very creditably carried out by the pupils of all ages. It is not necessary to go into details in describing the dialogues, choruses, solos, etc., which took place in their order. The singing on the part of the children was simply beautiful and was another evidence of the careful training given them by the good sisters. The 8th number of the programme was the soprano solo and quartette, Inflammatus, one of Rosini's grandest productions, sung by the members of St. Peter's choir. In this motet, Miss Begley, a vocalist of more than ordinary talent, again proved the faultless purity, melody, and flexibility of her voice. In making these special comments we can only add in justice to the others who took part in this piece, that each and all fully deserve the meed of praise, "Well done."

The exercises terminated with the singing of "God Save the Queen" by all the pupils, accompanied upon pianos, organs and violin.

The entertainment was in every respect a success. His Lordship said, in his response to the "Address," the best place to judge an educational institution was in the class-rooms and the examinations had proved that for a thorough mental and moral education for young ladies, no institution offered inducements superior to the convent; which was heartily applauded. His Lordship made some extended remarks to the young ladies, and then referred in eulogistic terms to the schools, the devotion and painstaking of the good sisters.

The audience dispersed with feelings and expressions of pleasure and praise. The vocal and instrumental music was pronounced excellent by gentlemen and friends very competent to judge. The following is

The Markets.

The square to-day was unusually well attended; the heavy shower last night followed by bright sunshine this morning seeming to have the effect of putting farmers in humor for coming to town and making liberal investments in dry-goods, etc. Prices were very fair for produce, potatoes selling for 35 cents, eggs 13 cents, and butter 16 cents.

Found at Last.

John R. Clarke, the versatile orator, of Michigan, has discovered the secret of holding a vast audience at his command. For pathos and humor alike, for fine descriptive and eloquent characterization, Mr. Clarke deservedly stands in the first rank. Don't fail to hear him on Tuesday evening next, June 30th, in Bradburn's Opera House, subject "Among the Masses." Tickets only 25 cents. Doors open at 7, lecture begins at 8 o'clock

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade.

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

No Respecters of Persons.

The members of the police force, connected with the bucolic department thereof, exhibit a stoical impartiality in the discharge of their duties. On Saturday afternoon ten head of cattle belonging to his worship the Mayor, broke out of their proper quarters, and, coming under the eagle eye of our boulevard guardians, were swooped down upon and corralled in one of our local pounds, which transaction increased the keeper's spoil by five dollars.

Struck by Lightning

During the progress of the storm yesterday afternoon, the residence of Robert Johnston, Smith, was struck by lightning and shattered to a considerable extent. One gable end was torn off and the building badly wrecked. No one was injured, though one of the boys had a narrow escape. He had just undressed and before he could get into bed the shock came and the bed was covered with bricks and plaster, while he remained uninjured, though stunned by the shock. We cannot learn the loss at the time of writing.

Annual Picnic.

St. Luke's Church Sunday School will hold its annual picnic at Hastings on the 9th anniversary of the Parish, Thursday July 9th. Trains will leave Peterborough at 7.30 a.m., and Ashburnham, where the school children will be taken up, at 7.45 a.m., returning at 7.30 p.m. The excursion from here will be joined by the Hastings Sunday School, where a pleasant day will be spent in the beautiful picnic grove of Hastings. Tickets, adults 55cts., children 10cts.

The Opening Sermon.

Previous to his first sermon in Charlotte street Methodist church, yesterday, the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Wallace, complimented the congregation on the immense improvement effected in the church within the six years since he was here. Unless he had other means of knowledge he would not have known the place on entering it. He recognized, he said many familiar faces, but he could not call them by name, and he hoped his congregation would facilitate acquaintanceship by making themselves known to him in their casual meetings. He also announced that in future there would be a slight change in the services. He would request the congregation to follow him in repeating aloud the Lord's prayer, something he thought that would beautify and give dignity to the services. After the sermon there would hereafter be a short prayer, before the collection was taken.

Unquiet Eygpt.

Conflicting English and French Interests.

PARIS, June 27.—M. Waddington at the conference with Lord Salisbury renewed the demand that an early date be fixed for the withdrawal of the British troops from Egypt and suggested the reconstruction of the Egyptian army of mixed Egyptian and Turkish mercenaries. He also suggested a change in the administration from the khedive downward. Lord Salisbury limited his reply to the statement that Egyptian affairs were under consideration.

BOROUGH BREVITIES.

—Saturday and Sunday were "scorchers."

Spaulding's Bay, day after day, makes the people hold their "beaks," and wish it was away.

—Quite a number of our local flyers intend competing in the races at Wallis' Grove on Dominion Day.

—The corner stone of the new St. Andrew's Church is being laid as we go to press to-day.

—If there comes a thaw there will be a big fleet of canoes on the Little Lake this evening.

The Peterborough Cricketers intend to play a match on Dominion Day with the team which will accompany the Sons of England excursion from Toronto.

—Thirty candidates will write at the third and second class examinations that take place on July—from the 6th to the 15th inclusive, Sunday of course excepted.

—Upwards of fifty boys were in bathing at one time down at the sandy point yesterday afternoon.

Does the Street Inspector intend leaving the sidewalk on Alymer street, south of Rink street, in its present unfinished state?

Two men engaged in a rather lively set-to on Saturday at the corner of George and Brock streets. The little fellow came out best.

—The boys will soon be returning from their Bear hunt,

—The long vacation commences on the 1st of July.

—The examinations for entrance to the High School takes place on July 2nd and 3rd.

—The Brants, of Brantford, held the Western District championship medal for exactly the same length of time that the Peterboroughs held the Central trophy. A remarkable coincidence.

—Over 116 applicants have given notice of their intention of writing at the entrance examinations. If all succeed in passing, the High School building will have to be enlarged.

—There will be a special meeting of the Foresters, Court Peterborough, to-night at 8 o'clock, when the report of the picnic committee will be made and other important business attended to.

—The Cretes, a junior lacrosse team of this town, will play a match on Dominion Day with the Albion's of Toronto, on the grounds at the Driving Park, after the conclusion of the match between the Toronto's and Peterborough's.

Personal.

Right Honorable Sir Michael Edward Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer in Lord Salisbury's new Cabinet, is a near relative of Mr. Hicks-Beach, of Lakefield.

Mr. C. B. Beck, accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Green, of Toronto, and five others, left this morning for Gravenhurst, from which point they intend to make their way to the Lake Nipissing district, for a fortnight's camping.

Messrs. C. A. Lawford, of the Montreal Bank, and J. Morris, of the Ontario Bank, were in Toronto on Saturday participating in the bank sports. In the quarter mile race the latter representative took second place, and was only beaten by two-fifths of a second. The time made was 55 seconds.

A Murderess at Twelve.

BARNESVILLE, S. C., June 27.—Rebecca Samuels, 12 years old, has been convicted of the murder of Lucy Graham, a six weeks' infant, she was nursing. She soaked the child in a pot of lye. The only theory for the crime is that the prisoner killed the child to escape the duty of nursing it.

All Goods selling cheap at the "Ten Cent" Store.

THE BRITISH SITUATION.

The New Ministry Settle Down to their Work.

A Liberal Irish Policy Outlined.

PEELING ITS WAY.

LONDON, June 27.—The Tory Government is still carefully feeling its way along. Even Lord R. Churchill has become prudent. Since his party has had the responsibility of Government thrust upon it the young orator has exhibited surprising repressibility, and has judiciously held both his pen and his tongue. In view of the impatience of all Britons to know what the policy of the new Government is to be, all this is remarkable.

IRISH AFFAIRS.

The only Minister of the new Government who has up to date publicly addressed his constituents is Arthur James Balfour, Tory member of Parliament for Hertford Borough, which he has represented since 1877. Mr. Balfour is but 37 years of age, and is a son-in-law of the Marquis of Salisbury, the new Prime Minister, whose private secretary he has long been. The selection of Mr. Balfour for the important office of Chief Secretary for Ireland must be looked upon as especially significant, because he knows the inner views of Lord Salisbury upon the whole Irish question, and is the only man who has ever been permitted by the present premier to speak for him. Hence Mr. Balfour's speech has attracted profound attention. The most striking utterance in Mr. Balfour's address was the unqualified declaration that he "desires not less than Mr. Chamberlain to see Ireland governed by equal laws with England, and to see all exceptional legislation against the Irish people forever abolished."

EARL SPENCER'S EXIT.

DUBLIN, June 27.—There was a much larger crowd of prominent people at the farewell reception of Earl Spencer to-day than was anticipated. The rooms were so densely thronged that it was difficult for those present to move about with any degree of comfort. The Earl in the presence of the assembled guests knighted Secretary Kaye and Commissioner Greene for the part they took in making the recent visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Ireland a success.

Every precaution was taken to prevent invincibles from perpetrating an outrage, and packages destined for the castle were carefully examined before being conveyed inside the building for fear they might contain dynamite.

Economy Called For.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

As a ratepayer of considerable extent, and as a firm believer in the principle that the practice of economy should be applied as rigidly to municipal as to private matters, I wish to call the public attention to a circumstance that, to me, seems to require a change. A number of years ago when the gas company began to supply gas, the price was some $4.50 per thousand feet. The contract of supplying street lamps was based on those figures which were reasonable at that time. But with improved processes of manufacture, and an increased consumption, the company has been able to reduce the price to private consumers and private corporations to $2.50. Notwithstanding this, however, the town council extends its area of street lamps, and, I understand, still paying for them on the basis of the original price of gas, that is to say at $4.50 per thousand. Why this should be so there seems to be no reason, except a neglect on the part of the people's representatives to look as closely after the money contributed by taxes as they would after their own private affairs. This is a matter that should, in the interests of the town, be inquired into. There is no reason why the gas used by the corporation should be paid for at a price nearly fifty per cent. in excess of that paid by private consumers. While on the subject of light I might call the attention of the Council to the fact that the electric light system which we have in Peterborough is equal to any in Canada, and the light supplied at a lower rate. It is worth while to consider whether a more extensive adoption of it for street lighting purposes would not be in the interests of the town. The Electric Light Company has always shown a disposition to deal fairly and liberally with the public. The town is growing very rapidly and an extension of the system of street lighting will have soon to be considered. The city of Ottawa has adopted the electric light on all its streets, and the price is higher than Peterborough would probably have to pay for the same service. The present price for the electric light in town is lower than that obtaining in any other part of the world, and I believe that a more extended use of it would be met with a corresponding reduction in price. When the city fathers are considering the anomalous difference in the price of gas paid by the town as compared with private consumers, it might be wise to consider from a new standpoint the rearrangement of the system of street lighting. The true economy is to secure the best results from a given expenditure.

Yours, etc.,

ECONOMIST.

From Weary Watching,

The Care of Her Child Drives a Mother to Suicide.

GANANOQUE, Ont., June 27.—The village was startled this morning by a report that Mrs. Dr. Fraleigh and her baby were missing. The baby has been sick ever since it was born, last October. The long and anxious watching affected Mrs. Fraleigh's mind and lately she had shown signs of mental aberration. Yesterday the doctor was away at Napanee, and arrived home about daylight this morning. On entering the house he could not find his wife or child. Becoming alarmed, he roused the neighbors. About 6 o'clock Mrs. Fraleigh's body was found in a stooping position partly lying in the water at Squaw point. She was quite dead, and had evidently walked from the house to where she was discovered. The baby has not yet been found.

RETURN OF THE TROOPS.

Indignant at the Delay.

HOME AGAIN—ANOTHER DAY FIXED.

FORT PITT, June 27, via Strasbourgie, June 27.—Gen. Strange's column arrived per the steamer Northwest from Frog Lake this morning. The review of troops is being held to-day, and the start for home will be made to-morrow or Monday.

GETTING READY.

The steamers are loading up with wood preparing for the transport of troops down the Saskatchewan to Grand Rapids, where they will be met by Captain Robinson, with two steamers and three barges from Winnipeg.

SPORTS.

The troops at Fort Pitt are having three days' sports to while away the time until the day for departure arrives.

TO BATTLEFORD.

The steamer Alberta is taking the McLean and Mann families to Battleford, whence they proceed to Winnipeg to live.

INCENSED AT THE DELAY.

The troops are incensed at the delay in starting for home, and attribute the blame to Gen. Middleton, who is said to be terribly obstinate.

WANDERING SPIRIT THE MURDERER.

Chief Factor McLean believes Wandering Spirit murdered Quinn, Delaney and Gilchrist; that Perkasoos murdered the priests, and Manitoos Mr. Gowanlock.

Lakefield.

(From our Own Correspondent).

ACCIDENT.

On Saturday a young man called Boulton came down from Burleigh to get a dislocated knee attended to. He had been injured by a log while clearing up a fallow, and will be able to resume work in a few days.

PULPIT NOTES.

On Sunday the pulpit in the Methodist Church was occupied by the Rev. Mr. Learoyd in the morning and the Rev. Mr. McFarlane in the evening, they being the new ministers for this village. The Presbyterian pulpit was filled by the Rev. Mr. Hyde, of Montreal.

STORMS.

The edge of a heavy thunder storm passed over the village on Sunday afternoon, but later on in the evening we had the most severe storm of the season, the thunder and lightning being unusually loud and vivid. We have not heard of any damage being done, while the rain was very welcome.

Smokers!

Beware of cigars artificially flavored for the purpose of hiding the poor quality of tobacco used in flavored cigars. Insist upon having the old reliable brands—"CABLE" and "EL PADRE." 13d-25w-1y

A Washington Bar-Room.

The old, gray-haired negro who tended the bar was in himself a curiosity. He told as he filled my glass that he had been tending this same bar for thirty-five years, and that this saloon was the chief resort in former times of the statesmen of the capital. Said he: "I have often seen Clay, Webster, and Calhoun drinking here together. Henry Clay and Daniel Webster used to be here night after night. Clay always drank brandy juleps, and his spirit rose rapidly under the influence of liquor. Webster drank considerable, but the only observable change in him was that his eyes grew brighter and his talk became if anything more measured. Calhoun seldom drank strong drinks, and usually took either lemonade or sherry, and often nothing. He would come in to talk. They were lively fellows in those days, and they liked their fun just as well as the big men do now. They often played cards here."

"Did they gamble?" I asked. "No, not for money, but generally for the drinks. I remember a game of cards Clay and Webster and two other men played here one rainy night. They played here for the drinks and smells. The men that won drank, and those who were defeated paid for the drinks and were forced to smell of the glasses of their opponents. They started in at 1f o'clock and they played until 2. Luck was against Clay, and I don't think he won a drink during the whole evening."—Washington Correspondence Cleveland Leader.

A coroner's jury in McLean county had occasion to render a verdict in the case of a lynched horse-thief. They reported that the man had committed suicide by riding under a telegraph pole, throwing the rope over the crosspiece and fastening it about his neck, then spurring his horse onward, leaving him "with nothing under him and looking up the rope." Truly, the facetiousness of a McLean county jury is something wonderful.

Two bank presidents, two receiving tellers, four bank cashiers, a county treasurer and a city auditor constitute the aristocracy of the state's prison at Trenton, N. J. And the bank presidents, each of whom has got away with his million, just tolerate the receiving tellers, who were moderate in their appropriations, and look with ill-disguised disdain on the city auditor, who was narrow-minded and small in his dealings, only managing to corral some $10,000 or so.—Puck.

A woman hastily entered a Harlem lager beer saloon and demanded of the proprietor: "Has my husband been in here?" "I don't know him. Is he a tall man?" "Yes." "Red headed?" "Yes, and red complected." "Full beard?" "Yes." "Wear a slouch hat?" "Yes." "He was here not five minutes ago. He came in, drank a glass of lemonade and then walked down the street." "Drank what?" "Lemonade." "Wrong man!" she said, shooting herself out of the door.—N. Y. Sun.

OUR FINANCIAL POSITION.

The condition of the public debt of Canada is becoming alarming. On the first of June the actual debt of Canada amounted to 258 millions, and the Government propose to borrow forty millions more. They have placed on the market twenty millions, and they must borrow twenty millions more as soon as they dare undertake it The whole world is wondering that the people of this fair Dominion seem to take so little interest in their financial position and the extravagance of their rulers. Of the forty millions to be borrowed about sixteen millions are required to pay off the floating debt. The balance, twenty-four millions, added to the 258 millions will made the total funded debt 292 millions of dollars! This is an enormous sum—over $60 for every man, woman and child in the whole Dominion. Taking population and wealth into account it is equal to a debt of six thousand millions in the United States. Working under this heavy debt, what are the prospects of our ever competing with other countries?

OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

The Rev. Mr. Tovell, on Sunday morning, referred in eulogistic terms to the great benefits the nation had bestowed upon all classes in providing and placing within the reach of all an educational system, which did not leave it in the power of anyone to say that an opportunity had not been given them of receiving the benefits of a liberal education. He compared the nation, (really the Province of Ontario) to a father providing, according to his means, for the education of his child or family.

The Rev. gentleman was quite right, and, we have no doubt but that, had he gone further he would have said that the excellence of the Ontario School system is a matter of world wide reputation. The improvements introduced during the past few years have been indeed very great, as all those who are in sympathy with giving the young a liberal education will readily acknowledge. The results speak for themselves and warrant the assertion that from whatever direction the matter is considered, and under whatever scrutiny it may be subjected to, the work laid down for the preparatory stage of our education has so far been well and faithfully done. This is acknowledged on all hands and by none more heartily than those who feel the benefit of its foundation.

BRITAIN'S PRIME MINISTER.

The right honorable Robert Arthur Talbot Gascoigne Cecil, K.G., Marquis of Salisbury, whose name has been placed on all the "slates" as that of Prime Minister, and Secretary of State for the Foreign Department, of the new Conservative administration, is now 55 years of age. He is the eldest surviving son of the second Marquis of Salisbury, and he was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, and was elected a Fellow of All-souls College in 1853. In the same year he was elected, as a Conservative, to represent Stamford, for which he sat until his succession to the marquisate in 1868. In 1866, in Lord Derby's third administration, he was Secretary of State for India, which he resigned in the following year. He was appointed to the same post on the formation of the Disraeli administration of 1874, and four years later he succeeded the Earl of Derby, resigned, as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and went out of office with his party in 1880. In 1881 he was elected to lead the Conservatives in the House of Lords. He did distinguished diplomatic service as Special Ambassador to the Sublime Porte, along with Sir Henry Elliott, 1876-7; and soon afterward, with the Earl of Beaconsfield, he was a representative of Great Britain at the Congress of Berlin. The Marquis of Salisbury has not only taken an active part in all public measures of importance, especially such as affect the Church of England and the Church of England institutions, but he had also distinguished himself as a strong contributor to the press, especially to the Quarterly Review. In 1869 he was elected Chancellor of the University of Oxford, and he is a member of the council of King's College, London. He is an interesting and almost venomous as well as forcible speaker, and one of the most versatile of living Englishmen in his accomplishments. He finds relaxation in scientific studies, especially chemistry, as Mr. Gladstone finds in his study of the classics. Hatfield, the country-seat of the Marquis of Salisbury, is one of the most famous of all the historic country houses in England. Lord Salisbury has no reason to be proud of the present position he occupies. He owes it to a combination of forces he has always opposed—the Irish party, and his acceptance of their services only shows the anxiety of his friends for power and their want of scruple as to the means to secure it.

Pigeon Creek Bridge.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—The public will please take notice that the Municipality of the County of Victoria and the Municipality of the Township of Emily do not in any way hold themselves responsible for the safety of the Floating Bridge over Pigeon River, and that the public must assume all risks for their own safety in travelling over said bridge.

By order of the Municipality of the County of Victoria.

THOS. H. McQUADE,
Commissioner.

Emily, 18th June, 1885.

The above notice is clipped from the Lindsay Post of a late date, and as a matter of curiosity may be of interest to our readers. The spectacle of a dignified corporation attempting to remove a legal liability to repair by such a flimsy method is unique.

The Pigeon Creek bridge above referred to lies wholly in the County of Victoria and is a bridge built from a point near the intersection of Emily and Ennismore and crossing Pigeon Creek in the Township of Emily. It was originally erected by the County of Peterborough, aided by grants from the County of Victoria and the town of Peterborough, the latter at the time expressly stipulating against any further liability.

Since its construction the bridge has been maintained by the county of Peterborough and the county of Victoria. The former has certainly borne the heavier part of the burden; but the latter, as a matter of necessity, duty and justice, contributed to no inconsiderable extent both labour and money, and in season of special generosity, have often expended large amounts on the bridge, granting for the purpose only a short time back $400.

Latterly the bridge has fallen into a state of disrepair and dilapidation, and as accidents are liable to happen thereon at any time, it has become a serious question as to what parties are liable to repair and keep it in repair. At the last session of our County Council a deputation from the County Council of Victoria waited on our council and offered a grant of $150 towards repairing the bridge on condition that the County of Peterborough "placed the bridge in good repair, and kept it in a good state of repair," at the same time indirectly intimating that unless this offer was accepted, the County of Victoria would do nothing further. This proposal was so cheeky, unfair, and unreasonable on its face that our Council unanimously rejected it, and after taking the matter into consideration, directed a letter to be written to the county of Victoria, giving the estimated cost of repairing the bridge and demanding that they should contribute one half the proposed cost of repair, at the same time offering to supply the other half without prejudice to our present position.

According to law, we are advised that both counties are liable to maintain the bridge, and in case of dispute as to the respective portions of the expense to be borne by each municipality, that it shall be the duty of each council to proceed to arbitration, according to the municipal act of 1883.

We hope to see the two counties amicably arrange the difficulty. If any accident should happen during the time the bridge is out of repair, it would be the source, probably, of long and serious litigation, and it would be found that the costs incurred thereby would have erected a new bridge.

Smith.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Municipal Council of the Township of Smith met at the Town Hall, Bridgenorth, on Monday May 25th, as a Court of Revision, M. Sanderson, Reeve, in the chair. The Clerk reported no appeals. The following alterations were made in the Roll:—Part S. ½ lot 3, W. C. R., (10 acres) was removed from the non-Resident Roll and assessed to W. W. Milburn; 34 acres of N. E. pt. lot 32, con. 14, was erased from the non-Resident Roll and assessed to John Preston. The E. ½ lot 34, con, 13, was erased from assessment of Cornelius Kearney and assessed to Thomas Hetherington. The name of Wm. Hampton was erased from the Roll and the property assessed to Hugh Fitzgerald. The Roll was then finally passed by the Court and ordered to be signed by the Clerk.

The council went into session after Court of revision, the reeve in the chair; minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The reeve and deputy reeve were appointed a committee to examine a bridge on road division No. 45. with power to take action in regard to rebuilding the same and to report at next meeting. A special grant of $25 was made to road division No. 35. Hugh McIlmoyle, jr., commissioner, E. B. Edwards, solicitor, was appointed caretakers of timber on allowance of road at the rear of lots 1 and 2, west of the communication road, with power to prosecute any person or persons for cutting or removing timber thereon. The treasurer was instructed to pay A. Fairbairn 50 cents, as balance of rent due for house occupied by Mrs. Clegg. The council then adjourned to meet at the call of the reeve.

Fraserville.

Mr. John Mumsey, of Fraserville, recently sold to Mr. Truscotte, of South Monaghan, a yearling thoroughbred Durham bull at a good figure. Mr. Mumsey is a very enterprising breeder of this class of stock. This season alone he has sold three thoroughbred bulls. His latest addition to his herd is the imported bull, Comet, procured in Scotland at an expense of $225. His enterprise in giving the farmers such excellent opportunities for improving their stock is worthy of all commendation and substantial encouragement.

Immigrant Children.

Mr. John T. Middlemore, the founder of the Orphan Children's Emmigration Charity, London, Ont., left Liverpool on the 18th inst. in the S. S. Lake Winnipeg with a party of 20 girls and 70 boys, between the ages of 5 and 14 years, who are brought out to this country for adoption or hire, chiefly among farmers. They are expected to arrive at the Guthrie Home, near the city, on or about the 1st prox. This will be Mr. Middlemore's 15th annual visit to these shores with juvenile emigrants from Birmingham, England, since 1872. Already many applications accompanied with good references have been made for the children expected to arrive, but more are required. Further particulars may be obtained by addressing Mr. H. Gibbens, Manager of the Guthrie Home, London, Ont.

A Fine Work of Art.

We have received from the Grip Printing and Publishing Company, of Toronto, a copy of their new plate "the capture of Batoche," lithographed in five colors, size 20x26 in. This is a graphic sketch of the now famous charge and is a very creditable piece of work, in our opinion equal to anything of the sort we have ever seen. Evidently no pains have been spared in its production and it deserves to have a large sale, as well from its merits artistically as from being a memento of this great fight. It has been compiled from the most reliable sources, and, in the opinion of eyewitnesses and participators in the battle, is a correct delineation of the action. It is retailed at 30 cents and can be had from all newsdealers or from the publishers.

We Met at Toulon.

THE ROMANCE OF A VOYAGE.

on her bag. "This is your name?"

"Yes."

"It is a well-known name to me. A favorite schoolfellow of mine was called Frank Hawtree; a favorite artist of mine, whose works I have greatly admired, is called Frank Hawtree, don't tell me you are not the 'little sister Ruth' he used to talk about."

"I am only too glad and proud to tell you that I am."

"You don't ask who I am, or seem surprised at my discovery.'

"No," she answered, slightly smiling; "I knew before."

"Knew me?"

"Yes; Frank used to talk to me about you enough to make me remember the name very well; and while you were walking up and down the platform at Toulon I read your name upon your luggage."

"But how did you come to associate the luggage with its rightful owner? I did not go near it."

"By instinct, I suppose," partly, and partly because Frank once tried to paint a likeness of you from memory, and you are still enough like his picture to have made me notice your face before I noticed the name on the luggage."

When we reached Nice, I handed Miss Hawtree from the carriage, and felt that she was trembling.

"You cannot go on till the eight o'clock diligence in the morning. I shall secure a room for you at a hotel, where I can rely upon your being safe and comfortable. I shall engage your place in the diligence to-night, and call for you in the morning." This as I led here to the cab.

"How can I ever thank you for your kindness?"

"It is nothing. I am a very idle, unoccupied fellow, at any body's service—especially at the service of your brother's sister."

The mistress of one of the Nice hotels was well and favorably known to me. I committed Miss Hawtree to her care, explaining, in a few words, the object of her journey.

Then I ordered—and I remember I took great pains with its selection—a little dinner for one, of soup, game, cutlets, sweets, choice fruit and coffee to be served as soon as possible to 99; and after I had done that I w about my own business.

I secur.d the coupe of the diligence and one place in the banquette as far as Genoa. I sent a telegram to Toulon to request that my luggage, which I had left unowned there, should be taken charge of till further notice. I dined at a hotel close to the diligence office, looking toward the windows of the house where I had left Miss Hawtree, and wondered dreamily what would come of this very strange adventure of mine.

I was sorry she had seen my name, otherwise I could have laid the flattering unction to my soul that it was my face which had inspired her with confidence.

But what on earth could she have done had I not been there?

When I was tired of my moonlight ramblings by the shores of that wonderful bay of Nice, and went to my hotel, I found it was too late to be worth while going to bed that night, so I watched till morning.

I was at her hotel pretty early, anxious to settle her account before she should be troubled about it. I ordered breakfast to be taken to her in her room, and sent a pencilled message to her, telling her I had arranged every thing.

I shall not easily forget the earnestly grateful look she gave me when we met.

As I tucked her up snugly in the coupe, "Had she been comfortable?" I asked.

"O, yes; I had thought of every thing. I had been most kind," she answered, her eyes full of tears. And then, "Where was I going?" with a half-alarm in her tone and face, as she found I did not take my place beside her.

"To the banquette, up above. I am your courier, mademoiselle; one sees better there, but this is fitter for a lady."

It was an early February morning; the sun and sky as bright as only a Riviera sun and sky could be; the Mediterranean could be.

We did not stop more than a few hours at Genoa. How long we were upon our route altogether I cannot distinctly remember. We had bad weather at one time, cold and rain, snow, wind and hail; that was, I think, in crossing the Apennines.

She never complained, though she got so benumbed with cold that she would have fallen but that I caught her in my arms one evening, as I was helping her to alight.

Caught her in my arms! Yes; and before I knew it had given her a sort of compassionate hug, exclaiming, "You poor, tired, patient child!" I couldn't help it—

When we reached Rome, in the full brightness of a sunny morning, she did look travelworn, fagged and jaded.

The night before, in a crowded diligence—I had not been able to secure a coupe for her—she had slept a great part of the night, her head upon my shoulder—a sleep of such profound exhaustion as had half-alarmed me. I had ventured to put my arm round her, to draw her to me, in order to support her better. What a slight, fragile form it was!

As I held her thus, and shortlept this dead sleep, my eyes never closed, and my mind was very busy.

What would be the end of this journey? Should her brother be already dead? Friendless, moneyless, homeless, alone!

When we stopped once she half-roused; she looked confidingly up in my face as I bent down to her.

"I am afraid I weary you," she said. "I can't help it; I'm so tired!"

She was half-stupefied with fatigue.

Almost before she had finished speaking, her head dropped on my shoulder again; I pressed her closer to me for answer—that was all.

"Your wife, poor young thing, seems quite worn out," said a kindly, half-Quakerish looking lady, sitting opposite.

I had noticed how pleasantly and compassionately she glanced at Ruth.

I answered simply, "She is worn out; she has traveled from London almost without stopping. She has a brother dying in Rome."

"Poor, poor young thing! But she is happier than many; she will meet sorrow with one by her who loves her with more than the love of a brother."

My conscience was roused; none of our other fellow-travelers could hear us. I briefly told her Ruth's story, and finished by asking, "Are you going to stay in Rome?"

"Yes, friend; and shall be glad to be of service to the young lady."

"You may perhaps be of the greatest service."

I gave her my card and she gave me hers, pencilling her address in Rome.

"This is your brother's address?" I asked Ruth as we approached Rome, reading a card she gave me.

"Yes; you are surprised! Why?"

"This is such a miserable quarter."

"O, he is very poor, and always saving—saving to be able soon to give me a home," she said. "He says I shall never be happy as a governess, nor he to know me one."

"Ruth," I said, taking her hand, as we drove through the streets; "let me call you so. I am not a stranger now: I am a brother to you, wishing to be to you more than any brother. But I am not going to speak of that now. Are you prepared for a great shock? I know that brave mind well. I mean if your brother should be very ill—dying—dead?"

She shuddered.

"You have said the word; I could not. I have been thinking, day after day, that he is dead; that is why—"

"Why no one met you?"

"Yes."

"I fear, poor child, you may be right. You will try to bear up bravely, and you will let me be a brother to you till—"

Now our ... suppose.

"This street is enough to have killed him," she said. "Surely it is not here?"

We had stopped in one of the narrow, filthy—as a matter of course—foul-smelling streets, of which there are plenty in Rome.

"It is here," I said, as the cabman opened the door.

I gave the word "What!" and lifted her out. Up the dark, chill, dirty stair—up and up. At last we reached a door on which the poor fellow's card was nailed. She seemed to gather courage now. She led the way through a small, dark ante-room, in which I paused.

I listened.

I heard a smothered exclamation from her; from him a cry so shrill as to be almost a scream.

"Ruth!"

I walked to the head of the staircase, and waited there perhaps half an hour. Then she came to me—came close up to me, and laid her hand upon my arm. The expression of the piteous eyes lifted to mine told me there was no hope. With a caressing word, I drew her to me. She leaned her forehead against my arm a moment; then, "Frank wants to see you; Frank wants to thank you," she said, in a scarcely audible voice.

I followed her into the room.

The full light of a square window, from which one could see the Tiber, the Castle of St. Angelo, and the line of Mont Janiculus, was streaming on a low couch where my poor young schoolfellow lay.

I saw directly that life with him was a question of no more than days, perhaps only hours. Yet what a beautiful bright face it was still! What a light streamed from those radiant eyes, as he, without rising—he was past that—stretched both hands toward me.

Ruth was crouching by him; one hand soon clutched her again, the other grasped mine as I sat down by him.

In this strange world how often are simple deeds, that cost nothing to the poor, most richly rewarded! What had I done? What sacrifice had I made? And how they thanked and blessed me!—he with his difficultly-spoken, faint words; she with her blessed eyes confirming his praises. A few words explained the case.

I can get to be short stop or pitcher."—Philadelphia Call.

Fitzgoober, in the past few weeks, has developed quite a talent for writing short, humorous paragraphs. Of this trait he is very proud, and never loses an opportunity to let the people of Atlanta know it. The other day he approached a crowd of gentlemen on a corner, and soon turned the conversation to his brilliant efforts. "Say," he said to Plunkett, 'have you read my last bit of humor?' "I hope so," sadly mused Plunkett, turning softly away, leaving Fitzgoober alone, wondering whether he had been insulted or not.—Atlanta Constitution.

—READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:—

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed."

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

The Golden Eye.

On Wednesday evening last, the steamer "Golden Eye" was blown ashore at Idyl Wild by a severe gale, and was not released until Friday, when, with the assistance of a stump machine, she was set sailing again and reached the Ashburnham wharf on Saturday evening. The "King Fisher" has been docked at Harwood, to undergo a thorough course of repairs.

Cruelty to Animals.

We have been informed on good authority that some of our pound keepers are not very extravagant in the bill of fare which they present to any poor, wandering bovine that chances to be run in by our dutiful, and light-footed, local squad of policemen. In one of our town pounds, on Saturday, there were four cows, and those poor animals had to suffer the intense heat, for twelve hours, without a drop of water to drink. We approve of the by-law which prevents the destruction of property by cows, pigs, etc., but we think that when a pound keeper makes 50 cents out of one cow, he should "set 'em up," at least once a day.

Something New for Farmers.

On Saturday last there was exhibited on the Market Square something new in the line of agricultural implements. The article shown was a hay tedder, an implement very simple in its operation, being worked mainly by two cog-wheels, one of which measured about 8 inches in diameter and the other about 30. It was drawn by one horse, and when in motion kept several two-pronged forks in a curious and rapid movement, which would have the desired effect of turning the hay completely from the soil, thereby exposing it to the hot rays of the sun. The machine attracted a considerable crowd and received favourable opinions from the farmers generally.

Central Exhibition.

On Saturday afternoon a meeting of the Peterborough West Riding Agricultural Society was held in the Council Chamber and lasted over three hours. The principal business brought before the meeting was the arrangement of the prize list for the exhibition which will be held in the new grounds on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 29th, 30th, and October 1st. The members of the Building Committee were authorised to push the work of building the sheds, on the east side of the grounds, as rapidly as possible. A special committee was drafted to look after the programme of sports which are to take place. On the first day it is proposed to offer a beautiful medal for a bicycle race; the second day will be taken up with trotting exhibitions on the track of the Driving Park, and it has been whispered that an effort will be made to induce the Royal Caughnawaga Indians to come here to cross sticks with the Peterboroughs on the third day. During the progress of the fair a novel feature of the exhibition will be the grand march in circle of all four-legged animals, on the grounds, something new in Peterborough.

You can get Pedestal Bottom Extension Tables for $9.50, worth $12.50. Bent Rim Extension Tables for $8.50, worth $8.50. Handsome Bedsteads for $3.50, worth $5.50, all hardwood, at McKee's Furniture Warerooms, Water street, three doors north of Simcoe street. 1-d

Class Discontinued.

The young men's class for Bible study, conducted by the Rev. A. H. Munro in connection with the Y.M.C.A., is to be discontinued during the warm weather. It is expected that it will be begun again in September.

Probs Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Strong west and north-west wind; fine cool weather; slightly higher temperature on Tuesday.

Annual Excursion.

We understand that the annual excursion of the St. Andrew's Society of Peterborough will be made to Belleville on July 9th and that the Auburn Sons of Scotia will join with their Peterborough brethren.

Looking Neater.

The grounds of the Central Park are looking neater every day. The work of trimming off all the old dead trees has been completed and when, in a short time, a beautiful boulevard will loom up all around the square, it will be more in keeping with its more stylish and ambitious sister park on the south-east.

Lacrosse Abroad.

The Shamrocks defeated the Ontarios on Saturday in Toronto in a championship match by taking three straights. H. LeBrun was an umpire at one end of the field. In Montreal in the match between the Montreal and Torontos, five games were played inside of 24 minutes, three of which were taken by the former team. The Shamrocks and Montrealers are now even in the race for the flags.

Tributes of Respect.

The members of the Peterborough Boating Club, wishing to co-operate with the Oddfellows cermonies on decoration day, repaired to Cemetery and decorated the grave of the late G. C. Rogers, who, at one time was a prominent member of the club. The floral tributes consisted of many wreaths, together with a beautiful cross.

Midsummer Examinations.

One hundred and sixteen candidates have signified their intention to write at the entrance examinations, which will last for two days, commencing on Thursday, July 2nd, at the Collegiate Institute. The examination of candidates for third and second class certificates, for which thirty names have been entered, commences on July 6th and will last until the 15th.

Trent Valley Canal.

The misunderstanding between the Government and Mr. George Goodwin, contractor for a portion of Trent Valley Navigation Works at Burleigh, have not yet been adjusted. The fact, however, of Mr. Goodwin being engaged in the quarry getting out material, argues in favor of an early understanding being arrived at, and it is probable that as soon as Mr. Page makes his report of his inspection of the situation recently made, the matter will be adjusted and work resumed.

A New Departure.

At the close of the services in the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Tovell, pastor, mentioned the proposal of a change in the form of services of the church, which both the leading ministers and the new pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church had approved of. It was that the congregation would join with the pastor in repeating the Lord's Prayer. It was desirable to have the congregation take a more active part in the public services. The practice had the sanction of the conference and was being carried out in several of the Methodist Churches in the large cities. The pastor also announced that hereafter there would be offered a short prayer immediately after the close of the sermon.

A Sad Accident.

On Saturday evening as the Salvation Army was marching on Aylmer, occupying the centre of it, David, a little seven-year-old son of Mr. John Milne, employed in the William Hamilton manufacturing works, was injured in this wise: A gentleman in passing the procession had to rein his horse to one side near the walk. There was the usual collection of small boys following the parade. The horse, frightened at the drum or the banner, suddenly shied, and striking Mr. Milne's boy in the back, knocked him down, and his head was hit violently against the edge of the walk. The procession did not halt, but one of the members, Mr. McMaster, fell out to see about the accident. The little lad was unable to walk, and was carried to his home near by.

Legal Leisure.

The public requiring the service of the legal fraternity will be interested in knowing that the following "round robin," which was crowded out of Saturday's edition, has been signed by all the gentlemen of the long robe in town, with one exception :

We the undersigned solicitors of the town of Peterborough hereby agree to close our respective offices at the hour of four o'clock p.m., and to allow our respective clerks to cease work and depart at the said hour of four o'clock p.m., in consideration of said clerks being ready for business at the hour of 9 o'clock a.m. This agreement to be in force during the months of July and August.

W. H. Moore,	Poussette & Roger,

D. W. Dumble,	Stone & Masson,
James Henry,	Smith & Peck,
E. H. D. Hall,	E. B. Edwards,
Geo. Edmison,	W. A. Stratton,
John O'Meara,	John Green.

This agreement seems worded as bindingly as an act of Parliament, and clients may rely on its being carried out.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

Praise from an Old Friend.

We highly appreciate the kind words of praise contained in the following note from a former resident. The note given below carries its explanation with it :

GANANOQUE, June 27, 1885.

DEAR SIR.—Picturesque Canada received all right; gave perfect satisfaction, as to workmanship and price. I beg to congratulate your bindery for turning out such excellent workmanship.

Yours,
WM. HELM.

Mr. J. H. STRATTON,
EXAMINER, Peterborough.

Filled with Flowers.

The large circular flower bed in front of the fountain in the Court House Park, has been planted with flowers, two hundred flower plants, furnished from Mason's green houses, consisting of geraniums, foliage plants, etc., etc., having been placed these in concentric circles. In a few weeks the bed will be a magnificant mound of bloom.

Lacrosse.

A meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will be held this evening at the Little Windsor Hotel at 8:30 sharp, for the purpose of appointing the necessary committees for Dominion Day. All the members that can possibly attend are requested to be on hand, as their is other business of importance to be attended to.

G. H. GIROUX, Secretary.

Is it Ignorance or Intention?

The Toronto Mail in its report of the match between the Shamrocks and Ontarios on Saturday, in which Mr. H. LeBrun, President of the N.A.L.A., acted as umpire at one end, gives his name as "Michel." This palpable ignorance might be excusable in the local scribe of the Pontypool Patriot, but we think the sporting editor of the Mail, who claims to be an infallible authority on all sporting matters, should be better acquainted with the initials of the President of the N. A.L.A. Would such indifference, amounting to disrespect, have been shown if the President had the honor of being a Toronto man? Toronto, from its inability to see good in anything except what the city produces, seems to treat other places with an ill-merited contempt.

A Pleasant Recognition.

This afternoon Mr. H. Kay Coleman, Principal of the Peterborough public schools, received a handsome evidence of the popularity and respect he has secured from the teachers and pupils under his jurisdiction. He was waited on at his residence and presented with a beautiful silver tea set, bearing the following engraving : "Presented to H. Kay Coleman, by teachers and pupils of Peterborough Public Schools, June 29th, 1885." The present, a handsome set of three pieces was supplied by Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, China Hall and Silver Bazar, and it originated in the expectation that Mr. Coleman's resignation, which, however, has been reconsidered, would be accepted. Now that the Board have recognized the value of Mr. Coleman's services in a substantial manner, and he remains with us, the above evidence of the cordial feelings existing between him and his associates and the pupils will not by any means tend to lessen the cordiality of their future relations.

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade,

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

ST. ANDREWS CHURCH.

Mrs. Nicholl's Lays the Corner Stone.

Recipient of a Silver Trowel.

Last evening the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the new St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on Rubidge street, at the head of Brock, was performed with the appropriate accompanying religious services. At four o'clock there were about a thousand spectators present to witness the interesting ceremony. Shortly after that hour Mr. John Carnegie, M. P. P., chairman of the Building Committee, conducted Mrs. Nicholls from the manse and was followed, in procession, by the following ministers, walking two by two:—Rev. D. J. Macdonell, of St. Andrew's, Toronto, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's, Peterborough; Rev. Mr. Cameron, Millbrook; Rev. Mr Carmichael, Norwood; Rev. Mr. Windell, Cartwright; Rev. Mr. Bennett, town; Rev. Mr. Munro, pastor of the Murray-street Baptist Church; Rev. Mr. Torrance, St. Paul's; Rev. Mr. Davis, Methodist; Rev. Mr. Haye, Campbellford. Rev. Mr. Duncan, of Colborne, arrived later, and Rev. Mr. Wallace, pastor of the Charlotte-street Methodist Church was also present. The party proceeded to an enclosed space around the corner stone of the new building which was suspended in air ready to be lowered to its final resting place.

THE DEVOTIONAL SERVICES were begun by singing the 100th Psalm, Mr. D. D. Galletly acting as precentor. Rev. Mr. Cameron then read in a most distinct and impressive manner the strikingly appropriate portion of Holy Scripture contained in the last chapter of the first book of the Chronicles, after which Rev. Mr. Carmichael offered an appropriate prayer.

REV. MR. BELL, PASTOR OF THE CHURCH gave a brief address setting forth the circumstances connected with the undertaking they had met to formally inaugurate the the beginning of. Many present knew of the difficulties and trying times through which the congregation of St. Andrews had had to pass. The congregation rejoiced both because they was about to be provided with a place in which they might worship with comfort, and because there was the assurance that God was with them. The occasion was a public recognition of the goodness of God to the congregation in the past, to give the public pledge of a work begun, and to promote Gods honour and glory. Dr. R. W. Bell, Secretary-Treasurer, then placed in the aperature in the bed-place of the corner stone containing the following articles: Copies of the newspaper publications of the town, the WEEKLY EXAMINER, the Saved Army Trumpet, the Weekly Review and Canadian Lumberman, the Weekly Times and Canadian Agriculturist, the weekly Montreal Witness, of the 17th and 24th of June, the last journal of the proceedings of the Presbyterian general assembly, copies of the financial statements of the congregation of St. Andrew's for the past three years, current coins of the Dominion, of the latest issue and of the following denominations:—1 cent, 5 cents (coinage of 1885), 25 cents and 50 cents. There were also enclosed the coins found in the corner stone of the old church when it was demolished to make place for the new structure, which were a farthing, half-penny and six-penny pieces. The other and more perishable contents of the old corner stone were found to have been destroyed by water having found its way into them. There was also deposited with the above articles

THE HERMETICALLY SEALED LEADEN CASKET

THE FOLLOWING SCROLL:

The congregation of St. Andrew's was originated in 1833, in connection with the Kirk of Scotland, the Rev. John M. Roger, pastor. The first elders were ordained, November 2nd, 1834: Their names were as follows:—Andrew Tully, John Hutchisson, John Edmison and David Hamilton, to represent Peterborough, then a village, and Wm. Robson and Robert Thompson to represent the country district at the boundary line of Cavan.

On May 20th, 1835, the congregation received a grant of the lot on which the church, manse and school now stand, and in the following year the church, displaced by the present erection, was built of stone, and known as the "stone church."

In 1844 the the disruption took place in Scotland, and the Rev. J. M. Roger, with a large majority of his Session and congregation, by a regular vote, declared themselves on the side of the Free Church. Notwithstanding this step, the two parties continued to worship together and to use the church property, as if no separation had taken place.

This continued until 1857, when Rev. Mr. Roger and the Free Church party, finding that they could not keep the property for the Free Church alone, stepped out and formed a second congregation, (St. Paul's) and in 1859 their church, known as the "Brick Church," was completed and ready for worship.

By the act of Mr. Roger and his party, St. Andrew's pulpit was left vacant, and, in the following year. (1856), on the 27th of September, the Rev. James S. Douglass was duly inducted to the pastorate of the congregation and continued in the position until 1864.

After two years of a vacancy, the Rev. D. J. Macdonell, (now the honored pastor of St. Andrew's, Toronto,) was ordained on the 20th of November, 1866, and became the minister of the the charge. His pastorate continued until the close of 1870, when he was called to Toronto, and the pulpit was again left vacant.

Early in the year 1871 the Rev. K McLennan was inducted and remained until near the close of 1876, when he resigned the charge in favour of another (Charlottetown, P.E.I.). During Mr. McLennan's incumbency the congregation by an unanimous vote went into the union of 1875, and thus became a congregation of the "Presbyterian Church in Canada."

On the 29th of June, 1871, the Rev. Alexander Bell was inducted as pastor of the congregation, and, still at this date, retains the position.

The session at date is as follows:—Rev. Alex. Bell, pastor, John Carnegie, M.P.P., clerk, John Edmison, sr., Robert Tully and George Edmison.

Board of Managers.—J. J. Lundy, Chairman; R. W. Bell, M. D., Secretary-Treasurer; Tobias Fitzgerald, Thomas Mensies, Stewart Wright, Andrew McFarlane and Robert H. Green.

Building Committee.—John Carnegie, M. P. P., Chairman; John H. Paterson, Secretary; R. W. Bell, M.D., Tobias Fitzgerald, Stewart Wright, Geo. Edmisson, John McClelland, Andrew McFarlane, Robert Tully, John J. Lundy, John Fowler.

Architects.—Gordon & Helliwell, Toronto.

Contractors.—Andrew Douglass & John Robson, Peterborough.

Cost.—$20,000.

Corner stone laid by Mrs. Robert Nicholls this 29th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five years; and the forty-ninth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria; the Marquis of Lansdowne being Governor-General of Canada; the Hon. John Beverly Robinson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; the Rev. Dr. McKnight, Halifax, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada; Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, moderator of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston, and Rev. J. B. Craigie, moderator of the Presbytery of Peterborough.

AN EPISODE.

Mr. John Carnegie, M.P.P., as Chairman of the Building Committee, addressed Mrs. Nicholls as follows,

"Permit me, dear Madam, in the name and on behalf of the members and adherents of St. Andrew's Church to give expression to the gratification which it affords them that you have waived your own personal feelings and consented to lay the corner stone of our new church,—a building which will as long as it remains be a monument to the liberality, and the interest which both you and the late Mr. Nicholls, have ever manifested in the welfare of this congregation, and I can assure you that it is our earnest hope that you may be long spared to be a worshipper within its walls, and above all, that when you and we shall have done with churches made with hands, we shall be found to belong to a church whose chief corner stone is Christ, and whose builder is God.

In the name of the building committee I present you with this trowel, for the purpose of laying this corner stone."

THE SILVER TROWEL,

which was furnished by Mr. John McClelland, is unlike those ordinarily presented, being almost full size of a working trowel, set in a richly carved ivory handle. The blade bore this inscription:

"Presented to Mrs. C J. Nicholls on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of St. Andrew's Church. Peterborough, June 29th, 1885."

After Mr. James Bogue, contractor for the stonework, had adjusted the stone, Mrs. Nicholls spread the cement with her silver trowel, the stone was lowered to its long resting place, and Mrs. Nicholls giving it the three regulation taps with the trowel handle, pronounced "this stone well and truly laid." Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, Moderator of Synod, then offered the

DEDICATING PRAYER.

The Doxology was sung, Rev. Mr. Torrence pronounced the benediction, and the corner stone of the new Church of St. Andrew's was ready for the beautiful superstructure that through the long days of summer will rise in chaste symmetry above it.

After the ceremony was over, the Scripture lesson read on, the occasion received practical illustration. The people brought their gifts towards the erection of the temple, and laid them on the corner stone. The heap of bank bills rose rapidly, and Dr. Bell was kept busy lifting and replacing the stone that during the brief intervals of giving, weighted down the rapidly growing little stack of money. One lady who was not a member of the church or congregation, laid down her five dollar bill with the others, and it was not the least pleasant feature of the occasion to note how many of the members of all the denominations were present. Any person who did not personally know them could not have distinguished them, in the interest they seemed to manifest in the success of the proceedings, from the members of the congregation.

THE SOCIAL SEASON.

The ceremony over, the people crowded into the school room where two long lines of tables heavy with the richest and rarest of viands disposed in the most tasty and tempting manner were awaiting the multitude. The tables were bright with the glitter of burnished silver and fragrant with the odor of rich masses of flowers. They were rapidly filled and cleared away several times in succession, but the ladies' larder seemed to be unexhausted and the expressions of praise of the unusual excellence of the refreshments served the elegance of the appointments and the smoothness of the service were frequent and fervid.

After the hungry had been fed, addresses were given by several of the ministers present, and as each member of the committee or congregation sought his or her home there was carried along the spirit of gratitude for the smoothness and success that had attended the laying of the corner stone of St. Andrew's Church.

DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW CHURCH.

The plans of the proposed structure give promise of a beautiful edifice. The walls will be of white brick, with buttresses and freestone dressings resting on a foundation of rock-faced masonry. The extreme length of the church is 103 feet, and the breadth at the transepts is 68 feet. At the south-east corner of the front is the tower and belfry, 22x22 feet, rising to a heigh of 82 feet, terminating in ambasour coping; the chimney stacks are finished in a corresponding style.

The style of architecture is Gothic, and is preserved throughout; the pointed windows will be set with stained and enamelled glass. There are four entrances, two in the front and two in the rear; the one to the south in the rear communicating with the manse, and the one on the opposite side with the school room.

THE INTERIOR

will be very handsome, the groined ceilings, with elaborate feliated enrichments at the junctions of the arches, will be particularly beautiful.

The roof is supported on pillars rising from the floor.

There are three rows of seatings, radiating in circular form from the communion platform, which is of similar shape, with four wide aisles. On the platform is the pulpit and in rear of that the seats for the choir and behind all the organ. The floor occupied by the seats is "dished," rising from the communion platform 2½ feet to the front of the church. The backs of the seats are of clear ash and the ends of clear birch, with walnut cappings. When the complete and tasteful plans of the architects are carried out, the new St. Andrew's will be one of the finest church structures in the Province. In addition to the contractors, Messrs. Douglass & Robson, the following sub-contractors are responsible:—Mr. J. D. Baptie, seating and joiner work throughout; James Bogue, stone masonry; Joseph Phillips, brick work; Adam Hall, galvanized iron work; McAndrew & Noble, plumbing and gas fitting. The conditions of the contract call for the completion of the church in February, and it will be some serious drawback that can defeat the energy of the contractors in having the church ready for that date.

Personal.

Mr. John R. Clark, arrived in town this morning from Perth. He is the guest of Rev. Mr. McAmond, and will deliver his marvellous lecture (Among the Masses," in the Opera House this evening.

The Warden of the County, R. C. Strickland Esq., left to-day to meet the Warden of the County of Northumberland at the Wallace Point Bridge to make arrangements for the construction of the new iron swing bridge to be erected at that point.

Miss Carpenter, of Peterborough, has been appointed canvassing agent for a new work on the Northwest rebellion, edited by C. P. Mulvaney, formerly of No. 1 Company, Queen's Own Rifles. The work will, no doubt, have a ready sale, as it can be obtained only by subscription.

Mr. A. Sperry will leave Peterborough for Longford on Thursday, having been entrusted by the Rama Transport Company of Longford to superintend the erection of a new shingle mill, having a capacity of from 35 to 40,000 shingles per day, which capacity will be increased early next season to double this quantity.

A Pleasant Gathering.

Last evening the residence of Mr. A. H. Clegg was the scene of a pleasant party, the occasion being that of Mr. and Mrs. Pentland's wedding anniversary, and prior to Mr. Clegg's departure for Europe, from where we expect to see him return not "lone handed." The hours were enlivened by cheerful conversation, parlor games, music, and that kind of social intercourse which brings into being many warm ties, cements friendship, and makes life worth living. The substantial tokens the visitors received were duly appreciated, and at a late hour the party dispersed, wishing each other many happy returns of such happy occasions.

Economist Corrected.

We are requested by Mr. James Stevenson to state that the letter of Economist, appearing in yesterday's issue, contained statements that did not accord with the facts. With regard, he says, to the same rate being charged now for gas as when first introduced the explanation is this:—When street lamps were first introduced the town supplied the posts and lamps and paid $25 per post and kept them in repair. Now, the company supplies the lamps and provides the repairs at $20 per year, which rate, Mr. Stevenson asserts, is as low as any town in Canada. It is true, he adds, that the Council has asked the company to place more lamps in certain localities, but as the distances are about 500 feet apart, the company has the proposal and the unusual cost involved under consideration. The immediate expense would be greater than the profits for a long time to come.

A SMITH MAN MEANDERS

For Two Months in the North, West.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Wm. Young of the 8th concession of Smith, returned home from a two months visit to the North-west. He went out on an agricultural prospecting tour and returned highly impressed with the fertility of the North-west country, especially the parts visited, and its excellent adaptability to farming purposes. He spent a great part of his time at Moose Jaw, and during his stay visited Clark's Crossing, 175 miles distant. On his return he spent a short time at Carberry on the main line between Moosejaw and Winnipeg. He was particularly well pleased with the fertility of the soil in this valley. It is WELL TIMBERED AND WELL WATERED.

The timber, which consists of spruce, tamarac and poplar, grows on the banks of the creek. He noticed in buildings spruce logs flatted, two feet broad. The country hereabouts is well settled, and its farms well fenced and tilled. He was particularly delighted with one on the farm of Mr. John Bailey, formerly of Emily. It is all under fence and the wide expanse of rich green, even as the pile of a velvet carpet, presented to a farmer's eye a delightful view. Mr. Bailey's brother-in-law, Wm. Carr, another Emily man, has also an 80-acre wheat field the counterpart in beauty and thriftiness of Mr. Bailey's. Twenty miles north of Moosejaw in the Buffalo Lake settlement he found still another Emily man, Mr. John Smales, and Mr. Young has brought home

EIGHTY ACRE FIELD OF WHEAT

SPECIMENS FROM HIS FARM.

Spring wheat 19 inches in height had grown this year from seed sown on April 8th; barley of the same length, sown on the 14th of April, and shooting into head. Oats sown on April 28th showed great growth though they were sowed on sod of this year's turning. Peas also exhibited a thrifty growth, though sown on sod and plowed under. While out west Mr. Young tried for diversion a little transport service. He drove the team of his son-in-law, Mr. Robert Henderson, laden with supplies, to Clarke's Crossing, and with a medium load, at so much per hundred, made $75 in the 14 days the round trip took. At the Crossing Mr. Young met Billy Morgan, a former horsey Peterboroughonian, who "seemed to be a sort of a boss out there." This trip shows how the settlers of the North West have MADE MONEY OUT OF THE REBELLION.

Though many have not put in crops this year they can afford to be idle one summer, for they have many of them made from $500 to $1,000 in Government teaming. The outbreak has seriously affected immigration, and very few are entering the country this season.

Mr. Young is very highly pleased with the country and its capabilities for farming; and though a little past the time of life for making a change, he thinks the North-west for placing his five sons on good farms. The only draw-back is the monopoly that exists in the management of elevators, and the obstacle this monopoly presents to the farmer realising the fullest results from the magnificent crops the soil so willingly produces. We are sorry that our space will not permit us to give more space to Mr. Young's experiences. He comes back laden with specimens of beautiful wild prairie flowers, and native grasses, and the results of his keen and close observations would make columns of interesting reading to the farmers.

PRESENTS A SPLENDID CHANCE

CANADA'S NEW LOAN.

The New Loan Subscribed for Three Times Over.

MONTREAL, June 29.—News has just been received here to-night from London, Eng., that the Canadian 4 per cent. loan of £4,000,000. tenders for which were opened to-day, and which has been negotiated by Sir Leonard Tilley, was subscribed for three times over, and that it has been taken up at about 101¾.

Not Yet Under Way.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 29.—The troops did not embark from Fort Pitt to-day as expected. It is said they are waiting detachments of the 65th, under Col. Ouimet, and the Winnipeg light infantry, expected to join their comrades.

The court opened at Battleford to-day before Judge Rouleau, who will try all minor cases connected with the rising. There are in all 36 prisoners. The treason felony cases will be tried at Regina. Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Gowanlock are en route to Regina, where they are to remain as witnesses at the approaching trials.

Fun at Chemong Lake.

July 9th is the date selected, when a grand regatta will come off at Bridgenorth. Already quite a number of Indians and squaws have signified their intention of competing in a number of the races for which valuable prizes will be offered. The posters which will be issued shortly are well worth public perusal.

North-West Invalids

From a communication which was received this morning by Mr. M. Tierney, it is very probable that one of the three trains passing through Peterborough on the C. P. R. tomorrow or the day following, will contain a number of volunteers from the North-west, who left Moose-jaw hospital on Friday last, the 26th inst. The letter received was from R. S. Kelly, who will have charge of the patients on their way to Kingston and other points east. No doubt a number of our boys will go down to the station to grip "Sandfield's" hand once more.

Attractions at the Landsdowne

The Fire Brigade Band will be at the Landsdowne rink to-night, and to-morrow night also. The manager, Mr. Ed. Brown, assures the public that no pains will be spared to make the programme, arranged for to-morrow evening, an interesting one. Prof. Hurst is expected to arrive to-night and no doubt those who saw his last performance on the bicycle at the rink will not fail to be present at this exhibition. A two mile race for which a number of entries have been already received, is to be one of the principal features. Admission 15 cents.

OUR NATIONAL BIRTHDAY.

To-morrow the sun will rise on the eighteenth birthday of our thrifty and lusty young Dominion. The celebration of the day has become a national holiday, so interwoven with the hearts of the people that a spontaneous and enthusiastic observation of it is as much a matter of course as the cessation of business on the Sabbath day. Even during its nonage the Dominion has made remarkable progress, and now possesses the material elements and natural requisites to make it at no distant day a mighty nation. The enterprise of the people though somewhat depressed by a tendency to financial extravagance on the part of our rulers which has placed on our young shoulders a debt of 292 millions of dollars, has shown itself equal to that of any contemporary nation. We all love the country so worthy of our warmest affections, and we feel sure we speak correctly in saying that the vast majority will enter upon the observance of Dominion day, not in the school-boy spirit of holliday making but with a spirit of pride as citizens of a country whose bounds are washed by the seas of two hemispheres, whose climatic conditions and natural resources are legitimate sources of pride of possession.

SIR STAFFORD NORTHCOTE.

The Right Honorable Sir Stafford Henry Northcote, who is henceforth to be entitled Lord Iddesleigh, and who was selected as Lord President of the Council in the Salisbury ministry, began his training for public life as private secretary to Mr. Gladstone while Mr. Gladstone was President of the Board of Trade, and he afterwards became legal secretary to the Board. His official life may be summarized as follows: 1855–7 he represented Dudley in the House of Commons, from 1858–66 he sat for Stamford, and since that time for North Devon; he became Financial Secretary to the Treasury in 1859, President of the Board of Trade in 1866, Secretary of State for India in 1867, Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1874, and when Disraeli was elevated to the peerage he became the leader of the Lower House. With Sir C. E. Trevelyan he made an extended investigation of the civil service, and their report, made in 1864, led to the throwing open of the service to public competition. He was a member of the Commission which resulted in the Treaty of Washington in 1871; in 1863 he received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from Oxford, in 1869 he presided over the Congress of the Social Science Association, and in 1873 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society. On the death of his grandfather in 1857 he succeeded to the family title and estates.

Trenton in Trouble.

A Fire Destroys Seventy-five Thousand Dollars' Worth of Property.

TRENTON, Ont., June 29.—At 3.30 this morning a fire broke out in the large roller skating rink lately built by G. A. White & Co., which, in a few minutes, took the opposite side of Wellington street and swept the block bounded by Forty-fourth street on the north, Wellington street on the east, Murphy street on the west, and Elgin street on the south. The majority of the buildings are of wood. Both the town and Gilmour's fire brigades worked hard, saving most of the business portion. Without any doubt the cause of the fire was incendiary, as the roller rink was not ready for use. The total loss is between $75,000 and $80,000, which is largely without insurance.

A Deluge of Strawberries.

An Albany (N. Y.) telegram says: Sixty thousand quarts of strawberries came into this market within a radius of ten miles of the city to-day. This is the largest receipt ever known in one day. The sales were at from 3 to 6 cents a quart.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which paid them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—The public mind in Canada is greatly agitated at present on the question of temperance. Never before in our history has such a wave of enthusiasm for suppressing the evils of intemperance taken possession of the people. The advocates of the Scott Act are pretty nearly having things all their own way. County after county has decided by immense majorities that the drink must go. Out of the 18 counties in Nova Scotia, twelve have adopted the Act. New Brunswick has fourteen counties and two cities, of which nine counties and one city have adopted the Act. Manitoba has five counties and one city, of which two counties have adopted the Act. All the counties of Prince Edward Island have adopted it. In Quebec five counties have adopted it, and one-half of the counties of Ontario, viz., nineteen, besides two cities.

THE TOTAL MAJORITY FOR THE ACT

at present is over 44,000.

Now, I think it is generally admitted that the strenuous exertions put forth in favour of the Canada Temperance Act is only the prelude to further agitation for prohibition pure and simple. That is the next important movement that is to be urged, and when a sufficient number of counties have pronounced in favour of the Scott Act, the temperance advocates will doubtless demand that Parliament should give effect to their wishes in this direction and introduce a stringent prohibitory law.

Keeping this contingency in view, I desire to call the attention of your readers to the working of prohibitory liquor laws in other countries. I must first premise, however, that I have no special interests to serve in this connection, unless indeed it be the general well being of our Dominion. I am not the paid agent of any class or set of men either among the temperance men or the licensed victuallers. I desire to promote true temperance and to strengthen in every legitimate way all means likely to conduce to the elevation of society—and to the social and moral welfare of Canadians.

I think it is decidedly true, as has been said, that there is some danger of "a reign of terrorism" even among the supporters of good and wholesome laws. Such odious tyranny ought to be summarily crushed. If not, it will certainly breed mischief. Persecution and gagging, if resorted to, must be at once strongly condemned. Coercion and abuse under no circumstances can be admitted. Tyranny of any kind is sure to BRING ABOUT A DANGEROUS REACTION.

Let it be remembered too, that to legislate in advance of public opinion is a grievous mistake, and that such laws when enacted only lead to excesses. I have been led to write thus by some most important statements recently published regarding the prohibition movement in America. I refer to the matter solely in the interests of true temperance, and I trust my remarks will be so considered by all your readers.

Certainly prohibition in Maine has proved successful so far as legislation is concerned. But it may well be asked, what use is legislation when it runs ahead of public opinion? Have prohibitory laws helped the temperance movement in the United States? Have these stringent enactments suppressed the liquor traffic to any appreciable extent? I am told that the consumption of spirits in the United States is positively on the increase!

In 1876 the consumptirn of spirits in that country was some 59 million of gallons; in 1883 it rose to 78 millions! The increase in malt liquors in the same period of seven years was no less than 193 million gallons! In other words while the growth of population was 12 per cent. the consumption of spirits rose to 27, and of beer to 51 per cent, that of wine being about the same as the increase of the population.

ANOTHER PAINFUL ILLUSTRATION, showing the danger of attempting to enforce laws in advance of public opinion comes to us from Manchester. There the public houses were closed at certain definite hours on weekdays and Sundays. This reasonable and proper provision so affected the population that over 100 clubs were formed, including young women and boys of about 13 years, and to these clubs liquor in large quantities was supplied under the assumed protection of the law.

Must it not be feared that a similar state of things would obtain should prohibition be secured without a strong public opinion to back it up? Illicit drinking will certainly be indulged in very largely and the danger is that many who never touched liquor will in secret acquire the habit of daily indulgence. The moral of the above facts is, do not trust implicitly to prohibition, but use every legitimate effort to suppress drunkenness and to secure a healthy moral public opinion until the curse is swept away from society.

TRUE TEMPERANCE.

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

ALMOST AN ACCIDENT.

On Thursday afternoon Mr. S. Boyce, of Smith, decided to spend a few hours at fishing and recreation on the Lake above the village. He had with him in the canoe his son, a lad between 5 and 6 years of age; when they arrived at "the drag," some three miles above the village, the little fellow got his paddle under the canoe, and in an instant both were in the water. Mr. Boyce, who is an excellent swimmer, caught the boy, and righting the canoe, managed to place him in it, and started to push the canoe ashore, a distance of some 200 yards. He succeeded in reaching shore, but in an exhausted condition, and made his way to the residence of Mr. Grieves, who, it is needless to say, gave them every attention. Mr. Boyce is none the worse for his long bath, but laments the loss of a favorite rifle and his fishing tackle.

PUGILISTIC.

The full account given in your Friday's issue of the cowardly attack on His Honor Judge Dennistoun leaves little for me to say beyond to express the unanimous feeling of disgust it has called forth in the village against the author, and to add a few words to the "humorous side." When your worthy Bailiff, who had been taking an airing up the lakes on the Cruiser, arrived in the evening and heard the news he concluded that Lakefield was not a healthy locality for legal officials, so ordered his horse and partaking of a hasty tea, drove off congratulating himself as he expressed it, "he was getting home with a whole skin," as when the Judge was assaulted, the Sheriff threatened he did not know who might pitch into him.

FORESTERS' EXCURSION.

If any of your readers wish to enjoy a pleasant day up our back lakes do not let them forget Court Lakefield's annual excursion up to Stoney Lake on Dominion Day. The steamers Fairy and Cruiser leave at 8 a. m. and return at 7 p. m.

History of the Rebellion.

The Grip Printing and Publishing Company are about to issue part No. 1 of their "Souvenir Edition" of the Illustrated War News. This edition will contain a complete history of the rebellion, and will be issued in two parts; each containing 32 pp., of which 12 will be illustrations. The history has been carefully written by the author of "The War in the Soudan," and the engravings gotten up in the best possible style. There will be a large two page illustration, printed in colors, of the principal officers at the front, and the cover will also be printed in colors and will form a very attractive title page for the edition. Each part will make an ordinary book of 120 pages, and when bound in book form will be one of the most attractive and valuable mementos of the rebellion. The price of each number will be 50c., and we predict a large sale. Part 1 will be ready on the 3rd July, and can be procured of all Booksellers, or from the Publishers.

THE ROMANCE OF A VOYAGE.

He had rallied after the first telegram, and had thought it needless that Ruth should come. He had not calculated on the possibility of her starting as immediately as she had done, and the second message, which bid her not come, had not reached her.

A few days after—two days since now—he had broken a blood-vessel, and had been pronounced beyond hope.

"If only I had known of this sooner!" I thought, as I looked at the miserable room and thought of my idle hundreds and thousands.

When, by-and-by—Ruth for a brief while absent—a woman living in the rooms below, who had been very kind to Frank, had taken her away to give her some refreshment, I stammeringly expressed something of my regret, he answered:

"It is better as it is, for I am well content."

"Is your sweet sister free?" I asked—"free from any engagement—free-hearted?"

I spoke low and hastily, and felt in all my being how much hung upon his answer.

"My little Ruth? O, yes, as far as I can know. And she has never had any secrets from me."

"I love her," I responded. "If she can love me, I will do what a man can do to make a woman happy as a wife."

He did not immediately answer. He lay with closed eyes, but I felt the tightening pressure of his hand.

"I may tell her by-and-by that I had your good wishes?"

"You may tell her"—the radiant eyes unclosing on me—"that in my last hours I drank a full cup of happiness, believing that my darling, my little Ruth, my ewe-lamb, my pet sister, would be happy among happy women as your wife."

"You have not lost your generous-hearted enthusiasm for a very unworthy fellow," I answered.

"Nothing I have heard of my old friend, my protector, my benefactor, has tended to lessen those feelings," he said.

"One word of yours in your sister's ear will make me—"

She came in at that moment. I was going to leave them together, but he begged me not to go; and while he spoke a mortal faintness surprised him.

It passed, however. He asked to be lifted up. The recumbent position was painful to him. He lay with his head on Ruth's shoulder, bright hair mingling with bright hair.

The doctor came and went, and the woman who had nursed him. They both foreboded that the last hour was near.

It was an afternoon not to be forgotten. He said he did not suffer much, and every now and again he talked.

Ruth did not shed a tear. She seemed absorbed in him beyond consciousness of self or sorrow. She moistened his lips or wiped his brow continually, and her eyes seemed to cling to his.

The sunset entering the room touched those two. She was watching him intently. His eyes, only half opened, seemed to look at her dreamily, like the eyes of one who dozes off to sleep. The light faded, the dusk gathered. We did not stir, believing that he slept.

By-and-by, through the gloom, the near hush and the distant noise of the great city, Ruth's voice, low and awe-struck, reached me, asking for light. I had fallen into profound thought. Life, love, death and immortality, failure, success, the world's vanity—I do not know what I did not think of as I sat motionless in that dusky room.

I procured a lamp. I set it down on the table, where the light fell on those faces. I found that Ruth had sunk lower and lower as the head on her shoulder grew heavier. A glance told me the truth. He was dead.

She saw it, she knew it. She sank down lower yet, till his bright hair was on the pillow, hers beside it. She moaned softly, lying thus cheek to cheek. I heard a few words, "Brother, take me—take me with you. I have none but you."

Then she lay quite still, half on the couch, half on the floor, face to face with the dead.

What did I do?

I stood and looked at them.

As I stood and looked at them, I went through one of those experiences that it is no use to try and record—that are written on the page of life forever.

By-and-by I found that she was lying in a dead faint.

I disentangled them then, and laid her on the floor on as good a couch as I could make of my wrapper and the cushions of an old chair.

I had told her the truth when I told her I was a sort of doctor. That had been the profession I had not loved well enough to follow, after a large fortune left me had made the pursuit of a profession needless. I could treat her as well as another. I did what I could for her, and she revived.

My entreaties prevailed on her after a time to leave the room for a few hours, going with the woman of the rooms below; but before the night had half passed she was back again.

"Do not be angry with me. I want to sit and look at him. I won't cry. Soon I shall lose him forever!"

She took her station by him; she begged me to go away somewhere to get [illegible] I pretended to yield, but found myself too tired to go beyond the interdom. She was not in a state to [illegible] alone.

The dawn brought the horrible and harrowing business of putting away out of sight, out of reach, the mortality which had been so dear, that we had clutched so close, and never could keep too near—to my mind.

I talked to her as little as I could, and as gently. Gently! If words could have floated on the air like eider-down, or touched her with goose-winged touches, they would still have seemed to me too rough to be cast at her then. Still, I was forced to try and ascertain her wishes.

"You know what is best—you will do what is right," she answered me, gently; "but don't ask me to leave the house while he is in it. Think of the long years that—"

There she paused—burst into violent weeping. She had not cried before.

"O, I feel as if my heart was breaking!" she said, pressing her hands over it.

I clasped her to me. I comforted her as well as I could, reminding her, as well as I knew how, of how well things must be with her beloved brother. I spoke, too, of the place where we would lay him to rest, of the country, silent among the roses, the violets.

She lay quiet in my arms, and by-and-by lifted up her face to listen.

To see that sweet, sad face resting against my breast, to look down upon it, and meet its trustful eyes, filled me with overmastering emotions.

"If you can love me," I said then, "you need never feel alone or unsheltered, never more while I live. This is no unfit place or time to tell you this, for he knew I loved you, and was glad in knowing it; but I do not ask, or expect, or desire any answer—not now."

I hardly know that she took in the sense of my words; sorrow and exhaustion had drained her life. No tinge of color came to her cheek; she just listened.

"How good you are—how good you are!" she said. "What could I have done but for you?"

I arranged every thing for the best far as I knew; I tempted her from the room to go with me to the graveyard beyond the walls, to choose where he should lie. She seldom spoke; she said afterward it was all like a dream, from which she expected at any moment to awake.

The next day we buried him.

When all was done we lingered near the place. A spring-breathed soft wind was blowing; spring-voiced sweet birds were singing, the mild spring sun was shining; the place was very soothing and peaceful, towered over by the great monumental tomb of some forgotten great one. That was a day to be remembered.

I promised her that the grave should be cared for better than any other in the place.

When we went away I took her to the care of that motherly, kind Quakerish lady of the diligence, whom I had prepared to receive her.

I did not see her again for some days; she was too exhausted, when the reaction from long over-tension set in, to leave her bed.

I called every day, and always found some gentle-worded, grateful message ready for me; but day after day I did not see her.

At last a bright day came when I did. She was more altered, more broken-down-looking, than I had anticipated. The meeting of me agitated her very greatly. Her black dress, too, increased the delicacy of her look.

Mrs. Norris stood by her, smoothing her hair and petting her with lovings deeds and words till she was calmer; then, good woman! she left us together.

I had no idea what lay before me.

Our interview was a long one. More than once I left her side and paced the room in despair; stood at one or other of the windows that looked down upon the city, and pondered how I could convince her of my love—that is to say, of the selfish and interested nature of it.

She met my definite offer of my hand and heart with the most meekly, humbly firm refusal.

Her gratitude was so full and so lowly, her agitation so great, that I could not be angry with her; but I was greatly irritated, and turned my irritation against myself—cursed myself that I could find no words strong enough to convince her.

It was just like me, she told me—just like what she had always heard of me. She would always love me with the most grateful, reverent love, always remember me in her prayers; but be my wife—no!

It was long before I could get a reason why; but at last I tortured it from her.

She believed that I was sacrificing myself—that I loved her because she was friendless and alone. But she was not fit for me, she told me, she had not the accomplishments, the education, the talent, the beauty, the any thing that my wife should have. As for her future, I need not be anxious, she assured me. Mrs. Norris had told her that here, in Rome, she could procure her a suitable situation.

At last, when I had exhausted every argument, or thought I had, and despaired, at all events, of present success, I grew hurt and angry.

I turned from her to a window, and stood looking out. A veil of blackness gathered between me and all I looked on. I was ill with anger, disappointment, and thwarted will.

I don't know how long I had stood so, but I believe it was a long time, when the softest of small hands entered mine, which hung down beside me.

I started and looked round. She was looking up into my face so wistfully, her own face stained with pain and earnestness.

"You look so pained, so displeased," she said. "I must seem to you so thoroughly heartless and ungrateful. I cannot bear it."

Before I knew what she was going to do, she was kneeling beside me; before I could prevent her, her soft fingers were raising my hand to her soft lips.

I lifted her up.

Holding her by the shoulders, I asked her, I am afraid almost fiercely, "Can you tell me that you do not love me?"

"No, I cannot; I do love you—I love you very dearly."

Her tears began to fall, and she, tottering toward me, shed them on my breast.

I hold her there fast and firm; and never since has she disclaimed the right to be there.

"Ma," said the small boy as they were taking the train out of town the other day, "you'll see something funny when we get back." "What will it be?" inquired his mother. "Why, all the buildings will be a different color." "Nonsense, child; what gave you that idea?" "Well, pa told Mr. Smith last night that when you and me went away he was going to paint the town red," and then he wondered why his mother wouldn't let him stand on the seat nor buy candy.—Boston Post.

The Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

"Cable."

The oldest and most reliable brand of cigars in the market. Free from all chemicals and artificial flavourings. 13d-25w-1y

Imitative.

Three or four children amused themselves yesterday afternoon by hoisting a flag and parading around the market square, beating tambourines, after the fashion of the Salvation Army.

Runaway.

On Monday evening, about 9 o'clock, as Mr. John Bell, of No. 1 ward, was driving up street with a keg of nails, he lost control of his horse, which, but for the timely assistance of Constable McGinty, might have made things lively for Mr. Bell. As it was the little escapade resulted only in a fright and broken shaft.

Sunday School Excursion.

The St. Andrews Sunday School excursion to Norwood on July 16th will be the best of the season. Special train both ways. No crowding on the cars. Train will leave the O. & Q. station at 10.30 a.m., and returning will leave Norwood at 7 o'clock p.m.
27-1d

Prob'e Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate north and west winds; fine weather; slightly higher temperatures; fine warm weather on Wednesday.

Admirably Printed.

Peterborough now publishes daily editions. The EXAMINER sends us an admirably printed 24 column sheet, full of good, interesting local news and choice selections. The EXAMINER is evidently bound not to be the least of the Peterborough dailies.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

Providing for Frost.

The gas company is laying down a line of pipe on Rubidge street to connect the Charlotte and Hunter street mains. During the winter the frost affects the pipes, passing under the bridges, and as it seldom happens that both are frozen up at the same time, the new pipe is put in so that the district supplied by these mains may not be deprived of gas. The failure of the Hunter street bridge pipe would shroud St. Peter's Cathedral's congregation in darkness, and if the Charlotte street supply were frozen up, the Charlotte Street Methodist Church worshippers would be again as them which sit in darkness.

Lacrosse Matters.

A meeting of the Lacrosse Club was held last night, at which it was decided to accompany the Forester's excursion to Ottawa on July 21st, and play a match in that city with the Metropolitans. A committee was appointed to make arrangements with the P. A. A. A., for the use of their grounds two nights every week for practice. All arrangements were completed for to-morrow's match, and it is expected that a close contest will take place. The following are the names of players who will don the navy and white and face the Torontos at 3 o'clock: Joyal, Tierney, Hall, Halpin, Rutherford, Scott, Giroux, Cameron, Henderson, Fortye, Rudkins and Rose.

Canoe Parade.

The first canoe parade of the season came off last night on the Little Lade. Shortly after seven o'clock, many canoes were noticed leaving the boat house, and it was expected that the turn-out would be very brilliant; but when, at 8.30 o'clock the various canoeists were called upon to illuminate, it was found that out of fifty canoes scarcely more than a dozen had made any preparations. As it was, however, the sight from Burnham's Point was very pretty and was watched by a considerable number of persons who, regardless of the chill of the evening, enjoyed the intermixing of the different hues of Chinese Lanterns, as well as the musical selections of the Fire Brigade Band.

DOMINION DAY.

The Various Attractions which are Offered to Peterborough People To-morrow.

It is to be hoped that favourable weather will usher in the eighteenth birthday of our Dominion to-morrow morning. Already the people are beginning to ask themselves the questions: "What shall we do with ourselves?" "Where shall we go?" etc., etc. For the benefit of those who are undecided as to the manner in which they intend celebrating the occasion, we present the following programme, which will be of local interest to all parties wishing to spend a pleasant day.

PARISH PIC-NIC.

As previously announced in our columns, all the arrangements have been completed by which a pleasant and enjoyable time can be spent at Wallis' Grove. The various committees have everything in readiness and no doubt when the programme of sports will be announced to-morrow morning at the grove at 10 o'clock there will be a large attendance present. 'Busses will leave town for the beautiful resort early in the morning and will continue during the day. The ladies in charge of the refreshment tables have been working harder than on any previous occasion, and a pleasant time is promised to all who attend.

THE PETERBOROUGH LACROSSE CLUB, in connection with the driving park association, intends to surpass all former efforts to-morrow in furnishing amusement for the inhabitants of Peterborough, as well as for those who intend to visit our town for a day's recreation. They will cross sticks with the Torontos on the grounds at the driving park, and every lover of lacrosse should make it a point to be seated on the grand stand at 3 o'clock sharp. The efforts of the lacrosse club will be ably seconded by a which will leave the Post Office corner shortly after one o'clock. This great pageant will contain representatives of the leading characters in the recent rebellion in the North-West, including the noble commanders of our brave boys and their antagonists. Previous to the ball being faced prizes will be offered for Indian races, as well as for the best costumes exhibited in the representation of the different characters.

BAND OF BRAVES

Mr. Ed. Brown, manager of the

has, by special request, once more engaged the services of Prof. Hurst, for the evening, and the success of that gentleman's last appearance in Peterborough is sufficient guarantee that the balconies of that institution will hold its share of the population of the town to witness the appearance of the celebrated bicyclist.

THE SONS OF ENGLAND

have not left a stone unturned to make the evening programme, under their management, a success. Shortly after 7 o'clock the doors of the drill shed will be thrown open and the old English custom of crowning the May Queen will be repeated, after which an exhibition of fire works will take place in the Central Park. When the citizens of Peterborough shall have witnessed the above it is safe to say that they will sleep soundly the night—or rather the morning followin the Dominion's eighteenth birthday.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock	60°	29.26
1 o'clock	71	29.20
3 o'clock	70	29.20

Garden Party.

A garden party and strawberry festival, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's Church, will be held at "Cordach," the residence of Mr. Geo. M. Roger, on Friday evening, July 3rd, at half past seven Admission 15 cents. 27-3d

The Fruit of Gratitude.

At a regular meeting of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows on Monday evening the officers elect for the current term signified their sense of the honor conferred on them by regaling their brethren present and the visiting members of Peterborough Lodge with a delicious abundance of strawberries and cake to match. The refection was an elegant one, in keeping with the manner in which the suppliers of the succulent strawberry generally do what they undertake.

More Than She Could Stand.

Yesterday a girl called at a house on Rubidge street and opened negotiations with the mistress with a view of being engaged as a servant. During the course of the interview she was careful to have a strict understanding as to what her precise duties were to be. She did not want them to be too heavy; "For," she added, in explanation, "a girl, you know, can't stand it to work hard all day, and skate all night at the roller rink."

To-morrow's Cricket.

The following members of the Peterboro' Cricket Club compose the team that will meet the Sons of England (Toronto) eleven to-morrow:

R. B Rogers,	Thos. Rutherford,
Miles Hamilton,	Max Hamilton,
S. D. Craven,	H. B. Carter,
W. A. Stratton,	J. E. Hammond,
P. E. S. Cooper,	Jas. Norley.

The remaining man has not yet been selected. The match will begin at one o'clock on the Ashburnham grounds. The two teams are strong ones, and the game is sure to be a game one. Admission to the grounds, 15 cents.

You can get Pedestal Bottom Extension Tables for $9.50, worth $12.50. Bent Rim Extension Tables for $6.50, worth $8.50. Handsome Bedsteads for $3.50, worth $5.50, all hardwood, at McKee's Furniture Warerooms, Water street, three doors north of Simcoe street. 1-d

A Wise Precaution.

Any person who would like to see the sports at Wallis' Grove to-morrow and be back in town to see the lacrosse matches can do so, and at the same time enjoy a first class dinner at the pic-nic grounds. The sports will commence at 10 o'clock sharp.

No Paper To-morrow.

To-morrow being a general holiday there will be no issue of THE DAILY EXAMINER. The WEEKLY will be issued this (Tuesday) evening to catch the Thursday morning's early trains and mails as usual.

Correction.

In our report of the distribution of prizes which took place on Friday evening last, at the conclusion of the musical concert in Bradburn's Opera House, through an error in the list furnished us, the medal presented by Mr. Muncaster, for drawing, was credited to a friend.

A Striking Coincidence.

By a happy conjunction of dates the day on which the contractors were ready for the laying of the corner stone of St. Andrew's Church, was coincident with the 6th anniversary of Rev. Mr. Bell's pastorate and the jubilee year of the old church of Scotland.

Taming him Down.

Yesterday, Mr. A. Moffat had another narrow escape from being hurt through the unruly conduct of his horse. This morning, however, a considerable amount of obstinacy was taken out of him at the Charlotte street crossing of the G. T. R., where he was made stand his ground with the help of curbed bit, whilst the locomotive was passing up and down several times.

Police Court.

James McAvelin was waltzed into one of the front row of chairs in the Police Court this morning, and charged by P. C. McGinty with being drunk. James said that he supposed there was no use in denying the charge, that he was a little "shot," and expressed an inclination of leaving town. To give him a chance to make his way to his favourite town, Belleville, the Magistrate suspended judgment, and he was allowed to go.

New Business in Ashburnham.

Mr. R. C. Carter, the enterprising agent for the Messrs. Rathbun & Sons, Deseronto, lumbermen and manufacturers of lumber supplies, whose agencies dot the lake front from Toronto to Kingston, has been in town for the past two or three days, making arrangements for the establishment of an agency in this town. We understand that a lease has been or is being effected with the Messrs. Rathbun & Sons, whereby they will occupy a portion of the Grand Trunk Railway property in Ashburnham. The premises to be occupied by their business will, we understand, include the storehouses and elevator between Elizabeth and Sophia streets, where will be kept a fine supply of the output of firm—sash, doors, blinds, lath, shingles, etc., etc., and yards will be arranged for the sale of anthracite and bituminous coal.

Strawberries.

Oakville and home picked berries fresh every day. Any amount supplied a one days' notice. Cherries, green peas, green beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers, cabbages, and all kinds of green vegetables. Smith's market.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade.

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

DOMINION DAY.

How the Day was Devoted to Pleasure.

Sons Of England Celebration.

The Wallis Grove Picnic.

Cricket and Lacrosse Matches.

Other Incidents and Doings.

Yesterday morning the sun rose clear and cloudless, giving promise of "Queen's" weather for the natal day of our Dominion. The day was yet young when evidences of its being a holiday were apparent, and everybody who appeared early in the morning was in holiday attire or making preparations for a day of sight seeing. Fishing tackle was being got together and many were the useless jaunts to livery stables for horses and equipages which seemed to have been almost entirely pre-empted the day before. The first out-going train carried a good many persons Lindsay and Toronto ward, and brought large bodies of excursionists from Cobourg and Port Hope, whence excursions were run. Shortly after, the Grand Junction train with the Oxford Lodge of Sons of England members on board arrived.

But the most notable influx of transient populations was brought by two excursion trains from Toronto, having on board the Sons of England lodges and about 1,100 excursionists. There were two trains consisting of eighteen passenger coaches. The brethren were met at the station by the local brethren, and a procession was formed of the 12 Toronto Lodges and the Belleville and town Sons of England which preceded, headed by the Fire Brigade Band, and the flag of the society to the Drill shed and Separate School grounds, where the local brethren had made elaborate and complete preparations for the accommodation and comfort of their visitors. Eating is popularly considered the first business of an Englishman's life; it was first attended to on this occasion and the great crowd of excursions entered upon the enjoyment of their pic-nic dinner, and for a little while there was a thinning of the streets while Peterborough's ten thousand inhabitants and their three thousand visitors were partaking of their mid-day meal.

THE PICNIC IN WALLIS' GROVE

was largely attended, and the manner in which everything was conducted reflected credit on those who worked so vigorously to make it a success. At an early hour 'busses cabs and other vehicles commenced carrying visitors to the grounds and continued so all day. Although the number at any one time on the grounds was not extremely large owing to the desire of the people to get a glimpse of what was going on elsewhere, yet the sum total must have been very large. The beautiful grove, the fine day and pleasant crowd afforded a delightful time for healthful pleasure and recreation. The tables were well patronized, as they deserved to be, for a finer display of edibles and more attentive and courteous waiters it would be difficult, indeed, to find. The following ladies deserve mention for the active part they took in making the picnic a success:—Mrs. Dr. O'Sullivan, Mrs. John Hackett, Mrs. R. W. Muncaster, Mrs. Thos. Dolan, Mrs. Jno. Corkery, Mrs. Jno. Doherty Mrs. M McFadden, Mrs. Noah Laplante, Mrs. John Lynch, Mrs. John C. Sullivan, Mrs. D. Donoghue, Mrs. Thos. Kelly and Miss McCarthy, also the following ladies at the ice cream and fruit stands:—Miss N. Tagney, Miss McAuliffe, Miss Simons, Miss Mahoney, Mrs. Thos. Henry, Mrs. J. Dunn. The receipts from the sale of temperance drinks at the booth conducted by J. Lynch and T. Hoolihan must have been considerable. The dancing platform was occupied throughout the day by the 'beauty and chivalry' of the crowd who were fascinated, no doubt, into tripping the opera steps by the seductive strains that swelled from Doucet's orchestra. We noticed on the grounds the Rev. Fathers Conway, O'Connell, O'Brien, Kielty and Guay during the day.

BOYS RACE, 150 YARDS, 8 ENTRIES.—1st, Thos. Kelly.

TUG OF WAR (boys) led by Daniel Simons and Bernard Corkery with 10 boys each, won by Corkery.

In the afternoon the Sons of England sports and games were conducted in the Separate School grounds. A lengthy programme of sports and games was most excellently carried out, but as the contestants and winners were with trifling exceptions exclusively Toronto people the full list of events and prize winners is not printed. This is not the only reason to be given. From some unexplained cause, the Toronto men who assumed the management of the afternoon programme would not permit reporters to enter the grounds as is universally the custom in communities where newspapers are published. The baby show, however, was an event in which entries of babies were made by five Peterborough ladies, but one only received a prize. Mrs. Charles Noyes, Ashburnham, carried off the second prize in the 9-to-12-months-of-age class of babies.

About six o'clock the Toronto and other excursionists took train for home. The visitors can have nothing but pleasant recollections of the manner in which the Peterborough Sons of England extended their hospitality. The latter provided and fitted up and furnished the grounds and supplied the music, while the visiting brethren enjoyed both the management and emoluments.

THE STREET PARADE.

Shortly after one o'clock, the people began to collect on George street, from Murray to Charlotte street, and the crowd continued to gather till at 1:30, the hour at which the "spectacular pageant" was to move from the post-office corner, there were, on moderate computation, from 6,000 to 8,000 persons on the street within the above limits. After waiting patiently till two o'clock, two 'bus loads of lacrosse players and four or five young men, excellently made up as Indians, proceeded to the Driving Park, where the races and lacrosse matches took place.

THE CRICKET CONTEST.

At one o'clock a considerable number of persons had assembled at the grounds of the Athletic Association, to witness the cricket match between the local team and one of the Sons of England Cricket Club. The crease and grounds were in the excellent condition that obtains under the careful management of Norley. The visitors went first to the bat, facing the bowling of Stratton and Hamilton. Runs came slowly and the telegraph showed eight wickets down for 38 runs when Smith and Abbey, the only double figure men, got together and "made a stand," the former scoring 11 and the latter 39 not out, though he had at least two lives, being clean stumped when his tally stood 7; but as the umpire was not looking the batter got the benefit of it. The innings closed for 101 runs. The home team then took the willow and "wore the willow," too, for the three best bats of the club, Montgomery, Rutherford, and Max Hamilton, took off their pads for a miserable five, a 2, a 3 and an ellispe. But Carter and Miles Hamilton stayed together till they had added 16 and 13 respectively by clean, clever cricket, Stratton with 9 and Carter with 17 honestly earned and beautifully made runs, and Cooper with 14 followed, and the innings closed with a total of 84. The home team fielded loosely, while the visitors got in sharp, hard work throughout in this department. The long grass in the north-west corner is to be credited with three "lost" balls, adding the difference to the visitors' score. The score is as follows:—

"Two to one that the Torontos win three straight games," said one of the Sons of England yesterday, at 3.40 p.m., just as the centres were kneelling for the draw. "I'll take that," said "Ed." and at 4.40 p.m. the money was handed over to the man with the light check suit. The fact, that many other attractions were offered to the residents of Peterborough, did not prevent the patrons of the P. L. C., of old, from witnessing the tug for supremacy, which took place yesterday afternoon on the new grounds at the Driving Park, between a team from the Torontos and the Peterboroughs. The visiting team arrived in town on the 11.40 C. P. R. train, and registered at the Grand Central, where they remained until 2 o'clock when the appearance of the braves on horseback put the public in mind of the sports which were billed for the Driving Park. From that hour until three the patrons of the game kept moving south; and at 3.15 there must have been two thousand persons, in all, inside the twelve-foot fence, which encloses the grounds. Previous to the "big" match, a team from the junior Peterboroughs played a time match with the Cretes, which resulted in a victory for the former dozen who took one game at the last moment when time was about to be called. The Cretes, who appeared in their new uniforms of flesh colored shirts and white knickers, played a plucky game and doubtless would have won their match, had their expected rivals, the Albions, made their appearance from Toronto. At 3.35 p.m. it was ascertained that the Torontos had only ten players, and after a few minutes discussion it was decided that the Peterborough club would put the same number of representatives on the field. Prof. Hurst was chosen for referee and Messrs. W. J. McKenzie and S. English umpired at the east and west ends respectively. J. Coughlin captained the home team, and H. Taylor gave orders to the visitors. The following is the composition of the teams and their respective positions:

Torontos.		Peterboroughs.
W. D. Donaldson	Goal	J. Joyal
T. Mills	Point	R. Hall
F. W. Garvin	Cover Point	M. Tierney
J. Henderson	1st Defence	M. Halpin
R. Cassels	2nd "	H. Cameron
	3rd "
W. Gordon	Centre	R. H. Fortye
H. Davis	Field	W. J. Scott
	do
P. Schofield	3rd Home	J. Henderson
D. Coulson	Outside Home	C. Rutherford
H. Wilson	Inside Home	G. H. Giroux

At twenty minutes to four the referee told the centres it was time to commence; and then it was that:

Each at once his stick he drew,
Each on the ground his hat he threw;
"Dod" looked to the stand where the ladies sat,
And watched the usual kechief flap,
Then foot, and 'crosse, and eye opposed.
In dubious strife they gladly closed.
Ill-fared it then for the boy in blue,
That on the ground his hat he threw;
For so bright did the sun shine in his eyes,
That without the ball did he arise—

and immediately, Scott was seen making his way towards the judge's stand, where he poised himself, and made a nice throw towards the visitor's goal. There was not enough muscle put in the throw, and the ball lit twenty yards from the place he destined it for. Garvin was the next possessor, and, after evading the check, passed the ball to Mills, who, despite the stiff breeze that was blowing eastward, landed it behind the Peterboro's goal. Joyal was commanded to go there, and Joe "got there," and, after running well to the southwest corner, leisurely threw the ball diagonally across the field into the trench near the race-track. Giroux and Garvin faced and George consigned the rubber once more "to the deep." Faced again, and Garvin came out best and sent the ball as far as mid-field, where Gordon came into possession, but, being closely checked by Fortye, had to consign it to P. Schofield. "Percy" made a good run, but his throw was nipped in the bud by Halpin, who seems to have a particular knack for stopping throws at short range. Halpin was about to throw, but, seeing Fortye doing nothing, shied the ball in his direction. "Dod" was not prepared for it and the ball just touched the tip of his stick and bounded into Davis' crosse, who made a nice drop on the Peterborough's defence. Tierney was in his proper place, and, after outrunning his check in the direction of the long grass, landed the ball in close proximity to the poles of the Queen City boys, where a general scramble took place, Scott, Henderson and Rutherford working like little men against the larger shapes of Mills, Garvin and Cassels. Out of the turmoil the tall, wiry figure of Tom Mills at length made its appearance, and the ball came out with him and was sent in a dangerous proximity to the spot where Joyal was standing. The visitors at this point hatched a little conspiracy between themselves and tried to draw the home team's defence out. They succeeded in drawing Tierney a considerable distance, and at the proper time Wilson made a shot at the flags, but Hall stood in the gap, and Joyal breathed easier as he saw the trouble transferred to the other end of the field, where Cameron had mechanically wandered and was making things hot by repeated drop shots, one of which was caught by Mills who made a fine throw westward and that throw settled the first game the ball bounding over Joyal's shoulder just 20 minutes after it was faced, including stoppages. The result did not in the least discourage the home team and when the

SECOND GAME

was commenced at 4.13 p.m. Joyal's countenance convinced the spectators that he had made up his mind that the game, if taken, would not at least be a fluke. Fortye got the ball on the draw and passed it to Scott as in the first game who after a nice run gave it to Rutherford and "Kit" drew forth the applause from the onlookers by doing his old time true and low shot; it was wide; and between Mills and Garvin, George Giroux was baffled in his attempts to secure the rubber behind the goal. The former made a good throw and the next one that had anything to do with it was Joyal, who, after getting away from the attentions that Coulson was paying him—on the ribs—made the longest throw of the day, relieving for a while the defence home team—but only for a while. The ball was sent back by Gordon and found its way behind the Peterborough goal. Hall went after it, ran over it, and Wilson being close at hand secured the rubber and dropped it well to the front of the goal where Coulson came into possession and by a quick shot scored game. Time 8 min. Even then, although the visitors had two games, the Peterboroughs did not seem to be willing to show the white and the

THIRD GAME

was started without any rest. Fortye was not so fortunate in this game as in the previous ones and Gordon made the first bid for honours, by a nice shot for the home goal. It was, however, well guarded by Joyal, who, being closely checked, played to Hall, and that gentleman took his time and sent the ball where it was not wanted, and where, for the time being, it was not very well entertained. Rutherford put in his claim and after a pretty movement around two players, gave it to Fortye, who, thinking that Henderson was not kept busy enough, tipped the ball to that tricky and manœuvering little player, Joe acted in a business-like manner and after dodging his namesake and Garvin, shot the ball through. Time, 3¼ minutes. The

FOURTH GAME

was immediately commenced, and with it commenced the old time, close checking, "stay-with-him" sort of play that, in the past, characterized the play of the Peterboroughs. The ball made its way in the beginning of the game towards the home team's defence, only to be returned by Hall, who was playing an excellent and effective game throughout the entire contest. The play which followed for a short time was rather wild on the part of the visitors, who were apparently loosing their "stay." In this game the clever and well ganged throws of Tierney as well as his successful "jumping" stops were much admired, and at times drew forth well deserved encomiums from the three hundred spectators who occupied seats on the grand stand. After a good deal of exchanges had been made with the ball by Joyal and Donaldson, Cameron came into possession; but, for running into the long grass on the south side, had to face off. The draw was followed by Gordon making a nice throw on the Peterborough goal which was turned off by Tierney, who, in getting possession of the ball touched it with his hand. The result was a face and the next man that figured conspicuously with the sphere was Davis who made a shot for the flags, it was a little wide. Joyal was deputed to see after the ball, and in doing so was so affectionately nudged in the ribs by Wilson that he had to rest for a short time. The "Knight of the Red Cross" appeared with some "cold tea" in a glass, a small portion of which had the desired effect and play was commenced with renewed vigor. Henderson, Cameron and Rutherford were playing a fine game and doing magnificent team play. In one of this series of actions the ball came into the possession of "Kit," who, after dodging his man, scored game from in front of the goal by a low, underhand shot. Time, 18 minutes. This movement was received by general cheering from the spectators, and the urchins on the fence contributed a smile that reached from the grand stand to Park street. The was commenced after five minutes rest, and was well contested until time was called at 5 o'clock. The home team was playing a good game, and, as in the match just one year ago with a team from the same club, were beginning to have things their own way when the hands of Prof. Hurst's watch pointed to the above time. After the conclusion of the match the teams gave the usual cheers and adjourned to town, each feeling that it was the best team.

HORSE RACES AT THE PARK.

The braves, as we mentioned, turned out to the number of six and attracted considerable attention. The characters assumed and the names of those who assumed them were as follows:—"Red Crow," A. Patterson, "Big Bear," J. Fanning, "Hole-in-the-Sky," J. Patterson, "Yellow Stone," R. Redmond, "Yellow Calf," G. Montgomery, "Strike-him-on-the-back," A. W. Vance. The first prize for the best costume was awarded to A. Patterson as "Red Crow." The half mile race in heats (best two in three) was a very close and exciting feature of the programme, and was one also by "Red Crow," whose horse took both heats, the second one by merely a head.

SONS OF ENGLAND EVENING PROGRAMME.

In the evening the Peterborough Sons of England gave a splendid entertainment in the Drill Shed. There was a very large assembly present. An elevated stage had been erected in the north-east corner of the shed, beautifully decorated with green boughs and flags. The May pole rose in the centre, and sixteen gayly colored ribbons streamed from its flower-crowned apex. The programme was opened by a selection by the band. Mr. W. Brundrette, Secretary Lansdowne Lodge, acting as chairman, introduced Geo. A. Cox, Esq., Mayor, who delivered a brief address, in which he stated that he sympathised with the society and it objects, for though he was not an Englishman he was the son of an Englishman. He had been pleased to see them enjoy themselves this beautiful day, and could congratulate them on the success of their celebration and upon the creditable manner in which they had honored the natal day of the Dominion we all loved so much to honor.

The ceremony of

followed, and was a most interesting and beautiful spectacle, and was viewed with delight, shown by enthusiastic applause, by the large number present. The following little girls took part in it and the May pole dance incidental to the ceremony:—Flora Tivey, May Queen Bertha Brundrett, Mary Ann Hall, Irene Noble, Alice Tivey, Allie Kingdon, Alice Miller, Fannie Robinson, Sara Hall, Maud Deacon, Lizzie Richardson, Clara Kingdon, Emma Robinson, Jessie Brundrett, Bella Boulton, Ella McFadden, Katie McFadden, Florence Maddock, Mary Canning, Carrie Gunn, Laura Morris. At the proper time the May Queen ascended her throne in the front of the May Pole, her crown resting on a table and a little attendant on each side of her, the sixteen little girls ranged in a circle outside to the extent of the garlands. They then sang a coronation hymn in excellent time and tune to the air of "God Save the Queen" and at the proper point threw flowers at the feet of the "May Queen" while her attendants placed the crown on her head. The dance then began. Half of the girls that held the ends of the ribbons circled around the pole, the other half going in the opposite direction, tripping in and out to a lively air in such a way that when the ribbons were wound up the pole was covered with a beautiful even plait of many colored ribbons. Then the motion was reversed and the ribbons again unwound. This was repeated twice and the skillful manner in which the little maidens went through the complicated evolutions necessary to the successful performance of the dance, won hearty applause and reflected great credit, not only on themselves, but also on the Misses Tivey who so carefully trained them for the occasion.

The see-saw dance followed. This is also something new in Peterborough, and was introduced by Mr. Wm. Walk, a musician, newly arrived in town, who trained the performers for this occasion. Four trestles were placed on the four sides of the stage, and planks balanced on them. two of these planks were "manned" by the girls that took part in the may pole dance, and the other two by boys, and the see-saw went on rythmically, to the music of the See-Saw waltz by the band, the little performers joining in a rollicking, childish ditty at the proper time; the effect was very pleasing, and was loudly applauded. This ended the inside programme, and the crowd adjourned to the Central Park, where an excellent programme of was carried out, eight or ten fine pieces beginning with "welcome" followed by "Victoria's Crown," interspersed with flights of rockets, and closing with "good night." This closed in a brilliant salutation of fire, the Sons of England parts of the day's programme, which especially as far as the local members were concerned was a most pronounced success.

AT THE LANSDOWNE.

The Lansdowne received a large proportion of the people in the evening, and between the hours of eight and eleven the floor was literally covered by a crowd of persons of all ages, who had assembled to enjoy a skating preference to other attractions which were going on. Prof. Hurst appeared, and with his bicycle kept his audience spell-bound or over twenty minutes by his clever riding and wonderful balancing feats. The grand march, conducted by Prof. Kerr, brought a most enjoyable evening's recreation to a close about 11 p.m

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough Base Ball Club went to Lindsay yesterday and played a match with the boys of that town. The game was very interesting, and resulted in a score of 5 to 1, the latter score coming to Peterborough.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The present mode of general taxation for street and sidewalk repairs practised by the Town Council has inherent in it no small degree of inequality and justice, and it seems to us that the present time, during which large building contracts are being entered into and new streets are being levelled and improved, is a fitting moment to point out a remedy for the present state of affairs. If the funds of the town available for street purposes were expended in a fairly general way throughout the town and in places where there was the greatest necessity, grounds of complaints would not be so glaring. But when it is considered that property-holders get street improvements according as they can bring strong influence upon the Council, and that, too, only after long and persistent effort, it is easily perceived how unequally our money is spent and what great advantage the Council favourites have over the ordinary ratepayer. Hence it is that although such large sums are annually spent upon our streets and sidewalks there is such little general satisfaction, owing to its uneven expenditure and its withdrawal by interested parties to the advantage of the small minority. It does not appear to be generally known that when any real property is to be immediately benefitted by any proposed improvements, as by constructing sewers, altering, grading, paving or planking any street or public highway, a special annual rate can be assessed and levied, according to the frontage thereof, upon the real property fronting or abutting on the street or place whereon such improvements or work is to be done, unless a majority of the owners representing at least one half in value thereof petition against such assessment and it is specially provided that all property charged with such local improvements shall be exempt from general rates for the same purposes." The Council may also permit owners to build or improve sidewalks in front of their lands according to the regulations of the Council in which case the owners or occupants of such lands shall also be exempt from all taxes for improvements of a like nature so long as they shall keep the same in repair to the satisfaction of the council. The principle of "Local Improvements" has been adopted by the Council in the case of watering the streets and fire protection by water works as the expenses thereof are defrayed by a special tax on the property benefitted. The town of Peterborough is increasing very rapidly in size and population. New streets are being opened. Old streets require renovation and repair. There is a demand on all sides for new sidewalks and for the rebuilding of the old, and it is in many cases uncertain and undefined when so large and sweeping improvements can be carried out.

We would recommend as a panacea for these ills that the principle of local option should be more generally introduced and that those whose properties receive wide and extensive benefit should pay the shot.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. Mr. Mowat has secured another great victory in East Algoma, Mr. Lyon, the Liberal candidate, having been elected by a majority of over seven hundred with three places to hear from, which will increase the majority. Thus, Hon. Mr. Mowat, the champion of provincial rights and the staunch friend of the province, has made a clean sweep of the four by-elections held within the past week. Such endorsation of Mr. Mowat's course and such popular denunciation of Ottawa domination redounds greatly to Hon. Mr. Mowat's credit as a shrewd, capable and patriotic statesman, who worthily fulfils the high trust committed to him. These elections have increased his majority in the House to 17.

Our instantaneous groups are considered by all to be marvels of art.

Prices to suit the most economical.

No necessity now to take the children to inferior studios because of the price.

Nothing can surpass the beauty and delicacy of finish, artistic posing and effective lighting, for which prizes have been awarded us wherever exhibited.

The excellence and artistic character of our work has given us a wide reputation, and we receive orders from all parts.

Now is the time to order, especially coloured work, as time is required to finish such.

PRACTICAL ADVICE

—TO—

YOUNG MEN

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. Procrastination is the Devil's deception." Go to-morrow morning and pay for a Policy.

Call on them if you visit the city. Letters of enquiry, or orders for copies of publications will receive their prompt attention.

DR. J. D. KERGAN, Medical Director.

18—OLD, EXPERIENCED AND SKILLED SPECIALISTS—18

We Treat Chronic Diseases and Deformities as a specialty, and can justly claim to treat them with Unequalled Success.

Our Staff, Our Experience and Our Business

is larger than that of any similar organization in America and more than equals our would-be imitators in Canada combined.

It's Not Necessary to particularize each disease our advice may be solicited for, or for the treatment of which our services may be engaged. We may be consulted with reference to every existing Chronic Disorder of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bladder, Bowels, Blood, Bones, Joints, Skin, Glands, Muscles, Spine, Brain, Nerves, Eye, Ear, &c., &c.

WOMEN YOUNG, MIDDLE-AGED OR OLD, MARRIED OR SINGLE

suffering from any diseases peculiar to their age, sex, or condition, can consult in perfect confidence with our Surgeons (one of whom is direct from the department of the Institute devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women and children;) our treatment is mild and effective, never failing to Cure Suppressed, Profuse, Painful or Irregular Menstruation, Leucorrhœa (Whites), Ulceration of Womb, Falling of the Womb, Uterine Dropsy, Displacements of the Womb, &c. The genitalia of the female is the controlling centre of her whole economy. If the womb and its appendages are not in a healthy state the female figure loses its artistic rotundity, her mind its sprightliness, her humanity its benevolence and sympathy. She becomes fretful, peevish and inconsolable, suffering untold misery in both body and mind, unable to relish or digest what she eats, walking tires her, and climbing stairs is a hundred times worse. Palpitation of the heart, headache, backache and constipation all combine to make her miserable.

WE HAVE thousands of testimonials from Canadian and American ladies who have been cured by our treatment, copies of which can be sent by mail, or seen by any lady calling on the Surgeons.

MEN The department of the Institute devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases peculiar to YOUNG and OLD MEN is rich in experience and has a national reputation for SPEEDY CURES.—Nervous Debility, Dipsomania, Deformities of the Genito-Urinary Organs, Varicose Veins, Varicocele, Hydrocele, Venereal Disease, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Gleet, and all Scrofulous, Cancerous, Syphilitic or other diseases of the Blood promptly and permanently cured by our treatment.

Call on the Surgeons or write either to the DETROIT or TORONTO address as given above.

French Wit.

Secrets of the confessional:

"Is it a sin," asks a fashionable lady of her spiritual director, "for me to feel pleasure when a gentleman says I am handsome?"

"It is, my daughter," he replies, gravely; "we should never delight in falsehood!"

"It was in the oasis of Ben Schneckerab last year," says a bronzed and weather-beaten soldier modestly, after his comrades had finished their recitals of heroism, "and I was posted far in advance, when suddenly I saw three Arabs approaching me all armed to the teeth. They had not perceived me, which was a point in my favor, so I quietly took out my bayonet, fixed it on my rifle, sprang out as they drew near and ran."

"Ran 'em through?" asked a breathless auditor.

"No! Ran down the path to the picket-yard and escaped!"

In a suit for separation, the counsel for the plaintiff draws a most unflattering picture of the husband, whom he denounces as brutal, bad tempered, violent, and so on.

The counsel for the defendant then rises and depicts the plaintiff as cross, bitter of tongue, headstrong, and the like.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," says the court, blandly, "but where does the incompatibility come in?"

"Uncle Willyim, when I grow up shall I still be your nephew?"

"Yes, my child, always. You will be my nephew at sixty just the same as you are at six."

"Yes, Uncle Willyim, but then you won't have been my uncle for a good while, will you?"

"What did the doctor say, tell me?" says the sick man nervously.

"Oh, he didn't say anything," replies his friend encouragingly, "but there is no occasion for any alarm—he seems quite easy and well satisfied."

"Yes, so would I if I was in his place."

X., a wild fellow, has a charming home, but the life out doors is so agreeable that he is rarely to be found at his house.

In despair of ever meeting him, one of his numerous creditors sent him the following:

"DEAR SIR—I respectfully invite you to pass Friday evening at your house. Yours, etc."

The favorite tipple in Washington is hot apple toddy, a beverage composed of baked apple, hot water, sugar and Jersey electricity.

AN IMPROVEMENT.

Since the visit of the County Council to Young's Point the swing bridge over the locks has been replanked and is now safe. When the new gates are placed in position in the locks our friend Mr. Young will be happy.

MILL SHUT DOWN.

R. & G. Strickland's saw mill has been shut down for a short time, until the logs cut last winter arrive. All that were wintered over up in the lake have been turned into lumber, lath and shingles.

DRAIN SUPPLIES.

Two car loads of drain tile for the Queen street drain have been received by the Council it was obtained from the Campbell Sewer Pipe Co. of Hamilton, and is of a superior quality. The construction of the drain will at once be proceeded with.

ROADS AND WALKS.

The village road master and his assistants are nearly through with the repairs ordered by the Council and the roads present a marked improvement, especially Church street which has been graded and boulevarded, while Concession, Ermintinger ann other streets have been greatly improved. With the same care for the next year or two Lakefield will be able to hold its own with any place in Ontario in regard to good streets.

RECOVERED AND ILL.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Jas. Morrison, yardman for R. and G. Strickland, who has been ill with inflammation of the Lungs, is recovered and has gone down to Rice Lake for a change. C. J. Burgess is, we regret to say, laid up with the same trouble and is very low. Both gentlemen now appreciate the advantages of belonging to the order of Foresters, who are untiring in their attentions to them.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

While cleaning a public well at Brownwood, Texas, last week, the remains of a prisoner, who had mysteriously disappeared six years age, were found. Shortly after he disappeared the water of the well began to taste badly, and some hair and flesh was found in it, but the cause was credited to a pet goat which was missing at the time.

John H. Parnell, a brother of the famous Irish leader of that name, owns one of the largest peach farms in the world. It is situated about six miles below West Point, Ga. There are 125,000 peach trees in it, besides a large number of other kinds of fruit trees. They cover over 700 acres. Mr. Parnell has planted 500 acres of young trees this year, and reports his business a paying one. This year's crop will be tolerably good, notwithstanding the freeze.

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed."

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Garden Party.

A garden party and strawberry festival, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of St. Paul's Church, will be held at "Cordach," the residence of Mr. Geo. M. Roger, on Friday evening, July 3rd, at half past seven The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. Admission 15 cents. 27-3d

Appointment.

Rev. Henry Softley, formerly of Coboconk, has been appointed by the Bishop of Toronto to the mission of Otonabee, under the supervision of Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rector of Ashburnham. Mr. Softley entered upon his duties on Sunday last.

Saved Army.

Gen. Lindsay and Mr. Geo. B. Sproule visited Belleville last week and have secured Marble Hall, adjoining the Masonic Hall, for Saved Army work. The opening services will be held at an early date.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—North west and west winds, fair weather; slightly higher temperatures.

Transformation Scene.

The building recently occupied by the Darcy House hotel is to be transformed from a place for making money into a place for making merchants; Mr. D. J. Bannell Sawyer has secured the greater part of the premises for the use of his new business college, which will be opened with a full staff and equipment at an early date. The Messrs. Rathbun have also secured the first floor part next the gateway for offices in connection with thir new business here.

The Warrior's Return.

Mr. R. S. Kelly arrived home yesterday from the Northwest, and was met at the station by a number of members of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club who assembled to welcome him back to town. "Dick" looks well, and comes back wounded only by the scorching rays of the hot sun. He has brought with him a number of photographs, representing different scenes in connection with the campaign, which are on exhibition in one of the windows at the City clothing store. He came from Moosejaw, in charge of a dozen of wounded men, having himself been released only a short time from the hospital.

The European Negira.

The usual annual excursions across the "herring pond" to Europe have begun, and Mr. Thomas Menzies, ticket agent for the Dominion and Beaver lines of ocean steamers, is enjoying a decided boom. He has furnished with tickets by the Dominion line Mr. Ratcliffe and six others, of Lakefield Mr. A. H. Clegg, furniture dealer, and Mr. A. H. Clarke, who started from Peterborough on the 8.50 train last night, and will set sail on Saturday in the Sarnia for Liverpool. Mrs. Archer, Rubidge street, Mrs. Theodore Clementi and son, and Miss Beck, have secured passages from Mr. Menzies by the Beaver line. They sail on the 16th.

W. C. T. A.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Monday afternoon. The chair was occupied by Mrs. Fitzgerald, president. The treasurer submitted a very satisfactory and encouraging report, which was adopted. A letter was read by the corresponding Secretary from Mrs. Chrisholm acknowledging the receipt for subscriptions for five copies of the Woman's Journal. This makes the number of subscribers to this journal, the official organ of the Union, twenty five. The letter also contained a request for the local union to send delegates to the annual meeting to be held in Gananoque. The discussion of the question of submitting the Scott Act was deferred to a future meeting. After a reading of the subject "Why should women work?" the meeting was closed with the usual devotional exercises.

Sons of England Excursion.

We understand that it is the intention of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England of this town to run an excursion to Sturgeon Point at an early date.

Powell & Jones Stove Works.

This morning work on the masonry for the foundations of the Stove Works buildings was begun, a good foundation having been secured on excavating for the walls. It is the intention of Mr. Cox to push the work as rapidly as possible. As many men as can be got to work will be put on, and it is expected that the buildings will be up and the works turning out stoves by September. The only possible delay is from the failure of the supply of brick, of which about 200,000 will be used in the structure.

The Boot-Black Orator.

On Tuesday evening an exceedingly large lecture audience assembled at Bradburn's Opera House to listen, for the second time in Peterborough, to John R. Clarke, the celebrated boot-black orator. The chair was occupied by Geo. A. Cox, Esq., the Mayor, who briefly introduced the lecturer, who entered at once upon the treatment of his subject, "Among the Masses," and for two hours he held his audience under the spell of his marvellous eloquence, which many of his delighted auditors, and good judges, too, hold to be equal to that of John B. Gough in his palmiest days. In the course of his lecture he dealt with the blunders which occur amongst different persons in every walk of life. His treatment of the subject would, at one moment, have the audience convulsed with laughter, and at the next melted to tears. Enthusiastic applause greeted the climax of thrilling eloquence that frequently occurred. At the conclusion of the lecture a vote of thanks was moved in most complimentary terms by Rev. Mr. Gee, of Norwood, and Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, Rector of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, and enthusiastically adopted.

A Pleasant Surprise.

On Tuesday afternoon the workmen engaged at the Giant T sought out their old fellow-shopmate, Mr. Archie Moffat, and presented him with the following "illuminated" address, accompanied by a gold watch key and pendant, on the occasion of his departure from Peterborough for Smith's Falls, where he will reside until such time as the Powell & Jones Stove Works will be established here. The address, which was as follows, was read by Mr. J. W. Dixon:—

Mr. A. Moffat:

DEAR AND HONORED FRIEND,—We your respectful shopmates, having with deep regret learned of your intended departure from amongst us for another field of labor, and wishing to show a small portion of our esteem and love for you, we take the liberty of presenting you with this small token, hoping you will not receive it for its intrinsic value, but wish that you may accept it as it is given, with a desire that we may long continue to hold an envied place in your heart and memory.

Hoping that you may wear it with honor through a long, prosperous and happy life, we beg to remain,

Yours very truly,

J. W. Dixon, R. J. Neitnerout,
W. Squires, J. S. Hall,
W. R. Turner, J. Murty,
James Mulligan, W. P. Adamson.

We understand that Mr. Moffat has been employed as travelling representative of the stove works, and, no doubt, with his fifteen years experience, his excellent business capabilities, combined with his cheerful personal presence and jovial address, he will make it "hot," not only for the trade, but the people also.

Personal.

Mr. Thos. Pratt, of Cobourg, was in town yesterday renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. Wm. J. Moore, book keeper in the office of the Stratford Beacon, is in town visiting friends.

Mr. A. H. R. Sproule, formerly of Peterborough, arrived in town yesterday accompanied by his son. Mr. Sproule comes from the County Tyrone, Ireland, and will remain for about a month.

Mr. W. A. F. Campbell, who is engaged in the practice of the law in Stirling, and Mr. J. Morley Campbell, of the Grand Trunk Railway offices, Montreal, sons of Mr. J. Campbell, were in town yesterday.

Mr. D. J. Bannell Sawyer, of the Normal School, Ottawa, proprietor of the new Peterborough Business College, has arrived in Peterborough and taken up his residence in Mr. Cox's new terrace, Rubidge street. We welcome Mr. Sawyer to Peterborough and hope his college may go on and prosper.

Mr. H. Hough, so long proprietor of the Cobourg World has sold out to a Syndicate, composed of H. J. Snelgrove, M. B. Williams and Stanley Howell, the first of whom assumes the editorial chair. Mr. Hough's able management of the World, both in the business and editorial departments, has made the paper a fine business concern, and an effective local political power. Whatever calling the retired newspaper millionaire adopts, his ability and energy are sure to bring success.

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade,

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!
Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1885.

Borough Brevities.

—July-cious warm weather.

—Hot weather for the 116 candidates at the entrance examinations.

—There was a good attendance and a "good meeting" at Saved Army barracks last night.

It is about time the Street Inspector began "haying." The grasson the residence streets is large enough to mow.

—There will be a good deal of watery eloquence at the Town Council meeting to-night.

—The people are wondering that D. Belleghem hasn't an advertisement on top of Romaine's tall chimney.

—Drivers of light vehicles complain savagely of the disgusting abundance of loose cobble stone on nearly all the streets.

—Mr. Geo. M. Roger's rus in urbe residence, "Cordach," is a delightful place to spend an evening at.

—The Peterborough Baseballers speak in glowing terms of the treatment they received at Lindsay on Dominion day.

—The town cricketers cannot account for the defeat which they sustained at the hands of the Sons of England on Dominion day.

—The Salvation Army has attacked Ashburnham and every night the vocal music is listened to by a considerable and orderly audience.

—Capt. Hartley, formerly of Peterborough, lately engaged in the Western Division of the Saved Army arrived in town last night.

—The decision to build a new iron swing to the Wallace Point bridge converts the new bridge at Rosa's into a very shadowy possibility.

—The dry goods stores began the six o'clock closing movement last night, and you may be sure the parcel boy does not forget to bang the doors the very minute the last stroke dies away.

—Why, asks one of the promoters, are the people grumbling about the appearance of the Indian turn out on Dominion day? It didn't cost them anything, he says.

—At the G. T. R. Station, the other day, three of our prominent jewellers, carrying time pieces, could not tell an enquiring traveller what the correct time was. No wonder.

—Stethem's hardware store will soon be burglar proof. A handsome hammered iron grate has been received and will shortly swing at the main entrance.

—George street, at Spaulding's Bay, is receiving rough usage from teamsters who drive into the river to water their horses. A considerable gap is already beginning to show at the spot and is getting larger every day.

Personal.

Mr. T. W. Jones, of New York, agent of the "White Star" line of ocean steamers, of which Mr. Thos. Menzies is local agent, is registered at the Oriental.

Mr. A. R. Brown, of Norwood, at the midsummer examinations at the Guelph Agricultural College, passed very successfully. He stood second in English Literature and Composition and Natural Science, third in Agricultural and Live Stock, and fourth in Mathematics.

Strawberries.

Oakville and home picked berries fresh every day. Any amount supplied a one days' notice. Cherries, green peas, green beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers, cabbages, and all kinds of green vegetables. Smith's market.

Off for the "Flower City."

About fifty persons from Peterborough and vicinity went to Rochester this morning, crossing on the steamer Norseman. They go to spend the day in the "Flower City" and to see how our Yankee cousins throw up their hats and jubilate generally over the 4th of July. The excursion party was furnished with tickets by Mr. T. Menzies, G. T.R. ticket agent. They will pass a pleasant day.

"The Kenealy House."

The repairs at the Commercial Hotel, as it was formerly known, has practically made the building a new one, a new name is not out of place, and Mr. W. S. Cocks has blazened on the front the sign "Kenealy House." The recent repairs inside and out have completely transformed the place, and now it looks as neat as a pretty girl in a newly laundried calico dress.

Waterworks Extension.

Preparations are being made and operations have been begun for extending the system of mains. New mains are at present to be laid on Water street from Hunter to Charlotte, and on Charlotte street from George to Rubidge. Excavation began on Charlotte street this morning west of the railway track, and the main will at once be extended from th ebranch main, leading from Aylmer street to the Grand Trunk station, westward. The discouraging tendency of the Company's experience with their mains last winter does not seem to check their enterprise. Toronto and Ottawa suffered much more last winter from frost. In the latter city the mains supplying 500 families were frozen up for weeks, and there were no wells to supplement the supply.

The Scott Act in Hastings.

An Adverse Result Reported.

BELLEVILLE, July 2.—The returns from the voting on the Scott Act in the county of Hastings to-day are very incomplete, and the result is doubtful. The following are the majorities as far as heard from:—For the Act, 392; against the Act, 498.

Port Hope.

The matched running race between McLean's "Lady Macdonald" and Dickinson's "Wild Deer," at first arranged to take place at the Peterborough Driving Park, on July 20th, was run in Port Hope on Dominion Day. The result was that "Lady Macdonald" didn't have the least "show." "Wild Deer" took the lead in both heats and kept it, "and," the Port Hope Times remarks, "had its rider desired could have distanced all competitors."

HOMEWARD BOUND.

The Troops Set Out on Their Return.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 2.—Mrs. Gowanlock and Mrs. Delaney have arrived at Regina. Messrs. Osler, Burbidge and Chief Stewart of Hamilton have also arrived.

Forty trials are expected and will occupy perhaps two months.

A despatch from Fort Pitt to-day announces the departure of all the mounted troops except Major Steele's force, who are to garrison Fort Pitt. They cross the Saskatchewan and go overland to Battleford, thence to Qu'Appelle, where Capt. French's scouts, the Intelligence corps and Major Boulton's corps will be paid off.

Col. Herchmer's police with all the prisoners from Fort Pitt and Battleford will proceed to Regina. The Gatling detachment and A and B batteries proceeded per Marquis to Battleford also when the steamer returns with prisoners.

The infantry were to have embarked this morning by the steamers. They are told off to the steamers as follows:

Marquis—Grenadiers, Queen's Own and Guards.

Northwest—65th and Midland.

Baroness—90th and part of 92nd, the remainder of the 92nd battalion being stationed at Fort Pitt for a short time.

Col. Montizambert has arrived at Battleford. They left Birch Lake on Saturday and report that some of Thunder Child's Indians arrived at Col. Otter's camp and offered to guide a force to Big Bear's camp, which they had just left.

Volunteers were immediately called for, one hundred men being required. The number was easily obtained. Major Bayne will command the force.

Despatches from Calgary state that Col. Amyot and the 9th battalion of Quebec will leave next Tuesday for Winnipeg.

AT BATTLEFORD AGAIN.

A private telegram received yesterday stated that the Queen's Own had returned to Battleford, having abandoned the pursuit of Big Bear. They were considerably disappointed at their ill success and were greatly fatigued and travel stained. They will start on their homeward journey as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made, which will be in a day or two.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

NANCY'S DEVICE.

A daintily shaped "little head, overrunning with curls," enshrouding a fair, winsome face of perfect oval, that seemed made for smiles and laughter only, and generally fulfilled the expectations it aroused; but on the present occasion it must be confessed that the prevailing expression of Hetty Blake's features was very cross indeed, as she sat in the wide window sill, swinging her pretty little feet and pouting a pair of exquisitely-curved scarlet lips, as she plaited and unplaited the strings of her broad-rimmed gipsy hat.

"I don't care," said Miss Hetty. "I don't love Mr. Meredith! And I don't want to marry him. So there now."

And she nibbled at the hat strings and frowned under her level brown brows, like a pretty rebel as she was.

"Hetty, hold your tongue," said Lavinia, her elder sister.

"You don't know what you're talking about," severely uttered Mrs. Blake, who was mixing up a batch of bread at the kitchen table. "Mr. Meredith has a house and farm worth ten thousands pounds. And it's a great compliment for him to speak to your father about marrying you."

"Then I wish he'd keep his compliments to himself," said the incorrigible Hetty. "Look here, Lavinia, why won't you marry him?"

Lavinia, overcome with indignation, dealt her roguish little sister a box on the ear, which Hetty narrowly escaped by a sudden depression of her head.

"No, but it would suit so exactly," said Hetty. "Lavinia is just that sort of person!"

"Hetty, don't be a fool!" said Mrs. Blake. "You should thank Providence that Mr. Meredith is pleased to marry you, and put all nonsensical ideas about Harry Waite out of your head at once!"

But Hetty frowned and pouted more and more, and tried resolutely to keep the big, bright tears from falling on her hands.

"What shall I do?" said Hetty to herself. "For I never, never can marry that bald-headed old man who talks through his nose and carries a yellow silk pocket-handkerchief! And I'm sure Harry would shoot himself when he heard of it!"

But all Hetty Blake's tears and lamentations availed nothing. Her father was a practical man of the world. Her mother understood the full meaning of money, and so the match was to be hurried on, regardless of the feelings of the bride-elect.

But Providence interfered—that kindly Providence which has the interests of true lovers ever under its care.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake had gone to attend a chapel meeting twenty miles away, with Lavinia in their train.

Hetty, being "unregenerate," was left at home to meditate over a volume of sermons.

"Now be sure, Hetty, you look well after the house," said Mrs. Blake; "and see that Nancy feeds the young calves regularly, and cares for the goslings and the chickens. And look up the house at ten o'clock every night, and be sure you don't let in any tramps nor peddlers."

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

The result of the recent bye-elections for the Local Legislature, in returning four supporters of Hon. Mr. Mowatt, indicates how the people honor him for his sturdy fight for the independence of the Province, as guaranteed by the Confederation Act and how heartily they endorse the careful economy and wisdom of his administration of our affairs. Contrast the financial position of the Dominion and the Province of Quebec with that of Ontario. Since Confederation the former has been pretty continuously under Conservative rule, in that time enjoying only a demi-decade of economical government under Mr. Mackenzie. The Dominion, in 1867, had a debt of less than a hundred million, yet in 18 years that debt has increased to nearly three hundre millions. The population has increased 30 per cent. and the national debt 200 per cent. Quebec and Ontario started at Confederation on equal terms, yet under Conservative rule, the former has been plunged into some fifteen millions of debt, which under Reform rule, Ontario has a surplus of some four or five millions. Facts like these do not make it a wonder that Hon. Mr. Mowat made a clean sweep of the four recent bye-elections. During his thirteen years of official life as steward of the Province of Ontario, he has won and retained the confidence of the people; he has been a loyal and capable friend of the Province, and it is only a natural consequence that he should stand high in the favour of the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Scott Act was adopted by the electors of Guysborough County, Nova Scotia, on June 20th by a majority of 432.

Sir Alexander Campbell is generally believed to be about to take the Lieutenant-Governorship of Ontario. His appointment, it is said, would be popular with all classes in Toronto, and if that modest city is satisfied, of course the feeling of the rest of the Province doesn't count.

Lennox is noted for its bribery and continuity of contested elections. Yet it seems it is to escape this time. The defeated candidate, Mr. Blackstock, we understand, admits that the election was fairly conducted on Mr. Hawley's part. If he is satisfied of this there need, one would think, be no protest.

If proper book-keeping were done at Ottawa it is probable that our financial position would be even worse than is now shown. When the Government charge $330,000 for managing Dominion lands to capital and charge $500,000 of receipts for the same to revenue it does not look like a fair statement of the situation.

The acquittal of Mrs. Yseult Dudley by a New York, Jury after a deliberation of only five minutes, on the charge of shooting O'Donovan Rossa, shows that popular feeling in the United States is not in sympathy with the murder of innocent women and children for the sake of taking revenge out of "perfidious Albion," and shows that O'Donovan Rossa's room is considered more desirable than his company. Yet the fact seems to have been lost sight of that the acquittal of Mrs. Dudley while a condemnation of dynamite methods, was a practical endorsation of the principle of assassination.

The Torrens system of land transfer came into operation in Manitoba and in Toronto and the county of York on Dominion Day. It is a system which greatly simplifies the transfer of real estate and the acquisition of titles. Under it the Government undertakes the responsibility of examining and certifying titles. The system has been in successful operation in Australia for some years, its application to Toronto and the County of York is a tentative one, and indicates the cautiousness of the Mowat Government in taking steps to make considerable legal changes. The people of the remainder of the province will watch with great interest the effects of its operation. If, after a full and fair trial it be found to work well, it will, no doubt, be made to apply to the whole province.

Parliamentary Summary.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30TH.

The greater part of the sitting was spent in Supply, and in concurrence in items previously passed in Supply. Most of the items passed with little or no debate, and a good deal of progress was made. The vote of $6,000 for life-saving stations and apparatus brought up the usual enquiries from members specially interested, with explanations and statements by the Minister as to the condition of the service. It is the intention of the Government to add eight new life-saving stations to the Ontario service. The vote of $50,000 subsidy to the line of steamers running between Quebec and France was objected to by several members because they claim that there was no adequate service performed for the Dominion in return for the outlay. Last year the Finance Minister said the appropriation was made with a view of encouraging immigration; last night the Hon. Mr. Pope, who could not show any very satisfactory returns from the scheme on this score, said it was largely designed to encourage trade. 'But the Opposition contended that there was not much to show either from trade or emigration for the outlay. The vote, however, was passed.

WEDNESDAY JULY 1ST.

While the citizens of the Capital in common with those of almost every town and hamlet throughout the country celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of the birth of the Dominion in royal style our legislators observed the day with a twelve hour sitting of Parliament. It is true there was a good deal of quiet grumbling on the part of members at having to sit on Dominion Day, and we almost had a count out with the connivance of the whips on both sides, but no one moved an adjournment, or expressed open dissent, and the House went on. There was a very small attendance, however. A good many members have left for their homes and many more were either celebrating with their constituents or with the people in the city, and altogether the chamber presented a decidedly lifeless and empty appearance. Still considerable business was got through with, perhaps all the more because of the thin House and absence of some the more voluble speakers.

Lakehurst.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

An examination was held in Mr. W. J. Stone's school house on Friday last. There was a large attendance of pupils and a fair number of visitors. The pupils were examined in the various elementary branches and they acquainted themselves in a very creditable way. The class which prepared for the entrance at the Collegiate Institute exhibited a fair knowledge of the branches in which they have been taught. The arithmetic questions which were chiefly taken from entrance and third class papers, were done by the unitary method and with much satisfaction to the examiners. On a whole the pupils did credit to themselves and to their teacher. The school has largely increased in number and made much improvement under Mr. Stone's teaching. Mr. Stone, as a teacher, is systematic and concise, and eager for a large attendance at school.

Mr. and Mrs. Renwick were visited last Saturday by their sons and daughters from Keene. The old people, who are now far advanced in years, were happy to entertain their children.

Rev. Mr. Garbutt, new Methodist minister for Lakehurst circuit, held his first service here on Sunday last.

Great preparations were made for the Buckhorn Sabbath School picnic, which took take place on July 1st.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

PERSONALS.

Mr. James McCrea, eldest son of Dr. McCrea, is at home, and intends remaining for some length of time.

Rev. Francis Andrews preached his first sermon in his new church on Sabbath, from the most appropriate words "Lord, it is good for us to be here," and truly the theme inspired the speaker, for we have seldom listened to such an able and eloquent discourse. May he long occupy the sacred desk he so highly adorns with his earnest christian zeal, and cultivated and highly finished periods. The congregation was unusually large—the church being comfortably filled, and quite a number in the gallery. The choir were not in their places, but will, in future, occupy the seats at the extreme right of the minister, and will practice every Friday evening at eight. Mr. Jno. Gillespie is precentor.

Rev. Mr. Tozeland, the faithful pastor of the Methodist Church here for three years past, left on Tuesday last with his family for a new field in Prince Edward county. His hearers at Greystock presented him with a purse, also Villiers which was under his charge, made up a purse of about 35 dollars. May health and success attend him.

Rev. Francis Johnston, his successor, preached in this place on Sunday last.

Rev. Mr. Sexmith of Hiawatha has also removed to a new field of labor in Prince Edward County.

Mrs. White, who for some time has lived at the three roads west of Allandale, has had her house moved east, into the village, on account of the rowdyism of parties going home late from Keene the worse of drink, causing her much annoyance and fright at times. Manly fellows they must be.

Vennor's successor predicted an unusual disturbance of the atmosphere the last week in June, on account of the conjunction of two planets between us and the sun. We did not get the tornado here, but we had gale enough to beach the steamer Golden-Eye at Idyl-Wild, and boating of all sorts was at a standstill till it was over.

Pic-nics are plenty. Two last Wednesday—one at Villiers and one at Graystock; one is to be on Friday (to-day) at or near Lang's School House, 6th line; also the annual union pic-nic of the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday schools here will be held sometime this month, date not yet decided upon.

On Thursday evening last a deputation from the St. Andrew's Society, Peterborough, consisting of the President, Duncan McLeod, Esq., the Secretary, D. D. Galletly, Esq., and brothers Wm. Cumming, John Spence and Stewart Masson, Esquires, met at Gall's Hotel, in this village, for the purpose of deciding upon the site of the annual pic-nic; also, to discuss the best ways and means of augmenting the membership. Belleville was the point decided upon, to which each member and family can go and return for one dollar, and have two days to do it in. The President warmly and strongly recommended the cultivation of the memory and love of auld Scotland, and zealously urged upon all present the necessity of active exertion in the endeavor to extend the society's numbers. Earnest and enthusiastic speeches were also made by brothers Cumming, Spence, Galletly, Lang and Massie, while songs and sociality closed the evening to the satisfaction and pleasure of all present.

MACFARLANE WILSON, IMPORTER.

The entertainment given by the Public School scholars of this place on Tuesday, 30th ult., under the training and direction of the teachers, Mr. Mark and Miss Baptie, was a grand success, every one present being delighted with the performance. The children were beautifully dressed, most of the girls in pure white, and the boys in gala attire, and what pleased us wonderfully was to see the evidence of refined taste in all the lads and lasses displayed in the exquisite little bouquets of flowers worn by nearly every scholar present. The admission fee was 10 cents, and many besides the scholars were admitted free—so there must have been quite a number present when the nice little sum of $13.56 was realized, to be spent on school needs. The following is the programme of the evening:—

Round..."Hark the Distant Clock Reminds Us," [School

Mr. Marks, in a few well chosen remarks thanked the audience for their attention, and Mrs. Massie for the use of the organ. Next, Dr. Massie, in very complimentary terms moved a vote of thanks to the two persons who had given us the treat, viz. Mr. Mark and Miss Baptie, and the motion was warmly seconded by Mr. Kindred, Sen., and unanimously carried by the audience. The children then sang the National Anthem and the company dispersed in high good humor.

Norwood.

When the terrible thunderstorm which passed over here on Sunday afternoon last was at its height, the house of Mr. A. McCoy, who resides about a mile east of this village, was struck by lightning and immediately afterwards the dwelling commenced to burn. The prompt arrival of some neighbors saved the building, although it was considerably damaged by water. Beyond this and a slight shock experienced by Mr. and Mrs. McCoy, no further damage was done. The storm was one of the most severe that has passed over this section for years.—Register.

OVER THE DAM.

Michael Costello, eldest son of Mr. D. Costello, of this place, had a narrow escape from drowning on Friday. He was standing on the dam with a pike-pole when he noticed some drift wood coming down the river, and thinking to stop it he reached out the pike-pole, and in doing so lost his balance and fell into the water. He was quickly carried over the slide and down near the bridge where he managed to swim ashore.

THE CROPS.

The general appearance of the growing crops in this vicinity is fair considering that the spring was so backward. Fall wheat was considerably winter killed, but that which escaped the frost looks very well. Hay has also suffered considerably from the frost, dry weather and wind in May, but will be a fair average crop. All grain crops are doing well, but vegetation is nearly two weeks behind last year. There is promise of an abundant crop of apples and garden fruit.

18—OLD, EXPERIENCED AND SKILLED SPECIALISTS—18

We Treat Chronic Diseases and Deformities as a specialty, and can justly claim to treat them with Unequalled Success.

Our Staff, Our Experience and Our Business

is larger than that of any similar organization in America and more than equals our would-be imitators in Canada combined.

It's Not Necessary to particularize each disease our advice may be solicited for, or for the treatment of which our services may be engaged. We may be consulted with reference to every existing Chronic Disorder of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bladder, Bowels, Blood, Bones, Joints, Skin, Glands, Muscles, Spine, Brain, Nerves, Eye, Ear, &c., &c.

WOMEN YOUNG, MIDDLE-AGED OR OLD, MARRIED OR SINGLE

suffering from any diseases peculiar to their age, sex, or condition, can consult in perfect confidence with our Surgeons (one of whom is direct from the department of the Institute devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women and children;) our treatment is mild and effective, never failing to Cure Suppressed, Profuse, Painful or Irregular Menstruation, Leucorrhœa (Whites), Ulceration of Womb, Falling of the Womb, Uterine Dropsy, Displacements of the Womb, &c. The genitalia of the female is the controlling centre of her whole economy. If the womb and its appendages are not in a healthy state the female figure loses its artistic rotundity, her mind its sprightliness, her humanity its benevolence and sympathy. She becomes fretful, peevish and inconsolable, suffering untold misery in both body and mind, unable to relish or digest what she eats, walking tires her, and climbing stairs is a hundred times worse. Palpitation of the heart, headache, backache and constipation all combine to make her miserable.

WE HAVE thousands of testimonials from Canadian and American ladies who have been cured by our treatment, copies of which can be sent by mail, or seen by any lady calling on the Surgeons.

MEN The department of the Institute devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases peculiar to YOUNG and OLD MEN is rich in experience and has a national reputation for SPEEDY CURES.—Nervous Debility, Dipsomania, Deformities of the Genito-Urinary Organs, Varicose Veins, Varicocele, Hydrocele, Venereal Disease, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Gleet, and all Scrofulous, Cancerous, Syphilitic or other diseases of the Blood promptly and permanently cured by our treatment.

HALF A LOAF.

"'Half a loaf is better than no bread,' Charlie." Little Mabel Castleton said this wistfully, her eyes, as she spoke, wandering to the cradle, where two curly heads were lying.

"But when one has had the whole loaf, May, one does not exactly relish the half rations you mention,," said Charlie, moodily. But his eyes followed his wife's to the cosy nest of the twin babies.

"It is a bad time of the year to be out of a situation," said Mabel, after a long silence, "and many whom we know are idle. It would not be very easy to find employment now."

"You really think I had better remain with Mr. Mifflin?"

"I do. Tell me what he said to you."

"The substance of what he said was simply this: Business is so very dull that he is obliged to curtail his expenses, and he must discharge some of his clerks. I have been with him ten years, and he was pleased to say that I am very useful to him, and he is very unwilling to part with me. But he can give me but half my present salary, though he promises to raise it as soon as business prospects brighten. I don't know what to do. We are none too rich at my present salary."

"Yet you have saved something each month. Beside, dear, we have not tried to be economical. There are many ways in which I could save."

"And make a perfect slave of yourself."

"Not a bit of it. I have plenty of leisure time, now that May and Bella could amuse each other. Come, Charlie, accept Mr. Mifflin's offer. You may hear of something better, even if you remain there; but don't throw yourself out of a situation in the dead of winter, for my sake and the children's."

The last argument conquered. Charlie knew too well that it would be useless to look for a new situation, for the whole town was echoing Mr. Mifflin's cry of hard times. The small nest egg in the bank would soon melt away when it became the sole support of four, and so, kissing Mabel, he promised to follow her advice. But it cost his pride a very sore wrench.

He had entered the employment of his present employer at seventeen, and slowly, steadily gaining favor by dint of faithfully performing every duty, he had won his way to the desk of head clerk. Not until he had acquired this position and the handsome salary accompanying it would he ask Mabel to become his wife, furnishing a pretty cottage home from his savings, and giving her a thoroughly comfortable income for household expenses, He was not extravagant, but it pleased him to see his wife well dressed, to give her an efficient servant, to have her twin girls ever presentable, his table well appointed. All this had been easy enough upon his salary, and there had been something added for three years to the little bank fund.

But to do all this on the present income was simply impossible. House rent must be paid, and the sum remaining each month would have to be carefully calculated to meet all the expenses, leaving but little for pleasure or extravagance in dress.

"Then what would Will say?"

Will Castleton was Charlie's cousin, who had been his life long companion. Together they had left the schoolroom for a business position, Will entering the grain store of Harvey & Russell at the same time Charlie had taken the place in Mr. Mifflin's dry goods store. Shoulder to shoulder the young men had worked their way till this financial crisis had brought all business men into temporary difficulties of greater or less magnitude.

Will had expressed the warmest indignation at the proposal made his cousin, strongly advising him to throw up his situation and "see how old Mifflin would get along without him." And Charlie, before seeing Mabel, was quite ready to follow his advice.

He knew that Will would think him mean to remain upon half salary, and yet Mabel was right. Half a loaf was better than no bread.

And while Charlie Castleton was thus weighing the pros and cons of his decision, Mr. Mifflin was listening to the counsel of his old friend and chum, the senior partner of the firm that had been Gardner & Mifflin, and who, though he had retired years before, was still the friend and frequent adviser of his former partner.

"It is a mistake, Mifflin," he said. "You had better send young Castleton about his business and engage an entirely new bookkeeper. You will find that half pay means half service, mark my word."

"But I might search C—— from end to end and not find a clerk competent to take his place."

"Then pay him full salary."

"I cannot do it unless I reduce the number of salesmen, and then I am short handed now. There is but one way to keep my head above water. You see Clark's failure involves me very heavily, and—"

And the worried man of business entered into explanations of his difficulties not necessary to repeat here.

It touched Charlie Castleton very deeply when entering the counting house to announce his determination to remain in his old position to see the face of his employer brighten. And as Charlie spoke the large eyes grew brighter, and he smiled pleasantly as he said,—

"Thank you, Charlie. It would have caused me serious embarrassment to lose you, and I am heartily glad you will stay. I trust you will not long be obliged to take a small salary, but circumstances compel me to economize."

"You have been a kind employer to me for ten years," replied Charlie, "and if I am really of any more value to you than another would be in my place I will not desert you."

And looking into the careworn face that trouble was marking more deeply than age, Charlie resolved to serve Mr. Mifflin more faithfully in his perplexities than in his more prosperous days.

It was not long before the old gentleman felt the sympathy of his young clerk and looked to him as he never did before, for advice as well as for service. He admitted him to confidential relations, explained to him the difficulties caused by the failure of other firms, some heavily indebted to the firm of Joe Mifflin, others upon whom he had depended for goods obtained upon credit.

Day by day as the hard, trying winter wore away the two friends grew faster, and so far from lessening his work Charley found himself willingly lifting some of his employer's burdens upon his own shoulders.

He gave more time to business, and he was gaining an insight into it, of which an opportunity had never been given him.

And Mabel, at home, was bravely

Bouncer Struck By Lightning.

"I saw a paragraph in the Sun," said Farmer Silas Wagner, of Bayonne, "about a dog that was killed by a thunderbolt, and the suggestion of the dog's owner that dogs attract lightning. I don't know how that may be, but I learned once that a dog with a steel collar around his neck is a nasty animal to have at your heels during a thunder-storm About two years ago Bouncer taught me this. He had on a brand new steel collar, and was with me and two men in the field when a thunder-storm broke over us. Bouncer was greatly frightened, and headed us as we ran toward the house. Suddenly I noticed a ring of blue flame around his neck. He noticed it about the same time himself, and, turning around, he ran yelling toward, us, as if for protection. But we turned and ran too. Perhaps we didn't yell so loud, but I believe we ran nearly as fast as he did. I know we had covered three miles of rough ground before he overtook one of the men who had stuck in a hedge. He appealed so pitifully for assistance that we returned to help him, and found the dog lying exhausted beside him. The blue fire was out and the collar was gone, but its imprint was on its scorched neck, and looks exactly like a steel collar to this day. The hair has never grown over it, and while the dog seems proud of his ornament, he always slinks into the cellar three days before a thunder-storm, and can't be tempted out until the sky is clear again."—New York Sun.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Garden Party and Strawberry Fete.

There will be a delightful gathering at "Cordach," the residence of Mr. Geo. M. Roger, Park street, to-night, when a garden party and strawberry festival will be given in the spacious grounds under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. Gates open at 7.30. Admission 15 cents.

Town Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council has been called for this evening to consider the by-law respecting street hydrants.

A Break in the Yard.

While some brakemen were shunting in the yard at the C.P.R. Station on Dominion Day, several box cars were sent with such force against the stoppage at the terminus of one of the tracks that the hindrance was knocked out of its place and resulted in the displacing of the new sidewalk on George street. A gang of section men were soon on the scene, and to-day things look as if nothing had happened.

The Volunteer's Reception.

Whilst Lindsay and Port Hope are working tooth and nail towards giving the volunteers a proper reception on their return from the Nor.-West, Peterborough is taking things cool and not turning a stone in that direction. If the above mentioned towns can afford to receive "the boys," surely Peterborough, with all its commerce and goaheaditiveness, should to be expected to be up and doing also. We remember seeing the town councillors seated in hacks on the 19th of August, 1881, the date on which the first twelve of the P. L. C. returned from Kingston with the Gildersleeve Cup; and yet some fine morning or evening soon those same gentlemen will be standing on George street and wandering why the band is playing.

Peterborough's Prime Cheese.

The adjourned meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held yesterday in the town Council Chamber, at which were offered for sale 2,378 boxes of cheese; together with 150 boxes which were reported for sale from the County of Hope factory during the progress of the meeting. The attendance, which was large, included Mr. William Drummond, President, Mr. Garret Galvin, Lakefield, Secretary, pro tem. The buyers present were Messrs. W. H. Wrighton, Peterborough, C. E. Bartlett, Napanee, J. W. Flavelle, Lindsay, and Wm. Cook, Belleville. 1,423 boxes of colored cheese were purchased by Mr. Wrighton at 7 cents and Mr. Bartlett bought all of the white cheese offered amounting to 560 boxes together with some of the colored at 7 cents. The Perrytown and Hope factory produce was not disposed of.

A Pensioner Missing.

Seven months ago a man named Michael Sheehan, a pensioner, who had rendered service in the 65th infantry of Her Majesty's service, accompanied by his wife and two children, came to this country and settled in Peterborough, after living in Halifax for a short time. On the first day of April he drew from Halifax the amount which was then coming to him, and engaged with the firm of Ostrom & Ostrom as egg-buyer, for whom he went to Bobcaygeon on the date mentioned above, taking with him the sum of fifty dollars. Since that time his family has neither seen nor heard from him; and his wife and children, who reside on Antrim street, being without means of support, mourn his absence. The man is a native of the county Cork, is 30 years of age, stands about six feet in height, of fair complexion, wears a slight moustache, and when last seen was buying a ticket in Omemee for parts unknown. We give these descriptions in compliance with the wish of the unfortunate woman, who is anxiously waiting for the news of his whereabouts.

Boys for Canada.

Dr. Barnardo, of London, England, is sending out about the last week in July, a party of one hundred boys for farm and other employment. Those desirous of engaging boys should apply early to Mr. Edward Duff, Superintendent, Hazel Brae, Peterborough, Ont.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Light to moderate winds; fair, warmer weather.

Justice in Ashburnham.

Some boys took the liberty to go in bathing across the river on Sunday last and since that time the justice mill in that village has had a lively time. The prosecutor in the case did not have any witnesses at the first appearance before the cadi, which was the reason of its postponement. At the second trial, evidence was again conspicuous by its absence and the Magistrate once more adjourned until to-morrow, by which time Constable Craig will probably have hunted up the wherewith to make things lively for the boys, who, in the meantime, take an occasional dip, but in a more secluded spot than the one selected on Sunday.

St. John's Church Social.

Considering the unpropitious weather last evening, the social which came off at the grounds adjoining St. John's Church, the proceeds of which are to be spent in beautifying the grounds, was very fairly attended. During the earlier part of the evening, music of a high order was furnished to a delighted audience by Mr. Hampshire, organist, after which a general move was made for the ground, where sweet selections from the Fire Brigade Band were listened to for over half an hour. Ice cream, strawberries and cake received final attention; and when the crowd dispersed shortly before ten o'clock, over thirty dollars was counted as the net proceeds.

The Retort Courteous.

In answer to a modest remark of the EXAMINER in reference to Barnum's show depreciating because it gives this town the go-by and visits Cobourg, the Sentinel-Star remarks:—"If he would only read the great showman's advertisement he would notice that the show this year only visits the principle cities and towns, and pays no attention to backwoods villages." The idea, as a young lady would say, of a Cobourg paper talking like that, when the whole business of the town might be dropped into George street, and the only result would be that it might be remarked that somebody was working off a few extra bankrupt stocks.

Police Court.

This morning at the Police Court, as the clock was striking the hour of ten, P. C. McGinty led in a man named Edward Campbell and charged him with being drunk. Ned said that he hadn't much time to "straighten up" after Dominion Day, and promised to leave Peterborough if he was let go. The Magistrate suspended judgment, and Mr. Campbell left—perhaps for San Francisco. Florence McAuliffe charged James Campbell with having used grossly insulting and abusive language towards him on Thursday. Evidence of such a convincing character was produced by the complainant that the Magistrate said "guilty," and Mr. Campbell paid the handsome sum of $8 towards the town funds.

Interesting Record.

For the benefit of those who take an interest in the national game we furnish the following record, taken from the pamphlet printed on the "Laws of Lacrosse," with reference to the number of matches played up to the close of last season, and make the necessary addition:—

Peterborough, Sept. 1, 1882, Peterboros vs. Orillias, 3 to 0, won by Peterborough.
Peterboro', July 5th, 1883, Peterboroughs vs. Uxbridge, 3 to 0, won by Peterborough.
Peterboro' Aug. 16, 1883, Peterboroughs vs. Orillia, 3 to 0, won by Peterborough.
Peterboro', July 28, 1884, Peterboroughs vs. Checkers, of Beaverton, 3 to 1. won by Peterborough.
Peterboro', Aug. 8, 1884, Peterboroughs vs. Checkers, 3 to 1, won by Peterborough.
Peterboro', Aug. 22, 1884, Peterboroughs vs. Orillia, 2 to 0, won by Peterborough.
Peterboro', Sept. 16, 1884, Peterboroughs vs. Checkers, 3 to 0, won by Peterborough.
Peterboro' June 23, 1885, Checkers vs. Peterboroughs, 3 to 0, won by Checkers.

The above list is not complete, the home team having won two matches for which they have not been credited.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

Wallace Point Bridge.

A New Wrought Iron Swing to be Erected.

A meeting of the Joint Committee of the County Council of Peterborough and the Council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham was held at Fascher's Park Hotel on Tuesday last, as per appointment, in connection with the construction of a new swing in the Wallace Point Bridge.

It will be remembered by our readers that some time since the Council of Northumberland and Durham signified their intention of re-building a wooden swing, but the experience of the Council of Peterborough county not being a satisfactory one with wooden bridges the committee decided upon erecting a wrought iron swing. Tenders are to be asked for in a few days.

The following are the minutes of the meeting.

There were present the Warden of Northumberland and Durham, Mr. Campbell, the Warden of Peterborough, Mr. Strickland, and the following members of the committee: Alex. Ferguson, Reeve of Millbrook; Prover, of Bowmanville; Fowlds, of Hastings; Riddell, South Monaghan; Moloney, of Douro; Lang and Stewart, of Otonabee; and Forster, of North Monaghan.

Mr. John E. Belcher, C.E., who was present in his official capacity, upon invitation of the Wardens, on motion of Mr. Campbell was elected secretary, and Mr. Alex. Ferguson was elected chairman.

With a little discussion intervening the following resolutions were adopted:—

Moved by Mr. Strickland, seconded by Mr. Campbell, that a new iron structure swing bridge be built to take the place of the decayed swing bridge at Wallace's Point.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Strickland, seconded by Mr. Fowlds, that Mr. J. E. Belcher, county engineer, call for tenders and plans for the erection of a wrought iron swing bridge at Wallace's Point, to be completed and fixed on the 15th of October, in accordance with specifications supplied by Mr. Belcher. The tenders to be addressed to the chairman, Mr. Ferguson, on or before the 25th day of July, and that the committee meet in Peterborough to consider the same on the last Tuesday of July.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Strickland, seconded by Mr. Riddell, that Messrs. Ferguson and Lang be an advisory committee to assist Mr. Belcher in the construction of the pier for the swing bridge in accordance with his plans and specifications, the masonry thereof to be completed on or before the first day of October, and that this committee be empowered to close the old bridge when required for the construction of the new bridge, giving due notice thereof to the public.—Carried.

After spending a couple of hours in social intercourse, interwoven with refreshments, the committee adjourned.

Going to the Capital.

The Secretary of the Lacrosse club has received an answer from H. O. E. Pratt, Sec'y of the Metropolitans L. C., Ottawa, accepting the challenge for a match which is arranged to come off at the Capital on July 21st. The boys are looking forward with pleasure to the event, and hope to give a good account of themselves in the contest with their rivals of last year. We hope to see the lads practice hard and bring home the laurels.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1885.

Our New Citizen Honored.

Mr. D. J. Bannell Sawyer Honored by Former Associates—He Leaves Ottawa Laden with Gifts, Congratulations and Good Wishes.

It is well known through our columns that Mr. D. J. Bannell Sawyer, of Ottawa Normal School, has completed arrangements for establishing an extensive Business College in Peterborough. The Provincial Normal School at Ottawa closed on June 19th, Mr. Sawyer having finished five years successful and well-appreciated labour in the school. The pupils learning of Mr. Sawyer's intended departure for Peterborough, Miss Iza Lund, on behalf of the students, came forward and presented Mr. Sawyer with a large picture enclosed in a massive gilt-edged frame containing photo's of 93 out of 95 teachers in training, and read the following students' greeting.

We come to you, Mr. Sawyer, on behalf of the student teachers of the Ottawa Normal School with this greeting and this reminder of our being with you here. We thank you for the kindly interest you have taken in us while here and shall ever gladly remember you when we are far away.

Learning of your approaching removal to Peterborough, we take this opportunity of wishing unbounded success and happiness in your new work, knowing that your energy and ability deserve the same.

STUDENTS OTTAWA NORMAL SCHOOL.

Mr. Sawyer made a suitable reply, expressing his thanks for the fine gift presented him and asserting his appreciation of the cordial sentiments of the greeting. He referred to the happy relations that had existed between them in the past, and heartily reciprocated the kind wishes made.

ANOTHER RECOGNITION.

June 24th was the day appointed by Mr. Sawyer to bid final farewell to the grand old city that had given him a home and friends for seven of the most eventful years of his life. As he went to bid adieu to his colleagues of the teaching staff, Principal McCabe said, "Ladies and Gentlemen, we will adjourn to the lecture room." All assembled, the Principal said, "Ladies and Gentlemen, you all know the reason why we are met together this evening. We are about to lose one of our teachers, who has for the past five years been doing good work both in the Normal and Model sections of this institution—I refer to Mr. Sawyer. During this time he has shown himself to be an excellent teacher and a very fine penman—Mr. Sawyer's ability as a penman is perhaps scarcely equalled in Canada. And he has turned out a host of good writers, besides filling hundreds of the teachers of Ontario with his own enthusiasm.

And now I direct my remarks to Mr. Sawyer personally. We, the teachers of the Normal and Model Schools regret exceedingly that you are about to leave us. But we feel certain it is for your best. And if Mr. Sawyer could realize how earnestly we wish him success; if he has but a fraction of the success which we wish him, he will be abundantly pleased with the step he is taking.

We now present you with this silver pitcher and tray, and hope that you may ever fondly remember us. We also request that you extend to Mrs. Sawyer our hearty good wishes, and let her know how earnestly we hope for your mutual success and happiness."

Mr. Sawyer replied as fully as his feelings would allow, expressing his hearty thanks for the splendid gift, which he would ever cherish as a reminder of the happy and cordial associations enjoyed with his fellow teachers. Whatever success in the future heightened his enjoyment of life, he would look back on the time spent with them, as amongst his happiest years.

The pitcher is a very elegant and costly specimen of the silver-smith's art, and bore the following engraving:

"A gift from the staff of the Provincial Normal School, Ottawa, to D. J. Bannell Sawyer."

June 24th, 1885.

As we noted yesterday, Mr. Sawyer is in town, and the Peterborough Business College will begin its day sessions in a short time. The high opinions he has won at Ottawa in a professional capacity are a good guarantee that the new Business College, which meets an urgent want, will be a valuable addition to our educational facilities. As a a citizen he will be an acquisition whose value will be increasingly appreciated year after year.

Substantial Sidewalk.

The sidewalk on Aylmer street is now completed, and reflects great credit on the inspector. It is four feet wide and does not betray the slightest inclination to spring in any part, from Townsend to Lake street.

The Market.

The Square to-day had a fair show of the various productions from the rural districts. Potatoes sold at from 30 to 40 cents per bag. Butter varied from 15 to 17 cents. Eggs were fresh and sold for a cent apiece. The various livery men wore long faces on account of the of hay going up from $10 to $14 per ton. Oats sold for 36 cents per bushel; but one of our old timers "got the drop" on a farmer and by buying a bulk lot, got his oats for about 30 cents.

Preparing for New Offices.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox will in a short time have the store, formerly occupied by Mrs Brown, transformed into an office for the Toronto Real Estate Investment Company. The premises now occupied by Messrs. Phillips & Fraid will, in about three weeks, be vacated by these gentlemen, and, we understand, that the offices for the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company will be opened there as soon as they can be got ready.

Entertainment.

There was not a very large attendance at the regular meeting of the Young People's Mutual Improvement Society in the Baptist Church last night. A good programme of music, recitations and discussions of interesting subjects was presented. The meetings are closed during the heated term—till September.

Spaulding's Bay.

The members of the Council, as well as the slim audience that is attracted to the Council Chamber at every meeting, were surprised last night to hear Councillor Cahill give notice of motion with reference to the manner by which it was deemed advisable to abolish that most detestable nuisance, Spaulding's Bay. Mr. Cahill proposed giving the property to Mr. Geo. A. Cox, together with the sum of $5,000, payable in yearly instalments of $1,000 each. On condition of its being filled in. We have every reason to think that in the course of a year our hopes will be realized.

Do Mosquitoes Cause Malaria?

In this paper, however, my chief design is to present what facts I may be able to support of the mosquital origin of malarial disease—in fact, of ague. And while the data to be presented can not be held to prove the theory, they may go so far as to initiate and encourage experiments and observations by which the truth or fallacy of the views held may be demonstrated, which, either way, will be a step in the line of progress. It is scarcely necessary to premise that other—nay, all—insects that infest and wound the human body may share in the guilt that will here be charged, in particular to the culex; and so of course, other diseases than ague, yellow fever, etc., may possibly have a similar history. Be it noted en passant that so far back as 1848, that Dr. Josiah Nott, of Mobile, Alabama, published a lengthy essay on yellow fever, in which he maintained the insect origin of that disease, and also suggested the mosquito of the lowlands as a probable cause of malarial fever, in place of the marsh vapors of Lanscisci (New Orleans Medical and Surgical Journal, vol. iv, pp. 563-601, 1848). And even before his time, I find that a paper on the "Mosquital origin of Malarial Disease" was published by Dr. John Crawford in a periodical known as the "Baltimore Observer," 1807, no copy of which I have yet been able to get hold of.

I now propose to present a series of facts—some of the best known and most established facts—with regard to the so-called malaria poison, and to show how they may be explicable by the supposition that the mosquito is the real source of disease, rather than the inhalation or cutaneous absorption of a marsh vapor.—Dr. A. F. A. King, in Popular Science Monthly.

Absence of mind is dangerous sometimes. A "respectably-dressed young woman," pleaded guilty at Hampton Petty Sessions yesterday to a charge of picking roses and carnations out of the royal gardens at Hampton Court, but "at the time she did not think what she was doing." The same kind of absence of mind has been noted before. "Your hand was in my pocket, sir," angrily exclaimed an indignant gentleman to a pickpocket. "Was it, sir?" dreamily retorted the other. "Well, it is so cold nowadays one feels glad to get one's hand anywhere." He was fined, and so—by a remarkable coincidence—was the respectably-dressed young woman of Hampton Court.—London Globe.

HOW WE STAND.

In a recent speech Sir Richard Cartwright asked "What is our position?" and replied: "Our population has increased 1,000,000 or thereabouts; our debt has increased, speaking of the gross debt, by about $200,000,000. Our population has increased 1,000,000, our annual expenditure has increased at least $20,000,000, if not more; our population has increased 1,000,000; our nominal taxation has increased $16,000,000: if we make fair provision for the wants of the future year we are now invited to discuss, and we must remember that our real taxation is vastly in excess of our nominal taxation. Our population has increased 30 per cent., our debt 200 per cent.; our population has increased 30 per cent., our expenditure 150 per cent., and our taxation 150 per cent. Within twelve months we have advanced, or are to advance, two sums, one of $30,000,000 the other of $5,000,000, to the Canadian Pacific Railway. Take the additional subsidies which we were compelled to grant, the additional favors which we were compelled to give to certain parties in this House and elsewhere, to obtain their leave to advance this $35,000,000, and I believe that, if fairly computed and set down, you would find that we had to pay $30,000,000 or incur liabilities to that amount, for leave to lend that $35,000,000. You will find that we have incurred in all an additional charge of something like $700,000 a year—a sum which would pay the interest on $20,000,000—because we chose to make that advance at a time when it was quite clear that the doing so would most materially hamper our business transactions abroad."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Conservative journals are magnanimously reticent over the result of the recent by-elections. Eating crow, compared to crowing, is subduing exercise.

The Napanee Express says, referring to the Lennox election:—"Mr. John Carnegie, M.P.P., of Peterborough, was here during the contest. That accounts for the Tory defeat. Any county that Mr. Carnegie speaks in is sure to be carried by the Liberals. He is the best stump speaker the Liberals have got."

The Yankee proclivities of the present Dominion Government, after so much lip loyalty, is a little out of place. The Commons were compelled to sit on Dominion Day, yet the Government wanted to adjourn to-day on account of its being the 4th of July! Sitting on Dominion Day, and voting five millions to build a railway in Maine, and adjourning on the Fourth of July is a fine instance of Conservative loyalty and contempt for everything Canadian.

The Lindsay Warder has come into the hands of Mr. Sam. Hughes who has assumed control, editorial and financial of this journal and the last number was issued under his regime. In his salutatory the new editor pins his political faith to the coat tails of Sir John Macdonald because he has observed that Conservatives are "broader thinker and more liberal minded then Reformers." Apart from the political heterodoxy thus foreshadowed, the Warder promises to thrive and improve under the new management. We give our best wishes for success.

Parliamentary Summary.

FRIDAY, JULY 3rd.

In the Commons yesterday, the Bill increasing the permanent military force from 750 to 1,000 was passed through committee. The Bill for the settlement of the claims of Manitoba was read a second time and passed through Committee. The Chinese Bill was read a second time and passed through Committee. The familiar though somewhat battered form of the Franchise Bill appeared shortly before recess. Sir John Macdonald had the Bill referred back to Committee, where several amendments to which he had previously agreed, were inserted. On motion for the consideration of the Bill, the Opposition moved a large number of amendments, most of which had been moved in Committee. These were defeated on party votes. The taking of divisions occupied nearly the whole time after recess. The Bill was passed through all its stages. The House adjourned until Monday.

Town Council.

The Councillors get Tangled in the Reading of the Second Clause of Water Works By-law.

A special meeting of the town council was held on Friday evening in the council chamber, for the purpose of passing a by-law for the extension of the water works. Present, his worship, the Mayor, in the chair, and Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, Menzies, McClelland, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford and Kendry.

On the second reading of the by-law the council went into a committee of the whole, councillor Kendry taking the chair.

With reference to the second clause, Mr. Yelland thought that no special limit should be decided upon. He thought that certain portions of the town were not properly protected.

His worship, the Mayor, said that men working in the various manufacturing establishments were as much interested in such buildings as in their own property.

Mr. McNaughton thought that the by-law would not pass. If the by-law would not pass he would not think of pushing on the work of the building in connection with the stove works. If working men were not willing to pay six cents of a tax, it showed a great deal of lack of interest in the welfare of the town.

Mr. Green thought that it would be well to have the hydrants further apart.

Mr. Douglass did not want to object to the passing of the by-law, but there were places that needed fire protection worse than Water street.

His worship, the Mayor, explained that it was not the intention to put any more than two hydrants on Water street.

Mr. McNaughton thought that two hydrants were enough for George street. He thought that the working man's property should be protected as well as the property of the rich man.

Mr. Rutherford wished to inform the council that the Water Works Company did not care a "hill of beans" whether the council passed the by-law or not. They (the Water Works Company), would be put to an extra expense of $1,700. The Water Works Company were very liberal with the town. If they were foreigners the town would have treated them in a more business like manner. He was sure the by-law would pass. On the first of September next the contract would cease, and the town would be without protection, and, consequently, would become a third or fourth class place. He was there in council to represent the citizens, and, as a citizen, hoped the by-law would pass, and he would be sorry if it did not.

His worship, the Mayor, explained that the Water Works Company were quite willing to extend their pipes, provided more hydrants were put in.

Mr. McClelland thought that when the committee were making arrangements they should have extended the limits, and instead of taking forty hydrants they should have taken sixty.

MR. MOORE HEARD.

Mr. Moore was heard with reference to a petition which was sent in to the Council. The water company promised to make extensions on London Street and did not do so. He came there to ask the Council to take such steps as were necessary to compel them to fill their contract.

Mr. Cahill wished to say that if the number of hydrants was raised to sixty, the water service would then be better not only for fire protection but for all practical uses.

On motion of his Worship the Mayor, seconded by Mr. McClelland, the Committee arose with leave to sit again.

A CONFERENCE ARRANGED.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. McClelland, that the Committee of the Whole Council be requested to meet the Water Works Company, in regard to the proposed by-law for the purpose of entering into an agreement with said company for acquiring a certain number of hydrants for fire protection and other purposes.—Carried.

SPAULDING'S BAY.

Mr. Cahill read the following resolution moved by himself and seconded by Mr. Davidson:—

That this Council grant to George A. Cox, Esq., all the property owned by this corporation in Spaulding's Bay, together with the sum of five thousand dollars, on condition that he shall fill up said bay above high water level, within a period of five years. Also that the said property, for whatever purpose used, shall be exempted from taxation for a period of ten years. Payments to be made at the rate of one thousand dollars a year; commencing from the first of January 1886.

Also that the Town Clerk be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the Commissioners of the Town Trust; requesting them to approve of, and give effect to the same: and to request them to provide money for the above payments. Should the Commissioners fail to provide the money for the above purpose, then the amount to be placed on the roll year by year, until the whole shall be paid. In moving the motion, Mr. Cahill said he felt confident that the above, which he would leave as a notice of motion, would meet with the approval of not only the Council, but the general public.

His Worship said, that in his present position he could not entertain any such idea. He had not the slightest doubt that, if properly handled, the present nuisance could be remedied by confining the stream, which supplies the bay with water, to its proper course. This could be done by peering. He would not for the present consider the matter, but would give it due consideration later on.

The Council then adjourned until Thursday evening next.

DR. J. D. KERGAN, Medical Director.

18—OLD, EXPERIENCED AND SKILLED SPECIALISTS—18

We Treat Chronic Diseases and Deformities as a specialty, and can justly claim to treat them with Unequalled Success.

Our Staff, Our Experience and Our Business

is larger than that of any similar organization in America and more than equals our would-be imitators in Canada combined.

It's Not Necessary to particularize each disease our advice may be solicited for, or for the treatment of which our services may be engaged. We may be consulted with reference to every existing Chronic Disorder of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bladder, Bowels, Blood, Bones, Joints, Skin, Glands, Muscles, Spine, Brain, Nerves, Eye, Ear, &c., &c.

WOMEN YOUNG, MIDDLE-AGED OR OLD, MARRIED OR SINGLE

suffering from any diseases peculiar to their age, sex, or condition, can consult in perfect confidence with our Surgeons (one of whom is direct from the department of the Institute devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women and children;) our treatment is mild and effective, never failing to Cure Suppressed, Profuse, Painful or Irregular Menstruation, Leucorrhœa (Whites), Ulceration of Womb, Falling of the Womb, Uterine Dropsy, Displacements of the Womb, &c. The genitalia of the female is the controlling centre of her whole economy. If the womb and its appendages are not in a healthy state the female figure loses its artistic rotundity, her mind its sprightliness, her humanity its benevolence and sympathy. She becomes fretful, peevish and inconsolable, suffering untold misery in both body and mind, unable to relish or digest what she eats, walking tires her, and climbing stairs is a hundred times worse. Palpitation of the heart, headache, backache and constipation all combine to make her miserable.

WE HAVE thousands of testimonials from Canadian and American ladies who have been cured by our treatment, copies of which can be sent by mail, or seen by any lady calling on the Surgeons.

MEN The department of the Institute devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases peculiar to YOUNG and OLD MEN is rich in experience and has a national reputation for SPEEDY CURES.—Nervous Debility, Dipsomania, Deformities of the Genito-Urinary Organs, Varicose Veins, Varicocele, Hydrocele, Venereal Disease, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Gleet, and all Scrofulous, Cancerous, Syphilitic or other diseases of the Blood promptly and permanently cured by our treatment.

Call on the Surgeons or write either to the DETROIT or TORONTO address as given above.

Latest editions of Dr. Kergan's "Golden Monitor" and "Monitor Lectures" for Ladies or Gentlemen, sent free to any address. d28-3t meeting difficulties with a courageous heart. She had never been a drone in the world's hive, having been a busy little dressmaker before Charlie Castleton won her heart and took her to preside over his pretty home.

HALF A LOAF.

But for three years of her married life she had been much petted, and there were many pleasures to be put aside, many dollars well weighed before they were spent.

It was with a heart full of pardonable triumph that the young couple at the end of the year of reduced pay found they were still out of debt and had not touched the nest egg in the bank.

"You see, Charlie, we made the half loaf go round," said Mabel, as they went carefully over the year's expense book.

"There are no crumbs," he said, with a rather weary face.

"Never mind that; it was a great deal better than idleness."

"You are right and there is more than that, Mabel. I have been able to help Mr. Mifflin more than I could have done in our old relations to each other. His perplexities made him long for some one to whom he could speak confidentially, and when the ice was once broken he took me fully into his confidence. I could always suggest a way out of a difficulty that had not occurred to him, and even when I was not of actual use to him it was a relief to pour out his troubles to some one who was in sympathy with him."

"But you have worked very hard, Charlie. I never saw you so tired as you often have been this year, and your face is more careworn than it has ever been before."

"Well, it is some comfort to know that business prospects are growing brighter. By closest economy Mr. Mifflin has managed to meet the obligations he was afraid would ruin him, and there is a good lookout for the coming year."

"Will he give you a whole loaf yet, Charlie?"

"Not yet, I think. Never mind. We will not despond yet."

"Despond! I guess not. I am going to have some of these crumbs you were speaking of next year. I have learned some valuable lessons in saving, which I mean to make use of."

The second year was certainly not an easy one to Mabel. A wee baby, in addition to the three-years-old twins, kept the mother's hands busy, while there was no decrease in the household work. Many articles of clothing and housekeeping, too, that lasted well one year, were past service in the second, and it was not easy to replace them.

Often Mabel feared the savings for a "rainy day" must be broken in upon, but she kept all such fears shut up in her own heart and always had a bright word of cheer for tired Charlie when he came home at night.

She never told him that the late breakfast that she had planned to let the babies sleep while he ate his early one, comprised none of the tempting dishes of his own meal, but was literally bread and milk six mornings out of the seven. She never let him know that the reason she suggested his lunch down town, to save the long walk home, was really to save the price of that meal toward the dinner, the dainty little parcel he carried never costing the price of a regular meal for them all.

She did not tell him that she was cutting up her old dresses to clothe the twin girls, and sewing busily every leisure moment to keep all the little ones tidy.

And yet there came a day in June when six months of the year were almost gone, when she spent the last dollar of the week's money while the week was but half gone. Charlie had given her, long before, some signed checks to meet such an emergency, but it was her pride to think that not one of them had been presented at the bank.

She took one from the desk where they had lain so long and spread it out before her, calculating with puckers on her pretty face how small a sum she could stretch over the necessary expenses.

"I hate to begin," she said half aloud; "if once we break in upon that money it will melt away like snow before the sun."

There was no alternative but debt, and Mabel knew that Charlie would never be willing to owe any man a cent while he had a cent with which he could pay him. So, with a great sigh, she dipped the pen in the ink to fill out the blank check. Before it touched the paper, however, she paused, listening. There was a step in the hall that was not that of the nurse or her charges, a voice ringing out full and clear, calling.—

"Mabel! Where are you, May?"

"Here in my room," she answered. "Oh, Charlie, what is it?"

For the face at the door was so radiant that all traces of care seemed to have slipped from it forever.

"Good news, May! And yet—perhaps I should feel sorrow, too, only I did not know him."

"What are you talking about?"

"Did you read this morning's paper?"

"Yes."

"Did you notice the death of Amos Gardner?"

"No; is that the Mr. Gardner who used to be Mr. Mifflin's partner before you went into the store?"

"Yes; he was a bachelor, and he has left his whole estate to Mr. Mifflin, except a few legacies. The store will be closed till after the funeral; so we have a three days' holiday, May."

"I am glad you will be able to rest."

"But this is not all. Do you guess the rest?"

"You are to have your old salary again."

"More than that. Mr. Mifflin took me to his house this morning and told me all his plans. He will enlarge his business, and take on all his old salesmen who are willing to come. He has given me permission to offer a position to Will Castleton, who has been nearly a year out of employment because he would not accept your theory of 'half a loaf' being better than no bread.'"

"I know. Poor Will! I am afraid that Maria had a worse year than ours has been, Charlie."

"Nor is that all, May."

"More good news still?"

"More still! Mr. Gardner, Mr. Mifflin says, did me some injustice some time by supposing that I would proportion my work to the decrease in my salary. To atone for this he has left me five thousand dollars."

"Oh, Charlie!"

"Hold on, little woman; he also advised Mr. Mifflin in their last interview, to reward me for my faithful, disinterested devotion to him in his late difficulties by taking me as a partner in the business."

"Charlie! Oh, my Charlie! I must either laugh or cry," said Mabel, almost hysterically.

"Laugh, then, by all means! The new firm of Mifflin & Castleton must not be christened in tears, even happy ones. Hurrah! who says after this that half a loaf is no better than no bread?"

Driven Off.

A night or two ago a watchman on one of the wharves saw a young man come rushing down in hot haste, stop short at the edge of the wharf, and, after peeping at the dark waters for a moment, he was heard to exclaim:

"I called, but she was not in! I wrote to her, but the letter was returned unopened! It is the work of her hard-hearted father!"

He walked up and down, as if bracing his nerves, and presently continued:

"Shall I live with this gnawing at my heart, or shall I die to prove my devotion?"

The toot! toot! of a tug coming up the river was the only answer.

"When I am missed will anybody's heart beat the faster?" he went on. "When my dead body is hauled from the river, and the Coroner goes through my pockets, will anybody shed tears? Will the sight of my pale and sunken face be an accuser to that flint-hearted father?"

A propeller boomed her old whistle in sad response.

"I will die!" he exclaimed with sudden energy; but the watchman came forth and seized him by the neck, and, pointing him up the street, said:

"You great big calf, go along home and soak your head in soap-suds! The idea of such a fellow as you coming around here to splash into the water and keep a poor, honest watchman out of his hard-earned sleep! Skip!"

And fifteen minutes later the young man was calling for pork and beans in a restaurant.—Detroit Free Press.

The Daily Examiner.

SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Young Men's Meeting.

All young men will be welcome to attend the meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, over the Post office.

Baptist Church.

The subject of the sermons at the services in the Baptist Church to-morrow will be these. In the morning "What does not and What does Concern us," and in the evening "Can the Doom of the Children of Bethel be Explained and Defended?"

Regatta at Chemong.

In our daily edition of a recent issue we said that the regatta would take place at Bridgenorth instead of at Chemong Indian Village. Several entries are already made and it is expected that a large crowd will assemble to witness the races on July 9th.

The Celebrated Surgeons.

By advertisement elsewhere it will be seen that Dr. Kergan's British American Surgeons will be at the Grand Central Hotel, for consultation and treatment of diseases, on Monday and Tuesday, July 6th and 7th. They will be in town for two days only, and their consultations are given without charge.

Lawn Social.

A lawn social was held last night at the residence of Mr. G. M. Roger, Park street. Had the weather been more favorable a larger number would probably have been present. The affair, however, was very successful, financially, and when at 9.30 o'clock a shower of rain dispersed the people, over $30 had been realized from the sale of ice cream, strawberries and cake.

Cricketers for Toronto.

On Monday the Peterborough cricketers will go to the Queen City via C.P.R. to play the return match with the Torontos. It is expected that the boys will give as good an account of themselves as they did in their first match. The following ten players have been chosen, and the eleventh will be chosen to-night. Rogers Craven, Carter, Max and Miles Hamilton, Hammond, Rutherford, Stratton, Norley and Montgomery.

St. Luke's Pic-nic.

The annual pic-nic of St. Luke's Sunday School will be held this year at Hastings, on Thursday, July 9th. An excursion will go by the Grand Junction to reach that point. The train will leave Peterborough at 7.30 o'clock a.m., and Ashburnham at 7.45. Tickets: adults, 55 cents; children, 20 cents. The run will not be a long one. Johnston's grove, where the pic-nic will be held, is a beautiful spot, and no doubt those who go will enjoy a pleasant day's recreation.

New Grounds for Sport.

Mr. H. C. Calcutt will place in a few days a number of men on the flats, which are situated between the Otonabee river and the stream of water known as the race. People will be surprised to learn that the ground is to be ploughed in some places and levelled off in such a way that sports of various kinds can be indulged in before the summer season expires. Mr. Calcutt is about to do a very creditable piece of work, and we hope that his efforts will meet with every success.

The Town Clock.

The new hands of the town clock were placed in position this morning, and hereafter this much abused time keeper is expected to be on its good behaviour. The new hands are of cherry wood, the longer 6½ feet in length, and the shorter, 5 feet. They have received three coats of paint and on that the gilding. It has been asked why the old hands were not left on while the new ones were making. It was because the iron work and balancing rods in connection with the old pointers were utilized for the new hands, both to save expense, and because they were properly adjusted. Comstock performed the carpentry of the new hands, and Watson the painting and gilding.

A LAMENTABLE DEATH LEAP.

Thos. Jones Commits Suicide—He Plunges into the River off the Smith Street Bridge.

Yesterday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock, Mrs. Scriver, a woman residing on Smith street, noticed a man, who afterwards proved to be Thomas Jones, walking towards the bridge very hurriedly from the Peterborough side of the river. He had on a suit of brown tweed and around his neck a navy blue silk handkerchief was tightly drawn. As he advanced towards the third pier he looked around several times and then, after buttoning his coat collar, stepped up on top of the railing and JUMPED OFF.

The scream from the woman and the splash of the suicide striking the water were heard almost simultaneously by a young man named George Armour, who was at the time on the Ashburnham side of the river, and who, accompanied by his brother, ran to the water's edge. After he had struck the water the natural longing for life seemed to re-assert itself, and the unfortunate man was seen frantically struggling in an attempt to reach the shore, which attempt was fruitless, for after the expiration of a few violent efforts his hands were thrown up and his body disappeared under the water. Mr. Young, George Armour and W. Cook at once commenced a search, and after two hours' work found the body, which was brought to the shore on the opposite side of the river. Constable Johnston was at once notified, as well as Dr. Fife, Coroner; but the sad event having been witnessed by a number of persons it was not deemed necessary to hold an inquest. The remains were taken charge of by Mr. Comstock and interred this morning in the Little Lake Cemetery. The deceased was a native of Wales, and came to this country about two years ago, and worked on the railway construction. More recently he has been engaged in nursing sick men, and not long since took ill himself and being without means and his illness continuing, he became very despondent. At length, the family with whom he was lodging, not being able to maintain him, applied to the Town Council and were granted $3.00 per week, and Jones being proud spirited, disliked the idea of receiving charitable relief. Messrs. A. Elliott and G. W. Rubidge, who knew the sick man well, went yesterday afternoon with some delicacies to him to Mrs. Courcey's. She informed them that he had just gone out with the remark that he had "eaten his last ounce of corporation bread;" she was greatly alarmed at his manner, and the gentlemen at once went out to look for him but got no tidings till they learned of the events narrated above.

Police Court.

When the magistrate took his seat at the justice mill this morning, the only person visible was Janitor Beavis and the vacant chairs of the aldermanic dignitaries.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Light moderate winds; generally fine, warm weather.

Fine Coaches.

Yesterday afternoon a train consisting of nine elegant coaches passed through Peterborough for Ottawa on the C. P. R. There were seven sleepers and two dining cars and every coach was looked after by a man whose very countenance was sufficient to warn curious people there was "no admittance." They were made at Toledo, Ohio, and are 10 feet longer than any that have, so far, rolled over the rails of the O. & Q.

I. O. G. T. Excursion.

Anyone wishing to spend a pleasant day would do well to remember the excursion to Campbellford, which will take place on Tuesday, July 7th, under the auspices of the I.O.G.T. of Peterborough. The tickets are only 70 cents, and plenty of amusement is offered, including games and sports for all who attend. The excursion will arrive home at 7.50 p. m., stopping at Ashburnham. A large number of Good Templars are expected to join the excursion from Allandale and Keene.

Race at the Lansdowne.

A large audience greeted the appearance of Prof. Kerr, W. Lech, W. Logan and J. Shevlin last night at the Lansdowne, where they toed the scratch at 9 o'clock for the two mile race. Considerable interest was manifested in the event as it was whispered that Shevlin had been practising hard lately, and as a sport remarked was "laying for Lech." The start was a good one, Lech leading and maintaining that position for about fourteen laps when Shevlin, who had been taking things cool, passed him and won by about half a lap. The next race will be the final one, and we predict a large audience for the Lansdowne on the evening it takes place.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-28w-1y

HAPPY CHILDREN.

The Pupils of the Separate School Receive Prizes and Promotion.

The closing exercises and distribution of prizes in the Separate school, Murray street, took place on Friday, July 3rd, when the following pupils received prizes and promotion in the different forms. The distribution of prizes was based on marks obtained at a written examination, held the previous week in the following subjects:—Reading, writing, grammar, arithmetic, literature, dictation, geography, history, euclid and algebra. The Rev. Father Conway, local superintendant of Separate schools, in the presence of trustees and parents, made the distribution:

JUNIOR DIVISION.

1st, Lambert Henry; 2nd, Mettie Clancy.

After the distribution the Rev. Father Conway referred in a pleasing manner to the result of the examination and congratulated Mr. McIlmoyle on the manner in which he had conducted the school and its branches since his instalment as Principal. Every facility was offered for the children to receive a good education, and if they neglected such golden opportunities, they would regret it hereafter.

We join the Rev. Superintendent in his congratulatory remarks towards Mr. McIlmoyle, and in turn congratulate the ratepayers on their good fortune in obtaining such an efficient and painstaking Principal for their schools.

DEATHS.

DAVIS.—In Peterborough, on Friday, July 3rd, 1885, Charles Graham, youngest son of the Rev. G. H. Davis, aged 24 years and 5 months.

The funeral will leave his late residence on Sunday afternoon next at 4 o'clock. Friends and acquaintances will kindly accept this intimation.

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade.

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

THE REV. Borough Brevities.

—The Midland boys are expected home on the 17th.

—Another drive of saw logs is floating down the Otonabee River.

—The thermometer has been bribed by the ice-cream dealers, and the present hot weather is the consequence.

—Tenders, as will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, are invited for the construction and erection of an iron swing to the Wallace Point bridge.

—The Court House flag floats at half-mast to-day, out of respect to the late Col. Williams, whose deeply lamented death is recorded in another column.

—Twenty-one box cars, heavily laden with Manitoba wheat, passed through Peterborough on Saturday night at 6.45 p.m., for the Montreal market.

—The churches were very hot on Sunday, and worshippers who could slip out quietly, were to be noticed resting under the shade of the church taking in the sermon through the windows.

—The large, clear glass globes which surround the electric lights were literally jammed with flies on Sunday night. We suggest the introduction of larger ones as a cure.

—The dogs of Port Hope are liable to be shot if they appear on the street without tags. Peterborough dogs are not liable for anything except to go mad in the dog days and inoculate somebody with hydrophobia.

—We understand the Cobourg L. C. has been visiting Rochester, giving exhibitions of the National game. We sympathize with the residents of that place who were compelled to look at any of the contests.

—Eight wholesale, ready made clothing travellers were in town on Saturday night, waiting for sample rooms to show their goods. In accordance with a law which exists in the trade, no traveller can show samples of ready made clothing earlier than July 6th.

Personal.

Mr. J. Wagner, formerly of the Rochester Truth, is spending a few days with acquaintances in town.

Mr. J. R. McCrea, son of Dr. McCrea, now of Keene, who studied the "rudimens" in Mr. J. McKee's drug store here, was successful in taking first place in Botany at the examinations of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto.

We are pleased to note that Mr. Robert Romaine, Chief of the House of Commons Stationery Office, has been appointed Superintendent of Parliament Printing. We beg to congratulate our old townsman on his promotion.

Mr. C. B. Routley, accompanied by his family, left on Saturday evening for Kingston, his old home, for a fortnight's holidays.

Mr. W. Delaney, who has been attending St. Michael's College, Toronto, for the past eighteen months, has returned to town to spend his vacation. From his appearance, the breeze from the bay together with college "tack," agreed with him.

At the offertory during the services of High Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday the Misses Annie and Mary Dunn sang, with excellent effect, the sacred duet Justus et Palma. The former, who is making her debut as a soprano singer, possesses a voice of remarkable sweetness and by her complete control over it in the most difficult parts yesterday made an exceedingly favourable impression on the congregation.

A. H. R. Sproule, Esq., J.P., of Woodvair, Fentona, County Tyrone, Ireland, and formerly of Peterborough, gave us a call this afternoon. Mr. Sproule is thinking of returning to Canada, and has been looking about for a site to erect a beautiful residence for himself. We hope he will decide to return to Peterborough, for there are no better sites or more attractions in any town in Ontario, and as Mr. Sproule is returning to reap extra educational advantages for his children, we have all he can wish for here. Before returning to Ireland Mr. Sproule intends making a tour of Canada and the United States.

A Beautiful Cup.

We have seen the trophy carried off by Mr. W. H. Kent, in a sailing race at Port Hope on Dominion Day. The cup, which is of silver, stands about 8 inches in height, and bears the following inscription, "Fairy Queen, July 1st, 1885." We congratulate Mr. Kent, and hope to see him enter the race of life ere long, with a more substantial and less cranky companion than a canoe.

Dropped at the Right Time.

On Saturday evening a piece of wooden coping on the Simcoe street wall of Messrs. Fairweather & Co.'s dry goods building, fell to the sidewalk. The piece, which had evidently been loosened by recent high winds, was about three inches thick and six feet long and fell with a force which would have been fatal to any one standing or passing beneath at the time. Though the streets were crowded at the time this particular spot was, for a wonder, vacant.

Strawberries.

Oakville and home picked berries fresh every day. Any amount supplied at one days' notice. Cherries, green peas, green beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers, cabbages, and all kinds of green vegetables. Smith's market.

COL. WILLIAMS DEAD

Death Waylays Him on the Homeward Trip.

Escaping Bullets He Succumbs to Brain Fever.

His Country and Betrothed Bride Mourn His Death.

A private telegram received July 4th, this morning, is as follows:—

"With the deepest pain I have to announce Col. Williams' death, which occurred at a quarter past nine this morning. I intend sending remains in charge of one officer and party from Battleford to Swift Current, thence to Winnipeg and go home by rail route. The party will start from Battleford with the least possible delay."

The associated press despatch says;

"A despatch from Battleford conveys the sad intelligence of the death of Col. Williams, of the Midland battalion, of brain fever. A metallic coffin is being forwarded from Winnipeg for the remains, which are being taken overland via Swift Current. The news has cast a gloom over the entire force.

The news of the death of Col. Arthur T. H. Williams, of the Midland, will be a great shock to his friends, and will, doubtless, dash the rejoicings attendant on the regiment's return home. He was the son of a man who did battle for Canada, John T. Williams, who had previously served for some years in Her Majesty's navy, having commanded a vessel under Yeo, on the lakes during the war of 1812-15

Arthur Trefusis Heneage Williams was the son of John Tucker Williams, a commander in the royal navy, who sat for Durham in the Canadian Assembly from 1840 to 1848. The Colonel was born at Penryn Park, Port Hope, 1837, and educated at Upper Canada College and Edinburg University. The military instincts of the deceased found vent in the militia, and for many years he has been Lieut.-Col. of the 45th Regiment, which has been brought to a high state of discipline by his efforts. In 1880 he commanded the Canadian Wimbledon team, and just before the Roll rising he made an offer to the Imperial Government to raise a regiment for service in the Soudan. Canada however, had need of his services before his offer had been considered by the Imperial authorities, and he was commissioned to raise a battalion from the different regiments of the Midland counties, and in a short time a magnificent body of men was selected, the material being drawn from the country lying to the north of Lake Ontario, with the addition of a company from Carlton county. In 1867 Col. Williams was elected to represent East Durham in the Local Legislature, was re-elected in 1871, was chosen at the general election by the same constituency for the Dominion Parliament, and was re-elected at the last general election. He was born in 1837 and was subsequently 48 years of age. His conduct in the North-West has been that of a brave and cool leader of men fit for any soldierly enterprise. He is stated to have died on board the steamer North-West; it was announced a few days ago that he and his regiment were on board that vessel coming down from Fort Pitt.

Col. Williams was beloved by his men and very popular in Durham and adjoining counties, where he was well-known, and there will be a very general feeling of regret throughout the North-West, the Midland counties, and among the members at Ottawa when the news of his death is made known.

SAD NEWS FOR AN EXPECTANT BRIDE.

OTTAWA, July 5.—News of the death of Lieut.-Col. A. T. Williams, M.P., has created a widespread feeling of regret among the members of both sides of the House, with whom he was most popular. Col. Williams was engaged to Mrs. Banks, daughter of Sir David Macpherson, and was to have been married on his return from the Northwest. Mrs. Banks is now with her father on the continent.

The Nicholl's Hospital.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Is it possible, that, brought up in a civilized, in an English-speaking country, people of ordinary intellect even, should dream of taxing without representation? Can the glorious struggles of history, the example of the "dauntless Hampden," not dictate an observance of the simplest principle of justice? Yet there are people who would tax Roman Catholics for the Nicholl's Hospital, and give them no representative.

PROTESTANT CONTEMPT.

Excursion to the Falls.

We understand that the Fire Brigade are making arrangements for an excursion to Niagara Falls at an early date. The boys do well what they undertake and all those wishing to enjoy a delightful trip would do well to look for the announcement of the Firemen's Excursion to the great wonder of the world.

Journalistic.

"Man," is the title of a new journal started at Ottawa, whose comprehensive object is to promote the "physical, moral and moral capabilities of the human family." Dr. Edward Playter, is editor. The new journal has a formidable staff of contributors, consisting of the best literary talent in Canada. The first number is an exceedingly interesting one, and if its high standard of literary excellence and interest can be maintained, "Man" will meet with success.

A Peterborough Poet.

At the annual convocation of Trinity College, Toronto, Mr. W. J. Rogers, son of our popular Postmaster, received the degree of B. A. Mr. Rogers also read an admirable poem on "General Gordon," his effort being received with much applause. We extend our cordial congratulations to Mr. Rogers on the highly successful termination of his collegiate career, and on the composition of a poem; giving evidence of literary talent of no ordinary character.

BIG BEAR CAPTURED.

WINNIPEG, July 5.—Big Bear was captured on Friday morning near Carlton by Sergeant Smart of the mounted police. His son and one of his councillors were taken at the same time. Big Bear said his band were on their way to Fort Carlton to surrender. They had been some days without provisions. He had passed Col. Otter's and Col. Irvine's forces on the way. Seven more of the band were captured by surveyor scouts and Col. Irvine has taken seventeen. The remainder are surrendering to the Indian agents and giving up their arms. One of the Frog Lake murderers was among those captured by the scouts. They were starved into submission, the troops having seized nearly all their supplies and destroyed their hopes of getting any more. The prisoners will be sent to Regina.

MONTREAL, July 4.—The finance committee of the Montreal city council has voted $1200 to assist in the reception of the volunteers home from the Northwest. The men are to be picnicked on St. Helen island.

Covetous Cabinet Ministers.

Drawing Pay in Advance.

OTTAWA, July 4.—The latest scandal is that the cabinet members are in the habit of drawing their salaries a month in advance. Were any disaster to overtake the ministry the liberals claim that the house would be out of pocket about $8000. Mr. Somerville, of Brant, intends bringing up the question in the house next Tuesday.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No 9.]

Thomas McQueen.

"Though 'tis a fate that's pretty sure
If born a poet to be poor;
I'd rather be a bard by birth,
Than live the richest dunce on earth."
—Anon. Collet's Relics.

Thomas McQueen was born in Ayrshire, Scotland. It is now almost a quarter of a century since he passed over to the great majority; but his memory still lives green and fragrant in the hearts of many who knew him well and highly admired his genius.

Like many others who have risen from the ranks, he was but little indebted to educational advantages in early life, for the position he subsequently reached. Indeed he attended school but a few short months. The exigencies of his father's household demanded that the child should, as soon as possible, begin to toil for his daily bread.

About his tenth year, however, he met with a sad accident, which occasioned a lameness, from which he suffered all through life. This apparently most unfortunate incident first gave him an incentive to study. He was thereby prevented from joining in any active out-door toil for a considerable time, and the enforced leisure led him to devote himself more heartily to books and self-instruction. His natural genius thus became developed, and the seeds of knowledge were stored away in a reflective and thoughtful mind to bear good fruit in the near future. He was therefore in all respects a self-trained man, and his works show that his education, though acquired by dint of hard personal application, and without instructors, was none the less thorough and liberal.

When fifteen or sixteen years of age he engaged in the occupation of a stonemason, and in this business he continued until he left Scotland. He found time however to follow literary pursuits, and devoted much attention both to literature and politics. Indeed, for a short period he edited a newspaper at Dundee and delivered lectures on social and political economy in the principal cities of his native land. He was not an accomplished speaker, so far as manner was concerned. His appearance was somewhat uncouth, his style rather abrupt, and he spoke with an intensely broad Scotch accent, whose tones were neither dulcet nor agreeable, save to those thoroughly familiar with them. With all these drawbacks, however, Mr. McQueen's lectures, as to matter, were original and clever, and demanded, as they received, no ordinary attention.

As an extreme radical, during the agitation for Parliamentary Reform, McQueen was known and respected as an able leader, and a warm advocate of the rights of the workingman. He published three volumes of poetry, through which his sympathies in political affairs became more widely known to his countrymen. One of these is entitled "The Exile," another, "The Moorland Minstrel." Both were highly spoken of by the press in Great Britain, and the former work passed through several editions. It is now, we believe, out of print.

When he reached Canada in 1842, McQueen was utterly unknown as a poet. He came here, like many others, to better his social position and to find a congenial field for his talents. On his arrival he seems at once to have deemed it wiser to endeavour to procure needed reforms, not by "dropping into poetry," but by the use of direct and effective appeals in plain practical prose. Accordingly he published some essays on the condition of the working classes. He still continued to depend upon his trade for a living, however, and worked as a stonemason in the lower provinces and also in the County of Renfrew.

His sympathies were soon enlisted in favor of the struggle for Responsible Government then agitating the county and he became once more a writer for the press. Many of his communications appeared in the Bathurst Courier (Perth) and the articles elicited universal praise from the Liberal leaders. In 1848, acting on the advice of the Hon. M. Cameron, he established a newspaper in the County of Huron, then without an organ of any kind. The first number of the new venture, entitled the Huron Signal, appeared in February of that year, and it continued to represent Liberal principles until Mr. McQueen's death.

Though the great question of Responsible Government had been settled by the triumph of the Liberal party at the polls, there were other important matters demanding attention. Among these were the opening of King's College to all creeds, the secularization of the Clergy Reserves and the inauguration of a national system of education. Into the discussion of these and similar questions Mr. McQueen threw himself, heart and soul, and with his wonted characteristic energy upheld his parties views upon these subjects in stirring and powerfully-written editorials. Indeed, his reputation as a political writer became provincial, and "Thomas, the Huron Philosopher," as his friends dubbed him, was frequently quoted with approval in both city and suburban newspapers.

In 1852 he assisted in establishing The Canadian, a newspaper published in Hamilton, and conducted it for two years. He then returned to Goderich and continued to write for the Signal. He offered himself as a candidate for the representation of Huron and Bruce in 1854, but his opponent, Mr. Cayley, was chosen by the electors in his stead. Three years afterwards he lent his powerful advocacy to defeat his quondam rival and was successful, but he evinced no further desire to enter political life as a Parliamentarian.

He died in Goderich on the 25th of June, 1861, and the number of the Signal which announced his death proved that his mind was active until the end came.

It contained a stirring and well written appeal from his pen to his fellow electors to do their duty in the crisis then impending. As one said shortly after his death, "It is not his party alone that suffered loss; the whole country is a loser when such men as he are taken away. We have amongst us few who united in so eminent a degree as did Thomas McQueen, the character of the vigorous independent thinker and the practical, efficient worker, and the removal of such a man furnishes good cause for sorrow and regret on the part of the entire country.

In a future issue we shall offer a few extracts as specimens of Mr. McQueen's poetry.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There must be something crooked in the Government's management of Northwest affairs proceeding and during the recent rebellion. Sir John is now playing the game of delay, and is throwing obstruction in the the way of an investigation into and discussion of Northwest matters. He will do his best to have the House rise without having the matter brought before the members. "Conscience makes cowards of us all."

The Panama Canal seems probable to be the crowning folly of Mons. De Lesseps' life, and there is as much near possibility of the millennium, as of the completion of the canal. The original estimated cost by the projector was one hundred and twenty million of dollars. Work has been going on four years, and with only a twentieth part of the work done, the actual cost has amounted up to ninety million dollars in gold. At this rate, the cost of completing the canal will approach pretty closely to two thousand millions, while the loss of life will be enormous. The climate of the Panama isthmus is fatal to white men, and the death rate to natives and blacks last year was 110 in a 1,000. The hospitals erected on the canal works alone, cost three million dollars.

Lakefield.

(From our Own Correspondent.)

FORESTERS EXCURSION.

Dominion Day broke bright and clear and gave promise of a cool day, at an early hour numbers in holiday attire might be seen wending their way (laden with baskets, etc.) to the wharf, evidently intending to "take in" the Foresters excursion as a means of celebrating our "Natal day." A little before 9 o'clock the steamers Cruiser and Fairy with a covered scow, belonging to the Cruiser, left the landing with some 300 on board, a pleasant sail brought us to Young's Point, where we found some 50 more from the Point and Smith waiting to join those already on board; no time was lost in locking through, and we were soon in Clear Lake, when a space was cleared on the scow and dancing was soon in full swing to music provided by Messrs. Scrimgour and Miller on the violin and Bro. W. Graham at the organ. "Gin Island" was reached by noon, and the party landed where the A.C.A. camp was pitched two years ago. A pleasant day was passed by all, some securing fine strings of bass and maskinonge. The trip home seemed to be enjoyed by every one, Lakefield being reached by 7 p.m., all satisfied with the day's outing and the manner in which the committee carried out their arrangements, who are also well pleased as they have a handsome sum in hand to add to the Court funds.

DANGEROUS.

The attention of the government of-ernment official in charge of our back waters is called to the dangerous obstruction to navigation in the shape of an old pier which has lodged in mid channel at Young's Point. Both steamers have tried to remove it but without effect. A couple of charges of dynamite would do the work effectually, and save the steamers great trouble and annoyance.

If any of your readers wish to get up a picnic to visit Stoney Lake, they will find the St. Cruaier with her covered scow just the thing, they will carry 300 with comfort, and Capt. Eden will give excursionists every attention.

SHAMEFUL.

When the steamers arrived at "Gin Island" on Wednesday it was found that some camping or other party had set fire to the woods on the south end of the island, and the beautiful grounds known as the "Ladies' Camp" were being destroyed. Some means should be taken to prevent the destruction of the trees on the islands or in a short time the beauty of the place will be gone. Every year some are destroyed, but if an example or two were made campers would be more careful. It is to be hoped the rain of last night and to-day will put out the fire, as "Gin Island" is one of the largest and best wooded in Stoney Lake, and a favorite resort for picnics.

NEW GRIST MILL.

R. and G. Strickland are at present engaged in the water mill in sawing out the lumber required for a large three story grist mill, which they intend to erect this summer between Baptie's planing mill and the iron bridge. They intend to make it one of the most complete in this section of the country, and it will fill a want long felt here, tending to bring a larger number of the farmers from the surrounding country to the village. Success to you gentlemen.

A STREET NOTE.

A Peterborough gentleman made the remark on Saturday evening: "Where do all the people come from? It looks like George street, so far as numbers are concerned. And a stranger would consider we had a far larger population than we actually have. Our rural friends find our merchants can offer inducements equal to our county town, and so take advantage of it, which will account for our friend's surprise and for the lively condition of our main street, especially of a Saturday evening.

CAMP ROBBERS.

Report reaches us that an American gentleman now up in camp on Stoney Lake with some Lakefield friends has been the victim to camp plunderers to the extent of a diamond pin worth some $150, besides numerous articles of less value. It is time some steps were taken to stop the plundering of camps, stealing of canoes, etc., if we wish to have our back lakes an object of visit, by not only those from a distance, but those in Peterborough and Lakefield. Why not form a Mutual Protection Society, composed of those who now own islands or who are in the habit of camping in our back lakes? Let each contribute so much each year and let it go to form a standing reward for the conviction of any one guilty of leaving fire on an island, breaking into camps, or for stealing canoes or other camp rig. A few examples will soon put a stop to the practice, and the sooner the better. Who will go in for it? I will refer to the subject again.

VITAL SATISTICS.

The returns to the Division Registrar for the half year ending July 1st, were 23 births, 4 deaths, and 10 marriages. Several have not registered and can blame themselves if they get into trouble in consequence of their neglect.

WILD FRUIT.

The first huckleberries of the season made their appearance last Saturday, when a pail of fine berries were sold in the village. Another week or ten days will bring them into the market in plenty.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.

Meetings to make arrangements for holding a civic holiday and celebrating the decenary anniversary of the incorporation of the village were called twice last week, but our citizens did not take interest enough in the matter to attend, so nothing was done. The fact is, we are having so many holidays and excursions, people are tired of them, but it may take later on.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Dr. Edgar Holden publishes statistics which coincide in the main with the investigations of the German Board of Health that the danger of dying of consumption after the age of twenty-one practically increases as age advances. Relatively more persons die of consumption between the ages of sixty-five and seventy-five than at any other period after twenty-one.

Brooklyn has the largest tin-box factory in the country. A feature is the manufacture of decorated tinware. This consists of tin plate on whose surface there is a picture or other design. The work is done by a tin-lithographing press similar to that employed upon paper. The decorated ware costs but a trifle more than the plain, and is in great demand.

This army is composed of 3,348 policemen of various branches and grades, 501 night watchmen, 746 firemen, 311 lamp lighters, 647 functionaries of the Street Cleaning Department, besides 182 messengers and orderlies attached to the special service of the municipal authorities, and 224 tax collectors.

The latest telephone dispenses with electricity altogether. Its diaphragm is split willow or other wood closely woven, dried and varnished. The drying contracts the fibers and produces a very high tension. In the center of the diaphragm is a strong copper plate to which the wire is attached. For distances less than two miles the new telephone conveys sound better and more distinctly than the Bell. The difficulty in "switching" the wires, however, limit its use.

There is a perplexed woman in Lawrence, Mass. She had five canaries, and a few nights ago placed them all in a new cage, drove the cat out of doors, and on retiring saw the birds quietly roosting together on one perch. On arising the next morning she discovered to her great grief that the five birds had disappeared. The door and windows were all examined and found to be closed and fastened, and there was not in or about the cage so much as a single feather to explain the mysterious disappearance of the songsters.

The depth to which vegetation extends on the earth's surface has been made the theme of a curious inquiry by a disciple of Max Von Pettenkofer. By taking specimens of the strata of different depths, procured in the progress of an excavation for a well, and cultivating them under experimental conditions, the observer procured vegetable organizms of many types that have never been observed on the surface; and, curiously enough, each stratum appeared to be distinguished by types of its own, which were totally absent in deeper as well as in more superficial deposits. The inquiry opens a new field to the zoological student.

A gentleman from Henry county bought twenty-four sacks of flour and twenty-five shoulders of meat from one of our merchants the other day, and two gallons of whisky from the barroom. When he started home he felt so good he went off in a sweeping gallop, and for about two miles he lined the road with sacks of flour and shoulders of meat. The last seen of him he was taking a drink out of the jug, while the last piece of meat was sitting astride of the coupling pole. There is no telling the amount of fun there really is in a two-gallon jug of corn liquor.—Conyers (Ga.) Weekly.

In a certain cemetery in a town in Connecticut can be found a lot containing five graves—one in the center, the others near by at the four points of the compass. The inscriptions on the latter read, respectively, after the name of the deceased: "My I. Wife," "My II. Wife," "My III. Wife," "My IIII. Wife," while the center stone bears the brief but eloquent expression, "Our Husband."

The British Consul in Galveston has a word of warning for ne'er-do-wells intending to emigrate from England to Texas. He says: "Young men from a desk in an office, unacquainted with country life and unaccustomed to manual labor, had better stay at home. I find many such are induced to come here, and the result is that they become 'loafers,' and rapidly descend in the social scale."

At the battle of El Teb Baker Pasha was struck on the right cheek just below the eye by a ball which buried itself in the upper jaw. The missile, which was of iron, was afterward removed, and was found to weigh three ounces; but, despite the severity of the wound which it made, the General kept his seat until loss of blood compelled him to retire. A recent operation in England brought to light the terrible nature of the injury, but the patient is recovering.

Ten years ago Dr. Klein, of Cologne, called attention to four small dark areas shown here and there on the surface of the moon and usually associated with crater cones, and he thought they were true volcanic vents, probably still active. Besides these, Mr. T. G. Elger, of the Liverpool Astronomical Society, has observed two other similar examples on what is known as the ring-plain Atlas. To the one on the south side he called the particular notice of the Lunar Section of the society a short time since, and remarked: "Fourteen years ago I made careful drawings of this object, and on comparing them with recent observations I found changes in its contour, extent and tone which it was hard to account for except on the supposition that actual change had taken place.

California will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the death of her first pioneer, the founder of Indian missions, Padre Junipero Serra, on the 28th of next August. An attempt is being made to restore one of the most picturesque of his mission churches—the old stone church of San Carlos—and the Government of the State and a large number of prominent citizens have appealed for funds for that purpose. It is hoped that the church will be restored before the anniversary.

The Society for the Prevention of Crime has served upon all newsdealers in New York and Brooklyn a copy of that section of the penal code which makes it a misdemeanor to sell, offer for sale, give away or exhibit any book, pamphlet, magazine, newspaper or other printed matter, devoted to the publication or principally made up of criminal news, police reports or accounts of criminal deeds or pictures and stories of deeds of blood, lust and crime.

It is said that two discoveries of large bodies of anthracite coal have been made in Northern Mexico. The accounts of these coal beds which have reached San Francisco are extraordinary, and if the experts who are going to examine them should find them as stated the results on manufacturing in San Francisco and vicinity will be very important. It is said that the cost of mining and transporting, with a fair profit, will not exceed $6 per ton.

The mention of "forty stripes save one" often recurs in the Bible, and why thirty-nine should have been selected as the number in preference to any other has repeatedly attracted attention and called for explanation. The real explanation is found in the law of Moses, who commanded the culprit to be beaten with a certain number of stripes, not to exceed forty. They must be given in the presence of the judge, to prevent the possibility of illegal punishment.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Prob's Weather Premises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate to fresh southeast and southwest winds; warm weather, with local showers and thunder storms at night.

C. P. R. Lake Steamers.

The Steamship "Alberta," of the Canadian Pacific Company, arrived at Owen Sound on Sunday morning at 4.40 a.m., with the following on board:—46 cabin passengers, 28 second class, 15,000 bushels of wheat, 6 car loads of sack wheat, 3 cars of flour, 1 car of flax seed and 20 tons of merchandise.

Work for the Street Inspector.

The planks of the street crossing at the railway on McDonnell street were torn up and scattered on the roadway on Saturday evening, evidently by a passing train. When relaying them the street inspector would do well to examine the whole length of McDonnell street, as there are many loose boards in the north sidewalk, making dangerous traps for pedestrians, which may yet lead the town into a bill of damages.

I. O. G. T. Excursion.

Any one wishing to spend a pleasant day would do well to remember the excursion to Campbellford, which will take place on Tuesday, July 7th, under the auspices of the I.O.G.T. of Peterborough. The tickets are only 70 cents, and plenty of amusement is offered, including games and sports for all who attend. The excursion train will leave the Midland station at 7.30, and will arrive home at 7.50 p.m., stopping at Ashburnham. A large number of Good Templars are expected to join the excursion from Allandale and Keene.

Concerning the Post Office Robbery.

At an adjourned session of the peace for the County of Welland inquiry was made into the improper action of two county constables, which may be of local interest from its connection with the Peterborough Post-office robbery. They were charged with laxity in the care of the prisoner, "Clutch" O'Donohue, a confederate of the Post-office robbers, and with arresting a witness under the protection of the Crown. One Hampton alias Roberts, a "crook," against whom there was a charge of complicaty in the robbery of the express office, Port Hope, (as stated in evidence), on the promise of immuty from arrest, was induced to come across the river from Buffalo and give evidence against O'Donohue. One of the constables, Dowd, telegraphed to the Express Company, and on the latter "wanting" Hampton, arrested him in spite of the "safe conduct" of the Attorney-General of Ontario. One of the constables was struck from the list and the other was dropped from the list.

Street Corner Orators.

About 11 o'clock on Saturday night a large crowd assembled at T. Kelly's corner, where a number of stump speakers expatiated to a considerable extent on the merits and demerits of the proposed by-law for the extension of the Water Works. One of our enthusiastic carters held the platform for over fifteen minutes, and sustained his reputation as an orator of no inferior type. He held that it was a crying shame for the councillors to enforce a law, whereby the poorer class of ratepayers would be compelled to use the water for domestic purposes, and denounced the by-law, saying, that it was a gross imposition on the "poor man," and wound up his flow of eloquence by stating that "no lot of suckers were going to make him drink the water whilst he had two pumps in his yard." The question of the respective merits of the English and Canadians as short handled shovel workmen, was about to be debated, when the appearance of P. C. McGinity and the probability of passing a night with the cob-webs frightened the ringleader to such an extent, that he immediately left for home.

Last Tribute.

Yesterday the funeral of the late Charles G. Day took place. The very large cortege which followed his remains to the cemetery, testified to the high esteem in which he was held. The Rev. Mr. Tovell will preach a sermon in memoriam next Sunday evening in the George street Methodist church.

Baseball.

The Secretaries of the base ball clubs in town have been receiving communications from the Clippers B.B.C. of Toronto, who intend making a short tour through the eastern portion of Ontario. From the way the boys acquitted themselves recently at Lindsay we would certainly like to see the Toronto ball tossers halt at Peterborough. The game drew large audiences to the grounds in Ashburnham last season and we have no reason to doubt that the grand stand would be packed if a game should be arranged to come off here.

St. Andrew's Excursion.

Remember the excursion to Belleville which will be run under the management of the St. Andrew's Society of Peterborough, on Thursday, July 9th. Valuable prizes are offered for the winners of the various events in the Scottish games. The 126 bicyclists, now making a tour of Canada, will be in the city that day, and the "Big 4" which accompanies them will give exhibitions at the picnic grounds. Fare for the round trip only $1.00. Tickets good for two days. Train leaves the G. T. R. station at 7 a.m.

Cricketers for Toronto.

The 5.30 express on the C. P. R. took the Peterborough eleven of cricketers to the Queen City this morning, where, notwithstanding the broiling heat they will face the Torontos in a contest for supremacy in the game of the willow and the wicket. The following list of names will show the kind of work that is cut out for the Toronto players:—Hammond, Hamilton Max, Hamilton Miles, Hatton, Craven, Carter, Norley, Rutherford, Montgomery, Rogers and Strathy.

He Wanted to Drown Himself.

A young man returning to Ashburnham on Sunday night, at a late hour, and being under the influence of the "juice," was unable to find his way home. He enquired at a house on the street continuing from Driscoll Terrace, from a man, who told him that he neither knew him nor where he lived. This seemed to be too much for him, and with the remark that "if nobody knew him he would have a swim." He made towards the direction of the dam. The water, however, looked a little "too wet," and he was easily induced to change his mind by the arguments of a few friends.

A Giddy Headed Lucifer.

Last night the Rev. Mr. Munro, who resides with Mr. W. Paterson, sr., had a rather startling experience of a few minutes duration. As he struck a match to kindle his night lamp the blazing head flew off, falling in the folds of the lace curtains of the window, which, in a moment, were in flames. The fire was speedily communicated to the lace drapery of the dressing stand, close by, and had it not been for the presence of mind and energy of action displayed in quenching the flames, more serious consequence might have to be recorded.

Hay Harvest.

It has begun. The rythmic rattle of the mower is heard in the land. The billowy stretches of clover one instant hold their blonde heads proudly up towards the summer sky, the next tremble above the pulsating cutter bar of the cruel mower, and the next are laid low. The air is full of the delicately delicious breath of the new-mown hay. The hearty hired man is "yanked" out of his bed at day-break and is at work pitching off "that load of hay" before his five o'clock breakfast. There are some clover fields that will yield a good crop, others a moderate one, but in general the hay crop will be nothing to boast of. This week the hay harvest is in full operation, and for the next fortnight the farmers won't have much time to talk politics, Scott Act, reciprocity or fishery clauses.

A Bright Piece of Music.

We have been favored by Messrs. Nordheimer, of Toronto—musical publishers, with a copy of the "Batoche Polka," composed by Miss Annie Delaney, who received her musical education at the Convent of the Congregation de Notre Dame, Peterborough. Miss Delaney has met with great success as a finished pianoforte performer, and her first essay at musical composition promises equal, if not greater, distinction in this line. The "Batoche Polka," dedicated to the Canadian volunteers, is a most brilliant and exceedingly creditable composition, which will no doubt meet with a great demand. Any one listening to it is struck with the beauty of the theme and the brilliancy of its setting. Miss Delaney is to be highly complimented upon the striking success of her venture in musical composition.

Spaulding's Bay Again.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—No one will be surprised that the above subject should come up again, as it has for many years before. That Spaulding's Bay is a nuisance to some living in the vicinity no one will question for a moment, but such lots around there have been bought cheap by parties on that account. This, however, I will not forward as a plea that such a nuisance should be tolerated any longer, having referred to it some time ago in letters to the Peterborough Review as a pest hole affecting the health of the town. The giving away of Spaulding's Bay to any person willing to undertake to fill it in, I do not think anyone will have an objection to, but the granting of $6,000 with an exemption from taxes for ten years according to Mr. Cahill's idea, in promoting health, is rather novel to my mind, and I must seriously ask him, since when has he become a convert to promoting health, if he does not in this case want to appear as a sectional councillor. A year ago when I presented to the Council a very numerously signed petition setting forth the necessity for the construction of a sewer system, the answer without any hesitation Mr. Cahill had was, "Where is the money to come from?" Now, Mr. Cahill, where is the money to come from for the filling in of Spaulding's Bay? If Mr. Cahill is a representative for the town, and not a sectional councillor, then he should have shown more consideration for that petition referred to, as it represented ratepayers who yearly pay heavy taxes, and have their just claims as well as the south ward. I think this state of doing the town's business has gone on long enough to the injury of many, and if this plan of business is adopted in a sectional way, let it be known and properly acted on, each ward paying for its own improvements, and I have no doubt the second ward will have all that is denied to her ratepayers now, and all the wrangling about electric light, gas, sewer, water for fire protection and conabulary, all of which has caused no end of cross-firing, will be done away with.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
I am, yours, etc.,
W. LECH.

Borough Brevities.

—The Peterborough cricketers had hard luck in Toronto yesterday.

—A train containing seventeen new freight cars went west this morning on the C.P.R.

—The recent rains have kept the water in the river up to its usual height.

—Raspberries are ripening. Hot weather and half-daily showers will ripen almost anything.

—The financial proceeds of the festival held last night at the Murray street school grounds was $50.

—Flags are at half-mast in all the towns of the Midland district, out of respect to the memory of Col. Williams.

—There will be a hot discussion at the School Board meeting to-night, if there is any discussion at all.

—Sawlogs and cedars are tumbling over Dickson's dam and tumbling over each other in a wild carnival of somersaults in the eddies below.

—Next Sunday at both services Prof. Parker, organist of St. Paul's, will render the "Dead March in Saul" in memory of the late Col. Williams.

A special artist from Grip should have been down the river the other day to catch the different positions that the boys struck in the course of their engagement.

—The street inspector is removing the hay from some of the residence streets, which the enforcement of the cow by-law has permitted to grow.

—The 57th Battalion Band has been supplied with new uniforms. These may improve their appearance, and come at a time when their services in a military capacity may be needed.

—Prof. Parker, organist of St. Paul's, has become a permanent resident of the town, having removed his family hither and planted his roof tree, to flourish, we hope, for many years.

—The Peterborough Baseball Club has been strengthened by the arrival of a player from Cleveland, Ohio. They intend to practice hard as soon as H. C. Caleutt's new grounds are ready.

—The vicinity of Peterborough was the scene of a dog fight yesterday afternoon. The dogs and the other brutes were from Port Hope and Lindsay. The exhibition was a brutal one all 'round.

—Two dudes who were rain-chased last night near Lundy's terrace undertook to play Julius Cæsar and brave the storm by standing close to the building. After five minutes' experience they found out that Julius and they were of different material.

A telephone message informs us that Port Hope is in mourning over the death of Col. Williams. There are floating from residences and shipping, nearly seventy flags at half mast.

Trouble Brewing.

Threatened Complications Between Russia and Afghanistan.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 6.—Advices from the Russian front on the Murghab state that the Afghans are massing troops on the frontier. This movement leads the Russians to believe that it is the intention of the Ameer of Afghanistan to attempt an attack on the Russian forces in order to revenge the defeat of his troops in the battle of Penjdeh. The Sakie advices say that the Sarakhs are also excited at the movements, which will end in Russian interference should the Afghans go to such a length as will justify the Russians in regarding their action as an insolent challenge.

COLONEL WILLIAMS' DEATH

Ill Only Four Days.

Profound and General Sorrow.

BATTLEFORD, N. W. T., July 5.—Colonel A. T. H. Williams, commanding the Midland Battalion, died while on the steamer Northwest yesterday morning. The body was brought here packed in ice, and under the escort of Lieut. Reed and six men. It will be sent to Swift Current, across the country, and thence by rail. There was an impressive military funeral here to-day. The loss cannot but be felt by every one, as the deceased was beloved by all. His disease was inflammation of the brain. He was sick but four days.

Three minutes after Col. Williams died Sergeant Primers Valiquette, No. 4 Company, 65th, died also on the Northwest. He will be buried here.

OTTAWA, July 6.—Hon. Mr. Caron, Minister of Militia, in announcing officially Col. William's death, paid a high tribute to his many good qualities, and Hon. Mr. Blake closed a touching eloquent tribute to the character of his former schoolmate and fast friend in these words:

"It strikes me painfully to remember how cheerily and joyfully he went off to the Northwest, and how warmly he shook our hands with that hand which is now cold and dead. I regret his death the more because of the brilliant part which, from the accounts we have received, our late friend played at the battle of Batoche's. We can only say of him that though it was not his fortune to fall in the struggle, he is none the less truly mort sur le champ d' honneur." (Hear, hear.)

Bound to Have Their Beer.

The Senate Re-enact Their Amendments.

OTTAWA, July 6.—The senate to-night dealt with the Scott Act amendment bill. It refused by thirty to fifteen to agree with the action of the House of Commons in re-inserting the penal clause which the Senate had stricken out and again cancelled it. By thirty to thirteen the upper chamber decided to reinsert the famous beer and wine amendment which the Commons had strick out. This latter motion was moved by Sir Alexander Campbell, who said he did so not as a member of the Government but as a man.

The temperance men are greatly depressed and say the Scott Act amendment bill had now better be killed by the commons to agree to the senate amendments, but there is a possibility that if Mr. Smalls amendment limits the action of the beer and wine amendment to future Scott Act elections it will carry. The senate, it is understood, will accept this latter modification. As it is the temperance people suffer a severe rebuff.

The Old Shameful Story.

LONDON, July 6.—The Duke of Marlborough has, it is said, completely broken off his relations with Lady Aylesford. Instead of repairing the wrong done to her by marrying her now that she is a widow, it is said that he has taken advantage of her defenceless position, and cast her off with an annuity. Gossip says that while the injured husband was alive Marlborough dared not desert the wife he had betrayed, but that, now that Lord Aylesford is dead, the woman is cast off as she would have been immediately after she had served his purposes, but that the wronged man compelled him to protect her. Lady Aylesford, it is stated, will remove to northern Italy, taking her son with her.

Dominion Interference.

Not even letters of recommendation from Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Costigan, and a cunning letter of sympathy with the bogus Tory agitation for the building of the Thunder Bay Colonization Railway from Minister Pope, could save the Tory candidate in West Algoma. Meredith went to the riding and delivered two speeches in defence of his policy. His arguments were so utterly weak and untenable that even the best friends of his party turned lukewarm towards him. The fact of the matter is, and Meredith may as well know it, the people of this Province will permit no man to manage its affairs who is ready to play into the hands of the contract peddlers, needy shyster lawyers and timber limit grabbers that have attached themselves to Sir John Macdonald and practically compel him to stand and deliver at will. The honest people of Ontario, in so far as they have recently had opportunity to give a verdict, show that they want nothing to do with those rascals.—Hamilton Times.

How Dewdney Does It.

The other day Mr. Dewdney was reported as holding that the rebellion would turn out in the end to be a good thing. Now this little story is given the world:—"Lieutenant-Governor Dewdney was President of the Qu'Appelle Farming Company, formed to purchase and work the famous Bell farm. He still holds his stock in that company. The teams belonging to that company were all employed in the Government service during the rebellion at $10 per day each. It is stated that even after the opening of navigation, when the Hudson Bay Company were willing to furnish teams at $6.50 per day, the Qu'Appelle Farm teams were kept on at $10 a day. It is further stated that in one case the manager of the farm received $200 for work which he sublet at $60. We see no reason in all this for altering our belief that Mr. Dewdney is utterly unfit to hold the position of Governor of the Northwest Territories.

A Mormon Family Circle.

Lorenzo Snow, one of the high counsellors, having reached the advanced age of three score years and ten, decided to have a family reunion, and considering that he had a No. 1 wife with two daughters, No. 2 with one daughter and two sons, No. 3 with two daughters and three sons, No. 4 with three daughters and two sons, No. 5 with six daughters and two sons, No. 6 with two daughters and one son, No. 7 with three daughters and three sons, No. 8 with two daughters and three sons, No. 9 with two daughters and one son, making in all twenty-three daughters and nineteen sons, he had a pretty good-sized family to assemble about him. There were in all 164 immediate descendants to sit around the family board, and to give them all a dinner it took three days. The old man is well preserved, reads the finest print without glasses, and only lost by death twenty-three of his numerous family, including some of his wives.

A Modern Babylon.

Astonishing Revelations Respecting London.

LONDON, July 9.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon devotes five pages of its space to showing that the trade in young girls for immoral purposes has increased alarmingly of late years. It claims that the growth in this traffic is due to the utter worthlessness of the law in relation to the matter. The names of several wealthy men holding prominent positions in society are mentioned in connection with the business. The Gazette states that it still has the details of a large number of other cases which were omitted to-day, owing to a lack of space, but that they will be given to the public in the course of a few days.

Rawdon.

Enoch Osser, ninth concession of Rawdon, found an infant boy about six months old Saturday morning on his farm, which had been left there during the night. The little waif was discovered playing in the grass in an orchard about sixty rods from the concession road, about ten o'clock in the morning. There was nothing left with the child except a small bundle of clothing. Mr. Osser is a man 84 years of age and with his son keeps bachelor's hall. The child was sent to Belleville to-day to get the county authorities of the Women's Christian Association to provide a home for it. The woman who brought it here was sent back to Rawdon with the child to day. The township authorities are the proper parties to provide for the foundling.

THE LATE COL. WILLIAMS.

The death of Col. Williams, while under the circumstances a peculiarly sad happening, is after all more of a public calamity. He filled a peculiar position for which a successor is not to be found every day. We can replace the politican; a Colonel can be found for his regiment, but the ardent lover of his country, the active military spirit ever ready in the hour of danger to lay his life upon the altar of his country, whether the mother country needed his help in the sultry Soudan or his native land counted upon him in its hour of trial, is difficult to replace. Colonel Williams was a pre-eminently patriotic and public spirited man. His prompt offer to raise a regiment for service in Egypt will be well remembered. His noble offer to raise the Midland Battalion is still an event of to-day. His brave men are still under arms, while the noble leader they served is laid low at the very threshold of home—after enduring the extraordinary fatigues of arduous marches, the perils of the campaign; after escaping rebel bullets where they flew thickest. He died when his toils were apparently over and when worthily won honors and rest seemed about to be worn and enjoyed. The people of the Midland district cannot but be struck with the similarity of the fate of two men whom it will ever be their delight to honor—Colonel Williams and Colonel Kennedy. Colonel Williams was in the prime of life, and held enviable position in Canada. He had wealth for all worldly wants; held a seat in Parliament; was whip of the ministerial party; was a recognized leading military spirit in the Dominion; enjoyed a wide personal acquaintance and popularity, and was literally revered by the gallant Midland regiment he commanded. His dashing action at Battoche, so ably seconded by his men, turned the tide of battle into the channel of victory, and practically crushed the rebellion. Well did Middleton say, as the red tunics of the Midlands dashed forward into the smoke and whistling bullets of the rebel entrenchments, "Let them go! There's death or victory in that charge." And Middleton did not forget Williams and his men, for they alone of all his infantry were sent to the front in pursuit of Big Bear. Well may the Dominion and this district mourn the sad and sudden removal of Col. Williams, for in the peculiar sphere he occupied,

"He was a man take him for all in all,
We shall not look upon his like again."

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

Sir John's Franchise bill passed its third reading and became law on Saturday morning. Though it has received important modifications it has still remaining many objectionable features. The opposition has made a noble fight. Sir John felt that the bill was a bad one, so bad indeed that he could not trust one of his supporters to defend it. His followers were, throughout the the entire debate, as dumb as oysters. The amendments forced from the Government by the patriotic persistence of the Opposition were very important. The revising barrister was shorn of a great deal of the evil power the original bill conferred upon him. The original bill did not give a wage earner a vote. The Opposition forced an amendment reducing the property qualifications for voters, from $400 to $300 in cities, and from $300 to $200 in towns. Thus, owing to the "obstruction" of the Opposition, scores in Peterborough who have a vote under the Ontario Franchise Act, will now have votes under the Dominion Act. They would have been cut out of a vote entirely if the Liberals in the House had not forced Sir John to make these amendments. The bill as proposed at first, gave the Franchise to savage Indians, such as Big Bear and his kind, but the "obstruction" of the Opposition secured such a modification as would not allow a painted savage a privilege which thousands of honest, hardworking men enjoy under Mr. Mowat's Franchise Bill, but not under Sir John's bill. The Dominion Franchise Bill was a most unjust one, and Sir John felt this, for he made an effort to stifle discussion and crush the measure through in a single sitting, and with this object kept the House sitting continuously for fifty-seven hours. The Opposition, however, resisted and made a noble fight for the liberty of Canadians. Yet many important amendments were rejected. These were for allowing an unmarried female property-holder a vote, and giving one man one vote only. Now, as the bill stands, a man who has $2,000 worth of property in 20 ridings has 20 votes, while the man who may have two millions in one riding has only one vote. Thus the wealthy man who has property scattered in different ridings has several votes, while the poor man has only one vote. The bill is still a bad one; it is entirely unnecessary and while it is not more liberal than any existing in any of the provinces it is more narrow than those in several of the provinces, where thousands of voters, now enjoying the Franchise, are under its provisions, cut out of a vote. The bill destroys provincial rights and does not allow each Province, as has heretofore been the case, to regulate its franchise as it sees fit. The privilege enjoyed by the municipalities of preparing the voters' lists is turned over to Government officials, who are sure to favor the party in power, and thus make an impartial expression of public opinion impossible. Indians, who pay no taxes and perform no civil duties, are allowed to vote, while thousands of white men who pay taxes, earn wages and are liable to military service have no votes. Thus the free, honest white man will be governed by the votes of Indians, who can't be made to pay their debts. The new Franchise Bill, which is entirely unnecessary, will cost the country $500,000 every year, which sum has to be paid for making a retrograde step in the matter of franchise enlargement.

From the Pacific Slope.

WHITE RIVER, KING Co., June 13, 1885.

Allow me once more a little space in the columns of your much appreciated paper—I say much appreciated simply because it is much thought of amongst the Canucks here, also well read, whenever it finds its way to the far off shores of the Pacific. This time I have changed my location since I last wrote. Seeing a little more to the Puget Sound county, I thought a few items might be of interest to your many readers. White River Valley in the above named county, is beautifully situated, lying between the Cascade range and a range of hills bordering on the Sound waters and running to the head waters of the same, the waters of White and Green rivers both in one, flow through the valley and join with Black and Cedar rivers, the four in one then takes the name of the Duamish on down to the Salt Chuck or water, "chucko" being water in the Chinook language. The Chinook was got up by the Hudson Bay trading company. The land here is very rich, much different from other Sound lands, it will produce anything without the aid of manure. The farmers here raise and harvest all kinds of produce as much as in the east. However, of late years they have given up the growing of wheat and raise hops instead, which prove to be a more profitable crop; three years ago hops were sold for $1.10 per pound. Some farmers cleared $60,000, some $30,000, some $20,000 according to the number of acres that were put out. Last fall hops sold all the way from 5c. to 30c. per pound. Now, some are contracting their present crop for 11c. per pound, so much down, more at picking time, balance when delivered. Hops are a crop that takes a great deal of labor to keep them clean, they have to be gone through not less than five times, sometimes eight; Indians are employed in picking. They get $1.00 per box and find themselves, they are paid as quick as the box is filled, some pick more than one box in a day. There is also a cheese factory in the valley, dairymen sell their milk at the factory for 1c. per pound. Another enterprise is under way in the shape of a sugar factory, but I think it won't be very successful unless they give the farmer a little better chance. They bind the grower to put in so many acres of sugar beets for 5 years. They have also the right to rescind this contract for any of the years or for the entire period. I think a better plan would be to give a premium to those who furnished the best beets, and the most number of acres; as it is, the farmers don't propose to try beet raising. The valley is timbered with alder, cottonwood, vine maple and dogwood. Fruit does well here; apples sell for 25 cents per bushel on the tree; berries are plentiful—salmon berries, black and red raspberries, bramble berry, black huckleberry and red. Snow falls to the depth of three feet in the valley, but don't lie more than a week. The Northern Pacific R. R. is still pushing its way through the Cascade Range, heading for Tacoma and Sound ports.

I will say adieu for the present,

A. GILLESPIE,
Washington Territory.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Council met on Friday, June 26, all the members present. After routine, communications were received, acknowledging receipt of $45 payment for road scrapers; from the County Clerk notifying the Council of the following rates:—County rate, $1,523.20; school rate, $438. The Reeve reported having let a job for building a bridge in the diverted west quarters line, 3rd concession, for $41, the contractor to furnish material.—Approved.

Mr. Ferguson, Deputy Reeve, reported a conference with a deputation of the Manvers Council to consider the advisability of making a diverted road around the opposite lot No 1, 14th concession, but the meeting adjourned pending the price at which land could be got from the Loan Company. Mr. Ferguson also reported that the Committee appointed for the purpose had let the job of building a new bridge opposite lot 4, 11th concession, to David Jamieson, he to furnish all material, and that the committee had also bought a right of way from him opposite said lot, the price of the whole, $350.—Approved.

Mr. Donaldson reported that in conjunction with a committee of South Monaghan council he had let a job for building approaches to bridge over Needler's Creek on the east boundary and putting on guard rail to Andrew Goodfellow for $85; also a job for gravelling 90 yards of Muncey's Hill to John Donaldson for $45.—Approved.

Mr. Neil reported the ditching and grading of the middle road on the 5th concession at a cost of $35.25. Approved.

Mr. Sanderson reported having let the following road jobs:—Grading portion of 14th concession road, west of west quarter line, to W. Jones for $6.00; improvements on west line to James Jones for $15; gravelling 15 rods of Diverted line at Best's mills 14th concession $6.00; also that he had instructed W. Johnson, overseer of division 62, to expend $12 on the 14th concession line; Wm. J. Manwell, division 58, to expend $25 on 13th concession road.

On motion Messrs. Bruce were allowed $14 for ditching and grading done on hill, on middle road, 5th concession.

On motion Mr. Robert Mills was heard respecting payment for job done by him on middle road last fall. He thought it time he was paid. The reeve explained that Mr. Mills had not finished the work according to the contract; he had been paid $25 for cedar, and the rest would be paid according to the action of the council last January, when the job was completed. On motion, the reeve, deputy-reeve, and Mr. Sanderson were appointed a committee to let a job to complete the contract let to Mr. Mills.

Mr. Ferguson was heard and solicited a grant for the purpose of assisting in giving a reception to the Midland Battalion.

Mr. Campbell, reeve, said he was sure the people would endorse any action the council might take in recognizing the bravery of the Midland men, and giving them a suitable reception. The council would send in a cheque for their share of the expenses as soon as arrangements were completed and made known.

On motion, Mr. Sanderson was empowered to purchase necessary articles of clothing for John Bowman, an indigent, for whom Mr. D. Patton had asked aid. The clerk was instructed to write the loan company, who owned lot No. 1, concession 14, Cavan, to ascertain price of right of way for a road round the hill, on the boundary between Cavan and Manvers.

A number of orders on the treasurer were issued, and the council adjourned till the 7th of August.

1915 boxes of Cheese were boarded at the cheese market on Saturday, principally white. first half June. The top figure offered was 7½.

Col. S. S. Lazier of the 15th Batt, has returned from Ottawa, having been successful in his mission. The Battalion is to have its yearly inspection in the fall, and he has been authorized to proceed with the construction of an armory. If the building formerly used as the Grand Junction station cannot be secured at a reasonable figure, a tract of land will be secured, and a new armory erected, suitable to the wants of the command.—Intelligencer.

Scene in a Church.

A Minister who was not "Up" in Politics.

The usually quiet and devout congregation of the little Methodist Church at Wilton, Lennox county, had a lively time a week ago. The pastor was preaching a temperance sermon and made frequent references to the Scott Act and the recent attempt of the Senate to destroy its usefulness. Among other things he said that he was exceedingly sorry to see that Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Pruyn (their own member) had voted in favor of the Senate amendments and that Mr. Blake had shirked the vote. This was too much for at least one member of the congregation—Mr. Warner. Rising in his seat he called the clergyman's attention to the fact that Mr. Blake had not shirked the vote as alleged, but had voted, as had nearly every Liberal, against the amendments. He went on to comment upon the unfairness of thus publicly and in church, misrepresenting a political leader, and closed by expressing the opinion that it would be much better for clergymen to post themselves before attempting to instruct their people. The pastor was greatly astonished, both at his own error and the boldness of his deacon in openly rebuking him. He promised, however, to look into the matter and refer to it during the evening service. In the evening the church was crowded, and the preacher offered a most humble apology to Mr. Warner, Mr. Blake and almost everyone else. Mr. Blake, he added, had never stood so high in his opinion. The incident created no little amusement in the vicinity.—Kingston Whig.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Lakes of Red, White and Blue.

Mr. Will R. Guilfoyle, Director of the Botanic Gardens at Melbourne, Australia, writes to a friend at Middletown of a charming sight in Queensland: "I was perfectly charmed with the beauty of a series of small lakes, which ran for some miles through a valley. They were literally covered with water lilies of three distinct colors, pink, blue and white. I have often thought since that these lakes ought to be generally known as 'the lakes of Red, White and Blue.' I must say that I never beheld a more beautiful sight in my life than those water lilies. The growth of the pink species (Nelumbium we call it botanically) was very singular. The flowers, nearly as large as a dinner plate, stood about a foot above the surface of the water, while the massive leafage, green as emerald, was supported on long stalks far above the flowers, and standing parasol-like to shield the floral gems from the scorching sun.

"The blue water plant (Nymphœ) was less fortunate, though quite as beautiful as its pink neighbor, by having its flowers and foliage lying flat on the surface, and it was remarkable that those flowers which shared the shade of the pink lily's leafage were of a much brighter hue. The white variety then came in to soften still more, or perhaps I should say to intensify, the brilliancy of the picture, for, like diamonds, they glittered among the sapphires and rubies."—Hartford Courant.

Given up to Die.

A languor that amounts to pain, a weariness that shuts out the blue skies and makes the fragrant summer air hard to breathe; a slow consciousness in all the limbs of weakness and inertia; a longing for skies that are bluer, a thirst for airs that are fresher—these are the sensations that come to those whose sun is going down at noon—who in the full promise of a long life come suddenly to the edge of the shoreless sea.

It is not all pain. The "light that never was on sea or land" foreshadows the confines of that other country. There is rest, sweet rest beyond. No more weariness and disappointment; no more care. No bearing the heavy burden, no misunderstandings, no broken faith; these come to all who go on living in this world—they are the heritage of mortality.

We have cheerful words and a God-speed for the friend who goes on a journey, here, a journey that may be full of disaster; but for the pilgrim that goes higher we have only tears. Going to the palace of the King! going to be the guest of angels, but oh! how reluctant we are to say not good-bye or farewell, but adieu!

"Oh fond, oh fool, and blind,
To God I give with tears,
But when a man like grief would find
My soul puts by her fears."

There is one going out of the family this lovely summer time—one we have loved and cherished. The doctor has said gravely, "There is no hope," and ceased to come. There is nothing to do but to wait. The dear one who is going on the long journey is the least disturbed. There is no making ready. The frail sufferer lies in the hammock or sits in the reclining chair, and with closed eyes drifts on to that silent, shoreless sea. Of what do the dying think? How does it seem to withdraw from the busy, bustling world, and be no more a part of it?—to feel the life trembling on the pale lips; to know that He has given His angels charge concerning thee?

"If I were told that I should die to-morrow,
That the next sun that sinks would bear me past all fear and sorrow
For anyone;
All the fight fought—all the short journey through,
What should I do?"

These dear ones who are leaving us, fading day by day in this lovely summer weather, are the evangels of love to guide us to the blights of unselfishness. It is our privilege to minister to them, to soften every step as it nears the end, to stand with mute thanksgiving in the light of the coming splendor, and behold the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof.

"It is a perpetual summer there. But here
Sadly may we remember rivers clear,
And harebells quivering on the meadow floor,
Far brighter bells and bluer,
Far tenderer hearts and truer,
People that happy land—'Tis the land of Evermore."

Given up to die! This is the fiat of doom whispered in sorrowful accents to heart-broken friends. Why not "given up to live," called before the noon of life to enter upon the rest and reward?

"If we could push ajar the gates of life
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We would interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery find a key.
But not to-day. Then be content, poor heart,
God's plans like lilies, pure and white, unfold.
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold."
—Detroit Free Press.

A Natural Vinegar Well.

Some miners have been sinking a shaft between Bear River and Live Oak. The region has received but little attention in the way of prospecting for mines. The miners, in sinking the new shaft, have had no trouble with water—in fact, the ground has been unusually dry. A few days ago, however, a thin stratum of some kind of soft rock was struck and there were some evidences of effervescence in this. Passing through this thin stratum the miners came to a small stream of what was at first supposed to be common water, but on older investigation it proved to be a strong acid. Some of this acid has been brought to town and has been examined by experts, and they pronounce it to be acetic and as strong as the acetic acid of commerce. In short a vinegar mine has been struck. The effervescence observed in the thin stratum of rock is accounted for by the action of the acid on some alkali contained in this thin stratum. A pump has been made, in which all the acid is left to collect, and all further work has been stopped for the present.

One of the miners insists that the find is of pure vinegar of the best variety of the older kind. He "accounts for the milk in the cocoanut" by the fact that the ground of the water shed there slopes toward the river, and there are a large number of apple orchards toward the top of the water shed, and that for years great abundance of fruit had fallen and rotted on the ground, and that the juice of those apples has undergone the acetic fermentation by the time the juice has gotten low into the rocks.

The owners are talking of a pickle factory on a large scale, and one of them thinks that if they could tap the stream higher up, where alcoholic fermentation is in progress and before the acetic has begun, a good article of applejack can be distilled from the fluid.—Grass Valley Tidings.

A political canvasser stepped into a colored man's house on Fourth avenue yesterday and inquired: "How is the man of the house going to vote this year?" The reply came with the suddenness of a dynamite cartridge: "Yo jes g'way fum heah, now. De lady ob de house and de chillen can't talk on politics in the watermelyum season. Pass yer mother another slice of dem are melyum, chile."—

Hall's Bridge.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Another grand S. S. pic-nic was given under the surveillance of the Presbyterian church at Hall's Bridge, on Dominion Day. Mrs. McMartin was general manager of the whole proceedings, and she had the refreshment department arranged in good English style. She was well supported by Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Purser, Miss Brown and other ladies, who took an active part in waiting on the table. Flags were seen on different parts of the ground; a platform was erected for the singers, and tables were laid out under the shade of oak trees, which are so numerous about Buckhorn. The tables were laden with a variety of cakes and pies, with a good sprinkling of strawberry tarts and jam, and with salmon, lobsters, sandwich and fowl. At 11:30 a. m. the children were through their dinner, and at 12 the adults were called to the table. When all had apparently appeased their appetites, the whole party broke up into small knots, and promenaded over the pleasant grounds designed for the afternoon's entertainment. The young ladies were quite numerous, and presented a fine appearance. Many acquaintances were made, and compliments exchanged, and every possible means were taken to make strangers feel at home.

The first item on the programme was singing by the children, under the direction of their teachers, the Misses Brown and Montgomery. Miss Brown presided at the organ, and the singing of the little boys and girls was praiseworthy. Much credit should be given to Miss Brown and Miss Montgomery for the pains they took in training their pupils. When the music part of the programme was over the children had several races, for which they received little parcels of bon-bons, prepared by Miss Brown.

The final race was run by girls. The first prize, which was a handsome inkstand with pen holder, in antler shape, was won by Miss Lizzie Chase. The second was a china cup, and won by Miss Maggie Renwick.

Tea was served at 4 o'clock, and over four hundred persons were present. The gathering had much increased toward evening, as the raftsmen were allowed a half holiday, and they were pleased to find themselves welcomed to our pic-nic table. A change from fat pork and bake-beans to spicy cakes and pies was indeed a favorable transition, which was highly commended by the river men, who behaved themselves in a quiet and civil way.

After tea the people dispersed; some left immediately for home, and others resorted to the lake to see a canoe race.

The whole proceedings were apparently satisfactory to the people, and the entertainment reflects credit on the ladies at Hall's Bridge.

Shipment of Cheese.

Mr. W. H. Wrighton shipped to-day, via C.P.R., a shipment of 1,450 boxes of cheese to Montreal, which was purchased at the last meeting of the Cheese Board in Peterborough. The shipment gives an aggregate of 94,050 pounds, which, at 7 cents per pound, amounts to $6,583.50. Other buyers are also shipping smaller quantities to-day.

St. Andrew's Excursion.

The St. Andrew's society of Peterborough will run an excursion this year to Belleville, on Thursday, July 9th. A good programme of sports has been prepared, and valuable prizes will be offered for the winners of the various events in the long list of Scottish games. The great attraction of the day will be the appearance of the "Big 4" bicyclists on the grounds. Fare for round trip, only $1.00. Tickets good for two days. Train leaves the G. T. R. station at 7 a. m.

Adornment for the Dead.

Last evening a large basement of Queenstown limestone was drawn to the Little Lake Cemetery. It came from the firm of J. & R. Wolfendon, Whitby, Ont., and in a few days a beautiful Scotch grey granite monument, from the same place, will rest upon it, over the remains of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, Bobcaygeon. The basement measures 5 feet square, has a thickness of 18 inches, and weighs three tons.

Telephone Extensions.

The Bell Telephone Co. announces the completion of a Trunk Line, east from Kingston as far as Prescott, connecting also Gananoque, Brockville and Maitland in Ontario, as well as Ogdensburgh, Canton, Hewelton, Richville, Potsdam and other points in the State of New York. The Company has a large force of men at present engaged in building lines, and will be able to complete new extensions in many different directions shortly.

R. C. Strawberry Festival.

Considering that the committee of ladies, who had charge of the strawberry festival last night, had but a day to make preparations the financial success attending their efforts was very fair. Although the music of the band was not heard in the direction of the Murray street school grounds, fully three hundred persons were on the grounds at 9 o'clock. The usual number of Chinese lanterns were suspended from the limbs of the large pine trees, and the numerous groups of ladies at the various refreshment tables were kept busy supplying ice cream, strawberries, oranges, lemonade and candies to the crowd until about 9.40 p. m., when a shower of rain drove the people into the large school rooms; where a programme of vocal music was very successfully carried out, the Misses McFadden and Lynch contributing two duets in their respective parts of soprano and alto, which were appropriate for the occasion. The ladies who had charge of the festival deserve praise for the manner in which they worked, and we would suggest that another one be held in a short time and with the band present in the beautiful grounds, will predict an assemblage of, at least, one thousand.

CRICKET MATCH.

Toronto vs. Peterborough.

A match was played in Toronto yesterday between the above teams. Morley and Montgomery opened the batting on behalf of the visitors, but the former early succumbed to the endeavours of the Torontos. Max Hamilton then filled the vacancy and ran up the handsome total of 15 runs, the only score of any note in this innings. The rest of the eleven added but little to their former fame, and when the last wicket fell, there was a small total of 25 to their credit of the whole team. It might be said that the grounds were in such a slushy state, that the compilation of runs could only be achieved after deep study of the workings of the mud strata between the wickets. When Toronto commenced their innings the sun had slightly baked the ground and dried up the water, but it was still mostly factory scoring. Cummings, Collins and Brown were the principal contributors to the Toronto aggregate, making 23, 22 and 12 by heavy hitting. The whole innings closed with 80 runs. In their second innings Peterborough awoke for a time to the exigencies of the moment, and Rutherford, Carter and Montgomery, by a good display of cricket, quickly compiled 23, 16 and 14 runs, respectively, but the enthusiasm soon died out, and the innings closed for a total of 79 runs. Toronto then went in and put together the balance at a loss of two wickets. For Peterborough, Carter especially distinguished himself in the first innings by his excellent bowling. The following is the score :—

School Board Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Board of Education will be held this evening at the Central School building at 7.45 p.m.

Board of Trade.

Arrangements are being discussed for the re-establishment of the Peterborough Board of Trade. We understand that a meeting will be called at an early date.

Peterborough Business College.

The opening session of the Peterborough Business College will begin in the buildings, Hunter St., on Monday next, July 13th. There will probably be a good class to start with as Mr Sawyer has received numerous applications from intending students.

Masonic Delegates.

The Grand Lodge of A. F. and A. M. goes into session in Hamilton on Tuesday and will continue to sit till Wednesday inclusive. The following delegates will represent Peterborough and Keene :—R. W. Bro. E. H. D. Hall, W. Bro. B. Shortly, W. Bro. James Alexander and W. Bro. Robert English.

Receiving the Volunteers.

The sudden death of Colonel Williams will change the programme prepared for the reception of the volunteers on their return home, in the various towns of the district, except in Peterborough. If no preparations or plans are made it is difficult to derange them. It is singular that no steps towards receiving the returning volunteers has been made. There are left only ten days till the return of the boys—the 17th—and if a respectable reception is accorded them, it is time that action was taken.

Nearly Another Case.

Two little boys, living in the south ward, undertook to cross the river on saw logs from below Matthews' storehouse yesterday afternoon. Each one selected a large log and took particular care in each instance that it had not lost any of its bark. They got along very well until they had reached the shore at Burnham's Point, when one of the lads undertook to give an exhibition of rolling the log in the water and still keeping a foot hold, but getting over-balanced, had to relinquish his position on the log and swim for it. Fortunately, the boy was not very far from terra firma, and being able to swim, reached the shore safely. This is a dangerous practice, and parties residing near the river should do all in their power to prevent the boys indulging in it.

Floral Society's Garden Party.

On Monday evening the members of the Young People's Floral Society of the Charlotte-street Methodist Church gave a garden party in the grounds of the church. The latter were gayly and profusely decorated with Chinese lanterns, which, when the darkness came on, had a beautiful effect. There was a large attendance, and during the evening there was a brisk demand for the ice cream and strawberries deftly and delicately served out by the young lady members of the society, who, by the way, seemed to be foremost in the work. The Fire Brigade Band was present and was not sparing of its excellent music. A delightful couple of hours was spent and when the enjoyment was at its height an inconsiderate thunder shower closed the programme and sent the merry party home in haste. The result of the evening's entertainment was a handsome addition to the funds of the society.

New Recreation Grounds.

Midway Between Ashburnham and Peterborough.

We draw the attention of the people some time ago, to the piece of land which has been lying idle so long, between the Otonabee river and the mill race, south of the Hunter St. bridge. The ideas suggested in the EXAMINER seem to have met with the approval of the owners of the property; and to-day on visiting the spot we were surprised to notice the change that has taken place in such a short time. The extreme length of the grounds is 235 yards, with a breadth measurement of 160 yards. The work of levelling the grounds is being rapidly pushed on, under the supervision of Mr. John Craig, Ashburnham, and if he is as successful in managing the clods of the valley as he is in keeping the peace within the limits of our sweet little suburban sister, the job will be well done. Several men are busily engaged with horses in ploughing, scraping, levelling and removing stumps, roots, boulders and obsolete fence posts from the north end of the land. Mr. Calcutt intends to lose no time in preparing the place for a general sporting grounds. It is his intention to erect a board fence six feet high at once on the north end and extend it from the river to the race. The work of building the grand stand is to be commenced at once. It is not definitely settled, however, where its position will be, but in all probability it will be built on the west side in about the same position as the one which formerly held the audiences at the old grounds in Ashburnham. The actual length of the sporting section of the land will be 160 yards, and not less than 140 yards wide in any portion of the field. Already the members of the Peterborough Baseball Club are looking after the management for the purpose of procuring the place for three nights every week, a privilege which in all probability they will enjoy. The relative position of the grounds to Peterborough and Ashburnham and the probability, on this account, of their being extensively patronized should inspire the promoters to fully utilize the advantages of the position which nature has provided and carry out the motto, "What is worth doing, is worth doing well."

Good Templars' Excursion.

There was a small number of excursionists at the Midland station this morning to take the excursion train to Campbellford.

Twelfth of July.

Messrs. Joseph Thorndyke, of Cavan, District Master, and T. B. Collins, of Millbrook, were in town yesterday making arrangements for the celebration of the 12th of July, on Monday in Millbrook. The Fire Brigade Band has been engaged for the day.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Moderate to fresh south winds; warm weather, with a few local showers and thunder storms.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer :—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.

3 o'clock	3.80	29 17

Another Electric Light.

George street has received one more electric light, which was placed in position to-day in front of the C.P.R. ticket office, and is encircled by a beautiful large globe of a delicate vermillion shade, imported by Mr. Alex. Elliott, from New York City. The globe bears the following inscription: "C. P. R. Tickets;" and will add a lovely effect to the bright gleam of the electric light.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

—To-day strawberries are being "called" on the street at "only five cents a basket!"

—Four new houses are in course of construction on Stewart street.

—A beautiful double hunting canoe was yesterday, shipped to Wisconsin by the Ontario Canoe Company of Ashburnham.

—The members of the Boating Club utilized the newly painted double sculls last night on the Little Lake.

—The brickwork on the new tenement terrace on Hunter street is rising rapidly under the skilful hand of Mr. P. McNamara.

—Strawberries were selling at three cents per basket yesterday afternoon. An extra large consignment brought the price down to this figure.

—Remember the St. Luke's excursion to Hastings to-morrow morning. Tickets—children, 20 cents; adults, 55 cents. Trains leave Peterborough at 7.30, Ashburnham at 7.45.

No more school for two months, and every school boy will be able to swim and pitch three different curves in baseball by the first of September.

—Mr. Geo. Webber, on yesterday, shipped a fine carload of fat stock to Montreal via G. T. R.

—Mike Bird, of Peterborough, is going down to Belleville to-morrow to toe the scratch in the mile race. Go in Mike.

Council Meeting Adjourned.

The meeting of the Town Council that was to have been held on Thursday evening (to-morrow night) has been adjourned until Friday evening, July 10th, 1885, at 7.30 p. m.

St. John's S. S. Excursion.

The 11.40 C.P.R. train took about one hundred and thirty excursionists to-day to Norwood. The party was under the management of the St. John's Sunday School and will return this evening on the 6.43 mixed train.

Our Civic Holiday.

A petition is being largely signed to-day by all of the merchants in Peterborough, together with a large number of ratepayers, requesting that the Mayor appoint Thursday, August 13th, for the annual civic holiday. From the largely signed sheet the request will, in all probability, be granted.

Court House Park.

Blessings on their heads! The Park Commissioners are removing the unsightly old fence on the Water street front of the Court House Park. It will be replaced by a railing of gas pipe, supported by neatly turned posts. The work of grading the park is completed and the gravel will be placed in the walks this week. The work of improvement has been very effectively carried out.

Big Attraction at the Lansdowne.

On Friday and Saturday evenings, July 10th and 11th, Westbrook & Hacker, the champion trick and acrobatic bicyclists of the world, will appear at the Lansdowne rink, and perform all the evolutions which it is possible to perform on the two-wheeled vehicles. They will also give exhibitions in unicycle riding, and from their world wide reputation, should attract a large assemblage. The Fire Brigade Band will be present and furnish the usual enlivenment for the evening's entertainment. Admission 15 cents, skates 10 cents.

Strawberries.

Oakville and home picked berries fresh every day. Any amount supplied a one days' notice. Cherries, green peas, green beans, tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers, cabbages, and all kinds of green vegetables. Smith's market.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

They Stand at the Head.

The new improved Williams and the light-running Domestic Sewing Machines lead the trade everywhere. Light running, silent and rapid. For family use they have no equal, having all the best attachments. For a machine having a reputation above all others buy a Domestic or New Williams. The reputation they enjoy among our customers proves them to be the best sewing machine in the market. Terms to suit purchasers.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

Gladstone will not Impede the Ministry.

LONDON, July 7.—The first formal indication of Radical enmity toward the present government was furnished last evening in the House of Commons by Sir Wilfred Lawson (Radical), giving notice that he would move on Tuesday to refuse to grant to the government entire command of the time of the House.

GLADSTONE GRACIOUS.

In regard to the foreign policy Gladstone said he believed it was the duty of the late government to support the present government in the prosecution of important national aims. The statement was in the main correct that England had acquired Zulfikar pass to the Ameer. The Government, Gladstone said, would have his best effort in all reasonable efforts to bring that question to settlement. He admitted the government ought to avoid committing on the Egyptian question, and ought to be allowed time in which to obtain the fullest and best advice.

Hydrants by the Wholesale.

A Scheme Agreed Upon.

At the meeting held last night in the council chamber, Messrs. John Burnham, Dr. Boucher, R. A. Morrow, Charles Stapleton and Wm. Henderson, Superintendent for the Water Works Company, met the committee of the whole council, which was composed of all the councillors, with the exception of two, for the purpose of discussing and entering into an agreement for the extension of the Water Works and the placing of additional street hydrants for fire protection. The work of laying the pipes will be commenced at the intersection of George and Smith streets, and will run west on Smith to Aylmer street; south on Aylmer to London; west on London to Reid; south by Reid to Charlotte street; west on Charlotte street as far as Stewart street, from which they will lead to Wolfe street, and run east on that thoroughfare to George street, thus completing a very large circuit. The exact location of the hydrants is a matter of detail for after consideration. Though, according to the opinion of the Town Solicitor, it is not legally necessary to submit it to popular vote, yet the council think it best to consult their constituents in such an important matter. The following resolution was adopted in committee, moved by Mr. Kelly and seconded by Mr. McClelland:—

That the Clerk have a by-law prepared for the meeting of the council on Thursday evening, in accordance with the scheme submitted and agreed upon between the Water Works Co'y and this committee and that the limit for the completion of the works be November 1st, 1887.

RIEL THE REBEL ARRAIGNED

The Preliminary Proceedings Begun.

REGINA, N.W.T., July 7.—Riel was formally brought before Col. Richardson yesterday afternoon for the purpose of hearing the charge read and fixing a date for trial. The greatest secrecy was exercised to prevent the populace knowing what was taking place. At 3.30 two double-seated spring wagons drove up to the court-house, both evidently filled with police, who alighted and entered the building. One of those who alighted was, however, no less a personage than Louis Riel, who, disguised as a mounted policeman, passed through the streets without even arousing a suspicion. On entering the building Riel was at once taken to the prisoner's dock in the court-room.

RIEL IN COURT.

On entering the dock Riel removed his helmet, handling it nervously, then laid it down, only to pick it up again. His appearance would not attract attention on the street except, perhaps, that his apparel appeared neglected, while his hair hung in uncombed locks down his back, and showed the absence of comb and brush. His whiskers have grown long and now rest in a mass upon his breast. After entering the dock he glanced nervously round as though afraid there was someone there to recognize him, but his scrutiny placed his mind at rest, for turning to the jury box, where the press representatives sat, he bowed with all the grace of a duke and said with a smile, "Although a prisoner, allow me to salute you." We acknowledged the salutation. Riel then drew a crumpled piece of paper from the voluminous pocket of his overcoat, remarking at the same time he had something to say. Before he had the opportunity of doing so, however, the constable interfered saying, "You had better keep that for the court." Riel at once acquiesced, and with a bow to us returned the paper to his pocket. The police then removed the prisoner to the cells in the basement of the court house to await the arrival of Col. Richardson. At half past five the magistrate took his seat upon the bench and Riel was brought in. One lady and about a dozen gentlemen, together with the counsel, were all who were present at the interesting proceedings. Riel leaned on the front of the dock twirling his helmet in his hand as the magistrate proceeded to read the indictment, a formidable document of six counts, charging him with treason.

The first three counts of the indictment charge him as being a subject of Her Majesty, while the last three charge him in identically the same words, excepting that, instead of a subject, he is charged as a resident in Canada and under Her Majesty's protection. Riel is evidently in good health, despite the quantity of hot water which he drinks daily.

The trial has been fixed for the 20th of July.

Orderly Ireland.

Great Decrease of Crime — A Notable Trial.

A last (Monday) night's Dublin cable says: The summer assizes in Ireland opened today with a remarkable decrease in the number of cases to be tried. The only crime in which the death penalty is likely to be meted out is the case of William Sheehan and his brother-in-law, David Brown, which comes up at the Cork Assizes on the 23rd of July. The prisoners are charged with the triple murder of Sheehan's mother, sister and brother at Castletown Roche, October 27th, 1877. The crime is alleged to have been committed because Sheehan's mother refused to give her consent to the marriage of her son William to a daughter of a farmer named Brown, until Mrs. Sheehan had received a marriage portion of £300. The former was only willing to pay £170. Mrs. Sheehan, her daughter and her son Thomas disappeared a few days afterwards. All their bodies were found in a well near Mrs. Sheehan's farm in the latter part of August, 1884. Sheehan was arrested at Auckland, New Zealand, in December, 1884, and on his arrival at Cork in May last his brother-in-law was also taken into custody. The evidence against the prisoners is very strong as is also the feeling of the people of Cork, the prisoners being hooted several times when they [illegible] Court during the preliminary examination. There are no agrarian crimes on the calendars, and very few ordinary cases of crime are to be tried.

WEATHER NOTES FOR JUNE.

In looking back on June we find it a month of varying temperature and almost steady wind. The first few days, although there was not actually frost, we had a low pressure, and on the morning of the 6th the thermometer fell to 38°, with a sharp white frost, killing red plums, a great deal of garden stuff, and visably affecting some of the growing crops. The temperature again took a sudden change, and on the 8th, at 3 p.m., it stood 90° in the shade and again on the 28th, and, although we had a great deal of wind during the month the severest gale, and very cold, was on the 23rd blowing trees and fences in all directions. The average temperature of the month was 57 21-20 degrees. Rain fell on 14 days to the depth of 2 77-100 inches, but no heavy storm occurred, rain falling gradually throughout the month and keeping the growing crops in a fine moist condition. The wind was blowing at sunrise from the different points on the respective number of days, namely: south-east, 1 day; north-west, 8 days; south-west, 9 days, east, 2 days; north, 4 days; south, 3 days, and west, 3 days.

VICTOR HUGO.

The death of Victor Hugo, on the 22nd of May last, at the advanced age of 83, has removed from among us perhaps the greatest figure in the literature of the age in which we live. It has been said with truth that since the great German writer and thinker, Goethe, passed away, there has been no writer who has stood like Victor Hugo at the very summit of European literature. The French nation, we all know, are given greatly to the glorification of their own heroes. Still the pre-eminence of the great Frenchman must be admitted by all who have any knowledge of what is stirring in the great world of letters. And every admirer of literature, though they may not fully agree with what has been said of Hugo's fame and influence, must express their sympathy with the pride and grief of the nation who claimed the author of Les Miserables as its own.

It is no slight task to describe the works of a poet or to convince men of his greatness. It is so difficult to pourtray the achievements of mind or to prove to the unthinking multitude the power of thought. This is the case even when we speak of one who writes in our own tongue. But how much more impossible is the task to prove to Englishmen that a Frenchman is a poet, or that his verses are tuneful melody, and not as Mr. Arnold says, "a sea which destiny has sown with many rocks."

As a dramatist and poet Victor Hugo belonged not less to the world than to la belle France. The chief characteristic of all his works is their marvellous rhetorical force. One writer has compared Victor Hugo's poetry with Childe Harold. This is his criticism: "Byron's finest passages are incomparable rhetoric. They have the force, the happy certainty of great oratory, which is equivalent to saying that they are not the highest poetry. But they are great for all that, and so is Victor Hugo great. One has not realised what language can do to rouse and quicken the emotions till one has read Victor Hugo."

Certainly the great Frenchman was not without defects. These, in fact, are obvious, perhaps more so than his merits. He, like a true Frenchman, pushed rhetoric to excess, and in doing so he displayed a very common failing of his countrymen. Modern French literature is unreal. There is in most of it a terrible insincerity and want of truth, which are fatal defects in any writer. But alas! many say, this is a still more prevalent fault in the national character. The greatest and most elaborate of Victor Hugo's work, Notre Dame, is full of hopeless inaccuracies and incomprehensible blunders. To the practical English mind he seems to be too much given to mere phrases and sentiments and to exhibit very often a useless power of generalisation and a great want of solid substantial thought. In this again, however, he is but a type and representative of his countrymen.

Victor Hugo requested, ere his end came, to be buried in a quiet grave beside the graves of his parents. Indeed, he wished that his funeral should be that of a pauper. His countrymen, in their zeal for display, curiously carried out his desires. The funeral was conducted on the most gigantic and elaborate scale Preparations were carried on night and day so that its grandeur might be unparalleled. Twelve cars laden with floral crowns preceded the hearse. The procession itself was two miles long. The body was deposited in three coffins, the first of lead, lined with satin, the second of oak and the third of mahogany, covered with black velvet, spangled with silver stars. A gigantic cenotaph was erected under the Arc de Triomphe which was beautifully decorated, and multitudes defiled before the Catafalque to view the remains, while picquets of cuirassiers and other guards of honor, together with numerous policeman kept close watch. During the night the place had the appearance of a great fair, and had it not been for the precaution of the authorities in prohibiting communistic flags and other emblems the funeral would not have passed off without terrible bloodshed and rioting. The procession, it is said, both from a military and civil aspect, was far more brilliant than that of Gambetta's funeral and was never equalled even in Paris.

Though Victor Hugo expressed belief in God, his religion in other respects, was most vague and unsatisfying to men who believe in the supernatural. His friends, all of whom were free-thinkers, permitted no religous ceremony at the grave—in fact his funeral was of a distinctly anti-Christian character. His remains were interred in the Pantheon, beside his departed great compatriots, Voltaire and Rousseau. It was not until after a fierce debate that the French Chamber of Deputies consented to the secularization of the Pantheon (formerly a Roman church), and then the motion was strongly opposed by many members. This event has roused much discontent and opposition on the part of those who are still obedient to the Roman pontiff, and, as one of the Deputies said, "The day will certainly come when Christian France will avenge it."

Radical English Tories.

The English conservatives are going in for radical methods of agitation and electioneering. The prospectus of a conservative news agency (limited) has been issued. Lord Randolph Churchill is named as the chairman of the company. The purpose of this new agency if to provide the provinces with cheap conservative newspapers and to prepare voters for the general election. According to the prospectus it is proposed to issue cartoons and caricatures and to publish literary matter of an attractive character on cheap terms and on the co-operative principle. The scheme has the support of leading conservatives. Articles bearing the signature of leading cabinet ministers and others are promised the new papers.

Parliamentary Summary.

TUESDAY, JULY 7th.

On motion to go into Committee on Ways and Means, yesterday, Mr. Blake took the opportunity to move his long-looked-for amendments in reference to the Government's North West policy. Mr. Blake has been ready with this amendment for some time, but the Government have systematically kept back the order for supply till a late hour in each sitting, probably because they were not ready with all the material for their answer to his criticisms. Mr. Blake's speech of yesterday occupied upwards of six hours in delivery, and constituted a wonderfully complete and orderly resume of the events in connection with the unhappy agitation among the half-breeds since 1878.

Sir John Macdonald followed in reply with a two hours' speech, in which he made little attempt to meet Mr. Blake's charges in detail, but contented himself with an unusually violent attack on the Opposition.

Effect of the Amendments.

As some confusion exists in the public mind as to what the effect of dropping the Scott Act amendment bill introduced by Mr. Jamieson will be, in view of the temperance people not pushing it further because of the objectionable beer and wine amendment which the Senate has now reinserted in it, an explanation may be necessary. The result of the bill being dropped is that section 145 of the McCarthy act, under which it has been ruled that the Dominion License Commissioners may issue wholesale and druggists' liquor licenses in Scott act counties remains unrepealed! What this means when in operation may be recognized from the fact, that in the county of Huron, Mr. Costigan, as Minister of Inland Revenue, has caused licenses to be issued of this class to ex-tavern keepers.—Ottawa Free Press.

FAREWELL COURTESIES.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—Will you kindly allow me the privliege of expressing through your valuable paper my most sincere and hearty thanks to those friends on the Keene circuit who so liberally contributed towards the valuable presents given me on the eve of my departure from among them.

The presents are as follows:—By the kind friends at Villiers the following beautiful address accompanied with a purse of $30.35, which, together with a special collection as a Christmas present, makes $35.00 donated to me by them, besides their ordinary quarterly contributions to the Circuit Fund:—

ADDRESS.

To the Rev. John Tozeland:

REV'D AND DEAR SIR,—We, the inhabitants of this neighborhood desire on the occasion of your removal from the Keene circuit to give expression to the high appreciation in which your labors among us have been held. While we are aware that you have conducted religious services in this place voluntarily for over a year and a half at considerable self-sacrifice, also that these services have been without extra remuneration, we at the same time have always felt from your regularity of attendance and from the deep interest you have manifested in our spiritual welfare that your labors on our behalf have been cheerfully performed as a service unto the Master.

We therefore could not let this opportunpass without acknowledging in some tangible form your kind consideration for our spiritual welfare, and as a slight token of our appreciation of it we would now ask you to accept this purse; also, our sincere thanks for the efforts you have put forth for our benefit.

We separate, but though we may not again hear your voice in this school room, nor see your genial face in our midst, yet we will ever treasure the many sacred truths and words of warning, encouragement and comfort that have fallen from your lips from time to time in this place.

The sincere wish of those who have enjoyed the benefit of your labours here, is that He who has endowed you with so many excellent gifts of head and heart, and who has so abundantly blessed you in the past, may continue to prosper you in the field of labor to which you are about to remove, and that Mrs. Tozeland and yourself may be long spared to lives of usefulness in your most cherished calling.

Signed on behalf of the inhabitants of Villiers,

WILLIAM HARRIS,
ALEXANDER WOOD,
WM. BROTHERSTON.

Villiers, June 17th, 1885.

PRESENT FROM ZION.

The dear friends of Zion not willing to be surpassed by any in their generosity toward their retiring minister, but who from lack of time and oppertunity could not have a public meeting for a formal presentation of an address and purse. Nevertheless, through James Gillespie, Esq., their representative, they presented me with the handsome sum of $40, just before my departure.

For such enlarged Christian liberality I feel most devoutly thankful to God and to the kind friends who so cheerfully gave. May the Divine blessing abundantly rest upon them all.

With thanks to you Mr. Editor for the privilege of publishing the above.

I am, dear sir, yours respectfully,

JOHN TOZELAND.

MORE RAIN.

A thunder storm, accompanied by rain, passed over the village on Monday night. Farmers in this vicinity cannot complain of want of rain now.

ACCIDENT.

On Monday morning Mr. William Trude, butcher, who lives with Mr. Waldon, about a mile from the village, noticed that a large boar which had been confined in a pen for several days, had loosened a board and was trying to get out. He took a hammer and nails to secure it, but had no sooner got into the pen, than the brute (which had always been very quiet), seized him by the leg, stripping the flesh from the bones for a distance of over four inches below the knee, and some two inches wide. It again tried to bite him, but was knocked down by the hammer Mr. Trude had, and he managed to make his way out of the pen before it could renew the attack. Medical aid was obtained and the wound stitched up and dressed, but it will be some time before Mr. Trude will be able to be about.

PUBLIC SQUARE AND MARKET.

We understand that at the next meeting of the council an offer on behalf of R. and G. Strickland will be made to them as follows: R. and G. Strickland propose to remove the fence from the lot bounded by Water, Bridge and Queen streets, throwing all into an open, change the first flat of the large frame building, at present used as offices, into a hall for village purposes, and give the council a five or ten years' lease of the whole at an annual rental of $80 with the privilege of buying at the termination of the said lease at an upset price. The village now pay $55 per annum for their council chamber, which, however, includes fire, light and caretaking. A party has offered to rent the back part of Messrs. S's building, if the council take it, at $24 per annum and take care of the hall, which would give the village, their council chamber and the large square or gore for $56 per annum, and they could still rent the large rooms over the hall for a reading, club room or other purposes. We trust the offer will receive full consideration at the hands of our citizens, as the offer to secure such an eligible site will not occur again.

IN MEMORIAM.

The sad news received from the Nor'-West of the death of Col. A. T. H. Williams has called forth many expressions of sympathy and regret that he should be cut off just as he was returning safe from the scene of his exploits. He had many personal friends in Lakefield. The old volunteers here who served under him in 1866 still remember him for the many kind actions and favors while on service.

Hint for Fly Fishers.

A gentleman, fishing in Lough Currane, Ireland, landed a pound and a half trout, whose stomach appeared unusually distended. Upon ripping it open he found a fully fledged sparrow, quite perfect, without even a feather disturbed. Let fly fishermen take the hint.

Sweet Little Cherubs Make Music.

A family up-town, says the New York Tribune, was surprised the other day, and not altogether delighted, at the persistent attentions of an organ-grinder who played in front of the house for the better part of the forenoon. The surprise ceased, and the delight did not increase, upon the discovery that two charming little cherubs, the hope and pride of their parents, had been emptying their mother's purse by driblets from the nursery window. When the money was all gone the musician went also.

More of Dewdney's Doings.

While hundreds of North-West settlers are in a half-starving condition, the Lieut.-Governor of the Territories holds high carnival at Regina. He gave a "brilliant ball" on Friday evening last, everything being in the most extravagant proportion possible. To say the least, it is unseemly that while the shadow of death hangs over the North-West capital, and the men constituted rebels by the flagrant misgovernment of Macpherson, Dewdney and the goodly company of abettors continue to arrive in custody, the Lieut.-Governor should be disporting himself as if the chief end of the expedition in which so many brave men have fallen were to provide him with opportunity to display his gay uniform and drink champagne.—Hamilton Times.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Boston's Ten Cent Dissipation.

There is a custom which I fancy is almost indigenous to Boston of going out on the open street cars for pleasure. Now, you must know the Boston street car has the New England energy and enlivenment. It is clean and bright and swift. There is a peculiar, long, easy swing to the motion on the first two front seats of the open street car that is far more pleasant than carriage driving. For the carriage must rattle over rough stones on most of the streets, while the car has the smooth track, and after 6 in the evening you will see every outlying line of street cars in Boston loaded with people who are merely out for a drive to the end of the line and back. The car lines to Brookline, Jamaica Plain and Dorchester Heights are the favorites—lines on which the passengers have from four to five miles of this rapid motion and cool breeze for 5 cents, and the same distance returning for a like sum.—Cor. N. O. Times-Democrat.

AN ELECTRIC RAILROAD.

Prof. Daft's Singular Line in New Jersey—Supplying Motive Power.

A company has been formed in this city to furnish electric motive power to any and every one who may have a wheel to turn. The machine it proposes to use is the electric motor of Prof. Louis Daft.

About one mile west of Greenville, N. J., nestling in a grove of trees, is a small frame house of four rooms, and under its shingled roof was found the wizard of Newark bay. Jumping from his drawing-board an with energy that he might have drawn from one of his own motors, he said in cheery tones:

"Come, take a ride."

"Ampere," named from the distinguished electrician, was brought out from a neighboring shed, saddled and bridled, and the wizard and his guest got aboard. "All ready," he cried, and touching a lever, and giving a quarter revolution to a three-inch crank, the engine started. The track, from its appearance, might have been built of the debris of the first experimental railroad in America. The rails were old, and worn, and rusty; they were up here, down yonder; a succession of bumps and hollows; they were on a heavy grade and the one curve of forty-five degrees was like turning the corner of a fence. How in the world any four wheels ever managed to follow such a track is a wonder, but "Ampere" whirled along it, back and forth, without a groan and was as docile and quiet as a Shetland pony. The engine would sweep along to within an inch of the ends of the rails and stop instantly when on the verge of going over.

The power that moved the engine came from a generator in the factory, through a mile of wire, which might as well have been ten or twenty-five miles long. The power was transmitted to the engine by means of a small iron rail in the middle of the track. The mile wire was attached to the rail, and the current flowed through it, producing power enough to move "Ampere" and a standard gauge passenger coach containing seventy-five passengers up a seventy foot grade, and yet barefooted children play upon the track unharmed.

In the factory close by a small motor that occupies less room than a sewing machine operates the saws, planers and drills of a wood working shop, and a still smaller one in another room produces 900 revolutions a minute in a thirty-six-inch fan, and drives a current of air through the building that would turn a windmill. Prof. Daft would in all cases show the harmlessness of his machines by diverting the current of electricity operating the machine into his own person, and even by closing the circuit with his tongue; this notwithstanding the flash of light the opening of the circuit produced.

"What is your plan for applying your motor to domestic use," he was asked.

"We shall build central stations, at which we shall generate sufficient power to supply every demand within a radius of two and a half miles. We will carry as much of that power into your house as you want, and measure it out to you, and we will carry it in a way that will afford you no inconvenience, taking no room and being absolutely safe. We will give you a motor of any capacity; it will occupy only one-fifth the room of any other; will always be ready for instant use, is cleanly, requires no engineer, and will take care of itself. You start and stop it by a quarter turn of a three-inch crank."—N. Y. Tribune.

The spring wheat crop at 156,000,000 bushels will be 10 per cent larger than the largest yield on record and even at low prices prove the most profitable crop ever harvested in the Northwest.

A southern judge lately decided that a husband "can strike his wife three licks with a switch and escape punishment," and the Boston Post says His Honor is evidently unmarried or he would know better.

An exchange says: A miss in Gaddestown, Ga., has hair that sweeps the floor. Now if this miss had hair that could cook, wash and iron and milk the cows, what a bonanza she would be as a wife.—Brooklyn Times.

A man's honesty should be considered in connection with the opportunities he has had to steal. There are lots of pious young men who have never been where they could reach any big sum of money.—New Orleans Picayune.

"I'm glad Billy had the sense to marry a settled old maid," said Grandma Winkum at the wedding. "Gals is hity-tity, and widders is kinder overrulin' and upsettin'; but old maids is kinder thankful and willin' to please."—Middleton Press.

"What are you slowing up for?" yelled a freight conductor to an engineer on one of our Vermont roads. "Why, we've run over a book agent." "Drat it all, then, why don't you keep on? We can't kill him unless the whole train runs over him."—Burlington (Vt.) Free Press.

The chief difficulty about a woman doctor is that if she was suddenly called to attend a man who had fallen down a shaft, and they told her he was a young man and unmarried, she would stop so long to fix her crimps that the man would be liable to die from the violence of his contusions.—Rockland Courier.

It is said Shoshoni tried the boys chipped together to buy him a tombstone. They couldn't agree upon the inscription. Fogg suggested this: "His gun never missed fire. Let us hope that he may be like his gun." But that was considered somewhat personal, and was rejected without a division.—Boston Transcript.

As to lacing: "Oh, no," exclaimed a loosely-girded girl the other day, as one of those very slim-waisted persons (a married woman) stepped off the pier into a boat and began to handle the oars. "If she exerts herself at all I'm positive she'll snap in two and the upper half go overboard. Do look at her!"—Boston Transcript.

"This isn't a menagerie," sharply observed an irascible woman to a man who was trying to force his way through the crowd at the door of a concert-room. "No, I suppose not," returned the man, "or they wouldn't leave any of the animals here to block up the entrance."

It is reported of "Slugger" Sullivan that he once listened to a sermon delivered by Mr. Talmage, and as he left the church he remarked sotto voce: "I hope he'll stick to preaching. If he should ever take to the manly art I'm gone. I wouldn't stand up before him for big money."

An important detail: Guileless young woman—"Oh! uncle, I do wish you would take me with you. I adore those French operettas." Discriminating male relative—"It isn't a proper place for you, my girl." G. Y. W.—"But it is all in French, and I should not understand more than half that was said." D. M. R.—"Yes, my dear, but which half?"

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed.

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

Waterworks for the West.

Mr. R. Martin, and his shovel trio, are working on Charlotte St., west of the G. T. R.; putting down a main as far as Rubidge St. An extension has been pointed south on Stewart St. to facilitate the location of a hydrant, if necessary, at the corner of Charlotte and Stewart streets.

Back from Rochester.

A large number of Peterborough people, who "excursioned" to the city of Rochester, last Friday, returned yesterday evening on the 5 o'clock train from Port Hope, after remaining in that town from about 7 a. m. in the morning. It is too bad that there are not more trains running during the day from the front to Peterborough especially, during a time when our town is so frequently visited by tourists from the "Garden City."

Celebrating the Ninth Anniversary.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, on Thursday, July 9th, completes his ninth year as pastor of the parish of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, and the occasion is to be celebrated to-morrow by an excursion to and a pic-nic at Hastings. During Rev. Mr. Bradshaw's ministry as Incumbent, and more recently as rector, the parish, established nine years ago has been blessed with with great prosperity. From a very humble beginning it has grown with a flourishing parish, with a fine church or parsonage, a large congregation, or what is a better sign of its spiritual progress, a large number of regular communicants.

P. A. A. A.

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association met last night in their rooms on George street. It was decided to hold the first of the series of athletic sports on next Friday evening on the grounds in Ashburnham. The list will include a 100-yards' race, quarter mile and mile race and will very likely be well contested. A gold medal is to be competed for in two weeks, in a mile bicycle race, between A. E. Kent, of Newcastle, and A. Gibson, of Peterborough. These two flyers had a race recently in Port Hope, in which the latter claimed a foul that occurred at the outset of the race which was disallowed. The communication from the Peterborough Lacrosse Club with reference to obtaining the grounds for practice was presented, but on account of the numerous sports which at present are being carried on in the grounds, was not entertained.

Work Commenced in Earnest.

A short walk down to the corner of Bethune and Townsend streets will bring a person to the scene of labor in connection with the new stove works, which are being pushed on with all possible vigor. A gang of eleven men, six masons and five laborers are making splendid progress, and inside of two weeks the job will be ready for the brick-layers. The foundations which will support the main wall on Townsend street measuring 145 feet in length; as well as the one facing Bethune street 93 feet long, are being put in with a base of nearly four feet. The fact, that all the foundations intersecting the building are 3½ feet in width, will give an idea of the substantial kind of work that is at present going on under the careful supervision of Mr. John Hayes.

Consignment of Porkers.

Mr. Geo. Matthews yesterday received a consignment of 45 fine pigs over the Midland Railway. The black porkers, which averaged 220 pounds each, were driven down Aylmer street to the slaughter house, where the cold steel is being administered to them to-day.

Visitors Expected.

That Peterborough is likely to be visited by a number of excursionists from Uxbridge to morrow, the following communication will show:

To the Secretary of the Silver Stars:

DEAR SIR,—There is a cheap trip from Uxbridge to Peterborough on the 9th (Thursday), and our boys propose to take advantage of it, to pay you a visit and play a game with your team; regret very much the short notice, but did not learn of the trip until Monday. Telegraph a reply, and oblige

Yours, etc.,
JIM GLOVER,
Sec'y. Uxbridge B.B.C.

We understand that the reply has been sent, accepting the offer, and in all probability a good game will take place on that date.

Not Egg-zactly Right.

Some time ago one of our town grocers made up his mind to start into the egg business. He accordingly set out and began purchasing extensively of the commodities and in a reasonable length of time collected together a quantity sufficiently large for a small shipment. Going to the C.P.R. freight office he told the official there that he wanted to ship 49 cases to Boston. "Where are your consul papers?" asked the freight manager. "I don't want any papers. I want to ship the eggs to the State of Massachusetts." The explanation necessary followed and our enthusiastic dealer spent the sum of five dollars in railway fare and for the documents in Port Hope. The eggs were shipped, but on their arrival at the eastern terminus were found to be nearly all rotten. Of course they were destroyed and the empty cases, which should have been returned over the same route as they went, came back by the G. T. R., which route represented another bill of $7.20. The dealer, on figuring up, ascertained that he was out just $137.20 and ever since passes the "egg-stands" on the market as if they were guarded by a half-dozen of bull dogs.

Sunday School Pic-nic.

The pupils of St. John's south ward Sunday School (Church of England), enjoyed a a delightful pic-nic and feast yesterday afternoon. Through the kindness of Miss Chamberlain, a teacher in the school, a nicely grassed paddock, shaded by grand old trees, south of Mr. Wm. Chamberlain's, was placed at the disposal of the school. About seventy of the pupils assembled and spent the afternoon in a very enjoyable manner, in swinging, sports, games, races, etc. At five o'clock the teachers abundantly feasted the pupils, whose afternoon's fun had given them vigorous appetites. A pleasing episode was the presentation, as a token of love and good wishes on the part of the teachers, to Mrs. Archer, who has been for a long time the mainstay of the school, of a handsome travelling bag on the occasion of her visit to England. The presentation was made, with a few appropriate words, by Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector of Peterborough, who, as well as Rev. Mr. Angell, curate, was present on the occasion. The pleasant and successful afternoon's recreation was brought to a close by the children giving three cheers for their hostess, the singing of "God Save the Queen" and a school hymn.

New Pottery Premises.

Mr. Richard Kingan has made a beginning in a new industrial enterprise, and now two potters' wheels are busy preparing a kiln of pottery ware—jars, flagons, vases, flower pots, etc., etc. Mr. Kingan's new factory, located, as previously stated in the EXAMINER, on the corner of Sherbrooke street or the boundary, has a daily capacity of "230 gallons"—a technical expression to show that ware of various sizes equivalent to that measure is produced, ready for the kiln. Mr. Joseph Sawdye is engaged in constructing a kiln of 2,500 gallons capacity which will be finished in about a fortnight, when the first batch will be ready for burning. The stoneware made is glazed by the use of ground flint, felspar and oxide of lead, which under the intense heat combine and frame a strong, durable glaze. This will comprise the bulk of the stock manufactured, but Rockingham ware, such as the brown teapots which some old ladies insist on having their tea brewed in, will be turned out to a limited extent. The clay used is found in large quantities below the locks and is of excellent quality, better than that used in many of the United States potteries. Mr. Kingan is a good judge in this matter, for he has had an experience of twenty seven years, in the making of pottery in Canada and the States from the Otonabee in Ontario to the Rio Grande in Texas. His new industry is a welcome addition to the manufacturing establishments that are being so numerously organized in Peterborough. As the town progresses in population its manufacturing importance seems to keep pace. Since the importance and future progress of the place must be largely dependent on its manufactures, we welcome cordially every new branch of industry, great or small, that becomes established in our midst.

Preparing for the 12th.

The Orange order is intending to enter into the celebration of the glorious Twelfth this year. This year Mr. T. Robinson & Sons, Kingston, have painted 29 banners, of the value of from $50 to $175 each. The Orangemen in this county will celebrate the day in Millbrook in first-class style on the 13th, the 12th falling on a Sunday.

St. Andrew's Excursion to Belleville.

Parties intending to go to Belleville tomorrow with the St. Andrew's excursion would to well to remember that the train leaves the G.T.R. station at 7 a.m. Every comfort is promised on the train, and an enjoyable time is sure to be spent in the "Bay City." Remember the long list of Caledonian games, which will take place on the picnic grounds; and the fare for the round trip only $1.00.

"Bohemian Society."

We have before us a beautifully bound and handsome volume with the above title. The author is Mrs. Lydia Leavitt, of Brockville, wife of a journalist, Mr. T. W. H. Leavitt, formerly of the Brockville Recorder. Mrs. Leavitt treats her subject in a very pleasing and spirited style. She gathers together, at the house of a lady of a literary turn of mind, a company of individuals representing the composite character of modern society, the Visionary, the Enthusiast, the Pessimist, Optimist, Cynic, Swedenborgin, Psychologist, etc. She puts into the mouth of each a brief and often racy and sarcastic epitome of their peculiar beliefs and impressions, reflecting the moral, religious and spiritual unrest of modern society. The little book is cleverly written, and betrays habits of close observation and considerable power of critical analysis. Mrs. Leavett is in town now, and her list (the book is published by subscription) contains the names of the leading men of Canada, including the Premier of the Dominion, the Speaker of the House of Commons and the foremost literary and professional men in our chief cities.

Funeral Reform Needed.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I have for a long time observed the need of reform in the manner of conducting funerals in town. One most objectionable feature is the tedious delay that almost invariably attends them. As a rule funerals start from the house of mourning from a half to an hour after the announced time. The minister arrives not always on time, and the services have to be held before the funeral procession can move, and in the meantime the persons attending have to stand outside in the broiling sun, in summer, or shiver in the frost of winter in the greatest discomfort. All this is avoidable and quite unnecessary and business men who leave their places of business under arrangements for an hour's absence almost always have that time lengthened to two. The remedy is to let the funeral leave the house promptly at the hour indicated in the announcement. Let the minister or clergyman be on hand and have the services at the house over at the time the funeral is to start. If this were done, there would be probably less of another objectionable practice which I have often noticed with pain. As the funeral procession passes down George street, one or two carriages will drop out of it at, say, Sherbrooke street; others follow their example, and every cross street receives a detachment of deserters, till often there is is hardly left at the cemetery a corporal's guard of a large and respectable procession. I make these remarks "more in sorrow than in anger," and hope to see an amendment made of the faults I have pointed out, and a more orderly, satisfactory and decent management of funeral occasions introduced.

Yours, etc.,

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. The Deadly Thunderbolt.

John Haggart, of Ennismore, Instantly Killed.

This morning a severe thunder storm visited Ennismore about 8 o'clock. Three men were working on a wall for the extension of the residence of Mr. Paul Costello, the latter being among the number. While they were at work a thunderbolt descended amongst the party and John Haggart was instantly killed and Mr. Costello and a Peterborough stonemason stunned so as to be insensible. A messenger was at once despatched to town for Dr. O'Shea, who, immediately repaired to the scene of the tragedy. The young man who was killed was a nephew of Mr. Wm. Bevington, Ennismore.

Picnicing at the Quarry.

The quarry is becoming the favorite resort for juveniles since the close of the Public Schools. Every day last week parties of six or eight might be seen wending their way in that direction. One little boy had the misfortune to lose his balance while watching some floating object in the water of the canal, built by the "Missing Link," and was rescued by a schoolmate in an exhausted condition, having narrowly escaped drowning. Troops Making Poor Progress.

WINNIPEG, July 8.—A despatch received from Prince Albert announces the arrival there this morning of the steamers North-West and Marquis, with the Midlands, the Tenth, the Queen's Own, the Foot Guards, and the Ninetieth. The steamers, owing to water failing, are not making good headway in the transport home of troops. The weather is also raw and windy. A start will not be made from Prince Albert before Saturday morning.

The Canadian Pacific.

General Van Horne, in a recent interview, stated that the Canadian Pacific line would be completed by October 1st, across the Rocky Mountains, which will give all rail communication to Canadians from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Vancouver, B. C., on the Pacific coast. Some difficulty was experienced in the selection of a western terminus. Coal Harbor was at one time thought to be the best terminal point, as its harbor is exceptionally fine and without making any improvements the larger vessels could go into port. But Vancouver is a daisy and caps them all. Work on the line has been pushed as rapidly as possible, though it has been impossible to get all the men that the company wished to do tunnel and rock work on the mountains. The grading on the western end will be finished within six weeks, with the exception of six miles of tunneling of the Rockies. Until the tunnel work is completed a switch-back arrangement will be used.

Col. Williams' Last Letter.

OTTAWA, July 7.—The following is the last letter poor Col. Williams wrote to Hon. Mr. Caron. It will be read with interest:—

"FORT PITT, June 6, 1885.

MY DEAR CARON,—I fully intended writing to you a long letter to-morrow, as it promised to be a quiet Sunday, but the fortunes of war have otherwise directed, as at a late hour this evening I received orders to march to join Gen. Strange's column, which I think is about sixty miles from here. I have under my command about sixty scouts or cavalry, a portion of the 65th and the Midland Battalion. "Big Bear" will soon be surrounded. Although many of his prisoners have escaped, there are still about twenty with him. The enemies' country is difficult to move through, but I hope to catch him at latest on Tuesday morning. I enclose a map of Batoche, which is pretty correct. The blue pencil shows the position of the Midland and where we halted for fully fifteen minutes, waiting for the other troops to come on. Our advance was along the slope of the river, but I deviated to the creek, and looked down at times across the prairie level to see the position of the other regiments. Nothing could have been more magnificent than the steadiness and the response to the rush across the open for five hundred yards. I am proud to be able to say that I led them (the Midland) first, and although the rush was under a hailstorm of bullets, it was most regular and shoulder to shoulder. I had intended to have given you a few notes from my diary, but I shall have to postpone this. I enclose a copy of a statement made by Capt. Ruttan, of the 90th, which may be interesting in the meantime for your private information. I have to thank you for your kind telegram and the interest you take in my progress. It is now after midnight and I have to be up at a very early hour, and owing to want of proper writing accomodation, I fear my scribbling is almost illegible. I trust after Big Bear is captured that we shall be at liberty to return homewards. With kindest regards,

Faithfully yours in haste,

(Signed) ARTHUR T. H. WILLIAMS.

Canada at Antwerp.

The Dominion Display.

A Globe correspondent, writing of the Antwerp exhibition, after referring to the deficient display of the products and resources of Canada, says:—"It is true that in this respect Canada was not worse off than many other countries taking part in the exhibition. In spite of its deficiencies, however, the exhibits ought to benefit the Dominion. So much ignorance as to Canada's resources and commercial development still prevails on the Continent, that most visitors to the exhibition appear to be surprised to find in the Canadian court anything beyond furs and Indian curiosities. It is a revelation to them to learn that in the quality and character of her products the Dominion is little if anything inferior to her neighbor. An interest in Canada is consequently being aroused which ought to have good results. On emigration from the Continent the influence is likely to be marked and lasting. From a purely commercial standpoint, too, the result should prove satisfactory. I have heard whilst here of inquiries and purchases which show that there is a field open to Canada on the Continent, which has hitherto been neglected. One of the two side entrances opens directly on to the Canadian court, through which a constant stream of visitors is passing. The decoration of the court, though simple, are tasteful and effective, and give the court a certain individuality of its own. A good use of the materials placed at his disposal has been made by Mr. F. J. Dore, the secretary of the Canadian Commission, upon whom the work of arranging and administering the exhibit has devolved. The total number of Canadian exhibitors is only a little over 100. Of these, roughly speaking, a third hail from Ontario, and another third from Quebec, and the balance from the remaining portions of the Dominion.

Ezra and Phoebe.

A Williamsport colored woman said to her better-half one day last week:

"Ezra, you got two dollahs las' week foh clennin' up 'bout Marster Winfield's house an' yahd. Where is dat two dollahs?"

"Heah, Phoeby,"

"You jis' go an' put dat ar' two dollahs in one ob dem banks up on Pine street."

"An'—an'—de bottle's empty. Phoeby." And he held up an empty black bottle, from the neck of which there was a suspicious emanation of gin. Phoebe squinted her eyes at the bottle longingly, but pretended not to see.

"Foh de lawd, niggah, we's got to be savin' ob de money now. Hard times is comin', shuah."

"You's right, Phœby. But dem banks is all got to bust an' den no money, no gin, no nothin'." And he held the bottle up again.

"Well," she sighed, sadly, "pears you's allers right 'bout de financial 'fairs, Ezra. But jis' go on an' put dat ar' money in de bank, and don't spend a cent for rum."

He went out sorrowfully, and she raised the window and called after him:

"Ezra!"

"Hey?"

"Is dem banks boun' to bust?"

"Dem banks'll bust shuah, woman."

"Dat's too bad; but I don't want you to get any rum, mind. Has you got de bottle?"

"Yes, Phœby."

"Well, it's a heap a waste o' bottle to bring it back empty, and I guess de banks will bust, Ezra. Hey?"

"Yas, Phœby."

"Whar' you goin' to git dat gin?"

"Some place, Phœby."

"Well, git it, den, ef you's bound to conterdict me ebery time. Nevvah saw sich a obs'nate niggah. Git a quaht Ezra! You heah me?"—Breakfast Table.

Owls.

Owls were never an epicurian feast, but Southey once had an owl roasted for dinner, for himself and Mr. and Mrs. Wordsworth; I give the sequel in his own words:

"We agreed there could be no pretext for making owls game and killing them as delicacies; but if ever you eat one, by all means try it boiled, with onion sauce."

An omelet made of owl's eggs is said to be a cure for drunkenness.

At one time the workmen on the Washington Monument were a good deal annoyed to find that a plumb line that reached from the top to the bottom of the shaft was frequently meddled with. At last it was found that an owl had taken up its abode in a part of the shaft that afforded a shelter, and in passing in and out it had disturbed the line.

An owl was once beguiled into a Georgia conference meeting, intent on securing a rat that had run into the room to escape from so persistent an enemy. Dazed by the light he sailed around a few times and alighted upon the bald head of an old man directly in front of the speaker. It is hardly necessary to say what was the next move; but the presence of the owl may have called to the preacher's mind the presence of Isaiah, who, when he foretold the desolation of Babylon, declared that the house should be full of doleful creatures, and that owls should dwell there.

An owl once seriously disturbed the mourners at a funeral at Beechwood, Ontario. With tender care they had placed the remains in a tomb, and were turning away sorrowing, when they heard a moan that seemed to come from the coffin. Hurriedly they broke the casket open, only to find all quiet within, and then it was discovered that the noise they had heard came from owls at the far end of the vault.

Dodsley thought it worth his while to write an ode on the death of an owl, and Broomfield made the bird the subject of his muse. Many persons believe that an owl will keep his eyes so intently fixed on a person walking around him as to wring his own neck off, and it was not until some quick-eyed observer discovered that when the owl had turned his head half round, he whisked it back through the whole circle with the rapidity of lightning, and faced again the person who was experimenting on him.—Providence Journal.

THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1885.

A POWERFUL ARRAIGNMENT.

Sir John Macdonald has made the most ingenious shifts to prevent a discussion of the causes of the Northwest rebellion, and it is not to be wondered at, considering the responsibility of Government in the matter, as shown by Hon. Mr. Blake in his splendid speech, which he closed by moving the following resolution :—

"That it be resolved that in the administration of the Northwest affairs by the present Government previous to the recent outbreak there have been grave instances of neglect, delay and mismanagement in matters affecting the peace, welfare and good government of the country."

Hon. Mr. Blake proceeded to show that although important incriminating papers had been improperly witheld from Parliament, there had been revealed sufficient to convict the government of its culpability and responsibility for the rebellion. Even the incomplete proofs that had been dragged out of the government were overwhelming in their directness. Neglects, delays, breaches of promise and faith, bad appointments, incompetency and maladministration were the cause of the outbreak. The Liberal leader pointed out that the various petitions and complaints received from Northwest settlers had been totally ignored by the Government. He charged ministers with gross culpability in refusing to bring down information to Parliament and showed that some of the most important documents beaming upon these questions had either been suppressed or witheld. The government had had frequent warnings of Riel's intentions and the government did nothing to avert the impending calamity, except upon the line in which they were most at home, that is, by an effort to buy up Dumont, Isbister, Dumas, and other rebel ringleaders with government offices. Sir Hector Langevin had personally visited the Northwest and reported everything serene and only found two men that had grievances. In view of events that closely followed his visit, the Minister must have been wilfully blind, for it is a fact that the settlers laid their grievances before him. The result of Sir Hector's criminal blindness and indifference led to bloodshed and misery which might have been averted if he had shown the first evidence of fitness for his position. The outbreak of the rebellion forced the government to take action that belied Sir Hector Langevin's roseate report of the satisfied condition of the settlers, and the government did what the facts showed them should have been done months before ; they appointed a commission to inquire into and redress the grievances of the half-breeds and give them all they asked for. The government had literally robbed the half-breeds, by depriving them of their lands and turning them over to the Prince Albert colonization company, a political combination. These lands were composed of several half-breed settlements, Batoche, St. Laurent, Gabriel's Crossing and others. The Company, with only their own interests to look after, seem to have been more considerate than the government, whose duty it was to protect these settlers, for they, finding settlers on the lands, refused to eject the settlers, but the government with less scruple told the company to go on and eject the settlers, which, no doubt, had a large effect in precipitating the rebellion. The composition of this colonization company shows that the government thought more of rewarding political allies and adherents than of protecting the people in their rights. There were two government supporters in the House in it, a son-in-law of the Minister of Customs, and a brother-in-law of the Minister of Militia, and several other political pets. When told to eject the settlers, the company warned the Government that such a course would lead to rebellion ; yet the Government persevered. Thus we see that in its anxiety to force favours on its political supporters, the Government took a course that has led to a bloody rebellion, involving the loss of the lives of scores of the best citizens of the country, and an expenditure of millions of money. While the responsibility of the overt acts of rebellion may rest upon Riel, Dumont and their confederates, Hon. Mr. Blake showed conclusively that the actual responsibility for the rebellion rests with the Government of the Dominion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The government of Canada in its treatment of its neighbors over the line shows an exceedingly conciliatory and unrevengeful spirit. The American Government, by a new customs regulation, has practically destroyed our internal carrying trade, on the Grand Trunk and Midland and the Government at Ottawa in an excess of good will practically granted in return the free use of our Canadian Fisheries.

Some idea of the value to the American fishermen of the fishing rights enjoyed by them under the Washington treaty, and given to them without a return for the remainder of this season, can be formed from the fact that by the report as to the position of the New England fleet for June, furnished by the American Fish Bureau, 50 out of a fleet of 316 mackerel-men were fishing in Nova Scotian waters, and 220 out of a fleet of 460 cod fishers, were at work upon banks adjacent to British territory, upon the inshore fisheries of which they would, therefore, be dependent for their bait. This is at a season, too, when there are no American fishermen in the Gulf.

In view of our political condition, and of the numerous important and vital questions agitating the country in which young men have an especial interest, it has been deemed desirable to hold a convention of the young men of Ontario, in Toronto, during the second week of the Industrial Exhibition in September next, for the purpose of forming a Provincial Association, and of fostering and encouraging Liberal principles. Now is a critical time in the history of our country. Our rulers seem to have entirely forgotten that they are the stewards of a grand patrimony, and expend all their efforts upon political undertakings, having in view the retention of power of the Conservative party, ignoring utterly the interests of the country. Never was there a greater need of greater vigilance and more energetic effort on the part of the Liberals of Canada, and we hope the young Liberals of the East and West ridings will make it a point to attend the convention in Toronto, and thus combining with the other young men of the Province, strengthen the hands, and prepare to take the places of those who, having borne the burden and heat of the day, are, from increasing age, entitled to be relieved from the more arduous work of the struggle.

Parliamentary Summary.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 8th.

In the Commons to-day the debate on Mr. Blake's resolution, condemning the Government's administration of the affairs in the Northwest, was resumed. Mr. Laurier was the first speaker. He replied briefly, but fully, to Sir John Macdonald's statement last night, and declared that the petitions presented for years and years to the Government, the admissions of the Government and their hot haste in settling the claims after the rebellion broke out, which till then they had denied or ignored, proved that the Half-breeds had well-founded grievances which should have been redressed, and in not redressing which the Government were guilty of a gross neglect of duty. He was followed by Mr. Girouard, who dealt not only with the general question of the land policy of the Government, but with the Indian question in many of its phases, and with the Half-breed questions also. He admitted that the half-breeds had grievances, but these were not enough to justify rebellion. He spent a couple of hours reading extracts from documents to show what the Government had secured for settlers in land grants, freight facilities, post-office accommodation, &c. He tried, also, to show that the Mackenzie Government had been guilty of delay in dealing with the half-breeds. Mr. Cameron (Huron) followed, giving extracts from Conservative journals admitting the existence of the wrongs of the half-breeds. He had not concluded his speech when the House adjourned at 1.30 a.m.

Salisbury's Programme.

The Marquis of Salisbury's declaration of his foreign policy, while characterized by all that prudence begotten of the occupancy of office, is nevertheless a firm imitation to all concerned that Great Britain wants half the road will no longer be crowded into the ditch without a trial of strength. He declared it to be the duty of himself and his colleagues "to vigorously carry out measures for the defence of the Ind an frontier." The line of defence is not to be primarily behind the frontier, but "out beyond, so that when the tide of war comes it will not come to our door." This is pretty plain speaking, considering the speaker's position and responsibilities. It falls pleasantly upon the ears of the Tory jingoes and the Whig Imperialists, and will undoubtedly tell in the coming campaign, which may not prove the pleasant picnic for Mr. Gladstone that some of his admirers have been predicting.

Colonel Williams at Batoche.

How the Brave Midland Boys Behaved.

OTTAWA, July 8.—Captain Kirwan, of the N. W. Transport Service, who was at the battle of Batoche, thus speaks of the late Colonel Williams' heroic action on that memorable day—I was detailed to accompany the Colonel in the charge, having had some experience in the Franco-Prussian war. At 2 o'clock we fell in, and Col. Williams, after speaking a few encouraging words to the men, led the way with a revolver in one hand and his cap in the other. After scrambling through the underbrush the first rifle pits were carried and the men shouted as only brave-hearted men can shout "God save the Queen," and "Canada our home." Under a dropping fire from rebel pits Colonel Williams kept pressing on, carrying pit after pit, and exposed to an open, enfilading fire from the opposite side of the river. At one time he, perhaps, imprudently exposed himself, and several rebel bullets came whistling about his ears. Turning to those around him he said, without the least evidence of excitement, "Boys, they're devilish bad shots." He was a lion in the charge, but after the fight I will never forget how kind and gentle he was to the unfortunate women of the village.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

Blue-Ribbon Beer.

A Goderich Magistrate Decides that it is Intoxicating.

GODERICH, Ont., July 7.—Mayor Horton, of Goderich, gave his decision to-day on the blue-ribbon beer case. Dominion License Inspector Ball prosecuted John McBride, of the Albion hotel, Goderich, for selling the beer contrary to the provisions of the Scott Act, now in force in the county of Huron. Mr. Davies, the Toronto brewer and maker of the blue-ribbon beer, procured counsel to defend the case as a test case, C. R. W. Biggar of Toronto appearing for the defence. The evidence was of great length, and embraced analyses by Mr. Saunders, of London, and Professors Heys and Ellis, of Toronto. The magistrate, Mayor Horton, held that the beer was an intoxicating one, although of variable strength, and the defendant was therefore fined $50 and costs. There will be an appeal.

How Bruin Hugged a Busy Saw

"Talking about funny things," said a big, bronzed bearded man in the reading room of an up-town hotel last night, "the funniest thing I ever heard of happened in my sawmill out in Michigan. We used a heavy upright saw for sawing heavy timber. One day not long ago the men had all gone to dinner, leaving the saw, which ran by water power, going at full speed. While we were away a big black bear came in the mill and went nosing around. The saw caught his fur and twitched him a little. Bruin didn't like this for a cent, so he turned around and fetched the saw a lick with his paw. Result; a badly cut paw. A blow with the other paw followed, and it was also cut. The bear was by this time aroused to perfect fury, and, rushing at the saw, caught it in his grasp and gave it a tremendous hug. It was his last hug, and we lived on bear steak for a week. When we came up from dinner there was half a bear on each side of the saw, which was going ahead as nicely as though it had never seen a bear. This is a fact, so help me Bob," and the big lumberman bit off a fresh chew of tobacco.

Horrors of Opium Smoking.

Alarming Growth of the Vice in Leading American Cities.

(From the New York Sun.)

The exposure of another opium joint shows again that the vice practised in such places is making alarming headway among young people, and especially young girls.

For many years past the victims of opium have been many throughout the union, and perhaps were more numerous proportionately in the country than in the cities, where the opportunities for other forms of dissipation are greater. The girls in factory towns, we are told, as in Lowell, for instance, are often addicted to the use of opium, and the habit of taking morphine under the skin is increasing and spreading both here and in Europe.

These opium smokers seem to have no race prejudices against the Chinamen, with whom young girls will associate and frolic without the least repugnance. A common vice brings them all on the same level, and common degredation makes them natural companions. The sense of decency is utterly lost, and no vestige of self-respect remains. Respectable and disreputable men and women, Chinese and Americans, consort together while they are under the influence of the drug. No matter how rough and vile the place, how densely crowded, how stifling the air, they are not driven from it by any sense of delicacy or repugnance.

If this vice of opium smoking has grown so rapidly and spread so widely during the last ten years, what will be its extent a quarter of a century from now? Is it not possible that it is going to be one of the greatest of our social evils?

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The cheapening of sugar by the enormous growth of the industry in Europe renders the crude methods so far in use by the Louisiana sugar growers and makers no longer desirable. New and better machinery and processes must be adopted if the manufacture is to continue one of profit.

The Poet Laureate.

Eugene L. Didier, the well known critic and litterateur, discusses Tennyson as a plagiarist in the Literary World, and quotes freely to prove his assertions:—

Of all living poets Alfred Tennyson is the most renowned for originality. Yet, perhaps of all the great poets of this century he is the most indebted to the older writers. Since his recent failure as a dramatist the highest literary journals of England have whispered, and pretty loudly too, that his best descriptions are borrowed—that he is merely an embellisher and furbisher of old stories; and that he has the taste of an artisan who loads his work with too much ornamentation. It is also said that he does not build but only ornaments; that he is not an architect but a director; that he derives a large income out of a small capital.

Tennyson's earlier verses did not give much promise of a rich and abundant harvest. He sang of "Dying Sweets," of "Mermaids," "owls," "geese," "Loot-eaters" etc. Christopher North said:—"Alfred is greatest as an owl. All he wants is to be shot, stuffed and put in a glass case to be made immortal in the British Museum." This criticism was severe, but it was of much benefit to the young poet. He stopped writing and for ten years studied hard. He went through the splendid field of English literature, devoting much time to a perusal of the grand old poets of the older days. This course of study so enriched his imagination and enlarged his vocabulary that when he wrote again, he produced something worthy of his talents. The writer of pretty drawing room verses astonished the world by "Locksley Hall," "The Princess," "In Memoriam," "Maid," "The Idyls of The King," etc. The latter is Tennyson's favorite work and he devoted much time and study on it. The poet has made a mistake of introducing the grace and chivalry of mediæval civilization of France and England into the barbarous fifth century period of those countries. King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table form a beautiful and attractive group, but they are only an ideal and poetic conception. They never existed as painted by the poet.

In the full splendor of his fame and in the full maturity of his powers, Tennyson wrote "Enoch Arden." The poem obtained an immediate and wide popularity. The story was new, or supposed to be and the characters were taken from common life, thus securing a large class of readers who had not been interested in the poet's more courtly productions. We do not think Tennyson has ever been accused of plagiarism in "Enoch Arden," but we find that the story, the treatment and the whole scope of the poem were taken from the poem by Miss Proctor called "Homeward Bound." The heroes of both poems were sailors, both were shipwrecked, both left wives behind, both returned after an exile of ten years, both found their wives re-married, and both saw their wives seated at the hearth with their second husbands; both of the second husbands were friends of the exiles, and both of the latter returned to their homes on a chill autumn evening. Tennyson, however, with finer art makes Enoch Arden only see his wife through the window of her cottage—he does not enter to disturb her domestic happiness by claiming her, which was morally wrong, for once a wife always a wife. Miss Proctor, on the contrary, makes her hero, who speaks in the first person, enter the cottage, meet his wife and her second husband, and the three mingle their tears together.

There is not so much similarity in the language of the poems, but their plots are identically the same, with the difference already mentioned. When we remember that Miss Proctor's poem was published in 1858, and Tennyson's six years later, there can be no doubt that the first poet of the age did not hesitate to borrow the plot of one of his most successful poems from one who, next to Mrs. Browning, was the most gifted poetess of the last generation.

A Mysterious Sense.

Some thirty-two years ago, in Northern Indiana, with a company of perhaps a half-dozen men and boys, I was on a hot August forenoon binding a small piece of grain that had lain several days in swath to dry after being cradled. At that season the massasauga (the small brown and white rattlesnake of the region) is said to be blind, and does not rattle when approached. The snakes are quite apt to crawl under swaths of hay and grain, and to lie there a long time if not disturbed. For some reason—perhaps it looked like rain—all hands were set to bind and shock this little patch, and as something was the matter with one of my hands so that I could not bind, I raked up the bundles for two others to bind.

Having heard of the propensity of the massasauga to hide under swaths at this season and to keep quiet, I was careful in rolling up the swath into a bundle, always to rake the bundle off the swath before leaving it, lest a binder should gather up a snake in his arms.

As we were finishing the last of the patch the two who were binding after me began to race, and it was almost impossible to get a bundle raked up and off the swath before the binder would be ready for it. Still I managed until the last, and was very strongly impressed that I must not let the binder—who was jumping to get it and bind it before the other finished his—catch it up before I raked it quite off the ground. He had his band all made and was just stooping when I said: "Hold on, Jimmy! There's a snake under this!" "Nonsense!" said he, and gave me a shove so that he could pick up the bundle. But so sure was I that there was a snake there—although we had not met one in the field—that I struggled with him, each shoving the other, until I got a chance to reach out my rake and pull the bundle off the swath. There lay coiled a massasauga about three feet long, with his head up and ready for business, "and saying not a word!"

A few steps away in a corn field was a hoe, the snake's head was quickly severed from the body, and my cousin, the owner of the field, picked the snake up by the tail to pull off the rattles, which, by their number, showed that the reptile was seven years old. The moment he began to pull the bleeding neck flew up as quick as a flash and struck him on the under side of the wrist. Had the head been there the poison fangs would probably have been buried in one of the veins of the wrist. My cousin dropped the body, and was so faint with fright that he had to lean against a tree.

Some interesting questions suggest themselves: First, why had I such a certainty that there was a snake under that last end of the last swath, although we had found no other in the field? Was there anything like the telepathy of which our English friends are beginning to talk?

Second, what was the mysterious sense of direction that made that headless neck strike so swift and straight, just as it would had the head been on it? Is there a less necessary connection between the brain and the rest of the nervous system in cold-blooded animals than in other vertebrates?—N. Y. Post.

BOOK-BINDING

BRING YOUR BOOKS TO THE

Examiner Book-Bindery

AND HAVE THEM SUBSTANTIALLY BOUND.

—READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:—

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed.

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Strawberry Festival.

Remember the strawberry festival on the grounds of Mrs. Thos. Bradburn on Thursday evening, 9th inst. Admission, 10 cents. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. 32d3t

An Overly Anxious Maiden.

A young lady dressmaker had her finger badly burned yesterday from excessive use of a thimble in her efforts to have her new dress completed for next Sunday.

Music Hath Charms.

Last evening a large crowd was attracted in front of R. N. Reddy's C. P. R. Hotel on Simcoe street, where a son of the "Land o' Cakes" entertained the audience by giving a series of airs on the bagpipes.

The Work of a Firecracker.

Mr. E. G. Stone received a letter from Rochester yesterday, stating that his residence in that city had a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire on July 4th. The cause of the fire was firecrackers which were being used profusely by the American youths, in celebrating their great day.

The Markets.

New potatoes came up smiling on the market yesterday for the first time, and sold for 40 cents per gallon. There was very little produce for sale and consequently butter and eggs were quickly sold for 16 and 13 cents, whilst old potatoes were scarce at 35 cents per bag.

St. Andrew's Excursion.

Nine coaches drew out from the Grand Trunk station this morning at 7 o'clock, having on board three hundred excursionists, who threw aside their daily toil to accompany St. Andrew's Society to the "Bay City." The number was increased by another hundred from Auburn when the train reached the switch, and we understand that large numbers were expected to join the party at Keene, Hastings and other places along the line.

Attractions at the Lansdowne.

On to-morrow and Saturday evenings there will be at the Lansdowne roller rink, the Messrs. Westbrook and Hacker, the champion trick and acrobatic bicyclists of the world. They will give an exhibition in bicycle riding, in the evening, previous to going to the rink, beginning at the post-office corner. An extraordinary feature of the evening's performance will be the exhibition of unicycle riding. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. Admission 15 cents.

Aquatic Contest in Lakefield.

A sailing match has been arranged to take place on Saturday between Mr. Cartwright's yawl-rigged, deep-keel boat, "Cygnet," and Dr. Douglas' centre-board boat, "Minnie," for a cup. The course will be on Clear Lake, above Young's Point, from the pier near the foot of the lake round a buoy, moored near Sandy Point, and return. The boats are nearly of a size, though of different build and rig, and an interesting race should result. The start will take place at two o'clock p. m.

How the Driving Park Looks.

Mr. Henry Gordon, the efficient caretaker of the Driving Park, has recently mowed all long grass enclosed within the race track, an action which was much needed. There will, therefore, no longer be any necessity for facing the ball in a game of lacrosse, as the bounds now reach to the fences on the south and east sides. The park will be thrown open to all to-morrow evening, and parties wishing to see a good scratch match between the first and second dozens of the P.L.C., can do so and at the same time drive around on the course. The teams will be chosen at the meeting which will be held to-night at the Little Windsor.

The Brown Monument Movement.

The List of Subscriptions—Reasons of the Apparent Delay—The Research Rather—ed and Fresh Action Going Forward.

When the news of the death, at Batoche, of Capt. Edward T. Brown reached Peterborough on May 12th, a movement was set on foot by public spirited citizens of this town to recognize in a fitting and proper manner the bravery of an old Peterborough boy. At a meeting held it was decided to have the recognition take the form of a monument, and subscription lists were at once opened, and a considerable amount secured. But the rebellion still being in progress and the possibility of other Peterborough men being added to the death roll was thought of. It was, therefore, deemed advisable to hold the prosecution of the project in abeyance, pending the issue of the rebellion. That being now happily ended, the gentlemen having charge of the matter propose to have the body of the gallant captain exhumed and brought to Peterborough, when it is proposed to have them interred with suitable ceremonies. The solicitors of contributions have, as far as they have gone, met with a fairly liberal response. The following is a list of the subscribers and the amounts subscribed to date :—

Geo. A. Cox	$20 00
John E. Hammond	10 00
A. C. Dunlop	10 00
R. A. Morrow	10 00
Geo. Hilliard, M. P.	10 00
John Carnegie, M. P. P.	10 00
Jas. Stevenson	10 00
A. P. Ponsonby	5 00
C. W. Sawers	5 00
W. E. Sherwood	5 00
Robt. Dennistoun	5 00
Hon. Robt. Hamilton	5 00
D. W. Dumble	5 00
J. W. Flavelle	5 00
Dr. Geo. Burnham	5 00
W. H. Moore	5 00

The gentlemen charged with the work of securing subscriptions are Col. H. C Rogers, Treasurer, Capt. Edwards, Messrs. J. E. Hammond, and Chas. Stapleton. Messrs. Edwards and Hammond will begin the canvass of George street this afternoon. Col. Rogers will receive subscriptions at the Post-office. The above subscriptions are nearly all voluntary contributions, and when the matter is brought directly to the notice our citizens we are sure no difficulty will be experienced in securing a handsome sum for the commendable objects of the undertaking.

Prob'e Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Fresh south and west winds; fine, very warm weather, with showers and thunder storms.

Firemen's Excursion to Niagara.

Wait and watch for the Firemen's excursion to Niagara Falls on Civic Holiday, the date of which will be announced in a few days. The tickets will be only $2.25 and will be good for two days, which time will afford an excellent opportunity to parties wishing to see the great cataract.

Masonic.

At the election of officers of the Sovereign Grand Prior of Canada which met in Hamilton, Rev. V. Clementi was elected Grand Chaplain and E. H. D. Hall, Provincial Prior of the Kingston district.

St. John's S. S. Excursion.

The excursion to Norwood yesterday, under the management of the St. John's Church of England Sunday School, was a success financially, and particularly as to the object for which it was conducted—the pleasure and enjoyment of the children. The visitors affiliated with the Sunday School of the Rev. Mr. Gibson's parish, Norwood, who had made complete preparations for their reception. A delightful afternoon was spent, and the party returned home at the early hour of 6:43 p. m.

Beautiful Rustic Work.

Mr. F. Mason to-day exhibited a very curious design in rustic work, which, on being looked at from a distance resembles a large umbrella. It is not, however, to be devoted to such use, but was built for a croquet rack, and possesses sections to hold the mallets, balls and lawn hoops. The arrangement stands about seven feet in height and is ornamented at the top by a common root, which adds nicely to its appearance.

Destructive Carelessness.

Our correspondent in Lakefield, in a communication a short time ago, referred to the fire which occurred on Juniper Island, one of the prettiest in the back lakes. The fire was the result of carelessness of some camping party who had either not selected a proper spot to pitch their tent, or had not extinguished the fire on the completion of their visit. The preservation of such beautiful island property, is, or should be, of vital importance to the people of Peterborough; and parties seeking a few weeks' seclusion at such places, should not forever mar their beauty by such carelessness as that which caused the recent conflagration.

Matrimonial.

We have great pleasure in extending our congratulations to Mr. L. E. Horning, of the Collegiate Institute teaching staff, upon his assumption of Benediction bonds. He was married to Miss Nixon, of Brantford, on Tuesday last. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Horning started on their wedding tour, which will include Chicago and the principal cities and points of interest in the western states. We heartily wish them a pleasant and successful tour in the United States of America, may be to Mr. and Mrs. Horning a delightful forecast of an equally pleasant and successful journey through life in the united state of matrimony.

Lacrosse.

A meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will be held at the Little Windsor Hotel on Thursday evening, July 9th inst. and every member interested in the club is requested to be present, as business of importance is to be transacted. 32d-2t

Purchase of Cheese.

At the meeting of the Lindsay Cheese Board yesterday, Mr. B Green, of Peterborough, purchased for a Montreal firm, 578 boxes, amounting to about 50,000 pounds. The figure paid was 7 7-16 cents. Mr. J. W. Flavelle, of Lindsay, and Mr. W. H. Wrighton, of Peterborough, were among the buyers.

Excursionists.

Three hundred and fifty excursionists arrived in town on the 11.50 Grand Trunk train this morning. The greater number of the parties is from Uxbridge, as a considerable amount of interest has followed the baseball match, which was arranged in such a short time between the Uxbridge and Peterborough teams.

St. Luke's Excursion.

Over two hundred pleasure-seekers accompanied the excursion to Hastings this morning, on the regular train, which left the depot at 7.30 a m. The excursion, which is held in commemoration of the ninth anniversary of the establishment of the parish, derives additional interest from this fact, and no doubt a pleasant time will be spent to-day in the beautiful grove which ends the journey.

Teachers' Examinations.

The non-professional examinations of candidates for third and second class certificates began on Monday, and will continue daily (Sunday, of course, excepted), till next Wednesday. The examinations are conducted by Mr. James Stratton, assisted by Mr. John Campbell, M. A., Rev. F. H. Wallace, M. A., B. D., being the examiner in reading. The candidates are composed of 23 ladies and seven gentlemen. We learn that a more honorable and straightforward class of candidates could not be got together.

A. C. A. News.

Already the people are beginning to enquire about the meeting of the American Canoe Association this year, and the place located for the meet. Two years ago, the canoeists assembled at Stony Lake; everybody who attended that meeting, looks back with pleasure, to the enjoyable time which was spent during the two weeks' recreation on the beautiful waters of our back lakes. This year the Association will once more congregate at the Thousand Islands—the meeting having been held there last summer; and July 24th and August 8th are the opening and closing dates. General Oliver, of Albany, N. Y., will once more act as commodore for the party, which, according to the preparations, will be even larger than last summer's assemblage.

Col. Williams' Funeral.

We understand that the body of Colonel Williams is expected to arrive in Port Hope on Wednesday or Thursday next, and the funeral will take place soon after. A telegram has been sent to the Minister of Militia asking if the Midland Battalion cannot be got home in time to take part in the funeral, and a reply has been received from the Minister that he has telegraphed to the North-West to ascertain if this request can be complied with. Further particulars are daily expected, and the public will be made aware of what arrangements have been made, at as early a date as possible. Col. J. Z. Rogers, commanding the 57th Battalion of Peterborough, is in communication with the officers of the volunteer force of Port Hope, with a view of arrangeing for the attendance of his Battalion at the funeral.

—TO—

YOUNG MEN

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. Procrastination is the Devil's deception." Go to-morrow morning and pay for a Policy.

FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1885.

THEY GANG A' THEGITHER.

St. Andrew's Annual Excursion

Scots Foregather in the Bay City.

A Grand All-round Success.

Yesterday morning at the hour of 6.30 those of our late risers residing in the vicinity of George street were awakened from their slumbers by the sound of the bagpipes, played as only an old Highland soldier can play, and upon turning out it was learned that the sound came from the pipes of Mr. Donold McDonald, the piper of St. Andrew's Society, and reminded our citizens that it was the day set for the annual excursion of that society to the city of Belleville. At the hour of 7 a.m. Conductor Morris' musical voice was heard to sing out and the train, containing about 500 excursionists, pulled out of the Grand Trunk Railway station, bound for the "Bay City," at Auburn. Auburnham, Drummond's, Keene, Birdsalls, Hastings and Campbellford. The party was largely augmented, and by the time the train arrived at Belleville the number amounted to about 650. At Hastings a heavy rain set in and continued until the train neared Stirling, when old Sol showed up and brought the smiles to the faces of the excursionists, which had previously looked almost as blue as the badges supplied to the party by Mr. Chas. Cameron. About 12 o'clock the party and were met by Chief of Police McKinnon, president of St. Andrew's Society, of Belleville, who extended a most cordial welcome to his brither Scots, as well as to those of all other nationalities accompanying the excursion. Here the Society formed into procession, and, headed by the pipes, marched to the Ramblers' Wheel Park, which had been kindly set apart for their use. After attending to the wants of the inner man the following programme of sports was carried out under the watchful eyes of Messrs. D. D. Galbraith, Hugh McKinnon and George Queen. Although lack of competition prevented the carrying out of the original programme, the following games were successfully contested:—

"ALL ABOARD!"

ARRIVED IN BELLEVILLE,

BOYS' RACE (not over 10 years old).—1st, Lawrence Lockett; 2nd, John Queen.

GIRLS' RACE (not over 10 years).—1st, Jennie Bennett; 2nd Bertie Everett.

OLD MAN'S RACE (above 50 years).—1st, Geo. Queen.; 2nd, John Robertson.

MILK RACE.—1st, Archie Moore; 2nd, Ed. Rogers.

TREACLE BUN COMPETITION.—1st, Jimmy Underdown; 2nd, Jos. Maiden.

BICYCLE RACE (mile and a half).—1st, T. B. Cooper; 2nd, W. Northcote. Both gentlemen belonged to the Ramblers, of Belleville, and made a very pretty race.

BOYS' RACE.—1st, Wm. St. Charles; 2nd, Chas. Thompson.

MARRIED LADIES' RACE.—1st, Mrs. Thompson; 2nd, Mrs. Gray; 3rd, Mrs. Dunn.

THREE-LEGGED RACE.—1st, Ed. Rogers and A. Moore; 2nd, W. Northcote and W. Lingham.

BOYS' RACE (quarter mile).—1st John Hutchinson; 2nd, W. Dimney; 3rd, W. St. Charles.

A quoiting match also took place elsewhere between pitchers from Peterborough, Campbellford and Belleville, which resulted in a victory for Belleville and Campbellford.

of prizes, presented for the different events:—Fair, VanEvery & Co., a cricket ball; B. Shortly, express wagon; Connal & Co., a pair of vases; Metropolitan grocery, set fancy jugs; R. Neil, pair shoes; John Cameron, 1 lb. tea; Review Printing Company, Daily Review; A. Mercer & Co., umbrella; J. R. Stratton, DAILY EXAMINER; W. H. Robertson, Weekly Times and Agricultural Journal; Fairweather & Co., hat; James Alexander, silk handerchief; John Spence, ice pitcher; Chas. Cameron, tea pot; Thos. Menzies, album; D. Cameron, silk square; M. Millar, 1 doz. silver tea spoons; R. B. McKee, ½ doz. silver tea spoons; by the Society, silver jug, $8.00; silver jug, $5.00; G. B. Sproule, 1 doz. cabinet photos; W. A. Sanderson, paper weight; John Erskine, inlaid workbox.

During the time the sports were in progress those who desired to dance patronized the dancing pavillion, under the management of Prof. Moyse, and notwithstanding the heat, tripped the light fantastic to the excellent music of the Fire Brigade orchestra.

At the conclusion of the competition President McLeod, in a few well-worded remarks, presented the prizes to the various winners, after which he introduced Mr. Wm. Telford, the bard of the Society, who came forward and read his as follows:

ST. ANDREW'S PIC-NIC.

This morn' before the sun did peep
I jump'it up, yes, half asleep,
Some strange thoucht ower ma mind did creep,
Sayin' this is pic-nic marnin'.

Ma wife upon her elbow raised,
Her 'een ha'f open, how she gazed,
Sayin', "Auld scotch fales, gangs fairis crazed
On St. Andrew's pic-nic marnin'."

I reached the station, there to see,
Hundreds, just as big fules as me,
Roarin' an' lauchin' fu' of glee,
On oor Scotch pic-nic marn'in.

Something stood fuffin' like a cat,
Steam puffin' fra a muckle pat,
They said nae horse could match wi' that,
For speed on pic-nic marnin'

They telt me it lang wund had got,
By shovelin' coals into its throat,
It whis'led, banged off like a shot,
Wi' Scots on pic-nic mornin'.

At every station speed slacked doon,
To tak' on every Scottish loon,
And haul them safe at Belleville toon,
To haud their Scottish pic-nic.

Wi' baskets fu', men flocked like bees,
Mithe wives an' dauchters crouded their knees
Sweet in bakes some spreading trees,
To feast at oor lang pic nic.

Some says the Scotch live on oat-meal,
This day a different scene reveal,
Tarts, pound-cakes, pies, roast lamb and veal,
Scots mak's grand spreads at pic-nics.

Sharp appetites has done their share,
An' weel clad shiths are gitten bare,
When Duncan's voice aoar rends the air
Wi' programme o' the pic-nic.

Wi' Scottish pluck, the sports begin;
Some single to jump an' some to rin;
The egotism clears slick doon the pin,
The Scotch gallop at oor picnic.

List! hear that sound, Scots' dear la loe,
Loved by your auld forefathers, noo;
It's Tamid Maun the bagpipes fu',
To make this a Scotch picnic.

The fiddler starts an auld Scotch reel,
The youngsters loup an' tak it weel;
Some auld Scots their young impulse feel,
Shakes their feet at our picnic.

Guid wife, guid man sits doon an' cracks,
The young folks speak their silent walks,
Where burnin' love has vent in smacks,
The Sweetest scene at picnics.

This day let every mither's son,
Whate'er his rank here be as one,
Let nae self-pride disturb the fun
We wish for at oor picnic.

Is here a Scot that bears the name,
Stuck up wi' pride by wealth or fame,
He had far better stay't at hame
Than show it at our picnic.

Tho' far from Scotias' craigs an' carina,
O! dinna crush what boyhood learns,
Ance mair, be a' Jock Tamson's bairns,
A Scottish family picnic.

Some cses us clanish nic a blotch;
We on nae ither race encroach;
Canadians, English, Irish, Scotch,
Are welcome at oor picnic.

Nae wild discordant seeds we sow,
Nae warlike Scottish trumpet blow,
True love for kin an' country show,
The chief aim at our picnic.

We hope to meet wi' Belleville Scots
An' talk of auld familiar spots,
Tell whar we cam' frae, weet our throats
Wi' nait stuff at our picnic.

A friend just whispered in ma ear
A British Scottish bard lived here,
I dinna think it wrang to spier
If he be at oor picnic.

If he be here, man, cum awa'
Ge me a guid wag o' your paw
An' friendship's lovin' mantle draw
Ticht roond us at oor picnic.

Behold, the sun is wearin' low,
Pleasure an' mirth submissive bow;
Scots canna mak' time's wheel go slow,
Nor lengthen oot their picnic.

Aboun' the mirth, I hear a noise,
The train comes, birrin' up ma boys,
To throw a damper on your joys
An' take you frae your picnic.

Jump all aboard, conductors cry,
Upsprings the hungry an the dry,
To Belleville toon we bid guid bye,
And oor St. Andrew's pic-nic.

May all return, hopes unalloyed,
Bodies refreshed and spirits buoyed,
Sayin' this is the best day they enjoyed
At oor St. Andrew's pic-nic.

Tak' ma advice, gang a richt hame,
As straight an' sober as you came,
An' diana let us hear the name—
Gitten fu' at oor pic-nics.

WILLIAM TELFORD,
Smith.

At the conclusion of the reading of the poem Mr. McLeod returned thanks on behalf of St. Andrew's Society, to Chief McKinnon and the St. Andrew's Society of Belleville for the hospitality extended towards them. He especially thanked the Chief for the trouble he had taken in making every arrangement for the successful carrying out of their programme, and concluded by calling for three cheers for Mr. McKinnon, which, it is needless to say, were heartily given.

Mr. McKinnon, in responding, said that anything he had done to assist the St. Andrew's Society of what should be the city of Peterborough, in their excursion to Belleville, and he was well repaid by the pleasure it gave him in doing so. Owing to the rain in the morning the "Big 4" bicyclists, who should have arrived at 5 o'clock, would not get into the city until half an hour later, but he had made arrangements with the railway authorities to hold the train an hour later, in order that the excursionists might have an opportunity of witnessing, what it would no doubt prove to be a grand sight—a procession of one hundred and seventy-five wheels ridden by some of the most prominent wheelmen of the United States. It would be a sight which they might never have an opportunity of again seeing, and he instructed those present where to go in order that they might get a good view of the procession as it entered the city.

HAD BEEN FREELY DONE,

After a few remarks by Dr. Massie, of Keene, Mr. Chas. Cameron and the president, the gathering dispersed to take up positions for viewing what did indeed prove to be a very grand sight.

At a few minutes to six the whistle of the locomotive warned the visitors that it was time to leave for home, and after a general scramble for seats, the excursionists were on their way for home, where they arrived shortly after eleven, well pleased with St. Andrew's excursion of 1885.

NOTES.

The thanks of the committee and all accompanying the excursion are due to Conductor Morris for his obliging manner in bringing them safely to Belleville and return, he having fully kept up on this occasion the reputation he has gained of being one of the most obliging conductors on the line.

President McLeod, on behalf of the Society, presented their bard, Mr. Wm. Telford, with a beautiful pair of vases.

Some of our city fathers delighted the excursionists on the return trip by giving an exhibition of the Highland fling to the music of the bagpipes.

A prominent member of the Society, who had charge of the blue ribbon badges, was taken for a Scott Act advocate by the hotel keepers in the "BayCity."

Scott Act Work.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—The Scott Act Committees are to meet next Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of deciding as to the date on which voting should take place. Some time in September will probably be decided on. A vigorous canvass will be begun as soon as the date is fixed. The Scott Act men here do not feel discouraged by the defeat in Hastings, as it was one municipality there that was the cause of the defeat. A professional organizer will be employed here in all probability, and a number of first class speakers will be secured. The temperance party have reason to hope for a majority in every municipality outside the town, and think they will likely get a majority here also. The villages in our county are strongly prohibitionist. The result of the campaign in Victoria is looked forward to with considerable interest, and it is confidently expected that by next May the liquor traffic will be suppended in the whole district, from Muskoka to Lake Ontario.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 9.—General Middleton, Colonel [illegible] for the Mayor that he expects that the troops will reach East Selkirk on Monday. The Toronto, Midland and Ottawa men will go direct north to East Selkirk for home.

British Politics.

Earl Spencer's Administration Endorsed.

LONDON, July 9.—In the Commons this afternoon Lord Lorne, a moderate Conservative, gave notice of a motion approving of Earl Spencer's executive exercise of the Irish [illegible] and [illegible] Mr. Parnell's motion for inquiry into Earl Spencer's execution of the same law.

Lord Arthur William Hill (conservative), comptroller of the Queen's household, was re-elected to Parliament from County Down to-day by a majority of 461. This is an increase of 107 over the majority he received in the last general election.

Lindsay.

LINDSAY, July 9.—Como Courier, a French Canadian, while trolling in a canoe on Sturgeon Lake, Tuesday night, was drowned through the capsizing of his craft. Deceased, who was 24 years of age, was a blacksmith from Fenelon Falls. The body has been sent to his parents near Quebec.

Willow and Wicket.

The Peterborough Cricket Club has made arrangements to play a match with an eleven of the Ottawa Club, on July 21st. The team will go down to the capital on the night of the twentieth and be in the city ready for an all day match the following day.

Lawn Social.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the George street Methodist church had made extensive preparations for a lawn social last evening at the residence of Mr. T. Bradburn, but on account of the rain the large party which had gathered on the lawn were glad to avail themselves of the hospitable invitation of the hostess, to make the house their own, where a very pleasant evening was spent in music and social enjoyment.

The Hot Weather.

The intense heat of the weather yesterday was noticable in many instances. Every shaded spot that pedestrians encountered was taken advantage of, and hats and handkerchiefs were freely used as fans. The thermometer mounted to nearly 90 degrees during the afternoon and the character of the atmosphere seemed to make it over 100 degrees. So enervating was its effects that the moulders in Mr. Peter Hamilton's foundry were compelled to quit work.

Spontaneous Combustion.

During the heated term of the last few days a striking instance of the power of the sun's rays was afforded in front of Mr. Richard Stewart's, of Otonabee; two milk cans were placed on the wooden staging to be seen near every farm in a dairy district. The combined reflection of the sun's rays was focused so strongly on the boards of the staging as to set them on fire and they were discovered to be cheerfully blazing and the staging might have been wholly burned. The dairy maid who polished those cans did her work too well.

Courtesy Appreciated.

The following letter received by Mr. D. McNicoll, General Passenger Agent of the C. P. R., Montreal, is self-explanatory:—

D. McNicoll, Esq., G.P.A., C.P.R., Montreal:

DEAR SIR,—Meeting of Canadian Order of Foresters in Peterborough in June last: As per resolution, I beg to convey the thanks of the High Court of Foresters for the accommodation and arrangement for the comfort of delegates and representatives travelling over your road. Also to yourself for the concession in rates, &c. I also wish to say that the accommodation and courtesy of all officials on your road were highly satisfactory and pleasing to all.

I have the honor to be,
Yours truly,

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The cash capital of the Grand Lodge of Masons is $69,304.

They called the opposition of patriotic Canadians in Parliament to the Franchise Bill, "obstruction," yet the Liberals in the house succeeded in forcing, by argument, twenty amendments to the bill as originally presented.

Mr. Stephen, president of the C. P. R. Company, is in Ottawa and it is reported that he has demanded, of Sir John Macdonald, nine million dollars more of the people's money in consideration of the company giving up six million acres of land, which it does not own, that is, which it has not earned according to the conditions of the contract.

Sir John is right for once. He refuses to disallow the Manitoba exemption act. Hon. Mr. Mowat having given the Premier so severe a lesson on the unwisdom of interfering with Provincial legislature that he has become cautious. The Act is certainly a most vile one, for it permits debtors to defraud their creditors at will. Many Ontario manufacturers, of agricultural machinery especially, are being badly victimized. They have sold machines on three years' time, and if the debtor chooses, not a cent can be collected from him under the Act. The people have the remedy in their hands. If they chose to be ruled from Ottawa through Mr. Norquay they must accept the evil consequences such unjust legislation as the Act complained of will inflict upon the country.

Parliamentary Summary.

THURSDAY, JULY 9th.

In the Commons yesterday the debate on the vote of censure on the Government on its Northwest policy was continued by Mr. Cameron, of Huron. He contended that the claims of the whites and Halfbreeds had been neglected and that the Indians had been cheated and half starved by the Government agents, the large sums granted by Parliament for the maintenance of the Indians having been misappropriated. Mr. Mackintosh followed, accusing the Government, which retired seven years ago of having neglected the people of the North-West. Mr. Mills replied to the charges made by Sir John Macdonald and re-echoed by Mr. Macintosh. He dealt briefly with the general effect of the Government's North-West policy, showing how it retarded settlement and prevented the development of the country. He then took up the special case of the Prince Albert settlement, quoting documents to prove the delays and uncertainties suffered by the settlers in the all important questions of securing patents for their lands, declaring that he knew of no more inefficient administration than that of the public affairs in the North-West.

The Parliament Buildings.

Mr. Fraser, Commissioner of Public Works for Ontario, was in town yesterday, looking as if in fair health and capable of lots of good work. We would therefore take occasion to remind the honorable gentleman that the year is on the wane, and that he has not yet begun to break ground for the new Parliament buildings, nor has he even told the public where he is going to put them. If the Commissioner does not stir about, his government may not live to occupy the new structure. Perhaps William of London will take consolation out of this fact, and say he is in no hurry for office till the offices are ready.—Toronto World.

California's Orange Lands.

Four or five years ago the town of Los Angeles contained 10,000 or 12,000 people, and land within reach of water could be bought for $25 per acre. Los Angeles now contains 25,000 people, and when you ask a man what he would take for grape or orange land with water on it, he inquires whether you take him for an idiot. There is land near water which can be bought for $200 or $250 per acre; but land with oranges or olives or lemons planted and bearing is not for sale, except at some ridiculous price. In fact, in Los Angeles, and to some extent in Santa Barbara county, the thing has been overdone, and lands are held so high as to repel settlers.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

Norwood.

On Sunday morning, July 12th, the members of Loyal Orange Lodge No 24, will meet at their hall on Belmont St., and after forming in procession will march to the Presbyterian Church, where a sermon suitable for the occasion will be preached by the Rev. J. Carmichael.

The pic-nic grounds on Mr. Grover's property, east of Queen street, have recently been fitted up for the entertainment of pleasure seekers during the season. A number of public spirited gentlemen, foremost among whom was Mr. R. Wilson, took the matter in hand some time ago, and by the expenditure of considerable money and time have succeeded in greatly improving the natural beauty and attractiveness of the grounds. No charge is made for the use of this property, and people well qualified to judge, pronounce it equal to the finest pienic grounds in the province. Excursionists will find everything in "apple pie" order—swings, tables, cook houses and stoves, etc., all provided. Three excursions from Peterborough are billed for these grounds during July.—Register.

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A DAY'S SPORT.

Messrs. Potitt and Scrimgeour drove up to Buckhorn on Wednesday morning after breakfast, and returned in the evening having caught 80 fine bass with rod and line. Bobcaygeon and Omemee are nowhere.

ORANGE SERMON.

The Rev. De. St. Dalmas will preach a sermon to the Orangemen of the Lakefield Lodges on Sunday afternoon in the P. C. A. Hall; the Lodges will assemble in the Orange Hall at 2 p.m., and march in a body to the service at 3 p.m. They go to Millbrook on Monday to celebrate the day with the members of the order there.

CORRECTION.

Your evening contemporary of the 7th ult. contains an article in regard to the fire on (Gin Island) Juniper Island, Stony Lake. As the Foresters of Lakefield were the only parties on the island on Dominion Day the article in question would lead the reader to associate some of them with the cause of the fire, while the fact is the fire was noticed the day before, and some members of the order who went up that day, but did not camp on the island, tried to put it out with water and beating it with brush, but without success. The names of the parties camping on the different islands for the rest of the season will be taken, and in case of fires from camp fires they will be held responsible, so we trust the hint will be sufficient for all interested.

MEETINGS.

The village council meet next Monday evening, the 13th, and the School Board on Tuesday evening, the 14th, inst., in the council chamber. Matters of importance will come up before both bodies.

CAMPING.

A party composed of Messrs. Henderson and Clarin, with their families and several friends, left for Stony Lake this (Thursday) morning for a week's recreation.

VOLUNTEER COMFORTS.

In a letter received by your correspondent to-day from Mr. Wm. Scrimgeour, Color Sergt., Co. "E," Mid. Batt., dated at Frog Lake, N. W. T., he states he had received the parcel sent by some of the Lakefield people with the rest of the Midland stores and desires to express his gratitude for the many useful things contained in it, or as he says, "All my wants seem to be known or anticipated."

RECOVERING.

We are glad to be able to state that Mr. C. J. Burgiss is out of danger and may soon be expected out again.

A Spicy Parishioner.

A prominent member of a church not a thousand miles from this town was talking with his pastor the other day about an excellent but somewhat aggressive lady of the parish. After descanting at length on her virtues, he concluded by saying: "In fact, she may be called the salt of the earth." "Yes," responded the clergyman quickly, "and the pepper, too."

Big Farming in the West.

Sir John Lister Kaye is now ploughing with twenty-five teams and turning over forty acres a day. He intends to continue ploughing as long as the weather permits and the whole will be back set this autumn. They have already about 700 acres broken. Two thousand acres will be broken and back set this year. He breaks with hired teams at $3.75 an acre and he can get all he wants broken at this figure.—Regina, N. W. T., Herald.

The Papyrus.

A Gospel Older than that of St. Matthew to be Seen at Vienna.

VIENNA, June 26.—Prof. Karabacek has been good enough to show me the papyrus, which has lately been discovered among the El Fayum manuscripts, and which is alleged to be the fragment of a gospel older than those of St. Matthew and St. Mark. It is a very small fragment, measuring three and a half centimetres in length and four and one-third in width, and contains seven lines, having 105 words. Of these 96 can be plainly deciphered, but nine are indistinct. Some lines are mutilated at the beginning and end, and it is supposed that from 91 to 98 letters are missing. The number of deficient letters can be reckoned by comparing the lines three, four and seven with the others. The seventh contains but four letters.

The writing is in Greek, and Dr. G. Bickell of the university of Innisbruck, who discovered and deciphered the fragment, concludes, from the form of the letters and abbreviations, that it was written in the third century; but from the style of the composition he infers that it dates originally from the first century, and this is also the opinion of Dr. Edward Harnark, editor of the Theologische Literatur Zeitung of Leipsic.—London Times.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

One of the M. G. C. boys has been visiting a certain Jonesboro belle, and in making his usual weekly call last week it so happened that he fell in behind a darky who was pushing a wheelbarrow, and as they approached the fair one's house, the mother hearing the wheelbarrow, was all in a flutter, and repeatedly asked her daughter, within a few seconds, if "Mr. —— was bringing his trunk with him."—*Jonesboro (Ga.) WORK AND PLAY.

How the Colored People Enjoy Themselves Down South.

The negro delights in his cotton-field. To him, "Dar's nothin' like cotton, sah." Wife and children all "tote" to the field, and, after an extra hard day's labor, they invite their neighbor in to have a dance. An invitation came to me and from a small boy one evening "to tote ober to Brudder Sycamore's, case dey's gwine to hab a time." The boy had barely clothes enough on to cover his black skin, but he was an active, fine-looking little fellow, the grandson of Brudder Sycamore, who lived in a cabin two miles away."

"What do they do when they have a time?" I asked.

The boy grinned, showing teeth as white as cocoa-meat, as he gave the universal answer:

"Dunno."

"Are they going to dance?" I asked.

"Yes; Uncle Juniper he got a fiddle," was the reply.

"Is there any Uncle Water Oak or Spruce Pine in your family?" I inquired.

"Dar's Uncle Jured—dey calls him Water Oak," was the grinning reply.

"What other trees does your household represent?" I asked.

"Dunno," with a chuckle.

That evening, in company with a friend, I went to Brudder Sycamore's log cabin. The usual fires were burning, round which hovered coal-black imps, shouting and laughing, dancing first on one leg, and then on the other.

Inside the cabin chairs were brought in for the white party. The cabin had a yawning fireplace and a mud floor. Candles stuck in potatoes graced every corner and every spot where they could be made available. The company sat on boards ranged round the sides of the cabin while the fiddle was being tuned up. At last it seemed to me I had got into a prayer-meeting, everybody was so grave. Presently a deaconish-looking young man, with a big shock of hair, stood up and beckoned a girl on the opposite side, who came over with much embarrassment, shaking her shoulders like a child, and stood up to dance. Then the fiddle began with a wail of unspeakable despair, and presently another and then another couple joined in the dance. It was not till they were thoroughly warmed up that they began to beat the air and pound the mud floor. By degrees the enthusiasm of the dance displayed itself. One commenced to shout and sing, and another to use all kinds of ejaculations, till finally it looked like a scene from pandemonium. I tried to get at the words, which ran like this:

Joe, you darky, take your turn,
Oh, dar's a ringin' ob de bells!
Sue, dem pancakes is on de turn,
Oh, dar's a ringin' ob de bells!
De sky is clear an' de moon is bright,
An' de coon is a gwine fur to sleep to-night.

Meantime the children had extemporised a ball-room out of doors and hooted and screamed as they ran through the fire, danced over the flames, and shouted in ever-increasing hilarity. Presently I saw an old gray-beared man take a strong young girl by the shoulders and deliberately put her outside the door.

"What has she done?" I asked, for the black face was very sulky.

"Done break de rules ob de dance, I reckon," was the reply.

"What rules?"

"Laws, dar's hundreds of'em; Uncle Sycamore knows," was the answer.

When we went away the girl still sat angrily biting her fingers on the bench outside the door, and in her eyes was a dangerous light.

"What did you stop dancing for?" I asked her. She looked up, but answered never a word, and we went off, wondering if she had flirted with some other girl's sweetheart.—Florida Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Whole cities and villages in Algeria made of adobe sun-dried brick have melted away under the unceasing rain of the past winter. The French garrisons and the Arabs had to take to their tents, for their houses became masses of soft mud which fell to pieces. But the great desert of Sahara is reported to have bloomed into meadows and blossomed like the rose under the influence of the uncommon rains.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention. For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The Mountain's Brow.

So hard, so bitter seemed the world to me,
I longed but from its contact to be free.
"Where are the hermits," cried I in my grief;
"They know the only way to find relief.
Death would be sweet, but since Pride bids us stay
And grope on 'mid the shades, we must obey.
Yet will I leave the world behind and now
Spill my despair upon the mountain's brow."

Breaks 'neath my feet the brittle mountain sod;
Over my head the forest monarchs nod;
Keener my vision, as the thick woods past,
Gain I the sparse growths of the heights at last.
Then my heart leaps! Whence doth the world, and how,
Show us such beauty as from the mountain's brow!

I sit and gaze upon the world beneath—
Gray rocks, green woods and purple lengths of heath.
Steals there upon my fretted soul a calm,
The mountain winds blow blessed breathe of balm.

"Men are not bad," I cry. "I am the knave,
I, to my selfishness and greed a slave.
I will be better—sacredly I vow
I will be better—on the mountain's brow."

When thou art sad, when earth seems cold and drear,
Yield not to sorrow till thou standest here;
Here thou shalt find thy bitter grief assuaged,
Here wonder at the poor fight thou hast waged.
Here find thy soul so sweetly comforted
'Twill seem as thou wert rising from the dead.
As harborward turneth the weary prow,
Supporting blest—thus seek the mountain's brow.

—D. G. Carpenter, in Good Cheer.

A Remedy.

Our Master Frankie was in a brown study. He had been taken to the parlor to see his new aunt, the wife of his uncle, who was only recently married, and this was her first visit after the wedding tour. Master Frankie behaved with great propriety during the interview, but had gone away so grave and thoughtful that his mother was disturbed by such an unusual state of affairs.

"Why, Frankie, what are you thinking about?" said she. "Don't you like your new auntie?"

"Not much," replied the matter-of-fact youngster.

"And why not?"

"Because she is not pretty, like you, mamma."

"Oh, but, my dear, you ought not to dislike your aunt for that. I am sure she will be very good to you when you go to see her, and it is better to be good than pretty."

"Is it?" inquired the child, after a pause.

"Certainly, Frankie; for one may be pretty outside and ugly inside—one may have a pretty face and an ugly temper."

"Well, but," said Frankie, slowly, "is auntie pretty inside, do you think?"

"Of course she is dear."

"Then, mamma, why don't they turn her inside out?"—Toronto Globe.

Freaks of Watches.

Watches are queer things, says a writer in the Jewelers' Circular. They possess some unaccountable peculiarities. For instance, some time about the beginning of last summer, where there had been a succession of fine displays of the aurora borealis, it was estimated that in a single night in the city of New York the mainsprings of not less than 3,000 watches broke. This estimate is based on actual inquiries. Fine, sensitive watches are particularly liable to be affected by electrical atmospheric disturbances. During the month of June, July, and August, when these phenomena are most frequent, there are more mainsprings broken than during all remaining months of the year. They break in a variety of ways, sometimes snapping into as many as twenty-seven pieces. It is a fact that since the introduction of the electric light has become so general a large number of watches, some of them very fine ones, have become magnetized. While in this condition they are useless as timekeepers. This defect used to be incurable, and because of it thousands of watches have been thrown away after much money had been spent on them in vain attempts to persuade them to keep good time. Among the methods resorted to were washing the parts in garlic juice, refinishing, and passing them through the fire. But all these devices were entire failures, or only in part effective. I know of a man who had a fine and valuable movement which kept excellent time. He transferred it from a silver case to a second-hand gold one. Immediately it lost all its characteristics of steadiness and reliability, and in fact did not keep time at all. When replaced in the silver case it kept good time again. The owner, a jeweler, puzzled himself and experimented in vain to discover the cause of this strange partiality on the part of his watch for silver. At length he sent it to an expert. He discovered that the lifting spring of the gold case had been magnetized. On substituting another for it, the watch kept as good time in the gold case as in the silver case.

"Just Think of the Poor Mule."

Mark Twain tells this story of Mr. Bergh: A lady was talking with Mr. Bergh one day, and chanced to speak of a friend of hers who had lately been traveling out West. In crossing the frontier it became necessary that the father, mother and three children should cross a somewhat swollen ford. Their only beast of burden was a mule, so the father placed two children on its back, then plunged in and led the beast in with him. It swam obediently behind him, and all reached the other shore in safety. At the man's bidding the intelligent mule returned to where the mother and child were waiting to cross. The mother, fearing too heavy a burden on the already tired animal, put only the child upon its back, bade him hold fast, and, with a prayer, led the animal to the water's edge. They plunged in, swam bravely for a time, then were seen to struggle and go down.

"Oh, think, Mr. Bergh," said the excited and pitying lady; "just think what must have been the feelings of that mother as she saw her darling child lost in the depths of that black-est water!"

"True, oh, true," sighed Mr. Bergh; "but did you ever think my dear lady, what must have been the feelings of the mule?"—Hartford Courant.

For operating the mile-long electrical railroad on the Madeira Road, at Brighton, Eng., the machinery, which is situated at the eastern extremity of the line, consists of an eight-horse-power Otto engine and a Siemens "D" dynamo-electric machine. Two cars can be propelled at the rate of thirty miles an hour, but the speed is restricted to seven miles.

A prominent Presbyterian clergyman complains that the prevailing mania for what is French in art, science and literature is undermining the character of the American people. He says: "The Anglo-Saxon character inherited by Americans from English Ancestors is gradually giving way to a species of pseudo Gallicism which may become dangerous not only to morality, but to our political institutions and domestic life."

A pic-nic in connection with the Baptist church will take place on Wednesday, July 15th, in Crawford's grove. The Baptists generally have a very pleasant day at their annual pic-nic, and we have no doubt but that everything will be done by the committee to make this one exceed any of the former ones. Conveyances will leave the church on Murray street at one o'clock, and children and adults will be brought to the grounds for the sum of 10 and 20 cents, respectively.

Baseball Match.

Yesterday afternoon a baseball match of four innings was played on the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, between nines representing the Uxbridge club, and the Association of this town. The heavy rain which begun at 2.30 o'clock prevented the teams from taking the field at the time appointed; and it was three o'clock when the following teams took the field. Uxbridge :—Reed, Brazer, Weeks, Crosby, Vickers, Winfield, Richards, Cambie and Gladstone. Peterborough :—Graves, Carter, Salisbury, Hatton, Sabine, Lawford, Long, Logan and Kindred. It will be seen by the above list of names, that the team which represented this town was not as strong as it might be; and hence the small score of 4 runs which appeared to their credit when time was called by the umpire. The visitors played a nice game and piled up a score of 20 runs.

Peterborough's Prime Cheese.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held on Thursday afternoon in the Council Chamber. There were present Mr. Drummond, President, in the chair, and Mr. Warren Taylor, Secretary. All of the factories were represented and the cheese offered for sale was that of all June manufacture, with the exception of 496 which was of second half of June. The buyers present were C. E. Bartlett, Napanee; W. Cook, Belleville; J. W. Flavelle, Lindsay; W. H. Wrighton, Peterborough, and Mr. McBain, Montreal. The outside quotations presented to the Board were as follows :—Liverpool, 40s. 6d.; Little Falls, July 6th, 7 to 7¾c.; London, July 7th, 7½ to 8¼ cents, and Woodstock, July 8th, 7¼ to 8¼ cents. The whole amount of cheese offered for sale was purchased by Mr. J. W. Flavelle, Lindsay, for 7⅞ cents. Below is a list of the various factories and the number of boxes produced for sale by each :—

The Sentimental Chapter of Accidents.

Full Record of the Lightning's Fiendish Work—Strange Freaks of the Electric Fluid.

Dr. O'Shea, who was called on to attend the sufferers by the lightning's work in Ennismore yesterday, furnishes the following details. The site of the accident was the farm of Mr. Wm. Rivington, Ennismore, in the Costello settlement. The house, a log one, had been raised on posts and Mr. Davidson, of Peterboro, a cheesemaker and a brother-in-law of Mr. Rivington, was putting a cellar wall under it, and John Haggart, who lives with Mr. Rivington, was assisting. Mr. Paul Costello, who lives on an adjacent farm, had come to see Mr. R. and was also in the cellar waiting to see the latter on his return from the field, and was chatting with the men in the cellar. The thunderstorm suddenly came up about nine o'clock. There was a vivid flash of lightning, followed by a tremendous peal of thunder. The lightning struck the chimney of the house and as far as the junction with the roof. The electric fluid then passed down the chimney, struck the floor behind the kitchen stove, and making a large ragged hole, passed into a cedar sleeper. Here it seemed to divide in a singular manner, one stream striking Davidson and the other John Haggart, a young man aged 17 or 18, fracturing his skull and KILLING HIM INSTANTLY.

SCATTERED THE BRICKS LIKE CHAFF

Mr. Davidson was struck on the side of the head above the ear. The lightning singed hair and whiskers, then passed down his neck and across his chest, leaving a livid burn. It then passed downwards, and, as he was in a stooping position lifting a stone, it skipped diagonally across his abdomen and struck in his thigh, where another severe livid burn was made. The guernsey and pants were torn in shreds.

Another Haggart, a brother, was standing outside and was struck by the bricks from the wrecked chimney and received a slight scalp wound.

Paul Costello, who had been standing near the young man who was killed just before the flash, casually stepped a little distance away. He was, however, prostrated by the shock and had his head slightly cut on a stone as he fell. He, however, rallied in about 20 minutes, but Davidson did not recover consciousness till about 1 o'clock. The first exclamation of both was, "What happened?" Neither heard the thunder that followed the fatal thunderbolt's descent.

THE LIGHTNING'S FREAKS.

The course of the lightning was peculiar. When the bolt struck the sleeper it divided into several streams. One passed along it tearing out a deep ragged furrow, and returning upward passed through a trap door making not only a hole, but bursting the door open upward. It then struck the foot of Miss Rivington, who was sitting near the door. The sole of her boot was literally riddled into shreds and the sole of the foot was lacerated in a similar manner, the torn muscles protruding in ribbons. Strange to say Miss Rivington received no other shock or injury than that of the foot. The lightning stopped there. Neither the top of the foot nor the boot were disturbed. Another stream tore northward along the sleeper, and passing upward entered a pantry, and smashed the dishes and crockery into small pieces. After the storm the most diligent search could not trace the path of the thunderbolt beyond the persons struck and the pantry. As to the wounded persons, Mr. Costello will speedily recover. Mr. Davidson, who received a severer shock, will be confined some time longer, but he will also soon recover.

Division Court.

His Honor Judge Dennistoun is holding Division Court at the Court House to-day.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Fresh west and north west winds; slightly cooler weather.

Police Court.

When the Magistrate took his seat this morning at the Police Court, he cast a glance at the empty criminal charge and remarked, to the Chief of Police, that the hot weather must have taken all the iniquity out of the hammers of this broiling borough.

This is the Night.

The floor of the Lansdowne Roller Rink will be held to-night by the Messrs. Westbrook and Hacker, the champion trick and acrobatic bicyclists of the world. They will give an exhibition on George street, from the post-office corner, previous to going to the rink, where they will perform wonderful evolutions on the two-wheeled vehicle, and also on the unicle. The Fire Brigade Band will furnish music at the rink, and the admission is placed at the low figure of fifteen cents, skates ten cents.

Explanatory.

A local contemporary in the report of the baseball match yesterday, flippantly advised the Peterborough players (many of them cricketers) to stick to their own game. The fact is, the Association received the challange, and wishing to accommodate the Uxbridge players and extend them the courtesy due them as guests, accepted it. The cricketers played in the match to make up a nine. It being a rule of the Association that no person, except a member who has paid his fees, can play in any match, a good many of the best base ball players in town were debarred from taking part in the match.

Our Civic Holiday.

[illegible] Lacrosse Club held a meeting last night at the Little Wing, when it was decided to make the coming civic holiday a red letter day in lacrosse circles. Mr. H. LeBrun, President of the club, has been thinking for some time back of the probabilities of bringing the Old Shamrocks and another championship team to Peterborough, and it is only now, that the project has opened sufficiently for announcement. It is now definitely decided to have a match take place, for a valuable trophy, presented by Mr. H. Le Brun, between Peterborough [illegible] Shamrocks and the Ontarios of Toronto—the team which only a few weeks ago contested so gallantly for supremacy with the Shamrocks in that city. The players which will represent the Shamrocks will be all veterans, who, during the Canadian tour in Great Britain, played before Her Majesty, the Queen. It is also proposed to hold a tournament on the same day, for the "Ed. Brown Cup," which was presented to the club two years ago, and which will be given to the winning team. The secretary, Mr. G. H. Gibson, has been instructed to write and invite the following clubs to take part in the tournament :—Beaverton, Orillia, Richmond Hill, Brampton, Lindsay, Cobourg, Belleville, Kingston, and [illegible] neighbouring clubs. Messrs. Scott, and Rudkin were appointed a committee to arrange for procuring of prizes for the winners of the hundred yards, quarter mile, and half mile races, and also for the longest throw with the lacrosse. The above events will be open to members of the visiting teams. The separate school grounds have been procured, and in the event of it is proposed to hold a grand garden party in the beautiful grove, which will be brilliantly illuminated by electric lights and Chinese lanterns. The ladies of the town will be called upon in a few days to give a helping hand to the committee that evening, and it is probable that the fair sex will be only too happy to attend to the ice cream and refreshment tables. The band will be present at the sports in the afternoon, and also at the garden party, when the prizes will be presented to the victors in the afternoon events. A committee of the following members has been appointed to look after the decoration of the grounds, and meet on Monday evening next and report. Messrs. W. Delaney, R. Stevenson, W. J. Morrow, P. Corkery, H. Hall, T. Hickey, R. Sheehy, R. S. Kelly, R. Begley, M. Tierney, R. H. Fortye and C. Rutherford. The evening's proceedings will conclude with a grand torch-light procession from the grounds to the C. P. R. station, from whence the Shamrocks will embark for Montreal. The Club has taken time by the forelock and are going to make this project a success. The reason of holding the meeting at such an early date is to give foreign clubs a chance to make the necessary preparations for the tournament.

Cricket To-morrow.

The following are names of the players that will represent the free men in the match with the Benedicts to-morrow in Ashburnham :—Carter, Craven, Fortz, Hamilton Max., Hamilton, Miles; Hampshire, Lawford, Morris, Sabine, Smith, Stratton, and W. F. Hamilton, spare man.

Journalistic.

We are pleased to note that Mr. H. Gummer, whom many will remember with pleasure during the session of the High Court of Foresters here, has purchased the Guelph Daily Herald and the accompanying business. No doubt the Herald under its capable new proprietor will flourish and improve. We give our heartiest wishes for success.

SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1885.

The Town Council.

Verdict of the People to be Sought—The Ratepayers to Vote on two By-laws—The Ballot to be Superseded—An Open Vote to be Taken—Hydrants By-law and the By-law Respecting Town Offices.

The Council went into session on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

There were present, his Worship the Mayor in the chair, and Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Kendry, Menzies, Yelland and Hartley.

The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting were dispensed with.

The following

COMMUNICATIONS

were presented to the Council and dealt with as follows:—

From John Campbell asking for a railway pass to Kansas. The Clerk was authorized to telegraph to his son to purchase the ticket.

From John Burnham, asking that the Council supplement a private amount to open out Bolivar street. Street and Bridge Committee to report.

From Wm. Langford, with reference to sidewalk accomodation. Street and Bridge Committee to report.

From Messrs. Daly, Bros., applying for billiard license for remainder of the year—License Committee.

From J. McGrath and others, with reference to street improvement—Street and Bridge Committee.

From F. McAuliff, asking to be re-engaged on corporation work.—Received.

From W. A. Morrow and others, asking for street improvement.—Street and Bridge Committee.

From John A. Hartley, with reference to improvement on sidewalk on Harvey street.—Granted.

From John Carnegie and 185 others, with reference to Lansdowne roller rink prosecution now pending before the court.—Referred to the License Committee. The mayor was requested to ask the police magistrate to reserve judgement until the License Committee hand in their report.

The following accounts were referred to the finance committee:—Geo. Johnston, 75c.; Ormond & Walsh, $2.00; Adam Hall, $15.88; County of Peterborough, $25.28.

NEW FIRE HOSE.

Mr. Rutherford read the following report from the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

To the Mayor and Councillors of the Town of Peterborough:—

The Fire, Water and Light Committee beg to report that they have ordered 200 feet of Maltese Cross hose at the price of $1.10 net per foot, couplings included. We recommend that your committee have the power to procure proper couplings for what good hose we have on hand. All of which is respectfully submitted,

A. RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

Report adopted.

FIRE PROTECTION.

On motion of Mr. Rutherford the council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law to extend the water works, Councillor Davidson in the chair.

On the reading of the first clause of the by-law Mr. McNaughton thought that before entering into any contract with the Water Works Company the council should look into the matter with proper judgment, and make a good bargain, so that the ratepayers could have justice done them.

After the reading of the third clause the Mayor said that he had no doubt but that the Water Works Company would push on the work as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Rutherford objected to voting by ballot, as specified in the sixth clause.

Mr. McNaughton thought that voting by ballot was one of the grandest laws that ever was introduced in any country. A working man could vote by ballot without his employer knowing how he voted.

Mr. Hartley did not object to voting by ballot, but he thought that, living in a free country like Canada, men should come out and vote without fear or favor, irrespective of the opinions of any man.

Mr. Douglass did not care how the question was voted on as far as he was concerned, but he thought that the common law of the country should be carried out, and, therefore, would favor the ballot system.

Mr. Kelly thought that by taking an open vote on the matter the sum of $50 would be saved. The Council could pass the by-law without submitting it to a vote at all, but he was in favour of having the people's opinion on the by-law.

Mr. Menzies thought that the voting should be done by ballot, in justice to the people.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. McClelland, that an open vote be taken.

Mr. Menzies moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. McNaughton, that the voting be taken by ballot.

The amendment was put and lost. The seventh clause was changed, and the date, July 27th, inserted for the voting to take place. The eighth and last clause was then read and passed, and the committee rose.

TOWN OFFICES.

The by-law to provide funds ($6,000) for a new town hall, lock-up, etc., was read for the first time, and the council went into a committee of the whole on the second reading, Councillor Hartley in the chair.

Mr. Douglass asked why were not the two by-laws put to a vote on the same date.

Mr. McClelland explained that the by-laws were not of the same nature. One was a money by-law, and a great deal of confusion would be created in voting conjointly on both by-laws.

Mr. Davidson objected to the passing of of the first clause. He thought that the town should wait, and in ten years buildings could be erected in keeping with the growth of the place.

Mr. Rutherford said that the buildings were a disgrace to the town. He thought that the council chamber was not a fit place for men to meet. As for the lockup, they might be called upon shortly to account for the filthy state of that place, and cited the case in Kingston as an instance.

Mr. Cahill thought that a certain amount of debentures might be asked for which would place the Council in a better position.

Mr. Davidson did not agree with Mr. Cahill's ideas. The town was at present in as good a position as any town in Canada.

The Mayor agreed with Mr. Cahill in his remarks. He was just as anxious as any person to keep down taxes but he thought the town was in a position to have better offices.

Mr. Kelly said that the issuing of debentures was the proper way to build bridges and making other improvements. The present project was one which should be attended to at once; sewerage was just as necessary as the building of bridges and issuing debentures on such works would be a saving to the people.

Mr. Menzies said that the town buildings should be sold to the highest bidder, and he moved a motion to that effect, which was lost.

The Mayor said that the buildings at first cost $4,000. The amount proposed to be expanded was $6,000. The cost of the building being in all $10,000. The interest on that amount at 5 per cent. would be $500 a year and the rental paid for the Council Chamber was $650. The proposed remodelling would, therefore, save the town $150.

The committee rose and reported the second reading of the by-law.

JOINT VOTE AGREED UPON.

Moved by Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Douglas, that the by-law for the waterworks be amended, so as the voting take place on the same day as that for the town offices. Carried.

The Council went back into committee of the whole, and the date changed to the 10th day of August.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

Moved by Mr. Hartley, seconded by Mr. McClelland, that the Council grant the sum of $300 to the Central Exhibition.

A point of order was raised when the motion was carried on the following division:—

YEAS—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green and McClelland—6.

NAYS—Messrs. Hartley, Douglas, Rutherford and Menzies—4.

ADVERTISING THE BY-LAW.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the by-law for the purpose of entering into a contract with the Water Works Company be published once in each of the weekly papers in town.—Carried.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Moved by Mr. Kendry, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that a sidewalk be laid on the street running to the cemetery in the north ward.—Street and Bridge Committee to report.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Douglass, that the Street Inspector be authorized to at once have Elm and Cedar streets water-tabled and the large stones taken off and a sidewalk laid from the railway to Mr. Derry's house.—Street and Bridge Committee to report.

Mr. Burgess was then heard and said that he wanted some assistance, and on motion of Mr. Cahill the case was referred to the Charity Committee with power to act.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Kelly,—That a by-law for the exemption of certain industries be referred to the Finance Committee.—Carried.

The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the Mayor.

Personal.

Mr. J. B. Trayes, of Port Hope, at the 28th annual meeting of the Grand Chapter of Canada, Royal Arch Masons, was elected Superintendant for the Ontario district.

Police Court.

There was another blank this morning at the justice mill. As the council has requested the matter to be held in abeyance, Ed. Brown was not called upon to make his bow before the magistrate.

Rapidly Recovering.

Mr. Andrew Davidson, the gentleman injured by lightning in Ennismore on Thursday, though severely burned, is so far recovered that he made his way to Dr. O'Shea's office on Saturday on his way home to his farm in Otonabee. He will recover soon.

The Market.

The square to-day was not by any means crowded. Prices were very fair for the various commodities. Butter sold at from 14 to 17 cents. Eggs were worth a cent each. Potatoes from 30 to 40 cents per bag. Turkeys were plentiful and sold at $1.00. Chickens 50 to 60 cents per pair; and a load of hay could not be coaxed off the market unless $13 per ton was paid for it.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

The Volunteers.

Proposed Retrospect to the Militant Forces—Compensation for Widows and Orphans—A Year's Pay and a Per Diem Allowance to be Granted.

(Globe's Ottawa Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, July 10.—On Wednesday an Order in Council was passed, approving certain regulations made by the Militia Department with respect to gratuities and pensions to be paid to the widows and orphans of the officers and men of the active militia who have been killed, and to those wounded in active service after 20th March, 1885, or to the representatives of those who have died from injuries contracted in actual service. The allowances are much the same as those granted after the Fenian raid in 1866, and are based, so far as practicable, on the Imperial army regulations, excepting that in allowances to be made to the widows and families of deceased officers and men, a higher rate is to be granted to the families of those killed in action than to those of the men who died from wounds or illness. Any officer who has lost a limb, an eye, or the use of a limb, is to receive a full year's pay as a gratuity, and after one year may receive pension according to the following rates:—Lieut.-Col., $1,200 a year; major, $800; captain, $600; lieut., $280. All claims for pensions must be applied for within five years. Sergeants who have been disabled so as to be incapable of earning a livelihood, and who require the care of another person are to receive from 75c. to $1.10 per day; if the care of another person is not needed then from 60c. to 90c. per day; if able to contribute in some degree to their maintenance from 45c. to 60c., and if able to contribute materially towards their maintenance from 30c. to 45c. Corporals disabled so as to require care will receive from 60c. to 90c., as proportionate allowances according to the nature of their injuries. Privates will be entitled to 45 cents a day and under, according to the extent of their injuries. The widows of officers or men killed in action are to receive a pension equal to one half of the daily pay of their husbands, and in addition for the first year a gratuity equal to one year's pay. Children of officers and men killed will be granted comparative allowances equal to one-tenth of the pay of the deceased parents and a gratuity of four month's pay. Smaller allowances are made to widows and children of officers and soldiers who have died from illness or wounds. No pensions shall be granted if the applicants are left in wealthy circumstances or are already in receipt of pensions or allowances from the public. Widows' pensions are to cease when they re-marry, but may be restored in the event of their becoming widowed a second time. Provision is also made for mothers and sisters who have been depending on sons and brothers killed who have died while on active service.

RAIN.

"Darker—still darker! the whirlwinds bear
The dust of the earth to the middle air;
And hark to the crashing, long and loud,
Of the chariot of God in the thunder cloud!
You may trace its path by the flashes that start
From the rapid wheels where'er they dart,
As the fire-bolts leap to the world below,
And flood the skies with a lurid glow.

"What roar is that!—'tis the rain that breaks
In torrents away from the airy lakes."

That will do! Penned up with the downpour of this a.m. (Thursday), and no items, I have got sentimental, like your Keene correspondent, so give you the result, for with the storm Bryant's beautiful lines above quoted will occur, and days "lang syne" banish all thoughts except to listen to the storm and rack my brains how I am to furnish the "Daily" with a budget of news when none are to be had; but to make a change I will give you

A FISH STORY.

In my last items I mentioned the success Messrs. Pettit and Scrimgeour had at Buckhorn on Wednesday. I can now "go one better," as Messrs. James Moore and L. Steele, who were up to Burleigh on the same day, returned with no less than 157 bass, the result of the day's rod fishing, besides the time occupied in driving up and home, twelve miles each way. Bobcaygeon and Omemee will be deserted if their sports get an inkling of the spot to be obtained north of Lakefield; but all will be welcome and their catches reported.

OUR SEWER.

Messrs. Watson & Rowe, the contractors for the Queen-street sewer, are making good progress, and Thursday's storm proved a test for the work so far as completed, as they were enabled to resume work as soon as the storm was over, the pipes carrying off the surface water at once.

STRAWBERRY SOCIAL.

A strawberry social was held at the residence of Mrs. T. Gordon on Friday evening, in aid of the Baptist Church. A very pleasant evening was spent by the large party assembled. The receipts were large and all were pleased with the genialty of the host and hostess.

YOUNG MEN'S REFORM CLUB.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—Your remarks in yesterday's EXAMINER, concerning the proposed convention of young Liberals, to be held in Toronto in September, has suggested to my mind the advisability of forming a Young Men's Reform Club in our own town. The very valuable assistance rendered to the Reform party of our Province by the Young Men's Reform Clubs has called forth the highest commendations from the leaders of our party, and it is with the view of having our young men more effectively co-operate with the young Liberals of the Province, that I suggest the forming of a club here.

Yours sincerely,
YOUNG LIBERAL.

Peterborough, July 10th, 1885.

We are entirely in sympathy with the movement suggested by our correspondent, and we trust that immediate steps will be taken to organize, in Peterborough, a club of the nature proposed. Such organizations have done excellent work in other places. It is a good thing to enlist young men with vigorous energies in the work of leading a hand to the promotion of the principles of Liberalism and good government. The broad and liberal Franchise bill carried last session by Hon. Mr. Mowat has placed all the young men in the Province in such a position that they can take an actual as well as a moral interest in political contests. Their services are needed especially at the present era in our political history, when the tactics of the opponents of liberal principles, as applied in the government of the country, are solely directed towards the aggrandisement of their party and the promotion of the personal fortunes of the political camp-followers, that clamour in their wake for the spirits. Older men can direct the contest on the people's behalf, or give counsel, but young, vigorous and active men are needed for work. There is abundant material in Peterborough for the formation of a strong Young Men's Reform Club, and we trust that action will at once be taken to make the necessary arrangements for organization. Judging from the experience of the past we cannot know how soon an election contest may be sprung upon us. Sir John seems to be preparing to anticipate the conititutional time as he did at the last general election. His Franchise Bill was evidently introduced as preparatory to a general election, with the idea, doubtless, that it would make his election sure. Thanks, however, to the noble fight of the Opposition the effectiveness of the machine has been considerably reduced. Still, enough has been retained to give Sir John the hope that by its means he may secure another lease of power. Therefore, it behooves the friends of good government to be on the alert. The young Reformers of the Peterboroughs should adopt the motto—'In time of peace prepare for war." And this preparation can be effected, we believe, in no better manner, as far as they are concerned, than by the formation of a vigorous Young Men's Reform Club.

Come Around Next Year.

Two boys met in New street, says the Wall Street Daily News.

Said one: "I have 1 cent, and if I had 4 more I could buy an elegant cigar."

Said the other: "I have 4 more. Here they are. Buy the cigar and we'll have a good smoke."

The money was pooled, and the first speaker bought the cigar, and, lighting it, whiffed away with great enjoyment until about half of the weed had been reduced to smoke and ashes.

"Hold on," said the second. "I put in 4 cents and you only 1. You have smoked half of the cigar. That ain't fair. Give me the rest!"

"Not much," responded No. 1, puffing away vigorously. "This is a stock company. I am the president and you are only a stockholder. According to Gould and his judges stockholders have no rights except to vote at the annual meetings. Come around next year at this time and if there is any of the cigar left you can vote me out and smoke it. Ta! ta!"

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will farther their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

The Olive Branch Should Be in the Hand of Every Christian.

The Insufficiency of Earthly Things—The Sufficiency of Religion.

Independence of Providence the Wrong Kind of Self-Reliance.

A Refuge for all the Weary, the Bereaved and the Guilty.

Text: Neh. viii., 15—"Go forth into the mount and fetch olive branches and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches and branches of thick trees to make booths."

The Mount of Olives seems unmoored. The tree-branches are being cut off and shouldered and carried on down in great procession to the City of Jerusalem. These tree-branches are bent and twisted into arbors or booths and set on the house tops and along the streets. Foliated booths everywhere, and the people coming out from their homes to live in them for seven days! Why do the people come from their comfortable houses to this temporary booth? It is a great festival. It is the Feast of the Tabernacles. The people celebrate the deliverance of their fathers from desert travel where they lived in tents; and it is also typical of our march to heaven—pilgrims in a temporary booth on the way to Canaan. So that I say, in a figurative sense,' what was said to the Jews in a literal sense—"Go forth into the mount and fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches, and branches of thick trees to make booths.'

The olive branch, you know, is always used as a sign of peace. The olive tree grows in warm climates to the height of about twenty-five feet, has an upright stem and many out-shooting branches which can easily be stripped off. If a twig of this tree, in time of war, is handed from one General to another, it means the unsaddling of cavalry horses and hanging up of the war knapsacks.

AFTER HOSTILITIES HAVE CEASED

these branches are placed over doorways, and they are built into triumphal arches, and they are waved in processions. They spell out in verdurous letters that heaven-born word of "Peace!" Now, my friends, in this Gospel arbor which God sends us to build, we must have two of these olive branches. Peace with God! I do not mean to intimate by that that God is a bloody chieftain and has a grudge against us; but I want to intimate that there is no more affinity between a hare and a hound, between a hawk and a pullet, between an elephant and the swine, than there is between holiness and sin; and since God is all holiness and we, by nature are, all sin, there must be some re-adjustment, some appeasement, some re-construction, some treaty, some stretching forth of olive-branches. The fact is that the race has begun a lawsuit against the Maker and that lawsuit is now on the calendar. It is the human versus the Divine. It is iniquity versus the Immaculate. It is weakness versus omnipotence. God did not begin war against us; we began war against him; and it is high time that this farce of finite struggling against the Infinite were ended. We are tired of the war. We want to back out. But how shall we get a cessation of this contest? By going up into the mount of God and plucking olive branches. What mount? Calvary. Modern travellers say it is only an insignificant hill; but I persist in calling it a mount, because through the grandeur of its meaning, it overstepe the very highest of all earthly elevations. The Alps and the Himalayas are less than ant hills compared with it. In the very excavation on Calvary, where the cross was once set afterwards the olive was planted and is green and thrifty and foliaged to-day, and I strip it off and wave it, crying: "Peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Oh, if there is any joyful thought enough to overthrow one's equilibrium, that is the thought. It may be a matter of very little importance what Queen Victoria or Emperor William thinks of anyone; but to be brought into close and intimate and hearty and glowing relations with the God of the round universe—that makes a hallelujah seem stupid. If we had continued this fight against God for ten thousand years we could not have captured so much as a sword or taken so much as a cavalry stirrup, or wrenched off so much as a chariot wheel of his impotence; but God and all heaven's artillery come over on our side at the first swing of the olive branch. Peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, and there is no peace in any other way.

But amnity with God is not enough. We must have two olive branches. Peace with each other. Oh, it is easy enough to get up a quarrel. There are all around us.

GUNPOWDER CHRISTIANS, and the smallest match of provocation will set them off. It is easy to get up a quarrel in Church or State; but it never pays. When two Christians contend with each other, they always both get whipped. Satan slightly smiles when he gets two worldlings agog with each other; but when he induces a fight between two Christians—when he gets two men who profess to love God, and gets them at loggerheads—then he laughs so loud that all Inferno joins in the cachinnation. Better have your horns sawed off. Better apologise. Better submit to some kind of humiliation. "No," you say, "if this matter is ever settled he will have to take the first step." You are a pretty Christian, you are! I wonder how long it would have been before our world was saved if Jesus had not taken the first step? We the offending party, yet Christ taking the first step. Do not, therefore, take a knotty and twisted scourge and go after your enemy; but go up into the mount where the Radiant One suffered for his enemies, and twist off an olive branch, and, without stripping away any of the soft, tender, cool, beautiful leaves, put on your enemy that Gospel switch. It will not hurt him, and it will save you. Oh! for a million olive branches from the mount of God, that we might build them into an arbor for our souls. Go up into the mount and pluck olive branches, and make booths.

My text in the next place suggests that in this arbor for our souls on the way toward glory we ought to have a good many pine branches. Now pine, you know, is healthful, aromatic and and an evergreen. It has often been the case that invalids have been sent into the regions where the pine grows, and they come back thoroughly well. It is a frequent prescription on the part of physicians to say: "Go for a few weeks amid the pines and you will be better." Now, we want in this gospel arbor pine branches. We want something that means health, aroma and evergreen. This is a very healthy religion. I have known an old Christian, with no capital of physical health, and carrying about him all the respectable diseases one can carry, and yet kept alive by nothing at all but his religion. He did not eat enough, to sustain a child. He lived on a beverage of hosannas. He lived high, because every day he dined with the King. I could not understand his exhilaration until I found out that he lived in an arbor of pine branches. Oh, it is a healthy religion. It is healthy for the head. It is healthy for the heart. It is healthy for the lungs. It is healthy for the liver. It is healthy for the whole man. I mean if we get enough of it. Now, there are some people who only get just enough religion to make them sick or to bother them; but I mean full inhalation—a full draught from the breath of the pine branches in God's mount. That is living, bounding, exuberant, undying, immortal health.

But this gospel is evergreen. I remark still further, what does the pine forest care for the snow on its brow? It merely considers it a crown of glory. You cannot freeze out a pine forest, and this grace of God is just as good in the winter of trouble as it is in the summer of prosperity. It is the religion you want—not dependent upon weather or upon change. There are some of you who feel that you have had more than your share of trouble. All the troubles seemed to come together in your life, and you may be as badly off as Muckelbacket, the fisherman who was chided for mending his boat on the same day that his boy was buried. They said:—"It is indecent for you to be working at your boat when your child was just buried this afternoon." And he looked up in the man's face and said: "What am I to do? Shall I allow the five to starve because one of them is drowned? It is well enough for you gentles, who can sit in your houses with your handerchiefs at your eyes, to talk that way when you have grief; but the like of us maun to our work though our hearts beat like this hammer." Oh, yes! your bereavements and your poverties and your distresses may all have come at once. But I want to tell you of a gospel that is full of life, full of comfort, full of peace. You have tried everything else. You have tried the world. You have tried human sympathy. Come now and

TRY THE HOLY GOSPEL.

You cannot be consoled in that way. You want something mightier than the world's gains to appease your sorrow. Come and get this consolation. A young prince refused to play with any but kings and I wish you would this day throw aside all other solaces and try this regal satisfaction. Come, my friends and neighbors, and try a religion which is as good in the winter of trouble as it is in the summer of prosperity. It is glorious and evergreen. Go into the mount of God and fetch fine branches and make booths.

"The hill of Zion yields
A thousand sacred sweets,
Before we reach the heavenly fields
Or walk the golden streets."

My text suggests still further, that this arbor of Christian grace ought to have in it a good many palm branches. You know it is a favorite tree at the East. The ancients used to make it into 360 uses; the fruit is conserved; the sap becomes a beverage; the stones are ground up as food for camels; the base of the leaves is twisted into rope; baskets and mats are made out of it, and from the root to the tip top of the palm it is all usefulness. It grows 85 feet in height; is columnar, its fringed leaves sometimes four or five yards long, and the ancients used to carry it in processions as a symbol of victory. Oh for more palm in our Gospel arbor! Usefulness and victory. Head, heart, tongue, pen, money, social position—all employed for God. Counsel is often given on worldly matters about investments—that you must not put all the eggs in one basket; but in this matter of religion I wish that we might give all to God and get in ourselves.

"Oh," says some man, "my business is to sell silks and calicoes." Then, sell silks and calicoes for the glory of God. Anything that a man cannot do for the glory of God he has no right to do. The vast majority of professed Christians in this day do not amount to anything. You have to shove them off the the track before the chariot of God's grace can advance. What we want in the Church now is not weeping willows, sighing and weeping by the water courses, admiring their long fringes in the glass of the stream; not hickories full of knots; not wild cheery dropping bitter fruits; but palm trees adapted to 360 purposes, root, trunk, branch, leaf, producing something for God and men and angels. Oh, I am sick and tired of this weak, sentimental, satin-slippered, fussy, hoity-toity religion. It amounts to nothing in thisworld, and will amount to nothing in the world to come. Five hundred men and women in Brooklyn knowing nothing but Christ and the value of the soul can capture this city for God in three years. Ten thousand men and women at the full standard of Christian zeal could take the whole earth for Christ in ten years. My brother, when are you going to work and when am I going to work? Ledyard, the great traveller, had set before him by a geographical society a very important work of exploration in Africa and after they had shown him what they wanted him to do, the learned men looked up in his face and said: "Well, when will you start on this expedition?" He replied: "To-morrow morning." And when I ask you what are you going to do for God and

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Christ and you tell me that you want to serve Him with earnestness and consecration, I ask you when are you going to start, I want you within your soul to say: "To-day—this moment—now!" Go up into the mount and fetch palm branches to build booths.

But we want palm branches, still further, for victory. But nature we are serfs. The devil stole us. He keeps his eye on us. He is afraid all the time that we will get away. He has been watching us a great while and keeping us

UNDER CONSTANT SUPERVISION.

But one day word comes from our Heavenly Father saying that if we would like to break away from our taskmaster He will help us. Some day we rouse up and look at our black tyrant in the way and we fly on him, and we wrestle him down, and we put our heel on his neck and and grind him into the dust, and then we leap on him with both feet, crying: "Victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!" Do not men want palm branches to celebrate that victory? Oh, what a grand thing it is to get sin under foot and a wasted life behind our back! Blessed is the man whose transgression is forgiven and whose sin is covered.

"But how about the future?" you say. Oh, you dear souls, do not bother about that. Saint Paul says that you are to be more than conquerors. Did St. Paul write that merely for the purpose of saying something poetic and high sounding? No. It means that there is nothing between here and heaven that by the grace of God we cannot beat. "How about sickness?" you say; more than conquerors. "How about slanderous abuse?" more than conquerors. "How about poverty?" more than conquerors. "How about death itself?" more than conquerors. "Well," you say, "that seems to take all troubles away." Why, that is what I came here for in Christ's name. I want to gather your troubles in a great pile and set them on fire and ask gales from heaven to blow even the ashes away. What is the use of you fretting and stewing about the present and about the future when God has promised to take all your affairs in His hands and manage them for the very best. Do you think he can do it, or are you so self-conceited that you think it will be better if you take care of your own matters? Do you want to drive and insist upon God taking a back seat? "No," you say, "I want the Lord to be my leader and guide." Then you are going to be more than conquerors. Your last sickness will come and the consulting physicians in the next room will be talking about what they had better do for you. What difference will it make to you what they do? You are going to be well, anyhow, everlastingly well. After the breath has gone from the body your friends in the next room will be consulting as to where they had better bury you. What difference will it make to you where they bury you, for the Lord of the resurrection would as lief pick you out of the dust in one place as in another, and all the cemeteries are in God's acre. I remember in the old country meeting-house my father sometimes led the singing, and he would take his tuning-fork from his pocket and strike the fork upon his knee, and then put the tuning fork to his ear and catch the pitch, and then start the song. Oh, that the sons and daughters of God were now catching the pitch of the eternal song of victory before the throne. You ought to be getting ready and now come to the rehearsal. "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

"City of Eternity, to thy bridal halls of gladness
From this prison would I flee,
Heir of glory that shall be for thee and me."

One step further, my text demands that in the making of this Gospel arbor we shall get branches of thick trees. You know that a booth or arbor is of little worth unless there be stout poles at the corners, or the wind will upset the booth; and you will be worse off than without shelter unless you have STRONG BRANCHES OF THICK TREES.

And I want to tell you that a gospel that is all mellowness and sweetness will have no strength to withstand the blast of temptation and trial and trouble. We want a brawny Christianity, we want a gospel with warnings as well as with invitations. While olive branches are good in their places, and the palm branches, and the myrtle branches, we want the stout branches of thick trees. The tempest of temptation will come down after while, the hurricane of death will blow, the everlasting storm will come up bellowing from the lost world, and alas, for that man who has not had his soul sheltered under the stout branches of the thick trees. So that while we preach the invitations of the gospel, and the love of the gospel, we must tell men that unless they repent, and unless they turn, they must die. I like what Mr. Finney said in the school-room in a village in New York state which they nick-named Sodom, because of its wickedness, and there was only one good man in the village and they called him Lot. When Mr. Finney preached in the school-house he took his text from the destruction of Sodom, and told the people to get up out of that place, as the Lord would rain fire and brimstone upon them unless they repented, and they ground their teeth and clenched their fists while he was speaking; but after a while they melted and they fell on their faces and cried for mercy while mercy was to be had. We want just such a gospel as that—a gospel full of love and alarm, and while we present the rewards we must also present the retributions; and while we have olive and palm and myrtle branches we must have stout branches of thick trees.

But what am I to do with my text? When I announced it you knew not what I was going to make out of it. Now you see. There is enough in it for a lifetime of preaching, but I will skip the rest. We find in it enough of the olive branch of peace, and the pine branch of evergreens, and the myrtle branch of beauty, and the palm branch of victory, and the stout branch of the thick trees to make an arbor for all the people. Oh, come into the booth. The air is aromatic with heaven. The branches distil the blossom of life. The leaves rustle with the gladness of God. Come into the booth, the Gospel booth. I went out with an old hunter before daybreak, and we got on the mountains before the sun arose, and we set our trap to catch pigeons or doves, and then we retired into a booth, for it was very chilly and we must be hidden; and I remember the tapestry of the leaves of that booth was richer than the tapestry of a king's bedchamber. Seated there in the booth we looked out and watched for the game, the pigeons or doves; and after awhile there was a flock in the sky, and they dropped into the net or trap and our excursion was successful. Now we are on the mountain. It is daybreak. We sit in this gospel booth and look, watching, waiting for the coming of a great flock of souls. And see! they hover, they are coming "as clouds, and as doves to their windows."

"May I come in!" says a guilty soul; "I have been through everything and I am so tired of doing wrong." Yes; rest for the sin-struck. "May I come in?" says a bereft soul. "I have buried everything that I love." Yes; rest for the widowhood and orphanage, and childlessness and desolation. "May I come in?" says a poor man. "It is so hard to get a livelihood. I am almost frenzied with want. May I come in?" Yes; rest for the destitute. Then I hear a great clamor of voices and I cannot distinguish very well who they are, and so I answer them together, crying: "Rest for all—for weeping eyes and broken hearts and dying souls. Calm, sweet, fragrant, over-branching, arborescent rest. O, come into the booth!"

Protecting Dogs and Cats.

The great vivisectionist, Dr. Claude Bernard was married to a young woman who was extremely fond of dogs and cats. As may easily be imagined, the doctor and his wife did not agree. Driven to the wall, the poor doctor was obliged to choose between the wife and science. He chose the latter, and a separation from his wife followed. Thenceforward Mme. Bernard gathered together all the homeless and friendless dogs and cats that she could find. A singular idea moved the wife of the illustrious apostle of vivisection in this peculiarity. She wished to protect as many dogs and cats as her husband killed, so that when she would meet him in the other world she could display the superiority of her work. After the death of her husband Mme. Bernard continued her labor of love. She retired to Bois-Colombes, and sheltered in her house all the vagrant dogs and cats of the neighborhood. The neighbors were highly amused at first, but finally they began to think the thing was a nuisance. They complained to the Mayor, who ordered the lady to close her establishment. This she refused to do. Then she was brought into a police court and fined five francs for a violation of a town ordinance. She appealed to a higher court, but the judgment of the court below was confirmed, and all her dogs and cats were turned out upon the cold and cruel world.

—READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:—

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed.

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

Song Service.

An attractive Song Service, lasting three quarters of an hour, is held on Sunday evenings at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. It is open to all.

Murray Street Baptist Church.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will preach at 11 a. m., and 7 p. m. The subject in the morning will be "Worship," in the evening "Hoseklah and the Monuments."

Enterprising.

We notice that another new addition has been made to the business places of Ashburnham. Mr. A. Mercer has opened out a shop in that village, opposite Mr. C. Young's for the repairing of boots and shoes.

Prob's Weather Premises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Light variable winds; fine weather; not much change in temperature.

Weeds.

Now is the time to cut thistles, burrs and other noxious weeds to prevent their seeding and spreading. We see that the G. T. R. authorities are having them cut along their line and would suggest to the town the propriety of following their example by having them out on the streets.

Our New Story.

On Tuesday next we shall begin the publication of a charming serial story, "Called Back,"—by Hugh Conway. This story, which is a most absorbing one, will be continued daily until completed. All interested in fiction should procure the opening chapters and follow them to the close.

Just From the Brush.

Mr. Geo. W. Rubidge has recently had the "Indian Queen" painted, which change gives that personage a very improved appearance, inasmuch as she is the object of considerable attraction from all of the boys, as they enjoy the fragrance of a "decent" cigar.

Y. M. C. A.

The members of the Young Men's Christian Association will have their monthly meeting next Monday night for social intercourse, and to discuss matters in connection with their work. Fruit and ice-cream will be partaken off. Out of their present membership of over 150 there should be a large attendance.

Honoring an Ex-Mayor.

On Tuesday evening next the council chamber will be the scene of a very pleasing event. A number of the citizens of Peterborough intend to meet Mr. H. H. Smith, Dominion Land Commissioner, Winnipeg, at that place and present him with a silver tea set. The presentation is intended to be a recognition of Mr. Smith's valuable services during his three years' incumbency as Mayor of the town, and is preliminary to the departure of Mr. Smith and family for Winnipeg as permanent residents of the Prairie Province.

Lacrosse Notes.

Messrs. LeBrun, Sanderson and Henderson will go to Beaverton on Tuesday, 14th inst., to witness the match between the Orillias and the Checkers, for the district championship. At the same time these gentlemen will make arrangements with both clubs to run an excursion to Peterborough on civic holiday, which will very likely be August 13th, as a very large petition, signed by every merchant in town, as well as a number of ratepayers, was to-day handed in to His Worship the Mayor, requesting him to proclaim the day for that date. The Secretary of the Checkers has written the Peterborough club, naming the 27th inst. as the date for them to play for the trophy, which correspondence has not, as yet, been dealt with.

Excursion to Niagara.

The Peterborough Firemen will hold an excursion to Niagara Falls on the proposed Civic Holiday, August 13rd inst., by C.P.R. to Toronto, thence by palace steamer Chicora to Niagara Falls. Every person who desires to see the greatest of the seven wonders should take advantage of this trip. Tickets only $2.50.

Orange Sermon.

The Rev. I. Tovell will preach a sermon to the members of the Orange Order, on Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m., in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Arrangements have been made whereby the Orangemen of the town and county will meet at their hall in Peterborough, and march to the church in a body. At the conclusion of the service a collection will be taken up for the benefit of the Protestant Home.

A Wise Suggestion.

At the council meeting last night, when the various representatives were anxious to air their eloquence, and were doing so regardless of the time—11:30 p. m.—Councillor McNaughton referred to his recent trip to Belleville, and suggested to the mayor that it would be well for the town to follow the example of the "Bay City" in one respect, at least. At the meeting of the city council in that place, a policeman, Mr. McNaughton said, is always present, and the moment a member is caught speaking more than once on a question, he is immediately introduced by the officer into the adjacent police cells. If Mr. McNaughton's radical scheme were adopted here, he, himself, might not be the last one to enjoy its application.

Sports at the Driving Park.

Last evening the large 'bus conveyed over twenty members of the P.L.C. down George street, which number was augmented at the C.P.R station by three Ashburnham players' who, on account of some magnetism which prevails near the depot, could not be prevailed upon to take the 'bus at the corner of George and Hunter streets. The Driving Park was reached shortly after 7 o'clock and was visited by a number of private vehicles, whose occupants watched, with much interest, the scratch match which took place on the grounds between sides chosen by Messrs. Giroux and Tierney. The game lasted over an hour, during which time the burly form of Harry Niel was particularly noticable for its rapid and clever movements. A half mile race brought the evening's sport to a close about 8:15. It is the intention of the committee to hold such matches frequently and allow the public to witness the contests free of charge.

A Modern Miracle.

In a recent sermon Rev. Mr. Tovell related the following incident to illustrate the marvellous powers of converting grace:—There lived with the family of an Episcopal clergyman, near Richmond Hill, an eccentric female, who was known by the sobriquet of "Crazy Ann," a name probably given to her on account of her enthusiasm as a Christian. Previous to her conversion her strangest peculiarity was a disbelief in sacred things and a disregard for the holy teachings of the Gospel. But at length she was brought under the influence of a strong religious feeling and became converted to God, and her past life of sinfulness and indifference became changed into a life of pious devotion. Strange as it may appear "Crazy Ann," though entirely illiterate and unable to read, was able after her conversion to read with ease and fluency the word of God, and the book that had hitherto been to her a sealed treasure was thus miraculously opened to her spiritual vision as well as to her mental comprehension. The reverend gentleman applied the incident to show those who had greater advantages—greater mental powers, if they had the same simple trust and child-like simplicity, would realize corresponding disclosures of divine love and power through the study of the word of God."

P. A. A. A. Sports.

Last evening was the one appointed for the first of the series of contests to take place in Ashburnham for medals presented by the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association. The number of spectators was very fair, and the grand stand was well filled with ladies who watched with decided interest, the various contests throughout the evening. The following is a list of the various contests and the winners in each case:—

MILE RACE.—(Two entries). First, Hamilton, Bobcaygeon; second, Lawford.

ONE HUNDRED YARD RACE.—(Four entries). First, Elliott; second, Lawford. This event was particularly well contested, there being scarcely a foot between the winner and second when both breasted the tape.

QUARTER MILE RACE.—(Four entries). First, Hamilton, Bobcaygeon; second, Kindred.

ONE MILE BICYCLE RACE.—(Four entries). First, Gibson; second, Ames. The latter rode a very plucky race throughout the whole distance, came in a good second and was highly complimented by the judges, Messrs. R. B. Rogers and Dr. Geo. Burnham. At the conclusion of the races, a game of tennis was played—Smith and Lawford vs. Long and Fortt, the former two winning by a score of 6 games to 3. Mr. W. Sabine acted as starter for the various events. The management deserves the greatest commendation for their efforts to foster and encourage amateur sports, and we hope to see the next series patronized more liberally by the gentlemen of the town.

Slight Accident.

To-day whilst Mr. John Rierdan, who manages Mr. H. Rush's express waggon, was driving along Charlotte street one of the tugs became loose and whilst he was engaged fixing it the horse started away. Jack succeeded in stopping the animal, but in doing so had his ankle bruised in such a way that for the remainder of the day he had to relinquish his position to the grip of James Johnson.

St. Luke's S. S. Excursion.

Our notice of St. Luke's Sunday School excursion to Hastings was unavoidably left over from our last issue. The excursion was a most gratifying success throughout. The party joined with the Church of England Sunday School of Hastings, and spent a most delightful day in Fowld's Grove. During the afternoon a programme of sports was carried out with the following result:

GIRLS' HANDICAP RACE.—1st, May Canning; 2nd, S. Payne.

HOP, STEP AND JUMP (boys under 15).—1st, T. Butler; 2nd, W. Rombough.

Entertainment at the Lansdowne.

Last night the floors and the galleries of Lansdowne Roller Rink were literally packed with spectators to witness the splendid exhibition given by Westbrook and Hacker, who gave ample evidence of their right to the title of "champion trick and acrobatic bicyclists of the world." Previous to the beginning of the performance the floor was filled with rollers; but the gong sounded, the rink was cleared, the Fire Brigade Band struck up, and the champions made their bow. Only one bicycle was used by the pair, Westbrook using the machine in the first part and Hacker working in the acrobatic performances. The tricks performed were simply marvellous, both actors in their feats seeming to set the laws of gravitation at defiance. The lythographic pictures in the shop windows place men in positions which it seems impossible for them to assume, yet those were fully carried out and exceeded. The most admired feat was the placing of the two wheels of the bicycle, each on a chair; Westbrook then mounted the machine thus balanced witout touching any other object, and Hacker following mounted his shoulders and stood erect thereon some moments amidst deafening applause. The second part consisted of a superb exhibition of uncycle riding by Hacker. First the rear wheel was removed and he went spinning round the rink with the greatest of ease on one wheel, going backward and forward with equal facility. Next the handles were removed, and the wizard wheelman still seems equally at home. Round after round of applause showed how highly delighted the spectators were with the entire exhibition, which fully realized all that the managers of the rink announced. To-night Westbrook and Hacker will appear again in an entirely new programme of marvellous feats, and those who want to see performances which they would not believe could be done, if they were simply told, can see them carried out.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has introduced the budget. It retains all of Childers' proposals not affected by recent votes. Sir Michael, in presenting the budget, said the Government regretted that the expeditures on account of the $55,000,000 credit exceeded the $45,000,000, to which Mr. Childers' estimate limited them. The Government proposed to issue $20,000,000 in treasury bills to cover the deficit in the past and present year.

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade.

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

ANNUAL ORANGE SERMON.

Preached in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday, July 12th, 1885.

On Sunday, July 12th, Rev. Mr. Tovell, pastor of the George-street Methodist Church, preached the annual sermon to the Orange Brotherhood of Peterborough and vicinity, who, to the number of 175, assembled in the hall of the order on George street, formed procession and, headed by the Fire Brigade Band, marched to the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The spacious building was crowded in all parts, and a full choir furnished most appropriate music.

The reverend gentleman selected the following text:—

"Be ye therefore followers of me, even as I also am of Christ."—I. CORINTHIANS, xi., 1.

Some few months ago it was my privilege to address you on a Sabbath afternoon, when, as you may remember, the subject of our study was: "Luther, the Hero of the Reformation.' To-day I desire to direct your minds to one greater than the Great Luther. It is fitting, on an occasion like this, to bring ourselves in thought, and in sympathy, into the presence of, probably, the grandest name and person on record, that we may catch that inspiration which we need for the proper fulfilment of life's great mission. We meet on this Sabbath day for the purpose of improving our characters as fellow-citizens. We meet not to excite unholy feelings towards any; not to give edge to unseemly antipathies; not to foster an unfriendly spirit towards those who may differ from us in creed, or who may oppose the principles we represent. But we meet to nourish whatsoever, things in character or conduct are loving, pure, honest and of good report. We meet not to orate and declaim as might seem proper on some more secular occasion, but we are here to worship God, we are here to get strength for that battle that should end in self-mastery. We meet to heap fuel upon and to add heat if possible to the enthusiasm cherished, in regard to the foundation principles of civil and religious freedom.

THE FLAME OF BROTHERLY LOVE,

I rejoice, therefore, to have the privilege to-day of naming St. Paul to you, and can do but little more than name him. To place him before you in all the fulness of his thought, the devotion of his heart, the activity of his life, and the grandeur of his character, would be a task for which I claim to have no proper fitness. But there are three particulars that I wish to mention, because in those we may be like him. We are invited in the text to be followers of the Apostle, and in the address of this hour I desire to fix your minds on three features in which we may follow him.

First, we may and ought to follow him in this, that Paul was a man of faith, faith in Christ, faith in the doctrine taught by Christ, faith in the pardoning love and soul-sanctifying power of Christ.

HIS FAITH WAS DEFINITE.

It was a man trusting in the person called Christ, trusting for freedom from sin, for guidance in life's way, and for ultimate rest in Heaven. Christ stood forth, clearly seen. Between him and Christ nothing intercepted the vision. He refused to wade through the accumulated traditions of men in order to find the Saviour. All ceremonial curtains were rolled up and folded away. Vain speculations and proud philosophies were assigned a retired place. Human priesthoods, and all the glory of an ancient and historic church, had no part or lot in determining his standing in the sight of God. He saw for himself, with the eye of faith, in clearest light, the cross, red with the blood of atonement. He looked, and as he looked the sense of acceptance came, the thrill of love was felt, the light of joy broke forth as the morning, for he was free: free from the bondage of sin, free from the dominion of evil, free from the burdens of a cold and formal ritual, and from the yokes of the Jewish religion. He trusted, he believed, and then spoke of Christ as his Saviour.

INFLICTED BY AN EXACTING PRIESTHOOD

Broad was the grasp of Paul's faith, as well as definite in its character. His faith reached forth and acknowledged that in Christ "God was manifest in the flesh." It embraced not alone the transparent features, but also the "mysteries of Godliness." It thoughtfully and intelligently subscribed to unfulfilled as well as fulfilled prophecies of men who wrote as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. It held to an atonement unlimited in its application to the deep and infinitely varied necessities of man. It rejoiced in the veil rent from top to bottom, that opened the way for the people as well as priest, into the Holy of the Holies, for the purposes of fellowship and communion with God. It gloried in the cross. It sang the song of triumph o'er the grave. It was full of immortality.

WAS PAUL'S FAITH DEFINITE AND BROAD?

It was also strong. His grip of the truth was an iron grip. His hold on Christ was as the grasp of a giant's hand. This came of deep conviction that Christ was the only name given under heaven among men whereby man could be saved. Thus to believe gave him great strength, for the strength of Christ became his. Realizing this, he said, "I now can do all things." "I can overcome the world, I can chain, I can subdue, I can destroy the enemy of the soul, I can unloose, I can bind, I can break the chains of evil habits that enslaved me." "I can live, I can work, I can witness, I can die for the truth and for Christ." What a precious faith this! It was the gift of God: It was as simple as the trust of a child. It was so genuine that it united his life to the life Divine. It was so broad that every doctrine in the inspired Book was accepted. It was so practical that it crystallized every impulse, emotion and purpose into all noble deeds. Other characteristics might be named, but time will not permit. What I wish to emphasize is its simplicity. Paul's faith saved him, and it was a simple direct trust in Christ.

THE REFORMATION FAITH WAS SIMILAR.

Indeed, it sprang out of it and inherited its divine greatness. Luther Melancthon, Huss Wiclyf and others tunnelled their way through heaps of traditions and drifts of the vein of pure gold, from which superstition and error till they touched they enriched their natures. This gained, overwhelming results followed. Mariolatry broke down. Priestly absolutions were held as valueless. The tyranny of the priesthood and the thunder of papal bulls were esteemed light as feathers in the air. Ecclesiastical chains snapped, and freedom's song rolled from sea to sea.

So also this simple definite faith of the Apostle, this simple Gospel faith that dispenses on authority with the use of human priesthoods as mediums of mercy, this faith lies at the base of our Protestantism. Were not Wesley's faith and Knox's confidence, and Baxter's rest, and Luther's reliance, and the trust of the great Apostle alike in results? Is not the spirit of Protestantism the same free vitalizing force that animated the early church? Does not the faith of Protestantism work by love and purify the heart? Is not the freedom of spirit the same as that

FOR WHICH PROTESTANTISM CONTENDS?

Both unroll the charter that offers freedom from the tyranny of conscience, freedom from the restraints of man, freedom on the basis of obedience to God. One faith, one Lord, one baptism. Let us contend for Paul's faith, my hearers. Let us make it ours, that we may share the rich blessings of our holy religion. Let us not be of those who magnify the church, and minify the Christ of the church. Let us not be as the secularist, or faithless soul that claims no solid rock for his feet to stand upon. Let us not be among the foolish sons of men who build for eternity upon foundations of sand—who build on human reason—intellectual conceits, vain philosophy, etc.—that shall break away when the storms of death burst upon them. Let us not drift out to sea in some vessel that has no rudder chain, or anchor of hope, for the waters will not always be smooth nor the winds friendly. When the hurricane comes and the billows madly roll and strike the vessel we shall need the rudder chain of faith and

HOPE'S UNFAILING ANCHOR.

Paul's faith is recommended here to-day. It held to Christ. It caused celestial sunlight to break about his feet. It brought him safely to the desired heaven. Let us cling to Christ. Let us walk in the light. Let us trust, and the Kingdom of glory we shall win.

II. We have dwelt upon the features of Paul's faith. I now wish to speak of an emotion feeling or passion that and in which we should be like him. I speak of emotions, feelings or passions, because they have a prominent place in the broad field of human experience. The heart, the seat of the emotions and affections, is as vitally related to practical life and to our future destiny as the intellect. One strong impulse in Paul gave him character and destiny. What was it? At first we find him a man of tremendously strong prejudices against the Central Figure and prominent believers in Christianity. He stands forth aflame with hatred towards those who differed from him in matters of faith. He could witness with unpardonable coolness the martyrdom of Stephen. Tiger-like, he thirsted for the blood of Christians. His fiery soul warmed to a white heart in opposition to the cause of truth. Hatred towards the very name of Christ leaped from his heart like flame and lava and smoke belching from a living volcano.

DISTINGUISHED THIS MAN OF GOD,

BUT CONVERSION CAME.

The light smote him to the ground. His blind eyes were opened. He ceased to kick against law and conscience and Christ. And what followed? Was the energy of his lion-nature destroyed? Were the fires of wrath quenched in the fountain? Nay, verily, in one sense they were not, but they were more wisely and justly directed. Aroused to a sense of his former follies, he smote with a giant hand the strongholds of sin. Heathen deities were reduced to dust under the crushing might of his reasonings. His muscular arms of truth were laid about the pillars of paganism till they tumbled, and tottered, and fell. His wrath, like a resistless torrent, went thundering against the gateways and fortifications, where lust and drunkenness and wantonness and vice and crime of every form held dominion. The iron was not taken out of his blood nor the fire from his heart, but they were harnessed for infinitely nobler work than opposing the cause of truth. A Christian athlete, he wrestled not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers and spiritual wickedness in high places.

WOULD GOD MORE WERE LIKE HIM!

Would that carnal weapons were forever shivered to atoms, and spiritual weapons alone employed! Would that wrath never woke but at the approach of those things which are an abomination in the sight of God. Would that indignation never burned but in the presence of cruelty, injustice, tyranny and crime, and that hatred's eye only flashed fire on whatsoever things were unlovely or impure or dishonest or of bad report. Would that power, whether of law or muscle or mind was never wielded but to ADVANCE THE GOOD AND HINDER THE WRONG.

Had these been observed in the past what dark chapters had never been written. The flames had never touched the noble form of John Huss. Nor had the river Arno ever received the ashes of the brilliant Savanarola. The Seine of France had never been reddened with the precious blood of 40,000 Huguenots, and unrepentant Romanism would have been saved from the infamy and shame in which she is held to-day for so foul a crime. The sword of bloody Mary had never drawn the heart's blood of hundreds of her best and bravest and purest subjects. The inquisition that deserves the unqualified scorn of the ages had never been, and no historian would have had the pain of recording deeds of cruelty, that while committed in the name of religion, make the reader's heart to shudder with horror. Let us pray that the mantle of infinite mercy may be thrown over the past, and that the future will render up a worthier account before God, the Judge of all.

NOW FOR PAUL'S LOVE.

As night and day are twin brothers, so also are love and hatred. They are kindred to each other. In Paul's nature they were equally strong. Love was perfected in him. Did he abhor evil? He also clove tenaciously to the good. Did he hate sin? He also loved righteousness. He was positive in his attitude to the good. He more than hated error and iniquity: he loved Christ and the truth of Christ with a love stronger than death. His love was of a fibre so strong that it could not be broken.

I remember once having my attention drawn to a lesser tree that had grown up under the shadow of a taller and stronger one. It had so grown up into the taller one that their branches formed together a piece of magnificent and rustic net work. Their branches laced and interlaced each other. They were twisted together and knotted together with great firmness. Doubtless the roots of those trees were likewise woven and grown together. This was the work of years. Suppose the axeman

Sad Drowning Case.

One of the Barnardo Home Boys Drowned in the Otonabee River.

Once more it becomes our sad duty to chronicle, for the fourth time within a period of two months, the particulars of a drowning case. The victim in this instance is a boy named George Beagle, from the Barnardo Home, who came to this country from England, on April 9th. It appears the lad, who was about 17 years of age, and who had been living with Mr. William Little, of South Monaghan, on Sunday had made arrangements with a companion named Palmer to pay a visit to Hazel Brae. They accordingly both set out together for town, and on reaching Sandy Point, near Crawford's grove, saw a number of boys in swimming. His companion suggested that they should enjoy a bath, adding that as they had already walked about ten miles, and as the day was pretty hot, it would do them no harm. The unfortunate boy assented, and the two were soon in the water. Palmer, who is a good swimmer, at once struck out boldly, whilst the other more cautiously entered. He suddenly came to a deep hole and went down, and was not seen again until, being missed, a search resulted in the finding of his lifeless body, which was taken to the Home by Mr. D. Bellegham, undertaker, from whence the funeral took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock. This is the first death which has taken place amongst the hundreds which have arrived in Canada from time to time since the institution of the Home in this town.

Lacrosse.

In the championship series of matches on Saturday last the Montrealers defeated the Shamrocks after a hard struggle, whilst in the match in Toronto the Ontarios showed that they were just as good as the Torontos by playing a draw match with them. The Montrealers are now ahead in the race for the flag.

Personal.

Mr. Wm. Carter, of the Peterborough Cricket Club, has been chosen to play in Chicago on July 20th, in the match between the Eastern and the Western Associations.

Mrs. Gowanlock, whose long imprisonment with Big Bear has linked her name with the history of the rebellion, passed through Peterborough last night on her way to her home near Ottawa.

Lieut. J. Weller, who went with the Midland Battalion to the Northwest, arrived in town last night, and notwithstanding his six days journey, looked as though he was preparing to go again.

Parliamentary Summary.

SATURDAY, JULY 11th.

In the Commons on Saturday Sir John Macdonald, replying to Mr. Blake, said that the following measures would be proceeded with this session:—The Insolvency Act, the Act respecting real property in the North-West; the resolutions for the remuneration of Revising Officers, and the act respecting ocean mail service. He said he could not speak as to the Temperance Bill, because it was not a government measure. The Bill for relief to the Canadian Pacific Railway was read a third time and passed on a vote of 77 to 45. The House then went into Committee Supply and passed several items referring to railways and canals and Indian supplies.

The Queen's Daughter's Wedding.

Preparations for the Brilliant Event.

The preparations for the wedding of Princess Beatrice to Prince Henry of Battenberg, become daily more extensive. Architects are now erecting a massive wooden archway from the gate of the churchyard to the portals of the edifice to prevent the public from witnessing the wedding procession. The most stringent orders have been issued to prevent the public from securing available points of observation, and the Queen has decided to refuse the press permission to witness the ceremony.

The False Prophet Dead.

CAIRO, July 11.—Gen. Brackenbury telegraphs from Fatmeh that a letter which was received there yesterday states that the Mahdi is dead. The letter was written by a merchant at Handaka on July 8th, and it says that since the prophet's death his followers have fallen to fighting among themselves. A refugee Egyptian soldier who arrived at Fatmeh to-day, Gen. Brackenbury says, asserts that he saw an Arab on the 1st of July who told him the Mahdi was dead.

Prince Christian of Denmark has brought a suit against the executors of the late Count Noel, claiming estates valued at $234,000.

Annual Orange Sermon.

should come to fell the smaller tree, how could it be done? It would be impossible without sacrificing the larger one also, for they were inseparable. Those branches would refuse to relax their hold upon each other. Thus, it seems to me, did Paul grow up into Jesus Christ, his living head in all things. The branches of Paul's human love and of Christ's divine love were locked and interlocked together. The lesser and the human had grown up into the greater and the divine. A golden hand of love held thought to thought and purpose to purpose, and principle to principle

TILL PAUL AND CHRIST WERE ONE.

Christ lived in Paul. Paul's life was hid in Christ. Who could separate them? Could the mob that beat the Apostle and flung him from them, thinking him to be dead? Could Tertullius, the brilliant but ill-advised orator, who sought to humiliate the Apostle in the courts of the Cæsars? Could Demetrius, the silversmith, whose trade in images suffered because of the preaching of the Word? No. Never. Not one; not all of those. Who then? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or peril, or sword? Shall death or life, angels, principalities or powers. Shall things present or things to come? Nay, saith Paul, "For I am persuaded that none of these, nor all combined, shall be able to separate me from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, my Lord." Such, my friends, was Paul's love as well as faith. And that we should imitate. We also shoud grow up into Jesus Christ. "Follow Me saith Paul 'in affection, in devotion to Christ. We are urged to nothing unreasonable or impossible, simply to love as he loved. If it were said, measure up to his mental height, that would stagger the strongest. for the grandeur of his intellectual power remains unrivalled. But the words of the text do not mean this, not culture or intellectual capabilities, but creed, conscience and character are the prizes to be striven for. We shall not be able to writs as he wrote, to speak as he spoke, or think with such clearness as he thought; we shall never be able to build temples of truth, superb, symmetrical and grand as those he built, or carve monuments of thought, lofty and graceful as those he carved; but we may love God as he loved, we may place our affections above as his were placed, we may be constraiued as he was by the love of Christ, we may take redeemed men to our hearts as he did. Are we not within the roalm here of the possible? And when men touch this apostolic standard what blessed results follow! Results undreamed of till the morning of Christianity dawned upon the nations! Results indescribably blessed! Enemies forgiven! Persecutors prayed for! One cheek smitten, the other offered to the offending hand! Old swords melted and moulded into plow-shares! Spears that once gleamed on battlefields turned into pruning hooks! "Universal brotherhood" woven into every creed, engraven on every badge, wrought in gold on every flag, carved in marble, in bold relief painted upon canvass, and enthroned in the universal heart. This is the work of love. This was Paul's love.

THIS LOVE IS THE DISTINGUISHING FEATURE

LET US FOLLOW HIM.

A third particular in which it is possible to follow or imitate Paul, is in that purpose which he cherished during the whole of his Christian career.

"The Lord looketh upon the heart; as a man thinketh so is he."

The "purpose" is the very kernel of character. Paul's aim is set forth in Philipians:—"For to me to live is Christ." A purpose is the eternal condition of success. There may be in us many minor purposes, valuable indeed, and essential, but to achieve the highest success and to reach the fullest satisfaction in the use of our powers, none can afford to level their aim at an object lower than this. "For to me to live is Christ."

SOME MEN LIVE FOR THEIR COUNTRY.

Patriotism is a virtue, and deserving of praise. But patriotism is not the loftiest aim possible. The patriot can aim higher than simply to serve his country. David served his day and generation by the will of God. But David was greater than a patriot. He was a servant of God. Gordon, around whose memory cluster the most noble and precious recollections, was an enthusiast in devotion to the interest of the British Empire. But I believe he was also an ardent believer and worshipper of God. This was his chiefest glory. Our own Col. Williams, over whose grave this Dominion bends today and sheds the tear of sorrow, is another illustration. The untarnished lustre of patriotism is gathered about his name. I know but little of his private life and character, but if his patriotic love of country was born of a deep, strong love of God, then must the name shine illustrious as the sun. To live for Christ implies in it the truest devotion to the welfare of our country.

SOME LIVE FOR THEIR CHURCH.

Everything must subserve the interests of the church. Tithes must be collected for the church. The political forces of the land must be manipulated for the promotion of the church. Obedience to the dignitaries of the church comes first, and conscience next. The church is all and in all. Her traditions are as authoritative as the Book of Revelation. At her altars alone can the guilty find rest. She is the only channel to Paradise. She should, through her priest-hood, dictate to rulers, to legislators and to sovereigns. The punishment of offenders should be entrusted to her. The individual conscience should be given over to her dictations. Heretics should die if she wills it. Potentates should abdicate thrones at her command. She should have power to absolve or power to curse. Such is the aim and purpose of many.

THERE IS A MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

The prevalence of this conception and aim woke the thunders of the reformation, thunders that shook the papal throne. Ecclesiastical fetters were pressed against the consciences of men till civil and religious freedom had no land, or home, or heart, in which to dwell. Then Luther's voice was heard and Zwingle uttered his protest, and Germany and Geneva challenged Rome, and England sprang with a lion's energy and demanded civil and religious freedom—demanded that the hand of ecclesiastical despotism should relax its hold upon the conscience of the individual. Religious despotism is the tendency where the highest aim is to live for our church.

(c) Some live for personal gratification and glory. They worship at the shrines and altars of selfism. The sweat of the brow is for the gratification of some sordid appetite. Life's friendships and social organizations are degraded to selfish uses. Wealth, genius, talent, are made to contribute to the same unworthy end. Self-glory is a glittering prize, to pursue which is fatal to the pursuer. Dives, of the New Testament; Napoleon, of French history; Nero, of the Roman Empire, are striking examples. All worshipped at the one cold shrine. All drank from the one unsatisfying and poisonous stream. All acted under one common influence and inspiration. Their memory must perish. There is a nobler way.

PAUL'S AIM WAS TO GLORIFY CHRIST.

Nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of Christ. He was a patriot, but he was a Christian patriot. He loved the Church, but not before the Christ of the Church, "For to me to live is Christ." This was the master-purpose of his life. It was like a star or sun of brilliant lustre, constantly shedding its light along his pathway. Every cloudy dispensation that gathered over him broke and melted away as the noonday light of this purpose flooded his prayerful soul. He could stand anything; nothing moved him. Insult, reproaches, distresses, stripes, imprisonments, perils, trials, poverty, desertion of old friends, persecutions, not any, nor all of these combined, could move him. His heart was fixed.

HIS PURPOSE WAS DETERMINED.

Our work, my dear friends, may differ widely from St. Paul's. He was a chosen and a choice vessel, we may be intended for the least honourable place amongst men. He was called to be an Apostle, we may never be more than door-keepers in the House of the Lords. He was mighty in pulling down the strongholds of sin and Satan; we may be weaker than a bruised reed. He built up great temples of truth; we may be simple carpenters, dealing in pine and cedar, and toughened oak. He could play on the key-board of the human soul till notes and words of praise did sweetly blend; we may not do more than play on common instruments. And yet (I need scarcely declare it), we all may participate in the same high purpose. That artist, with a genius lit up with the sacred fire from Heaven's altar, and painting on canvas the wondrous glory of the transfiguration scene, and that little bare-footed boy, selling newspapers, and helping in that way to support his poor mother, may belong to the same grand brotherhood of souls, because of living for the one Christ. "For me to live is Christ."

And now dear friends, members of the great brotherhood of Orangemen, though not a member of your Order, and yet in sympathy with the principles you represent, I may in closing be permitted to commend to each of you the acceptance of Paul's faith, the exercising of Paul's love, and the adoption of his great purpose, these constitute the sequel of the best type of citizenship. As I appreciate your true mission I cannot but urge upon you, to imitate the purest and wisest of men, and in all things to do the will of God. Our fathers had to fight with swords and shields and spears, but that day I trust is past forever. The mission of Protestantism is one of love to man, and fidelity to truth. We need not drill for carnal warfare; we need not anticipate repetitions of the days of Queen Mary or King James.

A WILLIAM, PRINCE OF ORANGE

—grand, intrepid, statesman, soldier and king, as he was—will never be needed for a like purpose again. The battle of the Boyne will never need to be fought over again. Even our neighbors of the Roman Catholic persuasion would not desire the dark days to return when the Inquisition, or St. Bartholomew, or the tyranny of Mary could be repeated. A brighter day has dawned, thank God; a broader spirit obtains among men. Even Ireland is looking out to a more hopeful and peaceful future. How, then, should we devote and apply our energies? Not for the battlefield, where swords clash and blood flows, unless some poor foolish, haughty and fanatical Riel troubles us. But we must train ourselves to the use of the pen. Fill the land with an educated people. And we must drill in all the arts of holy living. Fill the land with rightousness and our joy shall be full. In God let us trust. His eye runneth to and fro throughout the whole earth to show himself strong in behalf of them whose heart is perfect towards Him. God reigns, and as the twilight of the morning has been evolved out of the darkness of the years past, so shall he cause the noonday splendors of our holy Christianity to come with healing power to our world in the near future. Then let us trust, and love, and live for Christ henceforth, and every 12th of July will bring us nearer to that glorious day, when peace shall be proclaimed, and everywhere there shall be good-will amongst men.

The reverend gentleman added the hope that their gathering on the morrow to celebrate their great day might be successful, and prayed that God would bless them, and that on the day they would bear themselves in such a manner as to prove themselves worthy of their forefathers.

The Tree by the Well.

An Arab Sheik in deserts wide
Once sorrowed so for thirsting men
He led before the caravan
And, digging wells, he, thirsting, died.

He died of thirst! The wells remain!
Oh, darling, patient, Pioneer,
God's angels, what a triumph here
To know no well is digged in vain.

We led against the sunset gold,
We lifted hand in desert land,
Digged wells—and graves—in drifting sand—
The Arab's piteous tale of old.

We plant a tree beside this well
Of knowledge in the westmost West.
Yon peaks rise up to call it blest.
They stand eternal sentinel!

Some far on day when we are dust
And all this vast vale teems with life,
Some brave souls fainting in the strife
May rest them here and speak us just.

May say we few through wilds of rime
Blazed out new ways for worlds to come.
And mourned not but bravely dumb
So died; full trusting God and time.

Life's lessons bid us bide its worth
With all fruitage bound in toil.
Trust God; and trust the generous soil
Of human hearts, as trusting earth.

I count it kinglier far to wait,
To work in faith, to wait in tears,
Aye, wait and wait a thousand years,
Than once to doubt, or challenge fate.

So here we set this little seed
And trust its tender boughs to Time;
To grow to touch the stars sublime,
As grows and grows some small, good deed;

Set deep, where lilies ever nod,
Walled round by everlasting snows,
To grow as some great strong soul grows
When growing upward to its God.

—Joaquin Miller.

Why a Kerosene Lamp Bursts.

Girls, as well as boys, need to understand about kerosene explosions. A great many fatal accidents happen from trying to pour oil into a lamp while it is lighted. Most persons suppose it is the kerosene itself that explodes, and that if they are very careful to keep the oil from being touched by the fire or the light there will be no explosion. But that is not so. If a can or a lamp is left about half full of kerosene oil the oil will dry up, that is, "evaporate," a little, and will form by mingling in the air in the upper part of the can a very explosive gas. You can not see this gas any more than you can see air. But if it is disturbed and driven out, and a blaze reaches it, there will be a terrible explosion, although the blaze did not touch the oil. There are several other liquids used in houses and work-shops which will produce an explosive vapor in this way. Benzine is one, burning fluid is another, and naptha, alcohol, ether and chloroform may do the same thing.

In a New York shop lately there was a can of benzine or gasoline on the floor. A boy 16 years old lighted a cigarette and threw the burning match on the floor close to the can. He did not dream there was any danger, because the liquid was locked up in the can. But there was a great explosion, and he was very badly hurt. This seems very mysterious. The probability is that the can had been standing there a good while, and a good deal of vapor had formed, some of which had leaked out around the stopper, and was hanging in a sort of invisible cloud over and around the can, and this cloud, when the match struck it, exploded.

Suppose a girl tries to fill a kerosene lamp without at first extinguishing the blaze. Of course the lamp is nearly empty or she would not care to fill it. This empty space is filled with a cloud of explosive vapor arising from the oil in the lamp. When she pushes the nozzle of the can into the lamp at the top, and begins to pour, the oil, running into the lamp, fills the empty spaces and pushes the cloud of explosive vapor, and the vapor is obliged to pour over the edges of the lamp into the room outside. Of course it strikes against the blazing wick which the girl is holding down by the side. The blaze of the wick sets the invisible cloud of vapor on fire, and there is an explosion which ignites the oil and scatters it over her clothes and over the furniture of the room. This is the way in which a kerosene lamp bursts. This same thing may happen when a girl pours the oil over the fire in the range, or stove, if there is a cloud of explosive vapor in the upper part of the can, or if the stove is hot enough to vaporize quickly some of the oil as it falls. Remember that it is not the oil but the invisible vapor which explodes. Taking care of the oil will not protect you. There is no safety except in the rule: "Never pour oil on a lighted fire or into a lighted lamp."—Christian Union.

A Fish-Catching Cat.

An instance of extraordinary animal instinct and intelligence is reported from Ellendale, Uister county. Mrs. Sarah Brown, of that village, has a large Maltese cat that is the mother of three kittens now nearly half grown. It was noticed lately that the old cat was regaling her offspring with some fine specimens of perch and sunfish, which she brought in nice and fresh daily, one day coming in with seven. She was watched and it was found that she caught the fish herself in Fantine millpond, near the village. The pond had been drained down quite low lately and the cat would crouch down at the edge of the water and when a fish came along within reach she would spring upon it in the water and rarely miss her aim. She struck the fish first with her claws, and then dipped her head under the water, took her prey in her mouth and swam ashore.

Besides fish, the cat serves her family with birds, not less than two of which she provides every day. The most remarkable fact about the cat, however, is the system she has adopted in feeding her kittens. When she comes in with a small meal she will not permit any miscellaneous scrambling after it, by which one kitten might get more than its mates, but she lays the fish or bird before one of the young ones. The other two she obliges to remain quietly at a distance while the one is eating, enforcing her authority against any protest on their part by frequent cuffings. When the kitten has eaten one-third of the meal, the old cat removes the dinner and places it in front of another kitten which eats its third unmolested, when the third kitten's turn comes. The kitten that is served first on one day becomes last on the list the next day, and that rotation is maintained with unvarying impartiality day after day.—Middletown (N. Y.) Cor. New York World.

MACFARLANE WILSON, IMPORTER.

The Women of Constantinople.

If I were to have my choice of the whole invoice I should take an Abyssinian brunette. They are divinely tall and slender, and black as the ace of spades. Their features are clearly cut and regular, the eyes liquid, and the lips red and full. The hair is black and waving, but somewhat coarse in fiber. They dress in pure white, and the black face and red lips against the white setting of the burnous gives an effect that is as enchanting as a picture. The only fault they have about them is their limbs. Now, if any lady's limbs may appear with propriety in literature it is the legs of a Turkish lady. Turkish modesty never goes farther than the knees. Both the trousers and the feredje stop at that point, and with the majority of women the limbs and feet go bare. But the Abyssinian women seem to prefer going barefoot, and thus betray the one peculiarity that stamps them as daughters of Ham. Their ankles are about as big round as a rolling pin, and it is ankle all the way up to the knees. The leg is set exactly in the middle of the foot, which is very low and flat. This African trade-mark is, as I have said before somewhat of a blemish and tends to lower the quotations for them with some people.—Foreign Letter.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The Peterborough Baseball Club meet for reorganization to-night at the Riverside Park. Every person taking an interest in the game is invited.

In Memoriam.

On Sunday Professor Parker, in St. Paul's, and Mr. Hampshire, in St. John's, played as voluntary the "Dead March in Saul," in memoriam of the late Col. Williams.

Prob'e Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly south and west; fair, warm weather, with a few local storms towards evening or at night.

Reorganization.

The City Band, which for some time past has not been practising, will, in a few days, start again. We hope to see the members turn in once more in good style. That musical body was very creditable to the town last year, and we have every reason to believe that before the summer is over they will be as good as ever.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.

Struck by a Plank.

On Saturday evening whilst the bicycle exhibition was going on at the Lansdowne Rink a number of small boys were playing at the rear of it. The large window in the north end of the rink was raised and kept up by a long plank, and as one of the boys attempted to raise the window higher the plank, being loosened, fell a distance of over 12 feet, striking a little boy named Nelson Roddy on the head with such force that for over eighteen hours he was insensible. Dr. Kincaid, who has been attending the little sufferer since the accident happened, said this morning, however, that he had got over the worst of it.

The Bicyclists at the Lansdowne.

On Saturday evening last another large assemblage greeted the appearance of the Messrs. Westbrook and Hacker, at the Lansdowne roller rink. At about 8 o'clock the appearance of Hacker, attired in a costume of cardinal silk spun jerseys, and riding the unicycle up George street, attracted a considerable crowd. As he repeated the performance back to the rink, behind the Fire Brigade Band, a large number of persons followed him, and at 9 p. m., when he and Westbrook appeared, to treat the assemblage with their acrobatic performances on the bicycle, there must have been nearly 1,000 persons present. For over half an hour the spectators were held spell-bound with the feats which were exhibited by the pair as they rode around, their glittering costumes adding a beautiful effect to their various movements. which consisted of balancing, backward riding, and spinning the vehicle around in every conceivable shape, during all of which performances, Hacker assumed every possible position on the shoulders of his companion. The performance was concluded by an exhibition in unicycle riding by that gentleman, and his manipulation and wiggling of the one wheel, was something wonderful; and when the acrobats advanced to the centre of the floor at 9:35 p. m., to make their bow the applause with which the spectators greeted them evidenced the appreciation of the exhibition. "Ed" is to congratulated on the attractions which he offers so frequently at the rink, and as long as he continues to provide such exhibitions, we bespeak for him the patronage of the public.

Cricket Match.

Benedicts vs. Bachelors.

A very pleasant game of cricket was played last Saturday in the afternoon between the married and single members of the Peterborough club. The bachelors carried away all the honors, although some of the benedicts showed that there was life in the old men yet.

Salvation Army Excursion.

This morning about twenty-five of the Salvation Army, including the band and banner, went on an excursion to Lindsay on the regular train.

New Hose.

The equipment of the Fire Brigade has been improved by a new supply of Maltese Cross hose. It is ready for use, but we hope the occasion may be long postponed.

Police Court.

Business at the Police Court was very slack this morning. When the town clock struck ten, there was not a soul in the room to sympathize with the magistrate, not even janitor Beavis, who had joined the navy blue quartette on the street to see the procession pass down to the station.

Military Funeral.

As a large number of the volunteers have expressed a desire to attend the funeral of the late Col. Williams at Port Hope, a meeting of all who wish to go will be held at the drill shed, on Tuesday evening, at 7.30, when it is expected a definite announcement can be made as to the arrangements for the funeral.

Plate Glass Smashed.

This morning as Mr. T. B. McGrath was engaged in elevating his portable scaffold on Hunter street, one of the cross pieces came in contact with the brick capping, which is a dividing line between the first and second stories, and loosened the large iron cornice bar. It came down with such force that it smashed one of the sidewalk planks, as well as the beautifully painted window in Mr. John McClelland's store. We understand that the damage on the window is fully covered by insurance, except the gilt lettering of the window, which is worth about $30.

Sabbath School Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Peterborough Baptist church S. S. will be held at Crawford's grove, on Wednesday the 15th inst. Should this day be unfavorable through rain, it will be held on the following day, Thursday. It is hoped that all the parents of the children attending the school will make an effort to be present, and spend an enjoyable day with the children, teachers, superintendent and pastor. The congregation and all friends of the church are invited to attend the Baptist Sunday School picnic. Busses will leave the church, Murray street, at one o'clock, and will convey adults for 20 cents and children for 10 cents to and from the grounds.

Peterborough vs. Ashburnham.

For the last two months some of the Peterborough boys who have been in the habit of going over to Ashburnham at nights have been pretty roughly dealt with. We have referred to this subject time and again, and perhaps ere long will be called upon to chronicle serious results from such practices. It appears that very recently the flirtation, so to speak, which some of the young men of our sister village have indulged in towards the Peterborough gallants in the shape of shying minature boulders after them on their way back to town has induced a few of them to break all previous records for hundred yard dashes. Last night, judging from the crowd which congregated on the bridge, one would think that both parties had met there to settle the matter. The two opposing forces gradually retreated to their respective sides of the river and a fusilade of stones was expected to be exchanged every moment. The timely appearance of Constables Pidgeon and Craig, however, put a damper on the affair and induced the boys to "go on about their business."

A Painful Accident.

A few days ago a daughter of Mr. George Brown, west Peterborough, in company with her aunt, Miss Gow, went on a visit to her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ferrier, Dummer. In the evening the little girl accompanied her aunt to watch the milking of the cow. The animal was released from the enclosure where she was shut up with her calf. All at once the cow plunged at the little girl and pinned her to the ground with her horns, and inflicted a frightful wound on her head, tearing the scalp to the skull almost from ear to ear across the top of the head. So intent was the infuriated beast on the work of destroying the child that it required the combined exertions of the aunts, armed with stout sticks, to make her cease her work, which would before long have resulted fatally to the unfortunate child. Dr. Fraser was called in and had to put seven or eight stitches in the gaping wound, which is, however, healing kindly, and the little girl will soon be recovered.

Celebrating the Great Twelfth.

The Creditable Turn-out From Town and Vicinity.

Owing to the anniversary of the Battle o the Boyne falling this year on Sunday, the formal celebration of the anniversary was held to-day. At about 9 o'clock the brethren of the order in town assembled on Murray street, near the railway, where the brethren of Nassau, Dummer and Lakefield were expected to drop off the train. About 10:30 the latter arrived and were escorted by the local brethren to the Central Park, where Mr. J. B. McWilliams, County Master, acting as Marshall, mounted on the traditional grey charger, formed a procession which marched out of the Park in the following order:—

J. B. McWilliams, Marshall.
Fire Brigade Band.
Union Jack.
McWilliams' Lodge True Blues, No, 29, F. W. Weir, Master, and Harry Trollope, Deputy-Master.
L. O. L. No. 49, Peterborough, J. B. McWilliams, Master.
L. O. L. No. 89, Peterborough, Thoma Brown, Master.
L. O. L. No. 122, Lakefield, Wm. Preston, Master; S. Norley, Deputy-Master.
L. G. L. No. 281, Dummer, fife and drum band, Hugh Dodds, master.
L. O. L. No. 457, Nassau, Wm. King, master, Alex. Hamilton, deputy master.

The procession marched down George street, across the market square to Water street, up Water to Hunter, over Hunter street and Aylmer to the station, where the processionists, with a large number of citizens, boarded the special train and went down to Millbrook, where the day is to be spent in celebrating the battle and victory of the Boyne.

The turn-out was a large one, and the procession an imposing one. The palm for appearance and bearing was, by general consent, awarded to the Nassau brethren. Clad in black pantaloons, white shirts and vests, tall silk hats, and in appropriate regalia, the double line of straight, stalwart Orangemen won words of praise from all spectators, and the expression could be heard, "what a splendid body of soldiers they would make."

Saved Army.

A very pleasing incident occurred in the Saved Army meeting last evening. The Rev. Mr. Wallace, an old and staunch friend of the Army when in Cobourg, entered and took his seat on the platform. After a few introductory remarks by Gen. Lindsay, in which he expressed a hope that the example set by Rev. Mr. Wallace, would be soon followed by the other ministers in the town, and whom they would be always glad to see, introduced Mr. Wallace. The soldiers, led by Captain Clarke, struck up their well known hymn, "There's a Welcome Home," with much vigor. Rev. Mr. Wallace returned thanks for the honor and hearty welcome accorded him, and said that he always felt at home in the Saved Army meetings, and had always been cheered by the earnest singing of those beautiful songs. When in Cobourg he saw many in his congregation who had been brought to Christ by their instrumentality. He was not jealous because God had used the Saved Army in their conversion, but rejoiced in the grand and noble work they were doing, and concluded by a fervent prayer to God to bless their efforts and crown them with success.

THE REV. MEMORIAL SERMON.

Preached by Rev. J. Tovell in Memory of Charles Graham Davis, Son of Rev. Geo. M. Davis, in the George Street Methodist Church, on Sunday, July 12th, 1885.

On Sunday evening there was a crowded church to listen to the sermon. Specially appropriate and solemn music was sung on the occasion. The anthem consisted of a hymn sung by the choir to the mournful strains of Handel's Dead March in Saul. The text selected by the preacher was as follows:—

Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us and run with patience the race set before us.—HEBREWS, XII.—1S.

The speaker began by saying that we ought to give God praise from day to day for the revelation of his love as shown in the plan of redemption and the gospel of grace. The gospel made known the duty and nature of the privileges of the Christian and furnished a conception of light and love beyond that enjoyed by any mortal before Christ came to declare it. The Gospel came as a comfort in the day of sorrow, as is shown by the contemplation of the blessed condition of those who have died under the influence of its teachings. The question came up as to

WHAT IS KNOWN OF THE DEPARTED,

and a full and complete answer was to be found in the Scriptures. We knew where the casket is, and as to the location of the jewel the casket contained, the Bible gave a clear and unequivocal answer, and the preacher asserted he would stand by the Bible. They were alive though dead—"absent from the body and present with the Lord." These words were sure because Paul, inspired by the spirit of God, spake them. This, and passages of a kindred character, demolished the cold doctrines of the materialist, who limited man to the material part of his being. In the expression, "present with the Lord," there was no qualification. Wherever the Lord was there the blessed departed were, and there was great comfort in this knowledge though the exact location were not known. Death was SIMPLY THE UNFOLDING OF A NEW LIFE.

The departed were alive and, which is a blessed reflection, present with the Lord. When the soul quit its tenement of clay it went at once into the presence of the Lord. This was illustrated by the experience of the thief on the cross. In the last hour he looked upon the dying Christ with faith, and received the blessed assurance, "To-day thou shalt be with me in Paradise"—"shalt be with me,"—present with the Lord. And the dying prayer of Stephen—"Lord receive my spirit,"—was also a proof of the doctrine that Paul taught. St. Paul had confirmed the doctrine of the presence of the departed with the Lord, with numerous other passages, which were quoted at length. His personal experience revealed the great Apostle as having a desire "to depart and be with Christ, which is far better."

HOW GLORIOUS WAS THE PROSPECT

held out by the Gospel, compared with the cold comfort of materialism. The Gospel opened the door of the sepulchre and the portals of eternal bliss.

The departed were unspeakably happy. It was a comforting thought that all the tears were this side of Heaven. The glorified were unspeakably happy. Paul said that to depart and be with Christ, was far better than this life under the most favourable conditions. On this earth the great man's name was one day borne by the plate on the door of his mansion; the next it was carved on his tomb. One day there was the enjoyment of health and life, the next the funeral procession; but in heaven there would be no tombstone, no funeral procession. Paul when caught up into the third heaven, and St. John in his beatific visions, had wondrous glimpses of the glories of heaven. One thing that made heaven so blessed was its purity and beauty. The recognition of the loved ones was another important element in its bliss, and the speaker declared his firm belief in the doctrine of there cognition in heaven by those who loved and knew each other on earth. Heaven would be much less attractive if we did not know each other there; Christians should make the religious life more real by such reflections, should bind it more closely to their future life. The departed were on earth. Paul's metaphor of the race course and the cloud of witnesses was used to show how those in heaven might be watching and encouraging those struggling on earth. The blessed were inciting the contending to note the rewards, sacrifices and self-denials they were enjoying in heaven. The departed in heaven cheered those struggling on earth, the father or mother, the child: the child the parent; the brother the sister. The work of the departed followed them—even the tender children who die leave their work behind them.

HELPFUL TO THOSE WHO REMAINED

Charles Davis, the speaker stated, though passed away was still in spirit, and in words in the church, and in his home, with an influence for good. The speaker had only know him one short year, yet, he had learned to love him and sympatise with his aspirations after a higher christian life. It could be truly said of him, he loved the Saviour. After many years in the pulpit, the speaker felt that he was a better preacher from having known Charles Davis. He lived near to Christ and spoke of his Saviour with the sacred familiarty of confidence. He had many glimpses of the glory of the future. His trust and peace remained to the last, and on his death-bed, as prayers went up for a triumphant death, his last faintly uttered words on earth were "amen and amen." His life had been dedicated to Christ when a child, and young children were exhorted to follow in his footsteps—follow the voice that speaks in his life. The beauty of a consecrated life in a young man or a young woman, when all the world was allurement, were vividly portrayed and a solemn and effective sermon was brought to a close.

At the conclusion of the closing prayer Mrs. Daly sang in a beautiful and effective manner a solemnly sweet hymn.

Startling Revelations.

Canadian Government Bonds Fraudulently Realized—Government Employes Catch the Fever of Dishonesty—Losses by the Government.

OTTAWA, July 13.—It is believed that the redemption of the Canadian loan, which has just been arranged by Sir Leonard Tilley, in London, will bring to light some startling revelations as to the manner in which a considerable number of these bonds have been fraudulently placed upon the market by dishonored employes. It will be remembered that last year, a bond of the 1860 issue for £1,000 was negotiated in London, England, after having been stolen from the Government vault here by a trusted employee, since dead, who forged the signature of the Government official authorized to sign it. It has now been discovered that a number of these bonds have disappeared from the Government vaults, and there is little doubt that they are in circulation and will come in for redemption within the next few months. It has further leaked out that during the recent investigation into the management of the Finance Department a defalcation of twelve thousand dollars was discovered in the accounts of a trusted official until recently. Bonds to the value of over a million dollars, all signed ready for issue, are said to have lain in the vault to which every officer of the Department had access without any check upon him. As a result of the defalcation in the Assistant Receiver General's office at Halifax last year, the Government have now to make good twenty-four thousand dollars to the Bank of Montreal which had made the advances to the dishonest official.

Mr. Henry Hill and family, of Willesby, Ont., were driving to church Sunday when the carriage was thrown over an embankment. Mrs. Hill's neck was broken and the others were badly injured.

Presbytery of Peterborough.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met in Cobourg on the 7th inst. There were only a few members in attendance. Mr. Mitchell, of Port Hope, occupied the chair. There was not much business of public interest. The Clerk reported that the Assembly had granted leave to Mr. Smith, of Grafton, to retire from the active duties of the ministry. Mr. Duncan was appointed to declare the pulpit's vacant on the 1st Sabbath of August. Mr. Smith was appointed moderator of session during the vacancy and authorized to moderate in a call so soon as the people shall be prepared for action. The Rev. Mr. Alexander, late of Mount Pleasant, was invited to sit with the Presbytery.

Provision was made for the licensing Mr. McKnight at next meeting of Presbytery. Mr. Cleland was appointed to examine Mr. McKnight on systematic theology and Mr. Mitchell on church history.

The next meeting of Presbytery was appointed to be held in Port Hope, Mill street church, on the fourth Tuesday in September, at 10 o'clock, a.m.

Mr. Cleland and Mr. Chisholm, Port Hope were appointed to look after the church property at Oak Hill.

Mr. Woods, president of the Ottawa Ladiel College, addressed the meeting in the interests of the college.

The following were the delegates appointed to visit the mission fields under the charge of the Presbytery:—Haliburton, &c., Mr. Craigie; Minden, &c., Mr. Bennett; Harvey, &c., Mr. Bell; Havelock, &c., Mr. Carmichael; Chandos, &c., Mr. Thompson; Cardiff, &c., Mr. Hay.

Permission was granted to the congregation of Mill-street, Port Hope, to mortgage their church property to the extent of not more than $600.

The following standing committees were appointed:—

Home Mission and Augmentation.—Messrs. Cleland, McCrae, Cameron, Bell, Torrance, Bennett, ministers, and Mr. Tisdale, elder.

Temperance—Messrs. Bell, Cameron, Thompson, ministers; and Messrs. Johnston, Roxborough, and Byers, elders.

Sabbath Schools—Messrs. Carmichael, Torrance, Hay, ministers; Messrs. Henderson, Williamson, J. R. McCullough, elders.

State of Religion—Messrs. Mitchell, McCrea, Ross, ministers; Messrs. Russel, Clarke, Johnston, elders.

Statistics—Messrs. Bennett and Cameron.

The following were appointed to take charge of the collections on behalf of the several schemes of the church:—

Colleges, Mr. Torrance; Foreign Missions, Mr. Ross; Home Missions, Mr. Cleland; French Evangelization, Mr. McCrea; Widows' and Orphans' Fund, Mr. Smith; Aged and M.M. Fund, Mr. Mitchell; Assembly Fund, Mr. Bennett.

Reports were received from the Commissioners, who were present, regarding their faithfulness in their attendance upon the several sittings of the General Assembly. Notice of motion was given for reconsideration of the resolution adopted at the meeting of Presbytery at Hastings, anent the retiring allowance from Grafton and Vernonville, to Rev. J. W. Smith.

"Mill Stones" Moralises.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I am troubled like the Shakespearean Moor, with a "goneness of occupation," and have for the past year had much time to ruminate on the uncertainty of everything under the sun. I thought that it would continue through the future as it had in the past, that no vile Yankee vandal would lay his unsacred hands on the vested rights of sixty centuries, and eject me from the time-hallowed associations in connection with providing the "daily bread" for mankind. But no; the march of improvement has left me out in the cold, and now flour is made by a new patent process, and I am thrust aside to make way for the upstart "rollers." I have decided to join the Compensation Society, and make common cause with those noble patriots, the Licensed Victuallers, who have always been honorably connected with me in supplying the million with victuals. That is where the name L. V. springs from, especially the V. Comparisons and partnerships fail to apply to the L. But failures are not uncommon in this changeable world, otherwise I should be in my ancient and honorable position in the mill instead of having "my lodging on the cold ground" and never a "fare" at all. My friends, the L. V.'s, are likely to be troubled with a sudden scarcity of employment in our county, as well as in others where the Scott Act has been, or will be, passed; likewise, those friends of every good cause, the distillers and brewers, always distinguished for philanthropic designs in mitigating the sufferings of humanity and obliviousness of their own pecuniary interests. Those manufacturers and middlemen are suffering, or are about to suffer, from popular legislation by the shrinkage in the value of their plant of various kinds from the worm of the distiller and the vat of the brewer to the tasteful and handsomely fitted bar, where the victuals are dispensed. They have been encouraged and licensed to invest large sums of money to supply in a lawful manner the demand for certain ingredients; and this traffic has been regulated by law. Now they purpose to regulate it out of existence, and rob the unfortunate manufacturers and retailers of their lawfully acquired property. "Britons never shall be slaves," and it would be indeed the barest slavery to submit to such injustice. Far better to have another Riel rebellion in the heart of the Dominion, than tamely yield to such fraud. But this may be avoided by the united action of all those who are suffering from oppression of a similar or any other kind. Let the millers who had to discard the services of the historical French burr-stone, apply to the government for compensation on account of the old machinery's uselessness and the expense of replacing it with new. Let all others, both producers and consumers, who have had to invest in new machinery before the old was worn out make common cause, form a huge compensation association, and send a well developed delegation to Ottawa to interview the Premier and the Knight of the Exchequer. They are both too kind to say no to a deputation which would represent a syndicate more powerful than the C.P.R., and we know how many millions it has obtained. A paltry ten millions, which is not much these good times of big railroad grants and North-West rebellions, would satisfy the moderate desires of the L. V.'s, who, being most deserving, would obtain the first grab at the funds. After them would come the millers, then the other virtuous sufferers too numerous to be specially mentioned. If this were accomplished I could contentedly crumble into the original gritty atoms of which I am composed, and calmly await the coming time when the last two of my component grains were disintegrated, conscious that I had well served my day and generation, and then sink into that oblivion which awaits both distressed and down-trodden L. V.'s, as well as superannuated

Scott Act Amendments.

OTTAWA, July 13.—It is reported to-night, says a Globe despatch, that under Sir John's directions arrangements have been made for the adoption of amendments by the Senate by the House of Commons. Noses have been carefully counted, and it is said that the amendments will be carried, but to satisfy the Tory temperance men Sir John Macdonald proposes to vote with the minority against the amendments. Thus while the Premier will claim credit among the licensed victuallers for destroying the Scott Act, his prohibitionist followers will claim that he voted against the wine and beer amendments, and did his best to defeat them.

THE SCOTT ACT.

According to present indications, a convention being called for to-morrow, the people of this county will soon be called upon to pronounce upon the advisability of adopting the Scott Act. With regard to the desirability of decreasing the evil of intemperance, there can be no two opinions. With regard, however, to the Scott Act under existing circumstances, being the best means to this end, does there seem to be the same unanimity of opinion? The mere adoption of the Act is not the most important matter to consider. That of itself can have only a "moral effect," speaking in the least practical sense of the expression. Unless it is strictly enforced it cannot have an appreciable reformatory effect. And, if adopted, it will be enforced? Can we have any certain guarantee? It cannot be expected that the Ontario Government, for it beyond its jurisdiction, will look after the enforcement of the Act. Indeed it is certain that they will not interfere with the administration of a Dominion statute of this nature. Have the promoters of the Scott Act movement any guarantee that the Dominion Government will provide any effective machinery for its administration? Without such an assurance will not the act be a dead letter? With the Ontario License Act superseded and the Scott Act indifferently enforced, will not it be probable that practically, free trade in whiskey will be the result? Will the large loss of revenue be compensated for by any substantial advantage? Is it not worth while to consider the attitude of the House of Commons as at present controlled? Is there not danger that that body will adopt the Senate's wine and beer amendments? In view of this can it be urged that the adoption of the Act will be a step in the direction of total prohibition? With very vague prospects for the enforcement of the Act, may not its adoption be considered a mere declaration of belief in the principle of prohibition without any real prospect of advantage to the cause of temperance? Are the promoters of the Scott Act in a position to inform the electors what assurances they can give, that the Act will be enforced? Has the question been fully considered, whether it is wise to now submit the Act? Whether it is wise to bring about a great loss of revenue? Whether it is wise to run the risk, of removing the present control exercised over the traffic. Will the effect of carrying the Act and not enforcing it have the effect of setting back the temperance movement a quarter of a century? Next year the Scott Act will be in force in some three score constituencies and the people can expect from the Dominion Government, but little, if any, assistance in making it effective. And is it not among the possibilities that a year's experience of an act, which we have no certain assurance will, be enforced, may lead the temperance people themselves to insist on its repeal? These questions should receive careful and full consideration before deciding to submit the Scott Act to the popular vote.

In view of the fact that a meeting will be held to-morrow to consider the submitting of the Act, we ask the above questions with the desire that all sides of this important matter may be fairly examined. The Scott Act not enforced and not possible to be enforced means free whiskey for those who wish it. The revenue to the county would be lost and without restriction drunkenness would be increased. Unless it is enforced the old days of decanters and glasses everywhere will return. Let all consider both sides carefully.

Smith.

BATTLE OF THE BOYNE.

Celebrating the 195th Anniversary..

Millbrook the Scene of Festivity.

A most Successful and Orderly Celebration.

In yesterday's issue of THE EXAMINER we gave a brief account of the proceedings in Peterborough, preliminary to the celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne at Millbrook, where the several bodies of Orangemen of the surrounding districts, had concentrated to celebrate the day in a right royal manner. The Peterborough contingent arrived in the village about 11:30 a. m., to find that place decorated with flags, union jacks and arches. Immediately on the arrival of the Peterborough party,

THE PROCESSION WAS FORMED, in the park west of the village, and at 12 o'clock noon, paraded the different thoroughfares, in the following order, marshalled by Mr. Robert Vance, of Cavan:

After parading for about an hour, the members dispersed for dinner, and at 2.30 the junior organizations collected once more, and headed by the Peterborough Band, marched to the Park where a meeting was held. Mr. George Thorndyke, of Cavan, acting as chairman.

ADDRESSES WERE DELIVERED

by Mr. J. Evans, Port Hope; Rev. William Armstrong, Ottawa; Rev. Mr. Allen, Rural Dean, Millbrook. The Rev. Mr. Shaw of Toronto, formerly of Peterboro', was also present to address the meeting; but on account of a heavy rain, which decended at about 4.30 p.m., the vast audience was deprived of the Rev. gentleman's address.

At the meeting a motion of condolence, to be forwarded to the friends of the late Col. Williams, was moved by E. J. W. Burton, District Master of Port Hope, and seconded by Mr. T. B. Collins, Millbrook and it is needless to say was unanimously carried. Shortly after six o'clock the various bodies from a distance began to disperse. The Peterborough representatives arrived about 6.30 and marched in procession to the hall on the corner of George and Simcoe streets, where three rousing cheers were given for the Queen, followed by the band playing the National Anthem.

NOTES.

The Peterborough True Blues, McWilliams Lodge, wore hats all alike, together with white gloves which go to make up the regular marching costume.

The playing of our band was the subject of general commendation throughout all the proceedings. They headed the processions both forenoon and afternoon.

Number 457 Lodge, Nassau, turned out the largest and best built lot of men, and their appearance in the parade was admired as the principal feature of the day's proceedings.

The 195th celebration was a very successful and pleasant one, the people arrived home in good time. The behaviour of both brethren and people attending the celebration was of a most orderly character and the day can be looked back upon without regret.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

BRING YOUR BOOKS TO THE Examiner Book-Bindery.
AND HAVE THEM SUBSTANTIALLY BOUND.

—READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:—

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed.

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

ORANGE SERVICE.

Sunday afternoon the Orangemen of Lakefield and vicinity, attended at a sermon preached in the A. C. A., Hall for their benefit; there was a fair turn out, while the A. C. A., Hall was so crowded that many were unable to gain admittance.

THE GLORIOUS 12th.

The shrill notes of the fife and drum, as the Harvey Lodge drove into the village at an early hour, informed our citizens that the anniverary of the Battle of the Boyne was to be celebrated, on the 13th, and soon after the 57th Battalion Band arrived by train to play the local Lodge to the station. Four coaches well filled took their departure for Millbrook, while quite a number took the Steamer Cruiser up to Stony Lake, to join the Warsaw and Dummer brethern celebrating the day by a picnic on "Gin Island."

STEAMBOAT INSPECTION.

On Saturday the Government inspectors of steamboats and boilers arrived and made a thorough inspection of the three steamers now plying on our back lakes. All, we understand, were found to come up to the requirements of its own class, and received the required certificate.

FIRE.

At noon on Sunday, just as the people were returning home from morning service, the fire bells sounded an alarm and in a few moments a large crowd had collected at the water mill of R. & G. Strickland, when it was found that fire had spread from the kiln to the carriers and to the dry refuse. The hose was attached to the pumps and a powerful stream turned on, which, in a short time, removed all danger from the buildings. Nothing could show more plainly the want of fire protection for the village; if Messrs. Strickland had not have supplied their mill with a powerful pump and hose, all would have gone yesterday, or had the fire occurred on either side of Queen street, Lakefield would be in ashes to-day. When will our ratepayers wake up to the danger and folly of trusting to Providence while they sit with folded hands and wait for the hour that will surely come and which could be averted by proper care and expenditure.

Astronomy out of Season.

He discourses on astronomy with very best intention.
And discloses many matters I've not previously known;
But for some especial reasons I am not inclined to mention,
I should much prefer the garden with Matilda all alone.

It is well, of course, to know about these subjects; the propriety
Of telling which is Saturn and the distance to the moon
Is obvious; it gives a certain standing in society;
But somehow, on this evening, I've a great desire to spoon.

The balmy air is oderous with perfume of the flowers;
And the moonlight on the terrace is most beautiful to see;
But Professor is excited and I know he'll talk for hours,
While Matilda's in the garden, I suppose, expecting me.

O moon! O stars! O milky-way! I care not for your density;
Your perigee and apogee possess no charms for me.
Look down, look down in pity from your silent, vast immensity,
And I'll study you more fully when I've grandsons on my knee.

Plantation Philosophy.

De pusson what doan' talk nothin' but slang, doan' think nothin' but slang.

Folks sometimes growl 'bout de very source o' dar fortune. De farmer often complains o' de heat.

One of Our Navy-Posts.

I hear some very good stories about the Norfolk navy-yard and its commandant, whose predilection for live stock is the subject of many good jokes among naval men. I was told by a young "sea dog," not long since, "that the yard had been converted into a rural paradise." Hogs, cows, chickens, and turkeys roam at large among the awful implements of war. A small island near the yard is devoted to agriculture, and all the vegetables for the officers' mess are grown on this piece of public domain. Praiseworthy economy, isn't it? It is a standing joke that the commandant is feeding up his hundred or more turkeys for the purpose of mounting the marines and drilling them in cavalry practice.

The funniest thing of all happened a few weeks ago. Two of his cows got loose one dark night and started out for a lark. They took it into their bovine heads to run a race along the main avenue of the yard. A sentry stationed about the middle of the avenue heard the noise, and, with his mind full of general uprisings and bloody massacres, timidly called out "halt," but the noise drew nearer to him. His knees began to knock together and his hair to stand on end. He wildly shrieked for the corporal of the guard. The whole force turned out and with great difficulty captured the breakers of the peace. When the cows were brought to bay, the men didn't know whether to laugh or swear. They did a little of both and were satisfied. I tell you the navy should certainly be well supported when its men have nothing better to do than herd cows and attend to live-stock generally.—Washington Capital.

Telephone consolidation in New England has been for the present defeated, not through any virtuous repentance or any drawing back from the gigantic stock watering and public swindling involved in the scheme, but through the greed and quarrels of the interested parties. The Bell Telephone Company it seems, wanted the earth. It was to take one-half of the $16,000,000 stock of the consolidated concern at the outset, and $1,000,000 more as a construction fund, besides a generous fraction of all new issues in stock. The Connecticut and Providence companies demurred, the stock of the individual companies went down instead of up, the stock holders protested, and the consolidation scheme was abandoned. This is one of the few instances where corporate greed has benefited the public.—New York Times.

The Empress Eugenie is rather an interesting figure at the Hotel Westminster, at Carlsbad. She occupies a suite of six rooms on the first floor. Her meals are supplied from the restaurant at the Konigs villa, opposite the hotel. She always appears in deep mourning, and usually accompanied by Dr. Evans of Paris, and by Madame Lebreton. The Empress, like other poor mortals, was troubled with dyspepsia. At Carlsbad she began her cure by taking the waters of the Schlossbrunnen, but she changed to the Muhlorunnen. Her visit has excited the greatest possible interest and crowds of people wait outside the hotel and all down the Schlossberg every morning in order to catch a glimpse of her.

Here is one of Thackery's pleasant touches:—"It is night now, and here is home. Gathered under the quiet roof, elders and children lie alike at rest. In the midst of a great calm the stars look out from the heavens. The silence was peopled with the past—sorrowful remorse for sins and shortcomings, memories of passionate joys and griefs rise out of their graves, both now alike calm and sad. Eyes, as I shut mine, look at me that long since used to shine. The town and the fair landscape sleep under the starlight, wreathed under the autumn mists. Twinkling among the houses, a light keeps watch here and there in what might be a sick chamber or two. The clock tolls sweetly on the silent air. Here is night and rest. An awful sense of thanks makes the heart swell and the head bow, as I pass to my room through the sleeping house, and feel as though a hushed blessing was upon it."

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, JULY 14, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Our New Story.

Don't neglect to begin reading our new story, "Called Back," which will appear in Thursday's issue.

From the North-West.

In to-morrow's issue there will appear another interesting letter from the North-West from the pen of Corporal Graham, "G" Company.

George Street S. S. Excursion.

At 9:30 this morning a special train consisting of eight well filled coaches drew out of the station to convey about four or five hundred excursionists who patronised the George Street Methodist Sunday School excursion. In spite of the dash of rain this morning we have no doubt that the party will spend a delightful day in Norwood.

Well Done "Dick."

Yesterday afternoon, a horse that had been left untied in front of Mr. H. Rush's store, became frightened by some papers which were sent flying by the high wind, and started down street at a rather brisk run, and was acting in a fair way to make smithereens of the rig, when R. S. Kelly, who saw the state of affairs, "heeled" it down street and succeeded in overtaking the animal, and put a stop to his gallop. The owner turned up in a short time, and rewarded the hero with a smile from which he has not recovered as we go to press.

Still They Go.

Early this morning St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a marriage ceremony. The contracting parties being Mr. William Van Allan, the popular and well-known clerk of the Oriental Hotel, and Miss Maggie Revia. The bride was assisted by Miss Amia Beauregard, of Peterborough, whilst Mr. H. LeBrun turned out before 5 o'clock to support "Billy" in the most remarkable event of his life. The couple left on the early train for Plum Creek, Nebraska, where Mr. Van Allan will officiate as clerk in the Oriental Hotel of that place, owned by Mr. J. E. McIntyre, of the Oriental here.

Making Preparations.

The Peterborough Lacrosse Club is preparing to ornament the grounds of the Separate School for the garden party, which they intend holding there on the evening of August 13th. At a committee meeting held last night, a special committee was appointed to confer with the Electric Light Company, and report at a meeting which will take place this evening at the Little Windsor. Now, that the matter is being worked up, it is to be hoped that every member will make it a point to atttend every meeting. The work, which is to be performed, is rather too heavy to be borne by two or three.

Wedding Bells.

Yesterday St. John's church was the scene of a fashionable wedding, at which the contracting parties were Mr. Jas. S. Ritchie, barrister, of Annapolis, Nova Scotia, and Miss Clementi-Smith, sister of Col. Clementi-Smith, of the Regulars, India. Promptly at 4 o'clock, the bride appeared at the church, escorted by Mr. Geo. Dunsford. She was dressed in a lovely bridal dress of white satin and carrying in her hand a beautiful bouquet. She was accompanied by Miss Rubidge and Miss Daly, her two bridesmaids, the former of whom was attired in an elegant costume of coral pink trimmed with lace, and the latter in tasteful and becoming cream. The groom was supported by W. Almon, of the Civil Service, Ottawa, and W. Geo. Clementi, of Montreal. The Rev. V. Clementi, assisted by Rev. J. W. R. Beck, rendered the service in an impressive manner. Mr. Hampshire officiated as organist during the ceremony and played the wedding march at the conclusion of the service. After partaking of a wedding breakfast at Rev. Mr. Clementi's the party left by the O. & Q. Railway west.

All Goods selling cheap at the "Ten Cent" Store.

To-Night's Presentation.

The public are reminded of the presentation to be made to Mr. H. H. Smith, ex-Mayor, in the Council Chamber to-night. The public are also invited to be present.

Willow and Wicket.

On Thursday afternoon, the return match between the married and single members of the Peterborough Cricket Club, will take place on the P. A. A. A. grounds, in Ashburnham.

Off for Beaverton.

A number of local sports went to Beaverton this morning to see the lacrosse match between the Checkers of that place and the Orillias. As both clubs have been practising hard lately, the contest will most likely be an interesting one.

Police Court.

P. C. Adams charged James Edwards, at the Police Court this morning, with having made use of profane language on the streets. James pleaded guilty and on promising the magistrate that he would use more select language for the future, he was allowed to go.

This is the Night.

The Peterborough Baseball Club will reorganize for the season to-night. The meeting will be held at the Grand Central Hotel and every person who intends taking an interest in the three-bag game is invited to attend.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate to northwest and west winds; fine weather, stationary or slightly lower temperature.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer :—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock	76°	28.90°
1 o'clock	76°	28.90°
3 o'clock	76°	28.91°

H. Calcutt's Work.

The new grounds to which we referred to some time ago, in connection with Mr. Calcutt's name, are steadily improving day by day, under the careful management of Mr. John Craig, of Ashburnham, who, with his staff of men, has been working hard for the past two weeks in levelling and grading the the grounds, which, in a short time, will be fit for baseball playing.

$175 Horse Gone.

Mr. D. J. Lundy lost a valuable four-year-old colt yesterday. He was out driving with him in the morning and the animal was apparently all right. At noon he was attacked suddenly with some disease, and laid down and died about one o'clock. Mr. Lundy had but a few days before disposed of another horse and intended to keep only this one for the future, for which he was offered last week the sum of $175.

Walked out of a Window.

Last night at Millbrook, Mr. Andrew Fawcett met with a serious accident, which came near terminating his part in the celebration of the day with his death. It appears that Mr. Fawcett, who intended to remain all night, retired early to bed at the Queen's Hotel, and during the night got up in his sleep and walked out of the window of the second story of the building. It was thought at first that he was killed, but fortunately such was not the case, and the injured man was conveyed this morning to his home in Ashburnham, where he now lies in a precarious condition.

Excursion to Niagara Falls.

Don't forget the Firemen's excursion to the above place on Aug. 13th. The excursion, which will be accompanied by the splendid Band of the Fire Brigade, will go by C. P. R. to Toronto, and thence by way of steamer to the Falls. This route, besides being over 45 miles shorter than any other, will afford a pleasant sail on the lake, which will be a pleasant break on such a long trip. Passengers will be landed three miles closer to the falls that the G. T. R. can go. Tickets only $2.50.

What He Should Call It.

On last Saturday evening when Hacker arrived at the Postoffice corner and left the unicycle leaning up against the side of the building, quite a crowd of the unwashed collected for the purpose of naming the instrument. A number of bank clerks were amused at the various suggestions which were thrown out by the urchins in their turn. One said if it had handles to it he would call it a wheelbarrow; another thought that it was a velocipede, and a third gave his opinion to the effect that it should be called a "What-is-it?" "What would you call it?" said a prominent bank representative to a youth whose apparently swollen left cheek plainly showed that he used the weed. "I do'now, but I know what you should call it," answered the youth. "Well, what?" "A tricycle." "Why?" "Because you'd have to try about six years before you could ride it." Two of the bankers looked at their watches and said they had an appointment, and the remainder of them, including the questioner, each heaved a sigh that cracked the clear glass globe of the nearest electric light.

Col. Williams' Body.

A Deputation Goes to Meet the Remains.

The Toronto World says:—A deputation, consisting of Dr. Brereton, M. P. P. for East Durham, Capt. J. P. Clewes (Midland Battalion), M. Rosevear, J. W. Dinwoodi, Richard Howden, James Evans, D. Chisholm, and other prominent residents of Port Hope and district registered at the Walker House, Toronto, Monday night. The party is en route to Owen Sound to meet the remains of the late Lieut.-Col. Williams, which are expected at the Sound on the next boat from Port Arthur.

PREPARING FOR THE FUNERAL.

PORT HOPE, July 13.—The citizens of Port Hope are making extensive preparations for the funeral of the late Colonel Williams, M. P., and telegrams are being constantly received by the secretary from all parts of the Dominion as to the day when it will be held. The date cannot yet be definitely named, but will be announced at the earliest possible moment. Meantime representatives of the municipalities intending to be present should communicate immediately with J. G. King, secretary, so that they may be provided for in the order of procession. The funeral will be a military one, conducted by the Midland battalion, which will go into camp in the park at Port Hope immediately upon its arrival from the Northwest.

The 12th in Ireland.

Serious Riot Between Troops and Civilians.

WATERFORD, Ireland, July 13.—The anniversary of the battle of the Boyne yesterday caused a large increase in the number of drunken men on the streets. Among them were many of the soldiers belonging to the Welsh regiment doing garrison duty here. A number of citizens got into a drunken row with soldiers last night, during which the latter bayonetted to death one of the former. The commotion attracted crowds of men to the scene, and when the civilians realized that one of their number had been killed they became furious and fell upon the soldiers with such force that the latter were compelled to beat a hasty retreat to their barracks. The mob followed them up, but being threatened with powder and ball if they attempted to force an entrance to the barracks, they contented themselves with smashing the windows of the barracks with stones. The rage of the populace was so great this morning that it was deemed best to transfer the Welsh regiment to some other place. This was done immediately, and as the soldiers marched from the barracks to the railway station surrounded by policemen, a mob followed, hooting and stoning the soldiers.

The old regimental hospital system, in the British army, is abolished, and the new system which was worked at Tel-el-Kebir by Lord Wolseley established in its stead. A new divisional organization called the bearer company, of eight doctors, some 200 trained bearers and drivers, with ambulance wagons, operating tables, soups, wines, chloroform, and all the means of performing operations and giving temporary support, is formed for the division as a whole, and to it all the regimental wounded are taken by the regimental and its own bearers. Here they are examined, operated on and fed. When this is over they are carried by ambulance to the field hospital, generally some further distance from the field, and there deposited.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1885.

The Midland Sung in Metre.

A Poetical Pen-Picture—A Hymn of Gratitude.

Our correspondent with Company "G," Midland Battalion, sends us the following verses for publication: The first part details in lively racy rhyme the appearance and trials of Company "G," while the second part is a touching tribute of gratitude which shows how the women of Canada, working willingly, bore a greater part than they dreamed of in inspiring the hearts and nerving the arm of those who so gallantly served their country and crushed the rebellion:—

In tunics all dirty and torn,
In trousers adorned but with holes,
And socks that could scarcely be worn.
So frequent were gaps in the soles;
With uniforms often too dusty
The original color to see,
I tell you we felt rather rusty,
The soldiers of Company "G."

We'd ridden by rail, sleigh and wagon,
Through snow, hail, rain, sunshine and storm.
'Twas strange that we yet had a rag on
Our backs, of our old uniform.
In tramps through the wintry storms blinding
Along Lake Superior's shore,
In marches o'er prairie trail winding,
That one battered outfit we wore.

Adown the Saskatchewan River
We guided huge barges with poles.
And plunged in with many a shiver.
To lift the old scows off the shoals.
And when we arrived at Clarke's Crossing,
And thought our "fatigue work" was o'er,
Long days yet we spent oat bags tossing,
And still that one uniform were.

On rations alone we'd subsisted,
For months we'd had nothing to eat
But beans, and the toughest of biscuit,
Called "hard tack," with tea and canned meat.
And when the boys thought of their cheery,
And pleasant homes far, far away,
No wonder the prospect seemed dreary,
That 31st evening in May.

Hurrah! the primal day of June,
Brings joy to Company "G,"
For wending o'er the plain at noon,
A wagon train we see.
Then quicker beat the soldier hearts,
And brighter flash their eyes,
As one by one the lumbering carts
Unload their stored "supplies."

Then joyous thoughts in all prevail
And smiles each face illume
As we, of every box and bale,
The contents prized exhumed.
His occupation each suspends,
The soldiers gather round,
While precious gifts of distant friends
Are heaped upon the ground.

A moment silence reigns complete
Throughout the rugged crowd,
And then a murmur low and sweet
Attains proportions loud.
Till from two score of willing throats
In chorous rich and clear,
That soldiers' gratitude donates,
Rings out a hearty cheer.

Against the sandy river banks,
Adown the rushing tide,
And o'er the plain, that shout of thanks,
Re-echoes far and wide;
Thanks that will oft repeated be,
Wherever we may roam,
While long the boys of Company G.
Will bless the folk at home.

And if, in battles yet to come,
The hurtling storm of lead
And unaccustomed bullets' hum
Bring momentary dread;
Then will the boys of Company G
Their homes and friends recall,
And every man determined be
To conquer or to fall.

Then Canada may'st well rejoice.
For nations all proclaim
Thy glory, and in single voice
Announce thy soldiers' fame.
But while thy sons have glory won
In camp and battlefield,
The work thy daughters loy'l have done
Should equal honor yield.

For they who labored long and well
Supplying soldiers needs;
Contributed great aid to quell
This rising of the Breeds.
And gratefully through coming years
Those lady friends will be Remembered by the volunteers
Of Midland's Company G.

Mr. Smith Presented With a Fine Service of Plate.

The Citizens' Address and Mr. Smith's Reply.

On Tuesday evening a meeting was held in the Council Chamber by the citizens of Peterborough who assembled there to make a presentation and at the same time to say God speed to Mr. H. H. Smith on the eve of his departure for Winnipeg, where he goes to reside for the future as Dominion Land Commissioner in the Northwest. Shortly after 8 o'clock the crowd began to gather and at 8.30 the room was filled to the doors. Among the assemblage was noticed Mr. Geo. Hilliard, M. P., Mr. John Burnham, M. P., Mr. Geo. A. Cox, Mayor, and Councillors Kendry, Kelly, Hartley, Cahill, Rutherford and McNaughton, Rev. V. Clementi, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, and Messrs. James Stevenson, D. W. Dumble, R. A. Morrow, Dr. R. P. Boucher, T. Dolan, E. H. D. Hall, A. P. Pousette, J. O'Meara, J. Stratton, Collector of Customs, Aaron Cox, C. W. Sawyers, J. R. Stratton, of the EXAMINER, E. J. Toker, James Henry, R. W. Muncaster, H. C. Calcutt, J. E. Belcher, C. D. McDonald, besides a large number of residents, both old young, of the town. On motion of Mr. T. Cahill, seconded by Mr. J. R. Stratton, Mr. Geo. A. Cox was elected to the chair, and was about to make a few opening remarks when the Fire Brigade Band, which was in an adjoining room, struck up a lively and appropriate air. At the conclusion of the musical selection His Worship the Mayor said that it afforded him much pleasure to announce the object of the meeting—assembling to do honor to one of the citizens of Peterborough who was about to take his departure for a new field of labor. He then read the following

ADDRESS:

To Henry Hall Smith, Esquire.

It is with feelings of sincere regret we learn the time of your departure from the Town of Peterborough has arrived. For some time past we have been aware that your removal has been impending and that you have been called upon by the Government of this Country to devote your energies and talents to assist in the development of that great Northwest country, in whose welfare this portion of the Dominion is so deeply interested. In the wider sphere of usefulness which is now opened out to you as Commissioner of Dominion Lands, you will find an excellent field for your well known abilities, and we are quite certain you will discharge the high and important duties of that office with the strict impartiality, fairness and courteousness of demeanor which have always characterized you in other public positions. As citizens we cannot suffer you to leave without testifying in some appropriate way our appreciation of your services to our town, in the capacity of councillor, and subsequently as Mayor. You have been long resident amongst us, and have witnessed the steady growth of Peterborough, and have done not a little to aid in its progress and advancement. In your position of Mayor you were exceedingly respected for your impartiality and staunch devotion to the best interests of the town, and the citizens showed their appreciation of your zealous efforts by re-electing you to that office, on more than one occasion, by acclamation. We sincerely regret your departure from amongst us, and trust that you may be spared to return some day to reside here where you have spent the best years of your life, and you will receive a hearty welcome.

We beg your acceptance of the accompanying piece of plate as a slight token of our esteem and good will, and a small, though insufficient evidence of our appreciation of your faithful public services to the town, and of the warm recollections we have of our past connection with you as a public citizen. May it pleasantly and frequently recall to your memory your numerous Peterborough friends. With our best wishes for the prosperity and happiness of Mrs. Smith and yourself, I present you with this address on behalf of the subscribers,

GEO. A. COX,
Mayor.

Peterborough, July 14th, 1885.

His Worship then handed Mr. Smith the address and at the same time made the presentation, which was a beautiful tea set of silver, consisting of a salver, urn, two teapots, coffee pot, sugar bowl, cream jug, slop bowl, butter dish, spoon holder and syrup jug. This complete set of plate was furnishing by Mr. R. W. Muncaster whose handiwork appeared on the salver in the following words, "Presented to H. H. Smith, Esq., by the citizens of Peterborough, Ontario, on the occasion of his leaving that town to take up his residence in Winnipeg, July 14, 1885." Mr. Smith acknowledged the beautiful gift in the following

REPLY:

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen:

I accept with unfeigned pleasure and gratitude your very cordial address and the handsome gift which accompanies it. It needed not this additional evidence of your esteem to assure me of your good will, (for I have received abundant proofs of your favor) but it is none the less gladly welcomed I shall ever prize your gift as a token of your friendship, as an incentive to the faithful performance of duty, and above all as a souvenir from staunch and steadfast friends, whose esteem and regard I place among my most valued possessions.

You have referred in flattering terms to my long connection with your prosperous town and to its steady growth during my residence here. If I have been enabled during my sojourn of nearly a quarter of a century in Peterborough to effect anything, either publicly or privately, to advance the best interests of the place, I am to-day more than repaid for any exertions of mine not only in hearing your expressions of approval upon my conduct, but in witnessing the wonderful strides the town has recently made in everything tending to genuine and permanent prosperity. To-day Peterborough has obtained a proud position; it is generally acknowledged as the leading inland town of this great Province, and is destined at no distant day to be numbered among the cities of our Dominion.

The town possesses unequalled railway facilities; its public and private buildings are of the most solid and substantial character; its schools and churches simply admirable in their arrangement, equipment and architecture, its many manufactories and industries are steadily increasing in number and extent, and are, I believe, carrying on a thriving and prosperous trade with all parts of the Dominion. To what has this genuine prosperity, on which I cannot here dilate, been due?

Partly, doubtless, to the natural advantages the town possesses as being in the midst of a splendid agricultural country; partly, also, to the magnificent water power with which she is endowed; but her wondrous growth and steady advancement are due no less to the activity, the enterprise and the progressiveness of her public-spirited inhabitants, strengthened in no slight degree by the strenuous and unceasing efforts of the gentleman who at present so ably fills the Mayor's chair, and to whom the town owes a debt of gratitude. In the hands of such guardians her future is assured, and her progress will undoubtedly still be onward.

But the retrospect to which I have referred supplies also some sad reminiscences. During my long residence here many a faithful friend and active citizen has passed over to the great majority, and numerous once well-known faces are known among us no more. Some, too, have removed to other places—not a few going to seek fame and fortune in the land whither I turn my steps—the great North-West country, with its splendid possibilities and opportunities for advancement.

I must confess that I cannot leave this my home for many years without deep regret. Here I have found warm and steadfast friends and firm associates—names, indeed, which can never be forgotten. I cannot bid them adieu and not feel keenly the loss I shall sustain. They have honored me frequently with their confidence and esteem; they have as public citizens bestowed upon me the highest position in their gift, and it were worse than base ingratitude could I tear aside the ties which have bound us together without deep feelings of pain and regret.

I may be permitted perhaps to mention here as briefly as possible some of the reasons which prompted me to accept the position which the Government of this country so kindly offered me. This is the first public opportunity I have had of doing so, and I gladly seize it. I felt that in such an influential and important position as that of Commissioner of Dominion Lands, I could find abundant means by the faithful and impartial discharge of my duties to effect something tangible in the interests of settlement and progress in the Great North-West. Its resources are so abundant, its soil so fertile, its climate, if severe at times, generally so agreeable and always healthy, that it only wants settlers of the right kind to make its future a brilliant one, and to establish there a new and mighty empire possessing within its own illimitable boundaries everything to render it "great, glorious and free." To aid in this task even in a remote degree, is, undoubtedly, worthy the ambition of any man, and if I can effect anything in this direction, I shall be more than content to suffer the personal sacrifice involved in leaving Peterborough.

The Northwest has already attracted to it men of the best stamp; its inhabitants are patriotic, sensible, far-seeing men, keenly alive to the true interests of Canada, and desirous of aiding in the development of the country where their lot is cast. The press of the country is remarkably well conducted and deserves high commendation for its work in the interests of civilization and progress; the newspapers display much energy and ability, and by their powerful advocacy and well directed efforts are ably seconding the aim of those who are striving to advance the prosperity of that portion of our Dominion. The Canadian Pacific Railway, already an accomplished fact, and the early completion of branch lines, which are now in prospect, will do much to further the interests of the settlers and bring them within easy reach of the markets. All this will have a tendency to attract to the Northwest the best class of farmers and others, thus promoting settlement; it will also conduce to their contentment and prosperity and will in numerous ways materially assist in securing the well being and advancement of those who seek homes in this "greater Canada."

I trust I shall, from time to time, have the pleasure of welcoming there many of my Peterborough friends who desire to see and judge for themselves concerning the capabilities and prospects of the Northwest.

I need hardly say I shall ever strive so long as I can to merit the good will of my friends by the fulfilment of the duties or my important office with rigid and strict impartiality, without fear or favor, and I sincerely trust I shall live to see the day when the great Northwest shall be thickly settled by an industrious, contented and patriotic people, the equals in all respects of those now dwelling in our own fair Province.

Again I sincerely thank you on behalf of Mrs. Smith and for myself for your kind sentiments and hearty wishes and for your gift, and remain with profound respect,

Yours very gratefully,
H. H. SMITH.

Peterborough, July 14th, 1885.

At the conclusion of the reply the band contributed another of its beautiful selections.

Then there followed brief addresses by the following gentlemen:—Mr. James Stevenson, Rev. V. Clementi, Mr. D. W. Dumble, Mr. Geo. Hilliard, M. P., Mr. T. Cahill, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, Mr. John Burnham, M. P., Mr. J. R. Stratton, Mr. C. W. Sawers, Mr. A. P. Poussette, Mr. H. Calcutt, Mr. James Stratton, Mr. E. J. Toker and Mr. Geo. A. Cox, mayor. The remarks made were all of a most hearty and complimentary character, and testified to the fact of Mr. Smith having worthily won the high personal popularity he enjoyed. Even those who were opposed to him politically spoke of the personal friendship and good feeling, unimpaired by the bitterness and strife of the political arena, existing between them and Mr. Smith. All agreed as to the exceedingly efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of Mayor for several terms, and to the fairness and impartiality which he had associated with his civic administration and felt sure that the same zeal, fairness, painstaking and diligence would characterize the discharge of the duties in connection with the important and responsible position with which he had been honored in the Northwest. All joined in wishing him happiness in his new career, and in hoping that ere long he would return with his fortune made to become again a welcome and honored citizen of Peterborough.

Mr. Smith said he could not allow the meeting to separate without again thanking them all for the great honor they had done him, and though he had in the past taken an active part in the political, civic and other events of the town, he hoped he left Peterborough without an enemy.

Some one present then proposed three cheers for Mr. Smith, which were given with a right hearty good will, the band playing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." With cheers for the Queen, the company separated, and a short time was spent in personal congratulations and leave-taking. Mr. Smith leaves town for Cobourg to-day, and from thence he will proceed to his new home in Winnipeg.

A soldier in Posen gallantly rescued a lad from drowning not long ago. This act caused him to be fifteen minutes late in coming back to the barracks, and the martinets who held sway there punished his crime by eight days imprisonment in a dungeon. They hold that his first duty as a soldier was to be back in time, no matter who was drowning.

In one jail in Egypt Mr. Clifford Lloyd found no fewer than Seventy-five of the leading men of the district with their feet covered with blood and festering sores, weeks after the bastinadoing to which they had been subjected by the order of the mudir. Their hands still bore the deep cuts of the thongs by which they had been suspended in order to extort a confession, and the thumbscrew had been unsparingly applied. Two of the prisoners had died under the courbash, the others were lingering in agony.

Verdi Provoked—to Laughter.

Verdi, who is one of the most modest and retiring of great men, went recently in strict incognito—as he thought—to the Turin Exposition, and made his way to the gallery in which the musical instruments are exhibited. An amateur who happened to be trying a new organ recognized the visitor, however, and immediately began an improvisation on a theme from "Aida." Verdi rose in a rage from the seat which he had taken at the furthest end of the gallery, and put on his hat, intending to beat a hasty retreat. But it was too late: the news of his presence had spread, every piano and harmonium in the section struck up an air of Verdi's, no two playing the same one; and even the piano-organs themselves joined in the discordant chorus. To get to the door he had to run the gauntlet of his own melodies; but the comic element in the situation proving too much for his gravity, he threw himself into a chair to have a hearty laugh. He was interrupted in the midst of it by an attendant, who thrust into his hand a card, from a glance at which the astonished composer learned that his "correct weight" was just 142 pounds. He had taken his seat in the chair of a weighing machine. Thinking he had had surprises enough for one day, Verdi hastily left the building, and he has not been seen there since.

German Legends.

Though Germany has been more fully explored in this direction than almost any other country, it still possesses peculiar attractions for the collector. The peasantry in the center and the south are more easy of access than English farm laborers, and their minds are more richly stored with the wisdom and foolishness of the past. Not that they are more superstitious; the ancient rite has become a mere game and the charm a jest; the old story is oftener told than not with an incredulous smile; but even the middle aged are not afraid that you will laugh at them for talking about such matters, and the aged love to dwell upon them, together with the other memories of their youth. Every district, too, has its own peculiar character. In East Friesland the legends are dark, stern, at times tragic; even when heathen in their origin, they have been remodeled by the spirit of a firm Protestant faith. In Central Germany they are brighter and more humorous, occasionally more grotesque; the deepest note they touch is a certain pensive tenderness, and hardly a trace of conscious Christianity is to be found among them, though here and there in the memory of a saint now forgotten in the district may be found a strange combination with other materials. In the Austrian Alps, again, they are more graceful, imaginative, pathetic, and almost invariably strongly colored by Catholicism. Thus the Frau Berchta or Frau Hohle of other districts here becomes the wife of Pilate, to whom popular fancy has assigned a sad but not ignoble fate in the other world. As she confessed the truth and yet was not baptised, her spirit is doomed to wander through the earth until the Judgment day, and to her the souls of all unbaptized children are gathered. Summer nights she leads them through the corn and the flax fields, where they pick off the mildewed ears and harmful insects, and bear them away in their little pitchers; but in winter, particularly about Christmas time, the strange procession will sometimes pass through a village in which an inconsolate mother dwells, and then a little hand will tap at the window, and when the mourner looks out she will see her child, no longer the baby they carried to the churchyard six months ago, but a bright little thing who, if it had a living body, one would take to be three or four years old. Yet she knows at once that it is her own, and it says: "Mother you must stop crying; all your tears fall into my pitcher; it has grown so heavy that I can hardly carry it, and they drip down on my clothes and make them so cold and cumbersome that I can scarcely keep up with the rest." If the mother glances down the street she will see a form so bright "that you might have taken it for Our Lady's," with a throng of little children crowding around her, "as if they loved her."—Saturday Review.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1885.

A CHANGE URGENTLY NEEDED.

We are in receipt of a communication from Norwood, animadverting in strong language against the appointment of Mr. Earl, of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, as an examiner in reading of the pupils who went up for third and second class certificates at the Norwood high school.

We agree with our correspondent that the principle of such appointments is bad, and in this particular case, the action of Mr. James Coyle Brown was both tricky and disgraceful.

According to law, the Board of Examiners, consisting in this case, of the County Inspector, the Town Inspector and Mr. Davidson, the head master of the Norwood high school, should have met together and appointed the examiners in reading at the examinations. Acting in a grossly irregular manner, the County Inspector and Mr. Davidson met and appointed Mr. B. Earl such examiner at Norwood, and Mr. Davidson examiner at Peterborough. This was done without notice in any manner to the other member of the Board, and so shortly before the hour appointed for the examinations, that the town examiner's hands should be tied.

The latter, perceiving at once the inadvisability of appointing teachers of competing Institutes as examiners, and recognizing that it should always be the aim and desire of those in authority in the matter to choose parties against whom there can be no taint of suspicion; who would be free from any prejudice, undue influence, or bias of any nature whatever, repudiated the appointment made in such an underhand manner, and recommended for nomination a gentleman, a former examiner in the University of Toronto, and the Educational Department, on learning of the informal and illegal proceedings of the County Inspector, ratified the Town Inspector's nominee.

It is well known that Mr. James Coyle Brown is a most inveterate opponent of our Collegiate Institute; it is equally well known what a deep friendship and fellow-feeling exists between Mr. Brown and Mr. Earl, and it is important that both pupils and schools should have a perfect confidence in the integrity, honour and fairness of the examiners.

When it is understood that even a difference of five marks damns the chances of a candidate, and it is understood that a simple understanding between Mr. Brown and Mr. Earl might greatly raise the standard of the Norwood High School, and an equally simple understanding between Mr. Brown and Mr. Davidson might unjustly underrate the standing of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, it may at once be perceived how clearly it was the duty of the Board of Examiners to appoint disinterested parties.

The head of our Collegiate Institute speaks in no measured terms of such appointments, and we believe that we are only echoing the sentiments of right thinking people when we say that such an appointment was a most improper one.

We have been continually receiving reports all from all parts of the County complaining of the negligence, incapacity, intermeddling, petty spite and partiality of Mr. James Coyle Brown, and that too from influential and interested ratepayers calling for his instant removal from his present position, and we believe that the only way to place our county educational system on any kind of a solid working basis, is to grant their urgent demands. Too long has the present state of affairs been in existence, and it is high time that immediate steps were taken to secure a County Inspector who will be an honor and an assistance and not a drawback to our County's intellectual progress.

Last year the County Council recognized the complaints of their constituents and the unsatisfactory performance of his duties by Mr. James Coyle Brown, and ordered him to bring down a report of the state of the work under his jurisdiction. The report was brought down in January last, but the prejudice, injustice and unfitness of the work was so gross and raised such a storm of indignation among teachers whom he had hardly ever seen and who were of recognized ability and success, that before the adjournment of the council the report was unaccountably misappropriated, and, strange to relate, it was the first and last report of that body that ever met the same ignoble fate.

From every direction we have had letters expressing utter want of confidence in him and his work, and there is not a single teacher of any standing under his jurisdiction who does not despise his methods and tolerates him only on account of his position. On all sides there are complaints of his boorishness; of his partiality and unfairness; of his incapacity and incompetency; of his negligence and dereliction of duty; of his favoritism in granting permits whilst there are teachers in good standing with proper certificates; of the grossness of his language to those differing in opinion, religious and otherwise.

It is high time that the position of County Inspector was filled more worthily in every respect, and we have no hesitation in saying that in the interests of education the County Council cannot be too hasty in making the only change possible in the County Inspectorate—a change for the better.

MARCH OF THE MIDLANDS'.

Graphic Details of their Experiences.

Trials and Triumphs on Stream and Strand.

FORT PITT, N. W. T., June 23rd.

DEAR EXAMINER.—When I sent my last we were lying at Telegraph Coulee, not knowing what our next move would be, but on Sunday, June 13th, we got orders to join our battalion. The steamer Baroness came along, so we struck tents and once more prepared to move. There was first a heavy cargo to embark, consisting of stores for the 90th, Queen's Own, Grenadiers and our own Battalion, but we worked with a will and soon had everything on board. A detachment of twelve men, under Lieut. Brennan, was left here to look after the remainder of the stores, and we steamed off up the river. The Baroness is a long, narrow, high-decked steamer built much after the style of the old Mississippi river boats, and her propelling power consists of a huge wheel, directly on the stern, the full width of the boat, and much resembling an old fashioned water wheel. She has about twenty-five "roustabouts" on board, principally breeds, and I was informed that she

COST THE GOVERNMENT $800 PER DAY.

Against the strong current of the North Saskatchewan she could not make more than seven or eight miles an hour, but we enjoyed the sail immensely all the same. The scenery along the river was beautiful, reminding one of Ontario more than anything I have seen yet. The south branch is hemmed in all along by precipitous banks, sometimes over 100 feet high, but the north branch is bounded by gently rolling hills and beautifully wooded slopes, with broad breaks here and there, showing the beautiful green grass, dotted with lovely flowers of every hue. Truly, this is a most beautiful country and decidedly "a land worth fighting for."

On Monday, June 14th, we ARRIVED AT BATTLEFORD,

passing on our way a couple of once happy homesteads lying in ruins, the work of these red fiends whom the Government is treating so leniently. Battleford is a small place itself, but is on a most lovely site, overlooking the Saskatchewan and Battle rivers, and will be a great city some day, doubtless. Here we saw Poundmaker, the noted chief, now a very quiet prisoner, and many other "breeds" and Indian prisoners, including the murderers of Payne and Fremont. The houses and goods and chattels belonging to settlers in the neighborhood have all been destroyed by the Indians and the poor people have not much hope in the compensation they are to receive from the Government, for it appears it will amount to very little. Here there was a company of the Queen's Own and a part of "A" and "B" Batteries. The uniforms of the

ERSTWHILE, SPRUCE AND DANDY TORONTO CORPS

were in tatters, while the artillery men, who, around Quebec and Kingston, always look as though they had come out of a band-box, were dressed in bag and brown derry costumes, a greater part of which was of their own manufacture, but they looked brown, healthy and soldierly for all that.

About two o'clock p. m. we resumed our voyage up the river, amid the same ever-varying, ever-beautiful scenery. On account of the difficulty of navigating the Saskatchewan, the boats do not run at night, but daylight lasts so long out here just now that we did not have to wait long. At 10 o'clock p.m. I could see distinctly to read "solid brevier," and at half past two a.m. there is good clear daylight again. At a terribly early hour we were again on the move for Fort Pitt, where we expected to join our Battalion and we got in there about six o'clock on Tuesday evening. Here we found the 10th Grenadiers and 90th Rifles, both showing, in their tattered uniforms and general appearance, the effects of war.

THEY RECEIVED US WITH JOY, for we brought them their supplies, which they had not until then received, and among the parcels from home for both regiments were some for poor fellows who, alas, wanted nothing more on this earth. Pitt is a rather miserable and unhealthy looking spot, but we were not allowed to stop here long for we found the remainder of our battalion were at Frog Lake and we were to go over and join them. However, we remained here for the night, not being allowed to go ashore at all, and at an early hour next morning we started for Frog Lake, first moving our luggage and ourselves onto the steamer Northwest, a fine boat, which took us the remainder of the journey. About 2 in the afternoon red-coats could be seen dotting the banks here and there ahead, and, as we knew that at last we were a cheer burst from our men which was caught up and re echoed by those ashore. Then we came into the landing and there stood our gallant colonel and many of our officers and about a hundred of our men, who had come out all the way, to meet us, from Frog Lake, where the camp was, 8 miles away. They all looked splendid but very ragged and had discarded their uniforms, caps and cross-belts for others of sacking, which looked well and soldier-like; we were not long in following their example.

WITH OUR OLD COMRADES AGAIN,

Entrance Examiners.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Can you explain how it was that Mr. Earl, of Peterborough, a teacher in a rival institute was appointed Examiner at Norwood? We consider it unfair and unjust that he should have been sent here. Why not send a person who is not actively engaged in a competing Institute, as is done in the majority of places? It is also reported here that, owing to over-sharpness of the County Inspector, the whole examination is void. Is this so? Kindly answer in your paper, so that all the pupils may get the reply.

Yours truly,

Book Notice.

Godey's Lady's Book for August is a delightful number, handsomer in appearance, and more generally satisfactory than any of its predecessors. Every month seems to mark a stride in the progress of this popular magazine. The present issue opens with a beautiful chiaro-oscuro cut of "My Pets," a fine study of animal life as contrasted with graceful girlhood, and grouped against a strong back-ground of nature. The illustrations this month are capital. A series of letters describing the trials of one pressed into service to write another's love-letters, under the title of "A Postscript," are particularly good. A powerful serial story, translated from the French by Emily Lennox, continues in this number, under the title of "The Yoke of Honor." An entertaining conversation on chicken-culture, incubating, etc., forms a feature of the book, and introduces a series of projected articles on the useful and ornamental occupations of women. "Phillips's Pocket Money" will furnish some valuable suggestions to women who are longing for some way to turn a profitable penny. A short parlor drama, called "He is an Englishman," is given this month for the use of summer idlers who do not care to go too deeply into the histronic. "Bella Donna" is a very clever story of limited length, and Mrs. Hayden's "Cup of Cold Water" is well calculated to win the fancy of all lovers of romance. Godey's never looked better than it looks now. In this day, when so many old publications are verging toward decrepitude and dotage, it is a pleasure to find one that defies the march of time, and still preserves its pristine vigor and freshness while the years roll on. That all may be convinced of its merits, the Publisher offers to send the book for the remainder of the year for 75 cents.

The Joseph Hall Machine Works.

During a trip to Oshawa we paid a visit to the Hall Machine Works and found them in full blast. It is a most agreeable sight, in these days of depression, to visit a large manufacturing establishment where all is humming. We found one hundred and twenty-five men employed full time, which is more than twice the number employed in any other establishment in the town. The machinery is in an exceptionally good condition, and the different rooms in the immense establishment, models of cleanliness and order. We counted, ready for shipment, fourteen Portable Engines, twenty-six New Model Threshers, besides Pitt's Planet, California and Dingee Woodburry Horse Powers, and Coal and Water Tank for engines. Two Model Threshers and one Hall Thresher can be seen in the paint shop every day complete, without interfering with any other department or class of work. We found twenty-six boilers for Portable Steam Engines in course of construction, in the Boiler Shop, and the engines for the same are being built in the General Machinery Department, besides Leffel Water Wheels, Saw Mills, Shingle Mills, Leather Splitting Machines, Printing Presses, &c., &c. The Reapers and Mowers have all been completed for this harvest, and nearly all shipped.

The instructions to the employees in every department are to reject every piece of material found for any cause to be defective. The greatest possible care is taken to purchase only the best stock, and a system has been adopted which prevents any inferior material from being worked up into the machines. Every machine manufactured is put in full operation before it is shipped. From what we observed we don't see how any but the best made machines can pass the severe inspection to which they are subjected before being delivered to the farmers.—Port Perry Standard, July 9th. a9d-3t

MISCELLANEOUS.

Money is loaned in London at 1 per cent. per annum.

A clergyman recently told his congregation, in describing Heaven, that "it will always be Sunday there." This assurance ought to please base-ball nines, since the decision of a New York Judge that there is no law against playing base-ball on Sunday; and persons who devote the day to fishing may make extra efforts to get there; but the small boy who is obliged to accompany his parents to church twice a day, and attend Sabbath-school in the afternoon, will be apt to go in training for some other place, where Sunday doesn't come oftener than once a year.—Norristown Herald.

One of the wealthiest men in Philadelphia—some say the wealthiest—is hardly ever heard of at all. He is Mr. Isaac V. Williamson, who, although past eighty years of age, is yet spry and active and may be seen any day in the Stock Exchange moving about like the youngest. He lives at Bryn Mawr and goes out and in every morning and afternoon on the trains. His habits and dress are those of a man eking out a subsistence, but he is popularly reputed worth between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000. His dress is poor and always the same; his food is the simplest; he has no servants, no luxuries, no horses—nothing whatever to indicate his great wealth. He is a bachelor, with few relatives, and lives by himself. He is charitable, however, and has given many large sums to deserving objects.

When Abe Buford Scalped a Man.

In the spring of 1854 or 1855 I ran up to Lexington to attend the races at the center of Eden's garden, and, of course, General Abe and Colonel Tom Buford were there with their invincible thoroughbreds. Colonel Tom, from a sudden quarrel that grew out of the excitement of the race course one afternoon, played a duet on pistols with an adversary whose name I cannot now recall.

General Abe, his brother, and I were standing about forty or fifty feet off when the fusillade began, and remained apparently unconcerned, for, though his brother was hotly engaged, the old hero was willing, according to the rules of Kentucky chivalry, to see a fair fight and let the best man win. Colonel Tom struck his adversary once or twice in several shots, not seriously wounding him. When all the chambers of his enemy's pistol were emptied a friend who stood near, and not having the fear of brother Abe before his eyes, ran up and thrust a fresh weapon into the hands of Tom Buford's assailant. General Abe, believing too firmly in "fair play" to thus permit two men to combine against one, and that one "Brother Tom," at once jerked out a knife of glittering blade and made a rush for the too busy interloper. More quickly than it takes to tell it, General Abe, with one hand had seized the poor fellow by the hair, and, like a flash of lightning and with the dexterity of an Indian, made a circular incision on the crown of his head, and, giving the hair a sudden twist, lifted off as neat a scalp as one would go a day's ride to see.

"Now d—n you," said General Abe, as he coolly tossed his Indian trophy to one side and released his victim—"now go, d—n you! I guess a hair restorative won't bring out the wool on your head again soon." The frightened fellow, never having experienced that kind of warfare, gathered his head in both hands and ran off yelling as if Captain Jack and all the Modocs were close upon his heels.

I was horrified—it being the first scalp I had ever seen taken—and riding home that evening I asked General Buford how he could do such a barbarous thing.

"He ought to have attended to his own business," he replied; "I was willing, though my brother was engaged, to keep hands off and let 'em fight it out, and when he ran up and handed his friend a pistol to kill Tom with I would have been justified in killing him."—Nashville World.

Wall Street.

Across the island of New York in 1685 a wall of earth and stone was built, a wall cannon mounted, to keep back the savages. Along this wall ran a street, and as the street kept the line of the wall it was appropriately called Wall street. Short, narrow, unarchitectural, and yet unique in its history, and, excepting Lombard street, London, the mightiest street in the world. There the United States government was born. There Washington held his levees. There Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Arnold, and Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Knox, and other brilliant women of the Revolution, displayed their charms. There preached Witherspoon, Jonathan Edwards and George Whitefield. There Dr. John Mason chided Alexander Hamilton for writing the constitution without any God in it. There criminals were harnessed to wheelbarrows and compelled to draw burdens. There they were lashed through the streets behind carts to which they were fastened. There negroes were sold in the slave-mart. That street has seen the coronation and burial of ten thousand fortunes. The abode of just the opposites—unswerving integrity and tip-top scoundrelism, heaven-descended charity and bloodless shylockism.

The history of Wall street would be the history of the commerce of America. I would like to put the plowshare in at the curbstone in front of Trinity church, and drive clear through to Wall street ferry, and so it shall go if the horses are strong enough to draw the plow. We are all stunned with the recent defalcations in Wall street, and there is no more absorbing question in America to-day than this: What caused "Black Wednesday?"

What caused "Black Friday?" What has caused all the black days of financial disaster with which Wall street has been connected for the last forty years? Some say it is the credit system. Something back of that. Some say it is the spirit of gambling ever and anon becoming epidemic. Something back of that. Some say it is the sudden shrinkage in the value of securities, which even the most honest and intelligent men could not have foreseen. Something back of that. I will give you the primal cause of all these disturbances.

It is the extravagance of modern society, which impels a man to spend more money than he can honestly make and he goes into Wall street in order to get the purposes of immediate display, and sometimes the man is to blame and sometimes his wife, and oftener both. Five thousand dollars income, ten thousand dollars, twenty thousand dollars income is not enough for a man to keep up the style of living he proposes, and therefore he steers his bark toward the maelstrom. Other men have suddenly snatched up fifty or a hundred thousand dollars—why not he? The present income of the man not being large enough, he must move earth and hell to catch up with his neighbor. Others have a country-seat—so must he. Others have extravagant caterers—so must he. Others have palatial residences—so must he.

Extravagance is the cause of all the defalcations of the last forty years, and if you will go through the history of all the great panics and all the great financial disturbances, no sooner have you found the story than right back of it you find the story of how many horses the man had, how many carriages the man had, how many residences in the country the man had, how many banquets the man gave—always, and not one exception for the last forty years, either directly or indirectly, extravagance the cause.—Dr. Talmage in Frank Leslie's.

The signal officers on Mount Washington have only a fortnightly mail. They go down after it on boards, that run on the railroad track at the rate of a mile a minute, and they climb back on snowshoes.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Military Meeting.

The members of the 57th battalion held a meeting last night, when the question of attending Col. Williams funeral in Port Hope was considered. Lieut. Col. J. Z. Rogers had communicated with the Government but had not received any definite reply. The officers will attend the funeral, and very likely the whole battalion. Another meeting will be held to-morrow evening.

Race at the Lansdowne.

Last night at the Lansdowne W. Logan beat J. Thompson in a two-mile race on roller skates. A very good start was made, with the former leading; but before going one round his skate came off. The roller was quickly adjusted, however, and before the other had gone a lap he was passed again by Logan, who won the race by over two laps. The trophy was a very pretty silver cup put up for competition by the friends of Thompson.

Trying the New Hose.

The members of the Peterborough Fire Brigade turned out last night for wet drill, covered by their new coats. The engine was stationed on the Charlotte street bridge, and to it was attached the two hundred feet of the new Maltese cross hose, which gave every satisfaction necessary, standing high pressure without the slightest noticeable twitch. One hundred feet of cotton hose was attached to the hydrant in front of Mr. Green's store, but did not stand the test very long, and burst in the centre before five minutes had elapsed. The firemen all speak in the highest terms of the new horse, particularly for its steadiness under full fire pressure.

Wait for the Biggest and the Best.

The Firemen's excursion on Civic Holiday, August 13th, will be the excursion of the season. The excursionists will be hurried along smoothly and pleasantly on the first-class cars of the C. P. R. and from Toronto across the Lake to the Falls. This is the shortest, quickest and most pleasant route to the Falls. Passengers will be landed within a stone's throw of the great cataract. Don't neglect to arrange for the purchase of a ticket, only $2.50, for this great excursion. Look out for posters and watch this paper for further announcements. Another such chance will not be presented this season. Wait for it.

Col. Williams' Remains.

The Arrival at Owen Sound—Expected to be in Port Hope this Evening.

The steamship Algoma arrived in Owen Sound at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, from Port Arthur, having on board the remains of Col. Williams. Contrary to expectation the remains were not brought to Toronto last night. A large deputation from Port Hope and adjacent towns met the steamer, and ample preparations were made to begin the sorrowful ride home by rail. A baggage car was heavily draped and suitably inscribed. The car and its sorrowing followers arrived at the Union Station, Toronto, at 10.45 this morning. A large number of additional mourners from the east were present to escort the remains to Port Hope, where they will arrive at about eight o'clock this evening.

Our New Story.

Don't neglect to begin reading our new story, "Called Back," which will appear in Thursday's issue.

Following Our Example.

Following the example of Peterborough, Port Hope is to introduce the electric light. Mr. J. W. Quinlan supplies the "Ball system" for 12 street lights at 30c. each night.

An Attractive Window.

The pieces composing the magnificent tea set, which was presented by the citizens of Peterborough to Mr. H. H. Smith last evening, are on exhibition in the show window of R. W. Muncaster's jewellery store.

Meeting of Excellent Material.

Last night at the Grand Central hotel a meeting was held to re-organize a baseball team, which meeting assumed a business-like appearance from the word "go". A good deal of enthusiasm was shown by those present, who elected the following officers for the mangagement of the club. President, H. Calcutt; Vice-President, R. J. Sailsbury; Manager, Richard Reeves; Secretary, A. P. Choate; Treasurer, W. T. Spencer; Committee on grounds, W. Logan, A. P. Choate and A. Cameron; Printing committee, W. Metheral, W. T. Spencer and R. J. Sailsbury. The club will start practicing on the new grounds between Ashburnham and Peterborough immediately.

Lacrosse at Beaverton.

Yesterday the Checkers, of Beaverton, and the Orillias contested for the championship of Central Ontario. A number of Peterborough sports witnessed the match, and report that it was played in a gentlemanly manner from start to finish. The first game was taken for the Checkers, after seven minutes' play, by A. Berchard. The second was scored after 25 minutes' play by George Tudhope, for the Orillias. The third game was collared by the Checkers, M. C. Cameron making the lucky shot after 11 minutes' play, whilst McCall took the fourth and fifth games for the Orillias in 16½ and 5 minutes, respectively. Mr. H. LeBrun refereed the match, and says he was not called upon even once to settle any foul play. The Orillias are coming to Peterborough on August 13th to play for the "Ed. Brown cup."

George Street Annual S. S. Pic-nic.

The annual picnic of the George street Methodist Church Sunday School was held yesterday in the beautiful grove at Norwood. This picnic is very popular with the children, teachers and congregation. A train of eight coaches left, the C. P. R. station here at a quarter past 9 o'clock, with 525 people, young and old, every one of whom seemed determined to enjoy themselves. An hour's ride brought them to the grounds at Norwood. The ladies and teachers at once commenced to get dinner, and the tables fairly creaked under the load of dainty edibles. The genial superintendant, Mr. J. D. Flavelle, organized the boys and girls into clubs. The boys had their lacrosse, baseball, and foot ball. The girls had swinging till dinner was ready. About one o'clock the rain, which had been threatening, came down with a vengeance and continued till 4, almost without intermission. It put a damper on the fun and also on the ground, making it anything but comfortable. The children, however, got into an adjacent barn where the youngsters, whose spirits nothing could damp, had singing and other amusements that went to make up an enjoyable occasion. Some of the boys had races, of which quite a number was run between the showers. When the rain ceased a walk through the village was the order, which made quite a stir on their usually quiet streets. With the exception of the rain the picnic was a great success, even with the rain every one seemed well pleased with their trip. The committee and teachers are to be congratulated on making this annual picnic so pleasant to all who took part in it, while the good people of Norwood vie with each other in making it pleasant for picnic parties.

Personal.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw was in Port Hope yesterday, the annual speech day of Trinity College School.

Mr. H. Kay Coleman was present on Trinity College School speech day. He and Mrs. Coleman started on their holiday trip down the St. Lawrence, to-day.

Mr. Walter J. Rogers, a recent graduate of Trinity College, son of Mr. Rogers, Post Master, left town last evening to embark for England, where he will reside for some time to come.

Mr. P. Rudkins arrived in town this morning on the 5:30 C. P. R. train. His numerous friends in his native town rejoice to see him once more back for his holiday term.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lech returned to town on Tuesday evening after a five week's wedding tour. Mrs. Lech will remain in town for a short time, while Mr. Lech returns at once to New York to resume his business duties. We are glad to know that Mr. Lech's services are so highly appreciated by the firm with which he is connected, that his salary has been increased by the sum of $600 per year. He has also been assigned a new territory, and will hereafter travel in the Southern States.

The Returning Volunteers.

Still Making Slow Progress.

WINNIPEG, July 14.—A number of military men have gone to Selkirk to await the arrival of boats with the 90th, Queen's Own, Midland and Grenadiers. They are not expected before Wednesday or Thursday. All are expected to go direct east except the 90th.

The York-Simcoe Battalion and Governor-General's body guard arrived at Fort Qu'Appelle yesterday, and are expected here to-morrow. The Montreal Garrison Artillery arrive to-night.

The Market.

The market to-day was very small, there not being any more than half a dozen on the Square with produce. Butter sold for 17 cents; eggs, 13 cents per dozen; chickens, 50 cents per pair; raspberries for $1.10 to $1.20 per pail.

St. Andrew's S. S. Picnic.

Remember the St. Andrew's Sunday School excursion will take place to Norwood to-morrow. Train leaves O. and Q. station at 10.30 a.m., returning at 6.45 p.m.

Arrived for Inspection.

A new hook and ladder truck, which was recently built in Brockton, for the fire protection department of that place, but which is not now needed on account of that suburb being incorporated with Toronto, arrived at the C. P. R. station to-day. Mr. T. Ruthford, chief of the fire brigade, and other members inspected it this afternoon and highly approved of its fittings in every respect. The fact of its possessing every facility for mounting besides extension hooks and ladders, should meet with their special approval.

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. MARCH OF THE MIDLANDS.

Graphic Details of their Experiences.

Trials and Triumphs on Stream and Strand.

Here a party was detailed from the 49th and our own company to guard the stores under Lieut. Youman, of the 49th. Our party consists of E. Daley, J. Thompson, M. Brackenridge, H. Hill, M. Seery, and myself, and with no very good humor we saw the remainder of our comrades start on their 8 mile march. It was terribly hot and our poor fellows suffered much from thirst on their way out. We found the value of our mosquito nets that night and the next, for just here they are something awful, being of phenoemnal proportions and

VERY ACTIVE AND ATHLETIC.

Behind our protecting shield, or rather helmet, of netting, however, we could laugh their efforts to scorn, and think gratefullly of the thoughtful ones at home. On Friday a party came out to relieve us, and we proceeded to the camp, being fortunate enough to get a ride, although 8 miles do not seem much to any of us now.

The country between the river and Frog Lake is simply charming, putting one in mind of descriptions of English rural scenery except for the complete absence of man and all trace of him. Lovely valleys and gentle slopes clad in the richest verdure stretch as far as the eye can see, and away off in the dim distance ring

RANGES OF BLUE AND LOFTY HILLS.

On a broad plateau about 300 feet above the river, and overlooking the country for miles around, the Midland Battalion have erected a lofty cross to the memory of the poor victims of the Frog Lake massacre. Towards evening we reached our camp, and were given a facetious welcome by the boys as though we had been absent for years. The camp was situated close to the ruins of what was once the settlement of Frog Lake, and a more lovely situation for a little village it would be impossible to imagine. There had been about a dozen or more happy homes in the little hamlet before the red devils came down on it, and as I gazed on the now deserted ruins my blood boiled with rage against the destroyers, and our men could be heard all around expressing their

WILLINGNESS TO STAY ALL SUMMER

for the purpose of punishing properly the perpetrators of these atrocities. Everywhere could be seen the evidences of the toil and efforts of these poor people to make comfortable homes for themselves, and there is no doubt it would have grown rapidly. Several places the ground was blackened by the stain of blood, which seemed to resist the efforts of weather and everything else to remove it. Several of the bodies were buried by our battalion, including Gilchrist and Willmcraft, and we erected crosses to their memory.

Gen. Middleton's men came into camp on Saturday, along with a party of Boulton's men, Lieut. Howard and the famous Gatling. Then we got orders to proceed back to the river on Sunday, with the probability of going home, as Big Bear's prisoners were all re-taken and his band dispersed. You cannot imagine the joy with with which this news was hailed, as the boys were all about tired of it, especially as has passed, and we prepared to start on Sunday morning. Frog Lake itself is a beautiful sheet of water, reminding one very much of Rice Lake; it is well filled with fish and covered with ducks, with which we had excellent sport. The beach is of snow-white sand and pretty pebbles. Notwithstanding all its beauties, we were not sorry to leave it. On Sunday morning the battalion formed in column on their markers, then wheeled in fours to the right by successive companies, and off we went to the river. We had not all been together for a long time, and as we moved off we formed a very

LONG AND IMPOSING COLUMN.

The scarlet coats contrasting with the vivid green all around formed a splendid picture, as the men strode briskly forward. Notwithstanding the intense heat the eight miles was covered in very little over 2 hours, and the men threw themselves down to wait for the boat which did not come up till after 6 o'clock. Everything was loaded in short order and we were soon spinning down the river at a fine pace. We ran till near dark and then tied up for the night, and the only untoward event that happened was a horse walking overboard, he swam ashore and was secured. The next morning early we ran into Pitt and found to our disgust that we had to go ashore and pitch tents, to remain a few days. We were soon ashore and had everything off too. Then we were marched about a mile up the hill to our camp ground, where we still remain. In addition to the 10th and 90th, who are here, there are about 50 policemen and a number of Boulton's men. The situation is damp and unhealthy, the grub very bad and the men discontented at present writing. They are trying to get volunteers to remain but they are very scarce in our battalion. I explored the partially burned fort and visited the grave of poor Cowan, the policeman who was shot and afterwards so horribly mangled by the Indians during the siege in April, this morning. There are a large number of breeds and Indians around here who came in and surrendered. The

SETTLERS ARE DISSATISFIED

with the easy way they have been let off, and prophecy more trouble before long. However, I think they have had their eyes opened and have received a lesson they will not forget in a hurry. They were under the impression for some time, that all the men the government had was the few red coated policemen, who had so much trouble to look after them. When they saw hundreds of red coats coming down on them from different points, however, they were struck dumb with amazement, at the immense power of the "great white mother," when she wants to use it, and they now look on the scarlet tunic (albeit dirty and faded, like ours just now),

WITH THE SAME PROFOUND RESPECT

that savage races in all parts of the world have learned to give it. Yesterday the McLean family, and the rest of Big Bear's prisoners, to the number of 24, arrived here. They were at once taken on board the fine steamer "Marquis," and everything possible done for them. They tell narrowing tales of their cruel treatment while in the hands of the Indians, and show plainly the effects of the fatigue and privation they have undergone. Color Sergeant Percy Myles of our company, is going to remain in the country, in the force that is to be raised, probably as Lieutenant, but I do not know any more of our boys who will do so. They are all in good health and spirits, in the expectation of going home and they can't get there a bit too soon. We may be home as soon as this, and at all events we will not be far behind it.

The Councillors to Attend.

In response to a letter received by Mayor Cox from Port Hope from Mr. Hugel, chairman of the burial committee in connection with the funeral obsequies of the late lamented Col. A. T. H. Williams, M. P., it is probable that the members of the corporation of Peterborough will attend the funeral ceremony which will be a strictly military one.

Personal.

Mr. A Jacques, advance and general contracting agent for the celebrated Doris circus, which will exhibit in Peterborough on Thursday, Aug. 13th, was in town to-day Riverside Park, south of Hunter street bridge, has been secured for exhibition grounds.

Mr. A. R. Clarke, formerly of Peterboro', gave us a call yesterday, having dropped off to see some friends while on his way to Europe on a pleasure and business trip. He expects to be absent about six weeks. We wish him a pleasant voyage and safe return.

Dominion Doings.

Toronto's Civic Holiday will be August 17th.

Eight new cases of small-pox were reported in Montreal on Tuesday.

John Elyward, a yardsman on the railway, was killed in Toronto Tuesday by falling beneath the cars.

A driver of a wagon, named Laird, was killed in Montreal on Tuesday by his horse and wagon falling on him on the street.

Sturgeon Shenon, of St. Thomas, Ont., was thrown off a mowing machine yesterday and killed.

The Minister of Militia has refused the 13th Battalion, Hamilton, permission to go to the American side of the Niagara river in uniform.

Gustave De Wolff has been arrested and gaoled at Montreal for cashing a forged draft and presenting letters of credit in the name of Count Batocki.

The examination in Montreal of Fong-ah-Yu, suspected of the murder of Sing Lee, in Rome, N. Y., has been postponed for eight days.

Alphone Mousset was ejected from the civic hospital in Montreal on Tuesday for importuning his dying wife to sign a contract recognizing him as a sole possessor of some $5,000 she had in bank shares.

It is stated that there are fifteen cases of scarlet fever in the Kingston Orphans' Home. There was one death in the institution and the probability is that all the inmates will have to stand a seige.

The corner stone of the new Methodist church at Smith Falls was laid on Tuesday by M. W. Bro. Rae, with Masonic honors. There was a large attendance of the fraternity from Ottawa and the surrounding districts.

Madame Lebeau, of Montreal, a widow whose husband was killed by falling through the roof of a house belonging to the Grand Trunk, has sued the company for $20,000 damages for the loss of the deceased.

Belleville.

The Belleville Board of Education has increased the salaries of several teachers, and also agreed to remit the High School fees of County pupils for the past two terms on condition of receiving from the County Council $150.

The condition of the Belleville cheese market remains unchanged from last Saturday. The June make is about all sold, the top of the market being 7¾, although some few producers are looking for a slight advance. July make is holding firm at 7¼ with a good prospect of its advancing to 8 cents.—Intelligencer July 15.

The officers of the 15th and 49th Battalions are wearing mourning for thirty days, as a token to the memory of the late Col. Williams, of the Midland Battalion.

ANOTHER WAR CLOUD.

Rumoured Advance of Russian Forces.

Frontier Commission Hastens to Herat.

LONDON, Eng., July 15.—The Times has received a despatch from Jagdoradaten, via Meshed, July 14, which says it is rumoured that Russians have advanced in force to the Zulfikar Pass, and that they are occupying Persian territory as though it was Russian. The despatch also says that the British frontier Commission is moving nearer to Herat. Reinforcements are arriving at Askabad. The advance of Russians has made the Afghans anxious, but they are determined to resolutely resist any attempt to seize their territory. They are puzzled at these warlike preparations of the Russians under cover of pacific assurances.

LONDON, July 15, 4 p.m.—The remaining members of the British-Afghan frontier commission, with their military escort, have suddenly struck their tents, and are marching rapidly towards Herat. The reason for their hasty retirement is unknown, and the news has caused much uneasiness. It is thought the commission must have reasons for leaving the cool hills for the heated valley.

The Returning Heroes.

Their Arrival at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, July 15.—The troops under Gen. Middleton, comprising the Queen's Own Grenadiers, 65th Battalion, Midlands, 90th and 92nd, reached Selkirk at 10 o'clock to-day A splendid collation was served the troops under the trees on the river bank, Selkirk ladies officiating.

The troops embarked at 5.30 for Winnipeg and reached the city at 7.30. The Midlands and 65th battalion have gone home from Selkirk via Port Arthur. All the others came to Winnipeg.

The Hero of Battoche.

Col. William's Remains Arrive.

The body of Colonel Williams arrived in Port Hope last evening. The squad in charge of the remains was composed of Capt. Reid, Sergt. Strong, Lance Corporal G. S. Wilson, and Privates J. H. Charlton, J. F. Wilson and E. G. F. Brown, all of the Midlanders. Corp. Charlton and Ptes. Charlton and Wilson were members of Riel's escort, and after depositing the head and front of the rebellion in jail at Regina, came through to Winnipeg. Private Brown came all the way from Pitt, and his appearance justified his name. They are all fine stalwart soldiers and intelligent men. No man in the regiment feels the loss of the colonel more that Private Charlton. Despite the difference in rank, the two men were, it is said, warm personal friends, and in all the campaign the private was always close to the colonel. They fought at Batoche side by side in that daring charge that won for Col. Williams the tittle of the "Hero of Batoche." Charlton was his closest supporter. The private was sent to Regina with Riel, and since joining the remains of his commanding officer at Winnipeg has scarcely moved from the coffin. He has mounted guard over the casket continually and feels the loss of his friend as that of a father.

The remains were forwarded from Toronto at 5.30 last evening. On arrival at Port Hope they were met at the station by a guard of honor, composed of No. 3 Company, 46th Batt., under Capt. Ward. The casket was then conveyed to the family residence. The funeral will not take place until the Midland Battalion reaches home, which will probably be on Tuesday.

It will be a sad home-coming for the brave Midlanders.

Sport in Peterborough.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner:

DEAR SIR.—I should like to say a few words regarding the sporting prowess (?) of this town.

First and worst we have cricket. Notwithstanding the encouragement given this year and the apparently good team brought together, "defeat" is still the motto.

The baseball is a complete farce and it behooves the devotees of this capital game to wake up.

Lacrosse, which has been our hobby heretofore and something which had enabled us to partly redeem our credit, is sinking fast, as the last district championship match evidences.

Rowing is dead and canoeing is all "parade" and nothing more.

Tennis keeps quietly in retirement, though I understand there are some good exponents of the game here. Let me add an earnest wish for a reformation.

PETERBOROUGH.

How the Queen Writes.

A few days ago I saw a long letter written by the queen two or three months back. I should like to have made a copy of it, for the homely, motherly words would have gone straight to the hearts of all who read it. The theme was her majesty's last great sorrow, and it brought the "unaccustomed brine" to my eyes as I glanced at the composition. The queen does not now write in that fine running hand which characterizes so many of the royal autographs, but has adopted a much rounder style. This letter was evidently written in a great hurry; still there was no blot or erasure. What struck me most was the extent to which the queen unbends when she is writing to a subject about one so dear to her as her lost son. Her majesty writes almost as affectionately to the children of those whom she has known intimately as to the members of her own family.—Life.

To Beautify the Fair Sex.

"One of Dan Bryant's jokes, and one that always brought down the house, was his prize conundrum 'What is a woman?' But were he living now I do not believe he would propound it. Nobody could guess it. All would have to give it up," and with an inward chuckle the photographer, for he it was who vouchsafed the above to a reporter for The New York Mail and Express, turned once more to his nitrate of silver bath and collodion.

"I should imagine from your actions and statements, however, that you could answer the question?"

"Once I could—but now—well times are not what they once were. Why, a lady came in here to-day to sit for her photograph, and, do you believe me, she had false lips."

"What?"

"Pon my honor. And that was not all. She had false eyelashes, and an artificial neck and throat."

"Oh, you must be mistaken."

"So I thought until I was convinced. The beautiful tinted shells, skins, or covers, whatever you may call them, for arms, face throat, and neck are made of very thin rubber. The neck and bust is fitted closely over the natural neck, and the edges made up after the manner of the actors painting out their wigs. When the false front, I should call it, fits under the chin a black velvet ribbon is worn over it. The proper degree of roundness is given to the improvement after adjustment by inflating it with air."

"Well, that may all be so, but the lips and eyebrows you speak about I can not believe."

"No; then I will prove it to you." Here he took from a case a small delicate-looking little bit of rubber that had more the appearance of the finger of a surgeon's post mortem glove than anything else. "Here, you see, is a full red under-lip. It was given to me by the lady who had the sitting to-day. She is the agent for these improvements. If you notice, the fullness is in the center. Toward the corners the lip is merely a filmy skin of gutta percha. This is capable of being held in its position by the tightness of its edges."

True Chivalry of American Men.

Nothing is more pleasant in America, or places the civilization of the country in a brighter or more honorable light, than the universal respect publicly paid to women by men of all degrees. That there is in this something of exaggeration, and that some women abuse their exceptional privileges, demanding discourteously what men are ready voluntarily to offer, does not materially affect the question. An American gentleman who resigns his seat to a lady in a steamboat or tramcar, or who wearies himself in looking after luggage, and wrestling on her account with railway porters, does not ask even the thanks which politeness should be eager to proffer. His action has been disinterested, instinctive, and to satisfy his own sense of propriety. The difference in this respect between the French and American republics is curious indeed. A Frenchman will ruthlessly turn a lady into the mud of the street rather than step off the pavement himself, or will bribe the railway guide to induce delicate women to leave their pre-engaged carriage in order that he may not sit with his back to the engine. He will hardly assist a woman in distress unless she be attractive. The French, below the thinnest veneer, are the most impolite of civilized races. Americans, on the other hand, though without superficial polish, are warm hearted and chivalrous in the highest degree. The position in which they have placed their women is the best guarantee that the Nation will outgrow the blemishes which now disfigure it and will in the future attain a higher civilization than has been enjoyed by any people who have regarded their intellectual and political life as the undivided domaines of man.—Sir Lepel Henry Griffin.

Mr. O'Keefe's Mistake.

"Sure, it's that daughter av moine," said Patrick O'Keefe to Justice Prindiville, as he leaned over the rail that divides the common people from that judicial dignitary. "Bedad, it's a warrant Oi'm afther wantin' fer that young mon av hers."

"State your case," said the justice, with dignity.

"State me case, is it? Well, sor, that's aisy enough. Las' noight, sor, at about 9, sor, Oi sez to Annie O'Keefe, thet's moi daughter, sor, sez I: 'Will yez be afther scrubbin' out the kitchin fer mornin'?'

"'Sure Oi'm afther hevin' an engagement wid Morpheus,' sez she.

"'An' who's Morpheus?' says Oi.

"'Sure, he's an ould gray-headed duffer es iz a-goin' to woo me to shleep,' sez she.

"Faith, thet made me dander rise, sor. Sure, such disgraceful words from me daughter upset me. Thin whin Oi slapped her ears, sor, her mither kem out an' the two av 'im set on me sor, an' bate me. Oi sat up till 12 o'clock lookin' fer thet Morpheus av hers, but he didn't come."

"I expect you would have given him a warm reception."

"Oi wud hev kilt him, sor."

"I have heard of this Morpheus before," said the court, quietly. "He's a bad man, and has created a great deal of trouble. Call around in the morning for a warrant."—Chicago News.

Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 2.]
Thomas McQueen.

"The poet's leaves are gathered one by one,
In the slow process of the doubtful years."
—Bayard Taylor.

In our last article we promised to give a few examples of Mr. McQueen's poetry, and regret that our space will not permit us to do full justice to its merits.

His newspaper, the Huron Signal, was exceedingly well conducted during the period of his management. Many of his articles had a splendid literary tone, a thing much rarer in Canadian newspapers at that time, than now. Some of his editorials, such as "The Gouger," and the "Dead Squaw," were, in fact, prose poems, and had a rhythm and beauty which none but a poet could have imparted to them. One writer says of him, "He entered heartily, though too late in life to effect much with his own pen, into the plans of those who were and are seeking to establish and build up a native literature among us. Some years ago, he ended an editorial on the subject with the earnest appeal, "Will nobody write a few songs for Canada?"

Thomas McQueen was a man who possessed a large heart, a clear intellect and a skill in verbal fencing, that made him, as a writer, an extremely formidable opponent. He could use sharp weapons in controversy, and was indeed a crooked customer to grapple with. His motto might have been that adopted for the Order of the Thistle: "Nemo me impune lacessit." Still he was never given to personal abuse, except in self-defence, but strove to keep his columns quite free from those bitter recriminations, vulgar personalities and base insinuations which make the chief stock-in-trade of many Canadian newspapers.

He was a man of warm, generous and impulsive nature, one of nature's noblemen, never too proud or uncharitable to admit he had done wrong, and ready to apologize when circumstances demanded it.

We have said his early poetry was deeply tinged with his political and religious opinions. He belonged to the school of George Combe in politics and philosophy, and his views were of the most radical character. It is necessary to state this in order to show the animus of the following lines:—

"When kings give up the ghost, for kings must die,
The nation wears a kind of mimic gloom,
And titled paupers muster up a sigh,
And pensioned priests, with whining cant assume
A solemn, sombre visage and costume;
Even pews and pulpits are condemned to feel,
And, be it whispered, 'tis an equal doom,
Since pews and pulpits kindle with a zeal
Equal to that of most who on their sabres kneel.

But when some mighty spirit leaves the world,
Hushed in oblivion be the vain parade:
Insult him not with mockeries unfurled,
Nor be woe's mere formalities displayed;
The solemn sound, "The patriot is no more!"
Shakes Freedom to the base, she quivers to the core."

He gives a very graphic picture of the sad consternation which fell on the British people during the terrible ravages of the cholera in 1832. He describes the fell disease itself; shows how the monster fell alike on young and old and rich and poor, and draws a striking portrait of the old village surgeon, who, though familiar with every malady, is struck dumb with astonishment at the inroads of the mysterious visitant. Here is a description of a funeral during that horrible time of fear and dread. The dead body is about to be carried out, and the poet says:—

"All distant stood, yea, even the man of God,
He who alone knew why the people died,
And solved the problem with, "'Tis Heaven's decree!"
His daily theme of happiness in heaven,
Of angels' harps and glory's diadem,
Of righteous hope that would be realised
With strange, unutterable things reserved
For all who died below, which had made him deem Honors and riches, yea, and life itself,
Mere secondary things, weak trifles, trash,
Quite unworthy the regard of dignified
Immortal beings like man; yet even he Felt smitten with the dread, forgot his calling
And his trust in God, refused to minister
The Gospel balm to dying husband
Or to widowed wife."

For the sake of humanity and religion we hope this picture was only an imaginary one, and had its motive in the peculiar religious views of the writer. We know as a matter of fact that in time of danger, when epidemics course through the land, the ministers of God do not forsake their posts or refuse to give the consolations of religion to those who are in extremis. Many a proof could be given of their bravery, their courage and devotion to duty in times of special danger.

The poet's apostrophe to his little daughter Mary is an affecting poem. And his "Address to the River Garnock" is also very good. It is said that the old castle of Garnock, on the banks of this well-known stream, was the residence of Hardicanute in 1263.

After reflecting on the numerous changes which time brings with it, the poet says:—

"Ages elapsed have seen thee glide,
Thou lonely moorland river,
Yet on thy undiminished tide,
Wave after wave, thy bubbles glide,
Majestical as ever.

Yon tower of rude, unchartered clay
That frowns above the stream,
In crumbling atoms seems to say,
Man and his labours pass away
Unheeded as a dream."

Then he describes the scenes the old river had witnessed from the hour of creation, pictures the Druidic altars which dotted its banks in the far-off ages; sings of the changes when thro' the woods of Blair sweet evening prayers were offered to countless deities, and thus concludes:

And yet thou art unchanged: thy flood
Hath foamed and fled away,
Leaving thy calm and native mood,
To sing to hill and vale and wood
My philosophic lay.

Roll on, thou liquid, glassy sheet!
Roll on: me thinks I see
In thy unbroken waters fleet
A sign, a pledge, an emblem meet,
Of immortality.

My toil-worn frame, like thine, may seem
Fast sinking to decay;
My life, my spirit, like thy stream,
Lit up at Heaven's unfading beam,
Must glow and glow for aye.

Glide on thou moorland river, roll
Thy dark waves to the sea
So speeds my fleeting, deathless soul,
To some far, strange, mysterious goal
In vast eternity."

It is a matter of sincere regret that Mr. McQueen wrote so very little of his adopted country. His time was devoted to politics largely, and in the rush and bustle of a newspaper office he found very little leisure to woo the muse of song. This is the more to be deplored since the man who penned that "Address to the River Garnock" had in him the elements of genuine power as a poet. He has, however, paid a glorious tribute to that noble sheet of water, Lake Huron, on whose banks he did such pioneer work for Canada, and with its ringing lines we close these extracts from his works. It is entitled

OUR OWN BROAD LAKE.

We cannot boast of high green hills,
Of proud bold cliffs, where eagles gather—
Of moorland glen and mountain rills,
That echo to the red-bell'd heather,
We cannot boast of mouldering towers,
Where ivy clasps the hoary turret
Of chivalry in ladies' bowers—
Of warlike fame, and knights who won it—
But had we Minstrels' Harp to wake,
We well might boast our own broad lake!

And we have streams that run as clear,
O'er shelvy rocks and pebbles rushing—
And meads as green, and nymphs as dear,
In rosy beauty sweetly blushing
And we have trees as tall as towers,
And older than the feudal mansion—
And banks besprent with gorgeous flowers,
And glens and woods with fire-flies glancing—
But prouder, loftier boast we make,
The beauties of our own broad lake.

Immense bright lake! I trace in thee
An emblem of the mighty ocean,
And in thy restless waves I see
Nature's eternal law of motion;
And fancy sees the Huron chief
Of the dim past, kneel to implore thee—
With Indian awe he seeks relief
In pouring homage out before thee;
And I, too, feel my reverence wake,
As gazing on our own broad lake!

I cannot feel as I have felt,
When life with hope and fire was teeming;
Nor kneel as I have often knelt
At beauty's shrine, devoutly dreaming.
Some younger hand must strike the string,
To tell of Huron's awful grandeur;
Her smooth and moonlight slumbering,
Her tempest voices loud as thunder;
Some loftier lyre than mine must wake,
To sing our own broad gleaming lake!

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

O, for the song of mosquitoes!
O, for the hum of the bees!
O, for a hut in the forest,
Between two great big trees!

Mr. L. Renwick is building a snug little home for himself and wife on the south side of the road about a mile west of Keene. It is near the trees, but not between them.

Campbell & McNeil have begun their repairs and renovating in good earnest, the east front being completely changed.

Rathbun & Son have just passed a heavy drive of cedar, &c., down the Indian River to Rice Lake, which it entered in tow of a steamer.

The twelfth passed off without roll of drum or call of fife—nothing but extreme quiet on that old gala day. Why?

A little daughter of Mr. John Frost, of this place, fell last week and cut her hand severely. It is still in a bad condition.

A ten year old son of Mr. Peter Gillespie, of Villiers, fell from the top of a load of hay last week, hurting his back and shoulder seriously and breaking his collar bone. We are glad to state that he is in a fair way of recovery.

Our townsmen, Messrs. Wm. Reade and Fred. English, have taken up their abode at Westwood, where they are managing the business formerly conducted by Mr. Powell. Success to their energy and enterprise.

The usual quarterly review of the Presbyterian Sunday School was held in the basement of the new church on Sunday evening, a week ago. Rev. Mr. Andrews addressed the children in his own earnest and faithful manner, and the children were most orderly and well behaved.

The sudden and most unexpected death of Mrs. Andrew's, wife of the Presbyterian pastor, on Friday, 10th instant, has thrown a gloom over the whole community. She was a deservedly popular Christian lady, modest and retiring in manner, kind and charitable in disposition, a true friend, a hater of scandals, a most affectionate mother, a faithful wife and in the expressive words of her bereaved husband, "a precious woman."

Her remains were taken to the church on Sunday last, where a beautiful and impressive discourse was delivered by Rev. Mr. Torrance, of Peterborough, on the appropriate and suggestive text, "Jesus Wept." The church was filled—gallery also—and at the close of the service, when the coffin lid was removed for a few moments, suppressed sobs and grief pervaded the house. A large concourse followed the remains to the cemetery, and witnessed the last sad rites.

Mr. Andrews has the heartfelt sympathy of all who know him, in this trying affliction. There are five motherless little ones, the twin daughters being but a week old when their mother left them. They will be well cared for, as Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Andrews' sister, and their aunt, has taken them under her charge; the other three remain with their father.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

Norwood.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The crops around here here are looking remarkably well, excepting the hay, which is rather light.

Mr. Thos. Blezard, M. P. P., was in town a few days ago, looking hearty and well.

Diptheria has again visited this locality, although only one has succumbed to its fatal effects; the youngest daughter of Mr. Richard Nicoll being the sufferer.

Quite a large number of pupils have successfully passed the examinations for the entrance into the high school.

The wife of J. N. Ackerman, Esq., hardware merchant of this place, has had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism for the past two weeks. We are glad to learn she is improving.

Mr. Findlay, of the firm of Findlay & Son, hub and bent stuff manufacturers, has returned home from an extensive tour in the Province of Quebec and Eastern Ontario.

The building boom is still booming. We notice that the store and residence of Mr. Geo. Duffield has received the finishing touches to the Mansard, and the brickwork being fully completed; and that Mr. P. W. Reynolds is ready for the roof. We notice, also, among the many, the new addition to the residence of Dr. Ford, which will add, no doubt, to the beauty and appearance of the former residence, the alterations and additions being under the superintendance of Mr. Rutherford, of Peterborough.

The Church of England parsonage is nearly completed, Mr. Jas. Kerr, who has charge of the painting, being nearly through.

The Norwood woollen mills are working full time, and nine hands are busily employed, and we believe that the Messrs. Cummings, the proprietors, are giving satisfaction to all parties, especially the farmers, and on account of the backward season and having the machinery to put in order, we might state that taking everything into consideration, they stand ahead of the mills in other localities. Their lines in tweeds, woollens and yarns stand the test compared with others. We wish Messrs J. & J. D. Cumming success in their new enterprise, and when they receive their new machinery, which they intend adding soon, we hope they will rival all competitors.

The Orange Lodges of this locality went to Campbellford this year; quite a large number turned out, preceded by the Norwood Brass Band. On the Sabbath Day they went in a body to the Presbyterian church, where an impressive discourse was delivered by Rev. Mr. MacIntosh, of Markham. It was listened to throughout by a large and intelligent congregation.

CHAPTER I.

IN DARKNESS AND IN DANGER.

I have a reason for writing this tale, or it would not become public property.

Once, in a moment of confidence, I made a friend acquainted with some curious circumstances connected with one period of my life. I believe I asked him to hold his tongue about them—he says not. Anyway, he told another friend, with embellishments I suspect; this friend told another, and so on and on. What the tale grew to at last I shall probably never learn; but since I was weak enough to trust my private affairs to another I have been looked upon by my neighbors as a man with a history—one who has a romance hidden away beneath an outwardly prosaic life.

For myself I should not trouble about this. I should laugh at the garbled versions of my story set floating about by my own indiscretion. It would matter little to me that one good friend has an idea that I was once a Communist and a member of the inner circle of a secret society—that another has heard that I have been tried on a capital charge—that another knows I was at one time a Roman Catholic, on whose behalf a special miracle was performed. If I were alone in the world and young, I dare say I should take no steps to still these idle rumors. Indeed, very young men feel flattered by being made objects of curiosity and speculation.

But I am not very young, nor am I alone. There is one who is dearer to me than life itself. One from whose heart, I am glad to say, every shadow left by the past is rapidly fading—one who only wishes to live her true sweet life without mystery or concealment—wishes to be thought neither better nor worse than she really is. It is she who shrinks from the strange and absurd reports which are flying about as to our antecedents—she who is vexed by those leading questions sometimes asked by inquisitive friends; call back old memories of joy and grief, and tell every one, who cares to read, all he can possibly wish to know, and it may be more than he has a right to know, of our lives. This done, my lips are sealed forever on the subject. My tale is here—let the inquisitive take his answer from it, not from me.

Perhaps, after all, I write this for my own sake as well. I also hate mysteries. One mystery which I have never been able to determine may have given me a dislike to everything which will not admit of an easy explanation.

To begin, I must go back more years than I care to enumerate; although I could, if necessary, fix the day and the year. I was young, just past twenty-five. I was rich, having when I came of age succeeded to an income of about two thousand a year; an income which, being drawn from the funds, I was able to enjoy without responsibilities or anxiety as to its stability and endurance. Although since my twenty-first birthday I had been my own master, I had no extravagent follies to weigh me down, no debt to hamper me. I was without bodily ache or pain; yet I turned again and again on my pillow and said that my life for the future would be little more than a curse to me.

Had death just robbed me of one who was dear to me? No; the only ones I had ever loved, my father and mother, had died years ago. Were my ravings those peculiar to an unhappy lover? No; my eyes had not yet looked passion into a woman's eyes—and now would never do so. Neither death nor love made my lot seem the most miserable in the world.

I was young, rich, free as the wind to follow my own devices. I could leave England to-morrow and visit the most beautiful places on the earth: those places I had longed and determined to see. Now, I knew I should never see them, and I groaned in anguish at the thought.

My limbs were strong. I could bear fatigue and exposure. I could hold my own with the best walkers and the swiftest runners. The chase, the sport, the trial of endurance had never been too long or too arduous for me—I passed my left hand over my right arm and felt the muscles firm as of old. Yet I was as helpless as Samson in his captivity.

For, even as Samson, I was blind!

Blind! Who but the victim can even faintly comprehend the significance of that word? Who can read this and gauge the depth of my anguish as I turned and turned on my pillow and thought of the fifty years of darkness which might be mine—a thought which made me wish that when I fell asleep it might be to wake no more?

Blind! After hovering around me for years the demon of darkness had at last laid his hand upon me. After letting me, for awhile, almost cheat myself into security, he had swept down upon me, folded me in his sable wings and blighted my life. Fair forms, sweet sights, bright colors, gay scenes mine no more! He claimed them all, leaving me darkness, darkness, ever darkness! Far better to die, and, it may be, wake in a new world of light—"Better," I cried in my despair, "better even the dull red glare of Hades than the darkness of the world!"

This last gloomy thought of mine shows the state of mind to which I was reduced.

The truth is that, in spite of hope held out to me, I had resolved to be hopeless. For years I had felt that my foe was lying in wait for me. Often when gazing on some beautiful object, some fair scene, the right to enjoy which made one fully appreciate the gift of sight, a whisper seemed to reach my ear—"Some day I will strike again, then it will be all over." I tried to laugh at my fears, but could never quite get rid of the presentiment of evil. My enemy had struck once—why not again?

Well I can remember his first appearance—his first attack. I remember a light-hearted school-boy so engrossed in sport and study that he scarcely noticed how strangely dim the sight of one eye was getting, or the curious change which was taking place in its appearance. I remember the boy's father taking him to London, to a large dull-looking house in a quiet dull street. I remember our waiting in a room in which were several other people; most of whom had shades or bandages over their eyes. Such a doleful gathering it was that I felt much relieved when we were conducted to another room in which sat a kind, pleasant-spoken man, called by my father Mr. Jay. This eminent man, after applying something which I know now was belladonna to my eyes, and which had the effect for a short time of wonderfully improving my sight, peered into my eyes by the aid of strong lenses and mirrors—I remember at the time wishing some of those lenses were mine—what splendid burning-glasses they would make! Then he placed me with my back to the window and held a lighted candle before my face. All these proceedings seemed so funny that I was half inclined to laugh. My father's grave, anxious face alone restrained me from so doing. As soon as Mr. Jay had finished his researches he turned to my father:

"Hold the candle as I held it. Let it shine into the right eye first. Now, Mr. Vaughan, what do you see? How many candles, I mean?"

"Three—the one in the centre small and bright, but upside down."

ACCIDENT.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Geo. J. Chalmers was walking on the side of the road near Mr. Heard's carriage shop, when he slipped on a stone and in falling dislocated his ankle. Dr. Douglas was at once summoned and set the injured limb. We hope to see Mr. Chalmers able to be around shortly.

BIT BY A HORSE.

Mr. R. White, who lives about a mile from the village, was leading a span of horses when they became frightened by a team that was ahead of them backing up against them, and started to kick and jump. In doing so one of them got his foot entangled in the harness and when Mr. White attempted to free it the brute seized him by the arm, stripping off about two inches of the flesh from the bone near the elbow. Medical aid was summoned and the wound dressed, but it will be some time before Mr. White will be able to do anything.

DISGRACEFUL.

On Monday evening a party of huckleberriers consisting of about twenty or twenty-five young men and women drove through the village yelling and screaming at the tops of their voice. Every passer-by was insulted, and although from Burleigh they acted as though they owned the whole road and that no person else had any rights which they were bound to respect. So much notice would not be taken of them if they were all men, but the sight of young women (we could not call them ladies) with hats off yelling and screaming is a spectacle not to be witnessed every day. We hope the next time they go out to have such a time they will give this place the "go-by," or perhaps they will get into trouble. The remark of one of our villagers was "that they were the toughest crowd that ever came down the Burleigh Road."

A NEW PIER.

A gang of men are at work putting a new pier for the protection of the centre abutment of the iron bridge across the river here.

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The regular meeting of the village council was held in the council chamber on Monday evening, the 13th., inst. R. C. Strickland, reeve, in the chair; Messrs. McWilliams, Moore, Cox and Isbister, councillors. Minutes of Court of Revision and last regular meeting read and adopted.

J. C. Sherin addressed the Council in regard to fire protection. T. J. Nelson and I. Garbutt, sen., spoke about removal of weigh scales. F. Barles applied for a grant for Civic Holiday celebration. D. Smith asked for a small grant for Smith street. J. Edwards also wanted one for George street. I. Garbutt, Sen., spoke in favor of accepting R. and W. Strickland's offer. And after some parties made complaints against the Village Constable the Council got down to work.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Cox, that the Clerk be instructed to to have a by-law prepared to submit to the Council at its next regular meeting, to raise the sum of $3,500 by debentures, payable in fifteen years, for the purpose of affording better fire protection to the village.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor McWilliams, that the sum of $5 be granted to John Edwards to repair the road between Smith and Lakefield, and that $10.00 be also spent on the Smith street bridge at the same time.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Cox,—That this council grant the sum of $25 to help pay band expenses on our civic holiday.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Isbister, seconded by Councillor McWilliams,—That the following accounts be paid and the Reeve's order do issue for the same, viz.:—

Isaac Watson, sr., wages	$37 67
Augustus Mowrey, wages	21 50
Lem. Godfrey, wages	20 50
John Rowe, wages	19 50

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Cox,—That the Reeve's order do issue in favor of the Campbell Pipe Co. for the sum of $287.91 being the amount of their account.—Carried.

A by-law to fix and levy the rate to be charged to private parties tapping the Queen street sewer received its several readings, was passed, sealed and signed by the Reeve and Clerk.

Moved by Councillor McWilliams, seconded by Councillor Cox, that this Council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Reeve.—Carried.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Our New Story.

Don't neglect to begin reading our new story, "Called Back," which appears in in to-day's issue.

A Bad Sidewalk.

The sidewalk on the west side of Sheridan street is in a bad condition, and if left for any length of time unrepaired, it promises to resemble the appearance of the board walks of the town of Lindsay.

En Route for England.

Mrs. T. B. Clementi, Geo. V. Clementi, Mrs. Archer and Miss Beck, depart this evening for Montreal, where they will embark on the steamer "Lake Superior," of the Beaver line, for England. We join their many friends in wishing them a safe voyage, pleasant visit and a happy return home.

Thrown From a Phaeton

Last evening as two young men were driving down George street in a light vehicle they collided with the Grand Central omnibus, and were thrown out, but beyond getting the benefit of the dust they were not injured and resumed their ride after they had been brushed off.

"Little John" Goes to Hastings.

This morning six cars left the Grand Trunk station, at 7.45, containing over two hundred excursionists, who threw aside their daily toil to accompany the excursion to Hastings, under the management of Court Little John, No. 92 C. O. F. The party seemed to be one which could thoroughly enjoy the nine hours fun to be had, by leaving at the above time, in the beautiful grove at Hastings. The half dozen pleasure coaches will return with the regular train to-night.

Willow and Wicket.

The return match game of cricket is in progress as we go to press between the married and single members of the Peterborough Cricket Club. The following are the representatives:—Married.—Strickland, Rogers, Grundy, Logan, Sanderson, Hammond, McGill, Rutherford and Packenham. Single.—Cooper, Strathy, Hamilton, Craven, Carter, Hamilton, Sabine, Hampshire, Morris, Lawford and Smith. We cannot possibly forecast the result of the match, not knowing whether or not, the benedicts intend to adhere to their programme of encouraging the youngsters.

War to the Knife.

One of our high Government officials was surprised lately to receive from one of our health inspectors, a very decent fellow, what purported to be a note summoning him in a highly insulting and peremptory manner to clean the street in front of his residence of the rubbish and accumulated filth, which was a nuisance to the neighborhood. As the Government official is very punctilious and tidy in this respect, this note was a big surprise party to him, and opened his eyes like saucers. A few days after the health inspector received a letter purporting to come from the Government official, expressing the latter's utmost abhorrence of the dirty and disgraceful appearance of the former, and demanding that he should wash and disinfect himself before again appearing on the street, or he would shove him so far that the law would never reach him, even by the searching writ of Habeas Corpus, at the same time expressing a supreme contempt of him and his authority. As the health inspector had always thought he stood high in the eyes of the government official, this unprovoked insult, as he thought was gall and wormwood to his hot Irish blood, and so armed with a light pick-axe, he set out to interview his supposed enemy. On meeting the latter he was surprised to be met in calm, friendly and enquiring spirit, lacking that "Deadwood" light in the eye, he had expected. On comparing notes they both came to the conclusion that some mutual friend or fiend had been concocting a little sport at their expense, and quietly adjourned without shedding any gore, for a cigar to soothe their troubled spirits.

St. Paul's Sunday School Picnic.

St. Paul's Sunday School picnic has been arranged for July 23rd. The excursion will be to Robinson's Island. Steamer and barges leaving at one o'clock from steamboat wharf.

St. Andrew's Excursion and Picnic.

Seven coaches containing about four hundred happy excursionists rolled out from the O. & Q. station this morning shortly after 10 o'clock for Norwood, where they went to spend a day in feasting and enjoyment.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.

Lacrosse Match.

Mr. Geo. H. Giroux, Secretary of the P. L. C., has received from the junior twelve of the Uxbridge Lacrosse Club a challenge to play a match here with the Peterborough juniors on Thursday next, July 23rd. The challenge will be accepted and a fine few hours' sport may be expected.

Grateful Acknowledgement.

The committee of the Peterborough Protestant Home, gratefully acknowledge the following donations for June:—Mrs. Thos. Rubidge, bag potatoes; Mrs. T. Hay, 1 dress; Foot & McWhinnie, pair shoes; Mr. Mason, flowers; Sons of England, twenty-two loaves of bread.

A. C. A. Camp.

Mr. Rathbun, Vice-Commodore of the American Canoe Association, has written to Mr. R. E. Wood, of the Executive Committee, that he (Mr. R.) now has the papers necessary to obtain the reduced railway fares. If members who propose attending the camp will leave their names with Mr. Wood at once, they will be furnished with the required forms.

Another Excursion.

A large excursion will be run from Uxbridge to Peterborough on Thursday next, July 23rd. Peterborough must have got a good report as the terminus of an excursion from the party that came here with the base ball team on July 9th. We make them all welcome, and will extend them our heartiest hospitality. Such excursionists being the guests of the town, the Town Council should detail one of its officials to see to the reception of visitors, and extend such other courtesies as the circumstances may suggest.

The Scott Act.

A meeting of the Scott Act Executive Committee, was held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Dr. Fife in the chair. After a brief informal discussion it was decided to delay taking further steps at present towards submitting the question of the adoption of the Act to popular vote. This decision was arrived at pending the action of the House of Commons on the Senate amendments. The committee did not consider it advisable to ask the Government to take action upon the petitions now before them and fix a date for the voting on the adoption of the Act, until they were fully aware whether the Act would be further mutilated.

A Free Shower Bath.

The other evening as one of the most prominent young men of our town was coming down George street at the reasonable hour of 10 o'clock he was greeted at the corner of McDonald street with a rather strong stream of water, the effects of which he has not yet got over. It seems somebody wanted to surprise him, and, hiding behind a fence at that point, noticed the gallant coming down the street swinging his cane, and, as he expressed it, "looking as fine as twenty-two carat gold." The hose was applied for a short spell, and ever since a detective is working up the case.

A Thronged Thoroughfare.

The lower portion of Charlotte street, between the G. T. R. station and George street, is, in the evenings especially, thronged with pedestrians, and there seems at this time to be as much necessity for a twelve-feet pavement, as there is for one on George street. The portion of the walk on the north side from George to Stewart streets, is in an exceedingly rough and worn condition, and needs immediate repair or rather rebuilding, for some parts are worn beyond the hope of patching. The ordinary pedestrian traffic, added to that of incoming and outgoing railway passengers makes it necessary to have a broad and good sidewalk speedily laid down.

Our Boys Abroad.

Those who take an interest in the national game, will be pleased to learn that when most of our boys go abroad, they are successful in vaccinating the sporting youths of the places in which they pitch their tents. We notice in the Evening Wisconsin, of July 1st, that Sam. Wright, John Moscrip and Pat. Welsh, all Peterborough boys, were selected to play with the Milwaukee team against the Chicagos, on July 4th, in the latter place. The Canadian-American, a Chicago publication, refers to the lacrosse contest as follows:

"From the start of each game the Chicagos had the best of it, and the visitors were compelled to play a defensive game, and for a young club did well, and many times did they succeed in wresting the ball from their more formidable opponents and send it towards the Chicagos' goal, but without the desired effect, for it was at this point they were weak. The Wisconsins have good reason to feel proud of the progress they have made. With proper training and plenty of practice they will have a good chance for the championship."

Prob's Weather Forecast.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Winds mostly south-east; fair, warm weather.

Orange Collections.

The committee of the Peterborough Protestant Home beg leave to return their sincere thanks to the Orangemen and McWilliams' True Blues for the sum of $41, the proceeds of Sunday's collection.

A Baker's Dozen.

A telegram was received yesterday at the C. P. R. station, from Brampton, asking for thirteen first-class coaches and two locomotives for that place on August 13th, for the purpose of conveying an excursion party to Peterborough. It is very likely that the Excelsior's lacrosse team will accompany the party.

High Art.

Mr. John Schubert, of Rochester, N. Y., has begun the work of painting the spire of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The scaffolding by which he maintains himself in his airy position whilst working, gives evidence that he understands his business, and will make a good job in putting the finishing touches, to what will be one of the finest church edifices in town.

Oddfellow Officers.

The elective officers of Mount Hebron encampment, installed by Bro. W. H. Moore, P. C. P. and D. D. G. P., are as below:

Bro. T. Workman	C. P.
" J. C. T. Lacey	H. P.

Court House Park.

The work of improvement goes on apace. The walks are nearly all completed and the effect of the work put on begins to show to advantage. The new eight feet sidewalk in front of the grounds was completed this morning. Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Rae are engaged with their staff of penal haymakers in mowing the upper portion of the Park. Already this portion is becoming a much-frequented resort.

Police Court.

This morning at the Police Court P. C. Pidgeon marched "two of a kind" into the court in the persons of James Quinn and Gilbert Dafoe. James, it seems, had been imbibing rather freely lately, and the limb of the law running across his path last night escorted him to the cooler. He got 10 days, and for that period will lend a helping hand to the corps now at work up at the castle. Gilbert was up on a charge of vagrancy, and exhibited an expression of contempt far superior to "Brown, the tragedian." Ten days was also measured out to Mr. Dafoe, and the two left for the hill whistling "the McIntyres."

Baptist Church S. S. Picnic.

The annual picnic in connection with the Baptist Church Sunday School came off yesterday at the beautiful grounds, about two miles from town, on the river side, known as Crawford's Grove. About 1 p. m. the children and a large number of elder members of the congregation assembled at the church on Murray street, from which point they were conveyed to the grounds in 'busses. The little ones were in great glee as they crowded into the vehicles, as many as thirty getting in at once. At 3 o'clock there must have been over two hundred and fifty on the grounds, where the usual amusements for such gatherings were enjoyed until 7 p. m., when the picnic was brought to a close. The programme of athletic sports created a lively interest amongst the little ones, who competed in every event as if their fortunes were at stake, and the success of the sports is largely due to the efforts of Mr. Edward Duff, Hazel Brae, who had charge of that part of the programme.

PRACTICAL ADVICE

—TO—

YOUNG MEN

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. Procrastination is the Devil's deception." Go to-morrow morning and pay for a Policy.

Temporary Change.

Mr. Ed. Browne, manager of the Lansdowne rink, leaves in a short time for Portland, Maine, where he intends enjoying a rest for some time. During his absence Mr. George Stevenson will assume the management of the institution, and from his business ability, we have no doubt it will be in excellent hands.

Fun at the Lansdowne.

To-night another contest will take place at the Lansdowne for the trophy offered by Mr. Brown for the one winning the most at a series of two mile races. Besides Logan, Lech and Shevlin there are four other entries and the contest will be a very interesting one. There will also be a boys' race, in which a number of youths will start.

Still Another Excursion.

The members of the Ancient Order of Workmen of Perth are making arrangements to run an excursion to Peterborough about the middle of August, from Brockville, Smith's Falls and Perth. We shall be glad to make them welcome, and would suggest the advisability of our business men co-operating with the local brethren of the A.O.U.W. in making the visit of the excursionists pleasant and agreeable. The Peterborough lodge has appointed a committee to arrange for the reception of their visiting brethren.

The Niagara Falls Excursion.

The excursion to be run to Niagara Falls on August 13th, civic holiday, will be one of the great events of the season. The run will be made over the C. P. R. to Toronto, in a little over three hours, and a delightful sail over the lake, and a delightful run by rail along the banks of the Niagara river, through the finest scenery in Canada, will land excursionists within a stone throw of the Falls, early in the day. First-class cars, a smooth track, a swift palatial steamer, no delays, quick time, and a pleasant journey throughout, will be the experience of those who patronize the Firemen's excursion on the 13th of August. An all rail route would involve a long and weary ride of nearly 200 miles and a late arrival at the Falls, limiting the stay of excursionists. By adopting the lake route a pleasant break in the monotony of rail travel is made and a gain in time of several hours is also made. Remember that the Firemen's excursion on Civic Holiday, August 13th, is the shortest, quickest, direct and most comfortable. Purchase your tickets, which will cost you only $2.50.

Trenton.

TRENTON, Ont., July 16. — Yesterday morning about seven o'clock as Mrs. Ellis was walking on the Central Ontario railway track here she was struck by the rear end of the Northern passenger train, which was backing down to the town station, and almost instantly killed. The deceased was 80 years of age, and being somewhat deaf did not hear the train approaching. She was horribly mangled, having both legs severed from the body and her head and arms badly cut up.

Measuring the Human Faculty.

Holding that the capacity of man, taken in the widest sense, including character and physique, was finite, and therefore, measurable, Mr. Francis Galton has suggested that a laboratory should be opened at Cambridge, England, to investigate what he calls a new science, the "measurement of human faculty." At the Johns Hopkins University, he said, physical education and hygiene were compulsory on all students, and, although the physical measurements taken were not compulsory, yet few objected, and the result was that the most valuable statistics were collected, and, in many instances, good advice given to the students in what way to counteract the effects of any abnormal development of the structure of the muscles. He asserted that by a long series of observations it would be possible to measure the human faculty as accurately as, if not more so, than our system of examinations measures the intellectual faculty. —New York Times.

Mr. William E. Cramer, the venerable proprietor of the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, writes in a letter from Ireland: "Who has not heard of Dublin stout? Mr. Guinness, the great manufacturer of this black beverage, drunk alike in Europe and America, is noted for his liberality both in politics and religion. He has restored St. Patrick's Cathedral to its old-time grandeur at an expenditure of $700,000, and has been a Conservative candidate for Parliament from Dublin, and the election expenses and the unsuccessful contest of his seat, I was assured by his colleague, had cost him not less than $500,000! So an American must understand that there is money in 'stout.' Here it sells for four cents a pint. In America it sells for 17 cents."

Anglo-Phobic Frenchmen.

An Excited Mob Threatening Bodily Violence.

PARIS, July 16.—There was a serious anti-English manifestation in the Avenue de l'Opera last evening. The inhabitants of the Rue D'Argenteuil and Rue De L'Eschole had organized a ball in honor of the taking of the Bastile. The police refused to authorize it; report got about that the fun had been forbidden because the English lodgers at the Hotel Normandy had protested against their slumber being disturbed. An exasperated crowd of several thousand people quickly collected outside the hotel, yelling "Down with England," threatening the obnoxious Britons with bodily violence. Towards midnight things looked so black that two hundred police were sent to the scene of the rout and ordered to charge the crowd. It was then explained that the English had not attempted to stop the merriment, and the ball proceeded.

Parliamentary Summary.

THURSDAY, JULY 16TH

In the Commons yesterday answers were given to Mr. Blake's questions respecting the Northwest, which showed that there were many papers relating to Northwest affairs which the Government had not brought down. Mr. Weldon complained that a writ had not been issued for St. John, though the Speaker's warrant was out on Friday. Sir John Macdonald said it was not proposed to bring down any more new measures, and the Government hoped to prorogue on Saturday or Monday at the latest. The Tariff Amendment Bill, and several minor Government Bills were passed. The amendments made by the Senate in the Inland Revenue Amendment Act were concurred in. The debate on the Bill to disarm the people of the Northwest, and Mr. Mills' amendment in favor of relaxing this provision was resumed. Sir John Macdonald said he could not accept the amendment, and, after some discussion a vote was taken and the amendment was lost by 35 yeas to 80 nays. On a motion to go into Committee of Supply, Mr. Mills called attention to the anomalous and illegal position of the Acting Minister of Railways, showing that no such office was known to the law. He also condemned the Government for misleading the House respecting the Ontario boundary by stating that it intended to take some action in the matter, and then failing to do so. Mr. Laurier called attention to the case of the prisoners at Regina, and suggested that all who were not ringleaders, and had not been guilty of atrocious crimes, should be pardoned, or at all events allowed to return to their homes. Mr. Bergeron expressed himself as sharing many of Mr. Laurier's views on this subject and asked the Government whether they intend to provide that the rebels should be tried by twelve men according to the laws in force in the other parts of Canada. Sir H. Langevin and Sir John Macdonald said the Government would not interfere until after the trials were over, when the question of pardons would be considered, and the trial would proceed according to the laws in force in the Northwest. Mr. Blake called attention to the late period at which the supplementary estimates and other important measures were submitted. The House went into supply and passed the further supplementary estimates brought down on the previous day. Sir John Macdonald said that a vote of $20,000 to General Middleton would be proposed, and that there would be no other new Government business.

An Arctic Romance.

The following thrilling and romantic incident, says the Omaha Bee, is epitomized from the diary of Sergt. Rice, one of the Greely arctic explorers.

In one of the preliminary sledge parties to Hall's rest, on the Greenland side, every match but one in the party had been exhausted. The shivering group had no hope of life save in the ability to strike a spirit-lamp from the remaining match and the man now dead wrote this description:

"The match snapped, crackled, and showed a little flame which by dexterous management, was communicated to the wood and triumphantly applied to the wick of the spirit lamp. But, great heavens! the wick is wet from the moisture of the tent! It sputters—fizzles—the match itself is burned up to the benumbed fingers of the holder, when one of the agonized spectators springs from his bag and, with admirable presence of mind, withdraws from his breast-pocket a document which he holds to the expiring match in time to perpetuate its fire. They are saved! We must show that the action was heroic. The paper so promptly sacrificed in the interests of science and humanity was one received by its possessor at the last moment before leaving civilization, and it was surmised that it contained the last fond evidence of the tender emotion entertained for him by a fair writer, who mayhap penned the loving missive with trembling hands and blinding tears. No doubt a gentle hand had traced on that well-worn letter sweet words that breathed both vows of devotion and prayers for success. It was apparently worn as an amulet or talisman. The romance is yet not unraveled, for the hero is—as heroes are—reticent. But are we not reminded of the bible, which, placed by tender hands with thoughtful care in the breast-pocket of the soldier, stops the fatal bullet, or of the crusaders cross turning the deadly scimetar of the Saracen? Surely, our incident may take its place beside these. We can only hope that the fire was indeed Prometheus and that the epistle may assist a match that was made in heaven as well as one that was lighted on the desolate Greenland coast."

A pond called "Big Red Lime Sink," near Dooly, Ga., which local tradition calls unfathomable, suddenly sank 100 feet recently, with a tremendous thud and a rumbling sound. It is supposed that the bottom of the pond was the roof of a great cave.

BURNING THE CANDLE AT BOTH ENDS.

The Dominion Government, by their neglect, mismanagement and indifference, brought on the Northwest rebellion. They evidently felt their culpability, for they have spared no expense in putting it down. Aside from the cost of health and life of the gallant volunteers, the money expense has been enormous. The most criminal and ruinous waste, neglect and recklessness in spending the people's money, has only been equalled by the course of maladministration that made its expenditure necessary. While our troops were making the grandest efforts—enduring fatigue and hardship without a murmur, facing death without a tremor, money was being wasted like water spilled upon the ground. While the troops were suffering cold and hunger, from lack of supplies, the Government were so indifferent to the administration of the supply service, that the whole trail from Qu'Appelle to Prince Albert was literally strewn with goods purchased with the people's money, and supposed to be forwarded to the troops. Freighters were paid so much per ton for goods put upon their wagons, and there was no person to check off the amount. Therefore, when the teamsters found on their way that the load was too heavy to pay, off went a large portion of it on the side of the trail. A barge laden with stores was abandoned on the Saskatchewan, and it is asserted that canned meats, bought by the government in the States, of course, are being brought, unused, from the recent seat of war, and sold in Winnipeg below cost. To this picture of sinful extravagance and criminal indifference, the Dewdney Farming Company's teaming scandal is a fitting companion chromo. Teams were hired, it is said, from Dewdney's Farming Company at $10 per day, while others considered themselves richly paid if they got $6.50 per day; and the favored company got $200 per ton for teaming supplies, afterwards sub-let for $64 per ton. These are serious charges, and it is no wonder that the Hon. Mr. Blake should strive for a strict investigation, and it is no wonder that Sir John should use the most frantic efforts to obstruct and stave off inquiry into the conduct of the campaign and Northwest matters generally. If the Government had not ill-treated the half-breeds—had not kicked them off their farms, to give them to political parasites and favorites, there would have been no rebellion, and if the government had not permitted the most wanton waste and extravagance, its suppression would not have cost one half the enormous sum that has to be paid—$2,300,000.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canada's Minister of Customs has become a cricketer—he tried to Bowell out an opponent with a goblet of cold water.

The trial of the Dominion Government for complicity in causing the Northwest Rebellion has been postponed—that is, Riel's trial has been put off till July 20th.

The Dominion Government dreads the Riel trial and are staving it off so that their blundering and maladministration may not be brought out during the sitting of Parliament.

Sir John is to be subpœnaed as a witness by the lawyer who is to defend Riel. The Premier won't make a very good witness. He will doubtless take advantage of the law of evidence, which relieves a witness from saying anything to criminate himself—and Sir John could hardly open his mouth on the subject without doing that.

Gladstone is not so easily disposed of. He has announced that he will continue to occupy the position of Liberal leader, and that he will again accept office as Premier if, as is pretty certain to be the case, the Liberals carry the country at the general elections in November. He has been been already nominated by half a dozen constituencies.

Niagara Falls has been a noted resort for sharks, who were wont to prey on helpless visitors, but they have been exterminated, especially on the American side of the river, by the expropriation of property in the vicinity of the Falls, and the making of everything free to all visitors, or as Republican hyperbole expresses it, "Niagara is redeemed free to the world." This will add immeasurably to the pleasure of visiting the the great waterfall. It is to be hoped that the Canadians may imitate this good example and thus bring about the realization in its entirety of Lord Dufferin's sensible suggestion.

The Toronto Mail occasionally tells the truth—by mistake,—but to do it credit it is afterwards very much ashamed of its involuntary inconsistency. The other day (Wednesday) it admitted that the Northwest Halfbreeds had been misgoverned, incidentally throwing the blame on the Government, and ever since, as the London Advertiser points out, it has atoned by abusing Mr. Blake.

If Hon. Mr. Bowell does'nt keep his portfolio better than he keeps his temper, he will not long be Minister of Customs. The other day, in Parliament, Mr. Cameron of Huron corrected a statement of the Hon. Mr. Bowell so effectively that the latter lost his temper, and, in his rage, seized a goblet of water from his desk to hurl it at his opponent. But Mr. Robertson, of Hamilton, proved himself an obstructionist of the first water, by seizing Hon. Mr. Bowell's arm in time to prevent his committing a most cowardly act of folly.

Parliamentary Summary.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15th.

In the Commons to-day the report of the Printing Committee was adopted, recommending that the tenders of the new printing contract to replace the one about expiring should be called for. In concurrence in the items voted by the Committee of Supply, a discussion took place on the vote to provide for the enforcement of the Dominion License Act, in the course of which Mr. Costigan stated $150,000 had been collected under the Act. On the motion for the third reading of the Bill to give subsidies to the Short Line and other railways, Mr. Kirk moved that it be a condition of the bonus that the line yet to be built east of the boundary between Maine and New Brunswick should be constructed simultaneously with that west of the boundary. This was defeated, as was also a resolution by Mr. Blake that the accounts of the company accepting the bonus should be subject to the audit of the Auditor-General. The bill was read a third time. On motion for Committee of Supply, Mr. Cameron (Huron) urged that steps should be taken towards granting representation to the North-West Territories. It was doubtful whether this Parliament could grant that representation without also making Provinces there. He moved that the Queen be petitioned to grant power to give representation to the Territories while still such. This was opposed by the Government, and after a debate in which Messrs Langevin, Blake, Mills, Girouard and Dawson took part, the motion was lost on a straight party vote. The House went into Committee of supply and passed all the supplementary estimates then submitted for 1885-86. Further supplementary estimates amounting to three million dollars were brought down.

Give Me My Husband.

Pathetic Scene in the House at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 15.—Shortly after the House assembled at eight o'clock to-night, a tall handsome woman wearing a fashionable black satin dress hurried past the doorkeeper on duty at the entrance to the eastern corridor, and walked quickly to the door of the commons chamber, facing the speaker's chair, or what is known as the main entrance, Ere Doorkeeper Harris could interpose to prevent her further progress, the woman, throwing aside the baize-covered door within, stood on the floor of the House. She made a quick motion as if to go further, but the doorkeeper, who had by this time recovered his wits, bolted after the intruder and stepping on the long train of her dress brought her to a standstill. A sharp struggle ensued and finding herself overpowered, she shrieked out,

"SIR JOHN MACDONALD KILLED MY HUSBAND! Let me go! let me go!" By this time she was pushed back into the corridor, and here it became evident that the woman was suffering from hysteria. Her shrieks as she was led down the main corridors rang along the halls and echoed sharply through the commons' chamber, where the startled legislators for the moment forgot the business before the House and wondered what it all meant. "They've killed my poor Albert. Give me back my husband," she wailed piteously as she was taken away, and in one of the adjacent committee rooms a small knot of compassionate members and attendants gathered around the now pacified woman and soon all indications of violence ceased. She became gradually more composed, and was driven to her lodgings in a covered carriage.

Some time in 1880 an accident occurred on the Prince Edward Island railway and among the passengers aboard the wrecked train was Capt. Albert McInnes. Shortly after McInnes died and his widow, an English lady by birth, entered an action against the government for $10,000. In the session of 1883 the sum of $2,500 was given her, and in the following spring she sailed for England. Since her return she has frequently visited the capital, and during the present session has been several times in the parliament building. It is supposed that in a fit of nervous excitement arising from the death of her husband, who left her in a rather unprotected condition, she came to the house this evening, and eluding the door-keepers rushed into the commons chamber as stated. The affair caused no little commotion in the house. Mrs. McInnes is a pretty woman of good address and dresses elegantly.

The Dumb Speak and the Lame Walk.

(Montreal Times.)

The pilgrimage of the Irish Catholics of Montreal took place to Ste. Ann de Baupre, and among them was one who is reported to have been specially favored by God. The person in question was a young girl, who has been entirely dumb for the last 14 years. By visiting the shrine she succeeded in being able to pronounce the words "yes" and "no," but no more. The delight of her mother, who attended the pilgrimage with her, yesterday, can be more easily imagined than described, when she discovered that after visiting the shrine her afflicted daughter had been still further benefited, and was able to name almost any article shown her. The girl is a resident of College street. Another girl still younger, who attended the pilgrimage last year on crutches, and who left one of her crutches after her, paid a visit to the shrine yesterday with her one crutch and cane, and was able to leave her second crutch after her and to walk home with the aid of her cane alone.

On Friday and Saturday last 110,000 pounds of cheese was drawn to the railway station here, and shipped to Belleville via Grand Junction Railway. It was the product of the factories of Seymour township, the greater part of it coming from the Crow Bay factory, the Standard and others. The cheesemen of this section are dipping deeply into manufacture this year, but they are sorry and others are sorry that the price is not like it was last year.—Herald.

Colborne.

During the storm on Thursday night last, two men entered the orchard of Mr. Oscar McDonald, a short distance east of this village, and girdled some 25 or 30 apple trees. During a flash of lightning they were seen and identified, and were next evening brought before Squire Webb, who sent them to gaol to await trial before a higher court. The affair is singularly distressing, all the parties being related to each other, and the spirit of revenge the most degrading to one's manhood.——Since the foregoing was put in type, it has been discovered by Mr. Wm. Cox, another near neighbor, that 29 trees in his orchard had also been similarly dealt with. The indignation generally against the accused is excusably at a white heat.—Express.

CALLED BACK

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Chapter I—Continued.

"Yes; now try the other eye. How many there?"

My father looked long and carefully. "I can only see one," he said, "the large one."

"This is called the catoptric test, an old-fashioned but infallible test, now almost superseded. The boy is suffering from lenticular cataract."

This terribly sounding name took away all my wish to laugh. I glanced at my father and was surprised to notice his face wearing an expression of relief.

"That may be cured by an operation," he said.

"Certainly; but in my judgment it is not well to meddle, so long as the other eye remains unaffected."

"Is there danger?"

"There is always danger of the disease appearing in the sound eye; but, of course, it may not happen. Come to me at the first sign of such a thing. Good-morning."

The great specialist bowed us out, and I returned to my school life, troubling little about the matter, as it caused me no pain, and, although in less than a twelvemonth the sight of one eye was completely obscured, I could see well enough for every purpose with the remaining one.

But I remember every word of that diagnosis, although it was years before I recognized the importance of it. It was only when compelled by accident to wear for some days a bandage over my sound eye that I realized the danger in which I stood, and from that moment felt that a merciless foe was ever waiting his time.

And now the time had come. In the first flush of my manhood, with all that one could wish for at my command, the foe had struck again.

He came upon me swiftly—far more swiftly than his custom in such cases; yet it was long before I would believe the worst—long before I would confess to myself that my failing sight and the increasing fogginess of everything I looked at were due to more than a temporary weakness. I was hundreds of miles from home, in a country where traveling is slow. A friend being with me, I had no wish to make myself a nuisance by cutting our expedition short. So I said nothing for weeks, although at the end of each week my heart sank at the fresh and fearful advances made by the foe. At last, being unable to bear it, or in fact conceal it longer, I made known my condition to my comrade. We turned our faces homeward, and by the time London was reached and the long journey at an end, everything to me was blurred, dim and obscure. I could just see, that was all!

I flew to the eminent oculist's. He was out of town. Had been ill, even at the point of death. He would not be back for two months, nor would he see any patient until his health was quite restored.

I had pinned my faith upon this man. No doubt there were as skilful oculists in London, Paris, or other capitals; but it was my fancy that, if I was to be saved, I could only be saved by Mr. Jay. Dying men are allowed their whims; even the felon about to be hanged can choose his own breakfast, so I had an undoubted right to choose my own surgeon. I resolved to wait in darkness until Mr. Jay returned to his duties.

I was foolish. I had better have trusted myself in other clever hands. Before a month was over I had lost all hope, at the end of six weeks I was almost distracted. Blind, blind, blind! I should be blind forever! So entirely had I lost heart that I began to think I would not have the operation performed at all. Why fly against fate? For the rest of my life I was doomed to darkness. The subtlest skill, the most delicate hand, the most modern appliances would never restore the light I had lost. For me the world was at an end.

Now that you know the cause, can you not imagine me, after weeks of darkness, broken in spirit, and, as I lay sleepless that night, almost wishing that the alternative refused by Job—to curse God and die—were mine? If you are unable to realise my condition, read the above to any one who has lost his sight. He will tell you what his feelings were when the calamity first came upon him. He will understand the depths of my woe!

I was not left entirely alone in my trouble. Like Job, I had comforters; but, unlike Eliphaz and Company, they were good-hearted fellows who spoke with cheerful conviction as to the certainty of my recovery. I was not so grateful for these visits as I should have been. I hated the thought of any one seeing me in my helpless condition. Day by day my frame of mind grew more and more desponding and morbid.

My best friend of all was a humble one; Priscilla Drew, an old and trusted servant of my mother's. She had known me from earliest childhood. When I returned to England I could not bear the thought of trusting my helpless self entirely to a stranger's care, so I wrote to her and begged her to come to me. I could at least groan and lament before her without feeling shame. She came, wept over me for awhile, and then, like a sensible woman, bestirred herself to do all she could to mitigate the hardships of my lot. She found comfortable lodgings, installed her troublesome charge therein, and day and night was ever at his beck and call. Even now, as I lay awake and tossing in mental anguish, she was sleeping on an extemporised bed just outside the folding-doors, which opened from my bedroom to the sitting-room.

It was a stifling night in August. The sluggish air which crept in through the open window made little perceptible difference in the temperature of my room. Everything seemed still, hot, and dark. The only sound I could hear was the regular breathing of the sleeper behind the door, which she had left an inch or two ajar in order that she might catch my faintest call. I had gone early to bed. What had I to wait up for now? It was sleep and sleep alone which brought forgetfulness, but to-night sleep refused to come to me. I struck my repeater. I had bought one in order that I might, at least, know the time. The little bell told me that it was just past one o'clock. Craving for sleep I sighed and sank back upon my pillow.

Presently a sudden fierce longing to be out of doors came over me. It was night—very few people would be about. There was a broad pavement in front of the row of houses in one of which I lodged. Up and down this I might walk in perfect safety. Even if I only sat on the doorstep it would be better than lying in this close hot room, tossing from side to side unable to sleep.

The desire took such full possession of me that I was on the point of calling old Priscilla and making her aware of it; but knowing she was sleeping soundly, I hesitated. I had been unusually restless, cross and exacting during the day, and my old nurse—Heaven reward her!—was serving me for love, not for money. Why should I disturb her? Let me begin to learn to help myself like others in my wretched plight. I had already acquired this much, to dress without assistance. If I could now do this and leave the room unheard, I could I felt sure, grope my way to the front door, let myself out, and, whenever I chose, return by the aid of the latchkey. The thought of even a temporary independence was attractive, and my spirits rose as I resolved to make the attempt.

Dominion Doings.

The Toronto ladies will supply each of the returned volunteers at the banquet there with a boquet.

There were four new cases of smallpox in Montreal, Wednesday, and one death from the disease.

Dr. Jackson, one of the oldest and most eminent physicians in Quebec city, died Thursday morning.

The customs authorities of Montreal have attached the machinery of the Montreal abattoir for a fine of $7,000 unpaid duty.

A protest has been served on the Minister of Customs calling on him to withdraw the alleged claim of the customs against the Montreal Abattoir Company.

Pat. Murphy, of Syracuse, N. Y., met a confidence man in Montreal, Wednesday, who fleeced him out of $22, every cent he owned.

A public meeting in Toronto Thursday night, the mayor presiding, passed resolutions demanding the prohibition or restriction of Chinese immigration.

The Worthington company have been awarded the contract for a new pumping engine for the Montreal waterworks, to cost $39,000 and an engine to cost $12,650.

Edward Villeneuve had his hand so badly crushed by a printing press in Daniel & Berthiaume's establishment, Montreal, that two of his fingers will have to be amputated.

Mrs. Ellis of Trenton, Ontario, aged 80, was run over and killed by a train on the Central Ontario railway Wednesday. She was walking along the track and being deaf did not hear the train approaching.

A petition has been made to have Mary Power released from Longue Point asylum. It is said she is not insane, but was sent to the asylum by her son. The woman is worth $30,000 in her own right.

A knife found under the bed of Sing Lee, the murdered Chinamen at Rome, N. Y., has been identified by a lad residing near Fong-a-Yu's laundry as belonging to the prisoner now under arrest in Montreal.

Duty of Dealers in Paris Green.

Merchants who sell Paris green are required by law to keep a list of all purchasers of the article. A paper is presented to each applicant on which the buyer must write his or her name, the use to which it is to be applied, and the amount purchased. If this is done in all instances, the vendor will not leave himself liable to a penalty, at the same time access may be had to an accurate inventory of every person using it. Two merchants in Madoc were lately brought before the magistrate and fined for neglect of their duty, the informant being a fellow representing himself to be a detective from Toronto.

Trouble at Salt Lake.

The War Department Prepares for a Mormon Outbreak.

OMAHA, Neb., July 16.—General Howard, commanding the department of the Platte, has returned from Salt Lake City, in which place he spent the 4th of July. He says there is great apprehension there over it, bad feeling existing between the Gentiles and Mormons. The situation has assumed grave proportions, and has been greatly intensified by the insult offered by the Mormons to our flag. This bitterness of feeling is much greater than the public is aware of. In anticipation of an outbreak occurring at any day, the war department has made preparations for it.

The Human Voice.

A boy ten years old can stand out in the street of a quiet village on a calm summer afternoon and make the air quiver and startle the dozing population out of a year's peace by shrieking to a boy three-quarters of a mile away: "Oh, Skinner! Comin' nout tafter supper?"

And the other lad will yell back with awful distinctness and care:

"Yes! Gityer nigger-shooter'n' come to the store."

And they will converse in the same thrilling pitch and maddening force if they are only ten feet apart. But, twenty or thirty years after, either of these boys will get up to address a public meeting in a hall not fifty feet deep, and ten feet away from the speaker not a living soul can hear a word he says.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-ly

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Fishing Party.

A party of six persons arrived in town last evening from Buckingham, England, and registered at the Oriental. After looking around our town to-day, and admiring the various good qualities, they went northward to our back lakes for a few days good fishing.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Fresh to strong south, veering to west, winds; fair, very warm weather, with local showers and thunder storms, more especially in northern Ontario.

A Good Appointment.

To-morrow morning Mr. J. Campbell, M. A., of this town, late Classical Master in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, starts for Toronto. He has been appointed by the Education Department, examiner of the Latin papers of candidates writing for Third and Second Class Certificates. These duties will last about two or three weeks.

Forester's Pic-nic.

The excursion and pic-nic held yesterday in Hastings by Court Little John, No. 92, C. O. F., was a success in every way. The party arrived in good time, and after taking a stroll through the village, adjourned to the beautiful picnic grounds, where a splendid dinner was served, and relished by every excursionist, including a number of the villagers, who joined the pleasure seekers to have a day's recreation. Foot races were held throughout the day, and considerable interest was manifested in each event. A number of crack shots—with a stone—exercised themselves during the afternoon firing at "Old Aunt Sally," and it is reported that one of the participants intends challenging the county, so fine has he worked the science from the afternoon's practice. The party reached home at 8:30 p. m., after spending an exceedingly pleasant day.

Bullet vs. Bumblebee.

Mr. T. Fitzgerald is a devoted angler as well as a crack shot with a sporting rifle. A day or two ago he gave evidence that all is grace that comes under his head from a bear to a bumble-bee. Mr. Fitzgerald and Rev. Messrs. Torrance and McKay, on their way from a fishing expedition at Bobcaygeon, halted at Bridge-north, en route for Burleigh. While resting here the genial host of the Fobert Hotel suggested a trial of Mr. Fitzgerald's skill with a sporting rifle he carried. Quite opposite an unlucky bumble-bee hit on the side of a building about twenty feet distant. Mr. Fitzgerald drew a bead on the unsuspecting insect, blazed away and brought his game down. This neat shot was warmly applauded and in the excitement of the moment one of the clerical spectators, not only plagiarized Domine Sampson, but perpetrated a pun, by exclaiming, "Prodigious! How can such things be!"

St. Peter's Cathedral.

The Appearance of the Edifice Greatly Changed.

To look at St. Peter's Cathedral to-day one would hardly believe that the greater portion of the building was standing in its present position nearly half a century ago, so complete has the work of remodelling and improving been done by the corps of masons and stone-cutters that are at present engaged under the able management of Mr. James Bogue. The addition to the main building in the shape of a large and spacious transept has been completed for some time, and, to finish the other or original portion of the building so as to be in keeping with the appearance of the late addition, buttresses were added and other extensions made, and to-day the appearance of the edifice, tuck-pointed from the eve to the base, and finished with limestone, from the hands of the staff of stone-cutters, is, to say the least of it, beautiful. At present masons are engaged building a chimney of considerable proportions and ornamental design on the east side of the cathedral. The one on the west is completed, and, reaching twenty-four feet above the top of the wall, presents a very pretty appearance, ornamented with cruciform designs chiseled into the stonework. When completed the building will be heated by large hot air furnaces placed in the basement. Mr. H. Carveth, who received the contract for the erection of the steeple, is pushing his work rapidly to completion. When it is finished the steeple will be thirty feet higher than the old one and will give the building a majestic appearance.

After Many Days.

The long and eventful struggle of Mr. Wm. Yelland to secure a siding from the G. T. R. to run into his coal and wood yard, corner of Bethune and Murray streets, has been ultimately crowned with triumph. The siding is there now, and as soon as ballast is added will be ready for use.

Bitten by a Pedestrian Dog.

Yesterday a son of Mr. Geo. Brown, Donegal street, while in the country on the Douro boundary line was severely bitten on the leg by a vicious dog. The wounds were promptly dressed, but the little fellow will be laid up and lamed for some time to come. The hot weather does not tend to improve a dog's temper.

St. Andrew's Church.

On Wednesday last Mr. Joseph Phillips, with a large staff of men, began the brickwork of St. Andrew's new church, Rubidge street. The joists have all been laid for the flooring, and everything so far has been constructed in the most substantial manner, which reflects great credit on the contractors, Messrs. Douglass and Robson. The brick is being supplied by Messrs. Curtis & Sons, who are kept busy supplying the demands of the corps of bricklayers, which, in a short time, will be increased to twice the number.

A.C.A. Camp.

The following letter has been handed us, with a request for publication, and we cheerfully comply:—

To the Members of the A.C.A.:

GENTLEMEN,—There will be two mails daily between Gananoque and the A. C. A. Camp, which opens on 24th instant at Grindstone Island. All mail matter should be addressed: "American Canoe Association Camp, Gananoque, Ont." This is for the benefit of the Canadian members of the Association, and is in addition to the regular mail service via Clayton, N.Y.

Yours truly,
F. S. RATHBUN,
Vice Commodore.

Night Owls After Fruit.

This morning when Mr. Ostrom, of the firm of Ostrom & Ostrom, reached their fruit store on Water street, and went down cellar to look after the shipment of some oranges, he noticed that the look of the door leading into that apartment was broken, and on investigation, found that three boxes of California blue plums had been stolen. The party or parties effecting the entrance must have used an axe or some such instrument, as the door was very firmly locked. The night watchman on being referred to, stated that no noise was heard in that quarter through the small hours, whatever, and the matter, as yet, is a mystery to the dealers.

Willow and Wicket.

The return match between the married and single members of the Peterborough Cricket Club, was played yesterday afternoon on the Ashburnham grounds, and was a very good contest from the start until time was called at 7 p.m. The youngsters went first to the bat and after an innings of about an hour's duration, retired with a score of 115 to their credit. The married men then took the field and began their work like trogans, literally paralyzing their opponents by the scores which their first three batters had made. A bachedict player informs us, that to encourage the youths he bribed the best men on his side to "play off" and hence the small figures which were being made, when time was called. The following is the score;—

L.O.O.F. for Lindsay.

A committee was appointed last evening at a meeting of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, to confer with Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, re arrangements for an excursion to Lindsay on 28th inst., when decoration ceremonies will be held in connection with Lindsay Lodge.

Home Again.

Bishop Sweatman arrived home yesterday after an episcopal visit to the Lake Superior district of his diocese. During his absence he consecrated a church and cemetery, and blessed two bells, besides administering the sacrament of confirmation to a large number of candidates.

Sanitary Inspection.

Yesterday Dr. Clark, Medical Health Officer, accompanied by Inspector Adams, made a tour of inspection. Several private wells were examined and the grounds of a number of private complaints investigated. The sanitary condition of the Park street drain was examined into and it was found that some work had been done that puts it in an improved sanitary condition. Complaints of bad sanitary conditions along the course of the creek were also looked into and some found to be justifiable and others frivolous. Altogether the sanitary state of the town is fair—much better than last year. The people take more spontaneous action and more readily respond to the instructions of the officers of the Board in the abatement and removal of nuisances.

St. Andrew's Excursion to Norwood.

The excursion to Norwood yesterday, under the management of the St. Andrew's Church was the most successful one that has ever been held by that body. The seven coaches containing the excursionists arrived at the station at Norwood at 11.30 a. m., a good time by the way, as the majority of persons do not care to arrive too soon at picnic grounds, and as a result wait all the longer for dinner. By special invitation, Rev. Mr. Carmichael and the teachers of Norwood dined with the Peterborough party, after which swings were resorted to by youngsters, whilst the elders enjoyed themselves by competing in foot-races and other athletic events. The principal event of the day was a race on one of the village streets in which a number of our town business men participated, but the dry goods representatives found that the "shoes" of the winner registered an advantage of thirty per cent over staple dry goods. A tug of war took place between sides of six, chosen by Messrs. McClelland and Patterson, in which Mr. McClelland's half dozen were pulled over the handerchief, thanks to the well developed muscles of Messrs. A. Brodie and Wm. Logan. The return trip was made in fifty minutes, arriving at the O. and Q. station at 8 p.m.

SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1885.

Personal.

John McNaughton, Esq., Stipendary Magistrate for Algoma, is in town.

Mr. J. Stephenson, of the Grand Trunk Railway, was in town yesterday, and departed on the evening train.

We notice with pleasure, at the recent examinations at the Toronto University, R. T. Andrews and W. J, Delaney, two Peterborough boys, were successful in matriculating.

Mr. John McPherson, of this town, left on Thursday evening last for Quebec to take the Sarmatian on a trip to the Old Country. Mr. McPherson has relatives in Edinborough, whom he will visit.

Mr. John Fisher, Cobourg, has been appointed local registrar of the High Court of Justice, registrar of the Surrogate Court, and clerk of the County Court of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, in place of R. D. Chatterton, resigned.

Rev. Father Conway, Peterborough, Rev. Father O'Connell, Douro, and Rev. Father Casey, of Campbellford, leave on Monday for Peak's Island, Maine, to spend a month for rest and relaxation. During the absence of the two latter, their parishes will be attended to by priests from Peterborough.

The Midland Reception.

It is a pity that more prompt and active measures are not being taken to accord the Peterborough members of the Midland Battalion a suitable reception on their return home. All along the line other towns are preparing to do the handsome thing by their returning heroes. Kingston will welcome her contingent with open arms—and hands, too, for the ladies are ready with a $5 gold piece for each man. Barrie gives a warm welcome to the Simcoe Foresters. Belleville is gayly decorating the city for the home-coming of her warriors. Lindsay will do the handsome, the civic and military warmly co-operating. Ottawa is doing her share, the ladies being organised to turn out wearing floral badges. Will Peterborough be behind in so worthy a matter? The county generously donated $300 to the volunteers, and shall the town fail to do its share?

The Canada Temperance Act.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I am thoroughly in sympathy with your editorial of Tuesday last on the Scott Act question, and I sincerely trust the counsel you offer upon this subject may meet with due consideration from the promoters of this enterprise throughout the county.

I see already they have postponed appointing a day for the vote to be polled, pending, so it is said, the action of the House of Commons on the Senate amendments. I hope in the interests of real and genuine temperance they will postpone the the matter indefinitely.

So far as diminishing the admitted evils of intemperance is concerned, I am not at all sanguine that the Canada Temperance Act will accomplish much good. It will certainly produce a great loss of revenue. It may tend to increase largely illicit drinking. It cannot very materially aid the question of prohibition, which it is urged by Scott Act promoters, is the real point at issue.

I am not hopeful enough to imagine that the proper enforcement of the Act will follow on its adoption. The cost and care of providing effective machinery to accomplish this lies with the Dominion Government. With their well-known Anti-Scott views we need not expect they will be over-zealous in seeing that the law is strictly obeyed.

I am, moreover, a stout opponent of all such tyrannical measures, which have for their ostensible object the well-being of the community, but which endeavour to force upon the intelligent minority a system of despotism and espionage equal to the Blue Laws of Connecticut.

I flatly deny the possibility of making men sober by Act of Parliament. I deny the right of men, who boast of liberty and freedom of conscience, to force me by legislative enactments and penalties to do as they wish. I say away with such tyranny, if this is to be the price of sobriety in the nation. There is only one power in the universe that can change the drunkard into a sober, sensible, God-fearing man, and that is the power of Divine grace. The promoters of tyrannical, despotic and arbitrary laws should know this, and act accordingly.

Yours, &c.,
TOTAL ABSTAINER.

Parliamentary Summary.

FRIDAY, JULY 17.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Caron proposed a resolution thanking General Middleton and his officers and men for their conduct in the recent campaign. Sir R. Cartwright seconded the resolution in an eloquent speech, and was followed by Messrs. Tasse, Wright, Woodworth, and MacMillan (Middlesex). The bill granting land to the militia on service in the North-West, the Bill to provide salary for an additional County Court judge in Montreal and the Bill granting subsidies to Provincial railways in Manitoba was passed through their final stages. Sir John Macdonald stated that the only business which remained was the consideration of any amendments which the Senate might make to the measures passed by the House of Commons. A message was received notifying the House that the House would prorogue on Monday at 2½p. m.

Movements of Members.

The Hon. Alex. Mackenzie will address a mass meeting of the East York Reformers on the 25th inst.

Mr. Laurier will review the events of the session at Ottawa and the general situation of the country before his constituents at Quebec, east, within the next fortnight.

Sir David Macpherson has cabled his resignation of the portfolio of the Minister of the Interior.

Funeral of Colonel Williams.

Preparations for the Obsequies.

PORT HOPE, July 17.—It is impossible to picture the gloom prevading this town, which the death of Col. Williams has caused. The sad circumstances of his death and his many noble qualities as a citizen and a soldier are on every person's lips. Upon the arrival of the remains in Port Hope on Thursday evening they were met at the station by an immense crowd of sorrowing friends, and borne in procession to Pearys Park, No. 3 Company of the 46th, commanded by Lieut. Robertson, acting as a guard of honor.

MOST ELABORATE PREPATIONS are being made for the funeral, which is expected to take place on Tuesday. A great many floral offerings both costly and exquisite in design, are being contributed. The Conservative association of East Durham, the ladies of the relief association, the officers of the 46th Battalion, and the various municipal bodies and societies of the town are each preparing profuse offerings of respect to the dead here. The finest so far received is from Mrs. Herbert Chamberlain, England, eldest daughter of the deceased. It is a magnificent cross of white roses. The Midland Battalion will arrive to-morrow night and go into camp. The funeral which will be conducted by them, is expected to be one of the largest ever witnessed in Ontario. East Durham will turn out en masse, and a large number of distinguished gentlemen have signified their intention of being present.

The Montreal Gazette says: Mr. C. Campbell, florist, Victoria Square, received a cablegram from Sir David Macpherson yesterday morning, asking on behalf of his daughter, who was engaged to be married to the late Lieut.-Col. Williams, that he should send a memorial wreath of flowers to be deposited on the coffin of the gallant soldier. Mr. Campbell has accordingly prepared a beautiful cross of euories, stephenotis, white roses and forget-me-nots.

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION.

The Guide says:—The day of the funeral of the late Col. Williams, Queen street as far as Peter, the Market Square, Elias and Hector streets will be closed to the public after 12 o'clock, to be used exclusively for the formation of the military and civic procession. The route will be from the Drill Shed gate, south to the Market square, thence along Queen, Walton, Brown, Bedford and Pine streets to St. John's church, thence via Pine, Walton, Ridout and Victoria streets to the cemetery.

The Saved Army will hold a reception on Thursday evening next, 23rd inst., in honor of the Saved Army soldiers that were with he Midland Battalion in the Northwest.

The Anglo-Russian War Hoax.

Stock Speculators Raise the Rumors.

LONDON, July 17.—The Berlin papers have done a service for the whole world which the London press has been too blinded by passion and prejudice to do. They have pricked the bubble of the new scare about an Anglo-Russian war. They show by indisputable evidence that the warlike rumours and telegrams, though coming from many different places, all emanate from one source, and are all inspired by one set of conspirators, whose sole object is speculation. The exposure shows that the headquarters of the conspiracy are at Berlin, but that its agents are at work on every bourse in Europe. Forged accounts of hostile Russian movements were telegraphed to the London papers. The conspiracy was for a time wonderfully successful. The war scare was revived, the London jingo papers blustered in their usual fashion, many questions were asked in Parliament, and consols, Russian securities, and Egyptian bonds were subjected to a shrinkage, which, in the aggregate, amounted to millions of dollars. Most of the members of the syndicate are believed to have realized on the shrinkage that has already occurred. Others who did not expect the exposure to come so soon have been caught in their own net, and are seeking to get out their contracts as well as they can.

The Deserts Between Cairo ane Khartoum.

General R. E. Colston, late of the Egyptian General Staff, says in the September Century, apropos of the difficulties opposing "the Rescue of General Gordon": "The Arabs divide their deserts into two kinds. The first is called el jebel or el berrye, meaning mountain or wilderness. In this kind of deserts there is always more or less vegetation, always very scanty; but yet it is there that the Bedouins roam and raise their flocks and camels. Gazelles and other game are also found.

"The desert between Berber and Suakim is chiefly of this kind. The other kind is called the atmoor, and it is impossible to imagine anything more barren and desolate. It is literally nothing but sand and rocks. Not a bush, not a blade of grass ever grew there, and consequently no animal life, not even insects. They are like oceans which you cross on your 'desert ships' but there is death to tarry. The ostrich and hyena cross them swiftly by night. These atmoors are generally from eight to ten days across, with one groupe of wells in the middle. Such is the atmoor of Shigre, which I crossed in nine days, and that of Korosko in seven (two days less than the usual time).

"Only one group of wells is found half way, which is called moura—bitter. None but camels and Bedouins can drink its water. Travelers always carry enough Nile water to last them across. It is the only desert where no guide is needed, for the track is perfectly marked by the skeletons of camels and cattle, which, as I counted them, average sixty to the mile on the best parts of the trail, and four hundred on the worst. Thousands of camels and oxen perish there yearly. The latter are driven from the Upper Nile, scantily watered once in forty-eight hours on the march, and a large proportion of them die on the way. The hyenas and vultures, which are the only denizens of the atmoor, pick their bones clean before the next morning. And the fierce sun heat dries the hides and bones, so that the stench of carrion never taints the desert air."

A new dish with which epicures tempt fate and give an impetus to stomach anodynes is composed of sliced oranges, sliced pineapples, sliced bananas, sliced hard-boiled eggs, sliced cucumbers, vinegar and sugar. It is called a fruit salad.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The dissensions in the Liberal ranks in Great Britain are being reconciled and next fall the Liberals will present an united front that will doubtless bring victory at the general elections in November.

The supplementary estimates amount to $3,155,902, making a total estimated expenditure for the current year $37,000,000. The principal item is $2,300,000 to meet rebellion losses and expenses. $500 additional is also to be allowed to each member of the senate and Commons.

While the debt of Canada is 300 million the annual expenditure nearly 37 millions and the rate of taxation, $7.6 per head for man and woman and child, Sir John A. does not hesitate to add $144,500 to the annual outlay, to increase the sessional indemnity of members to $1,500 per session. Thus an indemnity ceases to become an indemnity—it becomes big pay. Our legislators make the people sacrifice a great deal, and it is time that well paid patriots should sacrifice a little themselves.

A Conservative contemporary makes the absurd accusation that the Globe sympathises with the rebels. If the Government had treated them with consideration and sympathy, when they were protesting against government oppression, there would have been no rebels to sympathize with or punish. Sir John once, wrongly appropriated $1,000 of the people's money, to show his sympathy with a rebel. Don't dish up so much red-herring. It's Reil and the Government that are on their trial now, not a newspaper.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston, Secretary of the Provincial Reform Association, will be the Liberal candidate in East Durham, the representation of which has been rendered vacant by the death of Lieutenant-Colonel Williams. The choice is announced because of the rumor that the writ is ready and about to be issued; in truth it appears that the South Grenville trick of a hasty election is about to be again attempted. The promptitude of the Liberals in selecting a candidate, and one who, as the publisher of the Port Hope News, was known to most of the riding's electors, may suggest to the government more deliberate and decent proceedings.

Up to the 27th of June 975 candidates for seats in the new British Parliament had been nominated—420 Liberals and 375 Conservatives in England, 30 Liberals and 18 Conservatives in Wales, and 94 Liberals and 38 Conservatives in Scotland. 404 members of the present House seek election to the new Parliament for constituencies again. In Great Britain 117 Liberals and 33 Conservatives ask re-election for seats they now hold; 93 Liberals and 105 Conservative members for seats remodelled by the Redistribution Act, and 36 Liberal, and 20 Conservative members for constituencies altogether unconnected with those for which they now sit. Twenty-four of the Liberal and six of the Conservative candidates in England are distinguished as labour candidates, and nine of those in Scotland as crofters.

The Six Thousand Years of Famine.

The Great Corn-Crib of the Lord's Building.

The Conditions on which the Abundance Offered can be Enjoyed.

Subject, "The Corn Crib."

Text: Genesis XLIII, 3, "Ye shall not see my face except your brother be with you."

Nothing to eat! Plenty of corn in Egypt but ghastly famine in Canaan; the cattle moaning in the stall, men, women and children awfully white with hunger. Not the failing of one crop for one summer, but the failing of all crops for seven years. A nation dying for lack of that which is so common on your table and so little appreciated; the product of harvest field, and grist mill, and oven; the price of sweat and anxiety and struggle—bread. Jacob, the father, has the last report from the flour bin, and he finds that everything is out and he says to his sons, "Boys, hook up the wagons and start for Egypt and get us something to eat." The fact was there was a great corn-crib in Egypt. The people of Egypt have been largely taxed in all ages, at the present time paying between 70 and 80 per cent. of their products to the government. No wonder in that time they had a large corn-crib and it was full. To that crib they came from the regions round about—those who were famished—some paying for the corn in money; when the money was exhausted, paying for the corn in sheep and cattle, and horses and camels; and when they were exhausted, then selling their own bodies and their families into slavery.

The morning for starting out on the crusade for bread has arrived. Jacob gets his family up very early. But before the elder sons start they say something that makes him tremble with emotion from head to foot and burst into tears. The fact was that these elder sons had once before been in Egypt to get corn and they had been treated somewhat roughly, the lord of the corn crib supplying them with corn, but saying at the close of the interview:—"Now, you need not come back here for any more corn unless you bring something better than money—even your younger brother Benjamin." Ah, Benjamin—that very name was suggestive of all tenderness. The mother had died at the birth of that son—a spirit coming and another spirit going—and the very thought of parting with Benjamin must have been a heartbreak. The keeper of this corn crib, nevertheless, says to the older sons: "There is no need of your coming up here any more for corn unless you can bring Benjamin, your father's darling." Now, Jacob and his family very much needed bread; but what a struggle it would be to give up this son. The Orientals are very demonstrative in their grief, and I hear the outwailing of the father as these older sons keep reiterating in his ears the announcement of the Egyptian lord, "Ye shall not see my face unless your brother be with you." "Why did you tell them you had a brother?" said the old man, complaining and chiding them. "Why, father," they said, "he asked us all about our family and we had no idea he would make any such demand on us as he has made." "No use of asking me," said the father. "I cannot, I will not give up Benjamin." The fact was that the old man had lost two children, and I have been told that when there has been a bereavement in the household and a child taken, it makes the other children in the household more precious. So the day for departure was adjourned and adjourned and adjourned. Still.

THE HORRORS OF THE FAMINE

increased, and louder moaned the cattle and wider open cracked the earth and more pallid became the cheeks, until Jacob in despair cried out to his sons: "Take Benjamin and be off." The older sons tried to cheer up their father. They said: "We have strong arms and a stout heart, and no harm will come to Benjamin. We'll see that he gets back again." "Farewell!" said the young men to the father, in a tone of assumed good-cheer. "F-a-r-e-w-e-l-l!" said the old man, for that word has more quavers in it when pronounced by the aged, than by the young.

Well, the bread party—the bread embassy—drives up in front of the corn-crib of Egypt. Those corn-cribs are filled with wheat and barley and corn in the husk, for modern travellers in those lands, both in Canaan and Egypt, tell us there is corn there corresponding with our Indian maize. Huzzah! The journey is ended. The lord of the corn-crib, who is also the Prime Minister, comes down to these arrived travellers, and says: "Dine with me to-day. How is your father? Is this Benjamin, the younger brother, whose presence I demanded?" The travellers are introduced into the palace. They are worn and bedusted of the way; and servants come in with a basin of water in one hand and a towel in the other, and kneel down before these newly arrived travellers, washing off the dust of the way. The butchers and poulterers and caterers of the Prime Minister prepare the repast. The guests are seated in small groups, two or three at a table, the food on a tray; all the luxuries from imperial gardens and orchards, and aquariums and aviaries are brought there and are filling the chalice and platter. Now is the time for this Prime Minister, if he has a grudge against Benjamin, to show it. Will he kill him now that he has him in his hands? Oh, no! This lord of the corn-crib is seated at his own table, and he looks over to the tables of his guests; and he sends a portion to each of them, but sends a larger portion to Benjamin, or, as the Bible quaintly puts it: "Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of theirs." Be quick and send word back with the swiftest camel to Canaan to old Jacob that "Benjamin is well; all is well; he is faring sumptuously; the Egyptian lord did not mean murder and death; but he meant deliverance and life when he announced to us on that day: 'Ye shall not see my face unless your brother be with you.'"

Well, my friends, this world is famine-struck of sin. It does not yield a single crop of solid satisfaction.

IT IS DYING. IT IS HUNGER-BITTEN.

The fact that it does not, cannot, feed a man's heart was well illustrated in the life of the English commedian. All the world honored him—did everything for him that the world could do. He was applauded in England and applauded in the United States. He roused up nations into laughter. He had no equal. And yet, although, many people supposed him entirely happy and that this world was completely satiating his soul, he sits down and writes: "I never in my life put on a new hat, that it did not rain and ruin it. I never went out in a shabby coat because it was raining and thought all who had the choice would keep indoors, that the sun did not burst forth in its strength and bring out with it all the butterflies of fashion whom I knew and who knew me. I never consented to accept a part I hated, out of kindness to another, that I did not get hissed by the public and cut by the writer. I could not take a drive for a few minutes with Terry without being overturned and having my elbow bones broken, though my friend got off unharmed. I could not make a covenant with Arnold, which I thought was to make my fortune without making his instead; in an incredible space of time—I think thirteen months—I earned for him twenty thousand pounds and for myself one. I am persuaded that if I were to set up as a begger every one in my neighborhood would leave off eating bread."

This was the lament of the world's commedian and joker. All unhappy. The world did everything for Lord Byron that it could do, and yet in his last moment he asks a friend to come and sit down by him and read as most appropriate to his case the story of "The Bleeding Heart." Torrigiano, the sculptor, executed, after months of care and carving, "The Madonna and the Child." The Royal family came in and admired it. Everybody that looked at it was in ecstacy; but one day, after all that toil and all that admiration, because he did not get as much compensation for his work as he had expected, he took a mallet and dashed the exquisite sculpture into atoms. The world is a poor compensation, poor satisfaction, poor solace. Famine, famine in all the earth; not for seven years but for 6,000. But, blessed be God, there is a great corn crib. The Lord built it. It is in a mother land. It is a large place. An angel once measured it, and, as far as I can calculate it in our phrase, that corn crib is 1,500 miles long and 1,500 broad and 1,500 high, and it is full. Food for all nations. "Oh," say the people, "we will start right away and get this supply for our souls." But, stop a moment, for from the keeper of that corn crib there comes this word, saying: "You shall not see my face except your brother be with you." In other words, there is no such thing as getting from heaven pardon and comfort and eternal life, unless we bring with us our Divine Brother, the Lord Jesus Christ; coming without him we shall fall before we reach the corn crib and our bodies shall be a portion for the jackals of the wilderness; but coming with the divine Jesus all the granaries of heaven will swing open before our soul and abundance shall be given us. We shall be invited to sit in the palace of the king and at the table; and while the Lord of Heaven is apportioning from his own table to other tables, He will not forget us; and then and there it will be found that our Benjamin's mess is larger than all the others, for so it ought to be. "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive blessing and riches and honor and glory and power."

I want to make three points. Every frank and common sense man will acknowledge himself to be a sinner. What are you going to do with your sins? Have them pardoned, you say. How? Through the mercy of God. What do you mean by the mercy of God? Is it the letting down of a bar for the admission of all without respect to character? Be not deceived. I see a soul coming up to the gate of mercy and knocking at the corn-crib of heavenly supply; and a voice from within says: "Are you alone?" The sinner replies: "All alone." The voice from within says: "You shall not see my pardoning face unless your divine Brother, the Lord Jesus, be with you." Oh, that is the point at which so many are discomfited.

There is no mercy from God except through Jesus Christ. Coming with Him, we are accepted. Coming without Him, we are rejected. Peter put it right in his great sermon before the priests, when he thundered forth: "Neither is there salvation in any other. There is no other name under heaven among men whereby we may be saved." O, anxious sinner; O, dying sinner; O, lost sinner, all you have to do is to have this divine Benjamin along with you. Side by side, coming to the gate, all the store houses of heaven will swing open before your anxious soul. Am I right in calling Jesus Benjamin? Oh, yes, Rachel lived only long enough to give a name to that child, and, with a dying kiss, she called him Benoni. Afterward Jacob changed his name, and called him Benjamin. The meaning of the name she gave was "Son of pain." The meaning of the name the father gave was "Son of my right hand;" and was not Christ the son of pain? All the sorrows of Rachel in that hour when she gave her child over into the hands of strangers was nothing compared with the struggle of God when He gave up His only Son. The omnipotent God in a birth throe! And was not Christ appropriately called Son of the Right Hand? Did not Stephen look into heaven and see Him standing at the right hand of God? And does not Paul speak of Him as standing at the right hand of God making intercession for us? O, Benjamin—Jesus! Son of Pang, Son of Victory! the deepest emotions of our souls ought to be stirred at the sound of that nomenclature. To-night in your prayers plead His tears, His sufferings, His sorrow, and His death. If you refuse to do it all the corn cribs and will be bolted and barred against your soul, and a voice from the Throne shall stun you with the announcement—"You shall not see my face except your brother be with you."

My text also suggests the reason why so many people do not get any real comfort. You meet ten people; nine of these are in need of some kind of condolence. There is something in their health, or in their state, or in their domestic condition that demands sympathy. And yet the most of the world's sympathy amounts to absolutely nothing. People go to the wrong crib or they go in the wrong way. When the plague was in Rome a great many years ago there were 80 men who chanted themselves to death with the litanies of Gregory the Great—literally chanted themselves to death—and yet it did not stop the plague. And all the music of this world cannot halt the plague of the human heart. I come to some one whose ailments are chronic and I say: "In heaven you will never be sick." That does not give you much comfort. What you want is a soothing power for your present distress. Lost children, have you? I come to you and tell you that in ten years perhaps you will meet those loved ones before the throne of God. But there is but little condolence in that. One day is a year without them, and ten years is a small eternity. What you want is a sympathy now—present help. I come to those of you who have lost dear friends and say: "Try to forget them. Do not keep the departed always in your mind." How can you forget them when every figure in the carpet, and every book, and every picture, and every room calls out their name. Suppose I come to you and say, by way of condolence: "God is wise." "Oh," you say, "that gives me no help." Suppose I come to you and say: "God from all eternity has arranged this trouble." "Ah," you say, "that does me no good." Then I say: "With the swift feet of prayer go direct to the corn-crib for a heavenly supply." You go, and you say: "Lord, help me; Lord, comfort me." But no help yet; no comfort yet. It is all dark. What is the matter? I have failed. You ought to go to God and say: "Here, O Lord, are the wounds of my soul, and I bring with me the wounded Jesus. Let His wounds pay for my wounds, His bereavements for my bereavements, His loneliness for my loneliness, His heart-break for my heartbreak. O God, for the sake of the Lord Jesus Christ—the God, the Man, the Benjamin, the Brother—deliver my agonizing soul. O Jesus of the weary foot, ease my fatigue. O Jesus of the aching head, heal my aching head. O Jesus of the Bethany sisters, roll away the stone from the door of our grave." That is the kind of prayer that brings help, and yet how many of you are getting no help at all, for the reason that there is in your soul, perhaps, a secret trouble. You may never have mentioned it to a single human ear, or you may have mentioned it to someone who is now gone away, and that great sorrow is still in your soul. After Washington Irving was dead, they found a little box that contained a braid of hair and a miniature and the name of Matilda Hoffman, and a memorandum of her death and a remark something like this: "The world after that

Tabernacle Sermons.

WAS A BLANK TO ME.

I went into the country, but found no peace in solitude. I tried to go into society, but I found no peace in society. There has been a horror hanging over me by night and by day, and I am afraid to be alone."

How many unuttered troubles at this hour! No human ear has ever heard that sorrow. O troubled soul, I want to tell you that there is one salve that can cure the wounded of the heart, and that is the salve made out of the tears of a sympathetic Jesus, and yet some of you will not take this solace, and you try chloral and you try morphine, and you try strong drink, and you try change of scene and you try new business associations, and anything and everything rather than to take the Divine companionship and sympathy suggested by the words of my text where it says: "You shall not see my face again unless your brother be with you." Oh, that all might understand something of the height and depth and length and breadth and immensity and infinity of God's eternal consolations.

I go further and find in my subject a hint as to why so many people fail of heaven. We are told that heaven has 12 gates, and some people infer from that fact that all the people will go in without reference to their past life; but what is the use of having a gate that is not sometimes to be shut? The swinging of a gate implies that our entrance into heaven is conditional. It is not a monetary condition. If we come to the door of an exquisite concert we are not surprised that we must pay a fee, for we know that fine, earthly music is expensive; but all the oratorios of heaven cost nothing. Heaven pays nothing for its music. It is all free. There is nothing to be paid at that door for entrance; but the condition of our getting into heaven is our bringing our divine Benjamin along with us. Do you notice how often dying people call upon Jesus? It is the usual prayer offered, the prayer offered more than all the other prayers put together: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." One of my congregation, when asked in the closing moments of his life: "Do you know us?" said: "Oh, yes; I know you. God bless you. Good bye. Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," and he was gone. Oh yes; in the closing moments of our life we must have a Christ to call upon. If Jacob's sons had gone up toward Egypt and had gone with the very finest equipage and had not taken Benjamin along with them, and to the question they should have been obliged to answer; "Sir, we didn't bring him, as father could not let him go; we didn't want to be bothered with him," a voice from within would have said: "Go away from us; you shall not have any of this supply; you shall not see my face, because your brother is not with you." And if we come up toward the door of Heaven at last, though we come from all of surroundings, and knock for admittance, and it is found that Christ is not with us, the police of Heaven will beat us back from the bread-house, saying: "Depart I never knew you." If Jacob's sons, coming toward Egypt, had lost everything on the way; if they had expended their last shekel; if they had come up utterly exhausted to the corn-cribs of Egypt and it had been found that Benjamin was with them, all the store houses would have swung open before them. And so, though by fatal casualty, we may be ushered into the eternal world; though we may be weak and exhausted by protracted sickness, if in that last moment we can only just stagger and faint and fall into the gate of heaven—it seems that all the corn-cribs of Heaven will open for our need, and all the palaces will open for our reception; and the Lord of that place seated at his table, and all the angels of God seated at their table, and the martyrs seated at their table, and all our glorified kindred seated at our table, the King shall pass a portion from his table to ours, and then, while we think of the fact that it was Jesus who started us on the road, and Jesus who kept us on the way, and Jesus who at last gained admittance for our souls, we shall be glad if he has seen of the travail of his soul and been satisfied, and not be at all jealous if it be found that our divine Benjamin's mess is five times larger than all the rest. Hail! annointed of the Lord, thou art worthy.

LUXURIANCE AND BRILLIANCY

My friends, you see it is either Christ or famine. If there were two banquets spread, and to one of them only you might go, you might stand and think for a good while as which invitation you had better accept; but here it is feasting or starvation. If there were two mansions offered and you might have only one, you might think for a long while, saying:—"Perhaps I had better accept this gift and perhaps I had betoer accept that gift," and here it is a choice between palaces of light and hovels of despair. If it were a choice between oratories you might say:—"I prefer the 'Creation,' or I prefer the 'Messiah.'" But here it is a choice between eternal harmony and everlasting discord. Oh, will you live or die? Will you sail into the harbor or drive on the rocks? Will you start for the Egyptian corn-crib or will you perish amid the empty barns of the Canaanitish famine?

What shall be the destiny of all my audience? I might peer into the countenances and see here and there a person that I well know and make up my mind as to what direction they may take in going home. Some of them I may never have met before; some of them I may never meet again. We just touch and pass off. God, I believe, through this sermon has shown you your need and the only source of supply; and yet some as deliberately make their own choice as though they had in their pocket a certificate from the throne of heaven warranting that they would have a hundred years yet in which to discuss this question and decide it. There is but a step between you and death. There is but a step between you and your last call of mercy. There is but one step between you and the loss of an eternal soul. And so I meet you and put my hand on your shoulder and I beg you to accept Christ and prepare for heaven. Oh what a tremendous moment this! Gates of mercy closing. Messenger angels retreating. The Holy Spirit ceasing his last plea to the heart. The shadows of the eternal world drooping; while for some the granaries of God are shut and the eternal famine has begun. "Ye shall not see my face except your brother be with you."

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The Daily Examiner.

SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Light winds, fine weather, lower temperature.

Baseball.

The Secretary of the Peterborough baseball club received a challenge from Geo. S. Galloway, secretary of the Atlantics, of Toronto, to play a game here on August 17th, the Queen City's civic holiday. It is very probable that the challenge will be accepted, and that the new grounds will be formally opened on that date. As we go to press, a game is in progress between our boys and the Bethany nine.

P. A. A. A.

The members of the Bicycle Club are requested to turn out in full force on Tuesday evening (weather permitting) for a run to Lakefield and back. Every member of the club, who can possibly attend, is requested to put in an appearance at the drill shed grounds, at 6:45 p. m. sharp, as a full muster is wanted.

Vagrant Cows.

We are receiving complaints that the vigilance of the custodians of the cow by-law is becoming relaxed. In some parts of the town vagrant cows have been doing considerable damage. Eternal vigilance is the price of keeping our streets and grounds in good condition. A single hour of an evilly-disposed cow in the Court House Park would result in more damage than she is worth at 10 cents a pound, live weight.

Water vs. Stones.

A young quartette, who were imitating with small hose the actions of the branchmen of our fire department the other day on Rubidge street, took it into their heads to experiment for a short time on a crowd of lads of their own number who were seated on the sidewalk a short distance from the nozzle and gazing with jealousy on the efforts of the younger branchmen. The result was a short war in which the party handling the stones came out victors, after they had battled against the stream for over ten minutes.

Nicholl's Hospital.

The work of preparing the Nicholl's Hospital for the reception of patients is progressing steadily. The interior of the building has been painted and calcimined and generally refitted. Workmen were, yesterday, engaged in overbuilding and repairing the pumps and water pipes for the baths. The exterior has also received special attention recently, and presents a very neat appearance, the lawns having been mown and otherwise made tidy.

Capital Lacrosse.

At a committee metting of the Peterboro, Lacrosse Club last night, the team was chosen for the match with the Metropolitans of Ottawa, on Tuesday, the 21st, inst. The following are the names of the players, with their respective positions, who will go to the capital:—J. Joyal, goal; R. Hall, point; M. Tierney, cover point; M. Halpin, first defence; R. H. Fortye, second defence; A. Cameron, third defence; J. Sheehy, centre; R. Kelly, third home; J. Henderson, second home; W. Scott, first home; C. Rutherford outside home; W. Radkins, inside home. G. H. Giroux and P. Moscrips, sparemen; M. McDonald, captain.

Attempted Burglary.

At about one o'clock this morning, Mr. D. Barritt, son of Dr. Barritt, heard some noise at the back door of the premises, and thinking it was some person knocking for medical assistance, got up and asked the person to come around to the front door. The person, however, was not after relief, but called around to relieve the premises of any valuable article which might chance to come under his eagle eye, had he effected the entrance. When invited to come in he suddenly changed his mind and scampered off at a lively pace.

Murray Street Baptist Church.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will preach at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. In the morning his subject will be "The seen and the unseen," and in the evening "Daniel."

Methodist Pulpits.

On Sunday the pulpit of the George Street Methodist Church will be occupied by Rev. I. Tovell in the morning and Rev. F. H. Wallace in the evening. In the morning Rev. Mr. Wallace will preach in the Charlotte Street Church and Rev. Mr. Tovell in the evening.

A Magnificent Meteor.

Last night about nine o'clock, a splendid meteor was seen in the eastern sky. It was in the form of a huge ball of fire, and for a few moments the darkness was dispersed as by a prolonged flash of lightning. The ball burst into many colored fragments like a rocket, which disappeared behind a bank of cloud.

Close Shooting.

At the last practice on the Association ranges, Mr. D. Cameron made the best shooting ever scored on its targets. At 200 yards the marker's flag announced 20, at 500 yards ditto, and at 600 yards 19. The practice is developing some good marksmanship. One of its members amuses himself between shots in blowing off the heads of dandelions at ten yards with a sporting rifle. Coming candidates for Wimbledon.

Police Court.

In the absence of Mr. D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate, Mr. T. Menzies, J. P., mounted the throne at the Police Court this morning and was confronted by the seediest looking hoodlum that has warmed a seat in the front row for a long time. He gave his name as George Portage, and was up on a charge of being drunk. In consideration of it being his first appearance before the Cadi in Peterborough, he was allowed to go.

Col. Williams' Funeral.

On Tuesday, the date of the funeral of the late Col. Williams, the Grand Trunk Railway will issue tickets at a single fare (95 cts.) and persons wishing to go to Port Hope can leave by the 7.05 a. m. train or the 11.55 a. m. train. A special train leaving Port Hope about 5 p. m. will admit of returning to town at that hour or parties may return by regular morning train on Wednesday. From what we hear Peterborough will turn out largely next Tuesday.

Central Exhibition Committee Meeting.

The members of the committee of the Central Exhibition met this afternoon in the Council Chamber for the purpose of completing the prize lists and making other necessary arrangements preparatory to holding the exhibition. The question as to the advisability of getting the celebrated Caughnawaga Indians to come here to cross sticks with the Peterboroughs was brought before the meeting, which is going on as we go to press.

Two Rascals.

The other day a little girl, who was engaged in selling raspberries in the western portion of the town, was robbed of her pail of berries whilst going south on Donegal street. It seems that two young hoodlums saw that they had a good chance to obtain the luscious prize, and one deliberately snatched the pail and after emptying the contents into his hat, ran off, accompanied by his chum, towards Park street, where they both took part in the stolen feast. The little girl says she would know one of them, and if he could possibly be pointed out, he richly deserves a lash for every berry that he swallowed.

Muscular Christianity.

St. John's church was well and creditably represented at the return cricket match between the bachelors and benedicts. At one stage of the game the curate was wielding the willow to good purpose at one end, and at the other the organist was giving the fielders plenty of leather-hunting. The bowling was vigorously conducted by a church warden, who "went for" the wickets of his opponents in an "underhand" manner, perhaps unworthy of a church warden, but highly creditable to a cricketer, utterly reckless as to whether his ball removed the tibial cuticle of the curate, or dis-organ-ized the pedals of the choir-master.. The score book showed that all three made the same creditable record in cricket, that they have done in their various relations to the church.

A Rattling Race on Rollers.

When Ed. Brown sounded the gong last night at nine o'clock for the clearance of the floor at the Lansdowne Rink there must have been over one thousand persons present. The railing of the galleries was crowded, chiefly with ladies, who took a lively interest in the race which started at five minutes after nine, Loch, Shevlin and a foreign flyer, named Switz, being the contestants. At the start Loch showed up very well, but before he had gone ten yards Shevlin forged ahead of him, with Switz in very close quarters. The contest was lively from the outset, and as each competitor spurted, the action was greeted with rounds of applause from the spectators, who yelled themselves hoarse as they noticed their favourite showing any sign of increasing speed. After a dozen laps had been covered it was seen that the race was Shevlin's, whose rapid strides and graceful rounding of the corners showed that he had the course sized up pretty well, and knew exactly when and how to pass his man, which act he accomplished in the twenty-eighth lap, when he gained a lap on Switz and won the race after a hard struggle. A boys' race then took place, in which four started. W. McFarlane won with ease for the third time, and received the silver cup at the conclusion of the race.

Excursion from Brampton.

A telegram was received yesterday from Mr. J. Kinsman, Brampton, Ontario, stating that an excursion would be run from that town to Peterborough on August 13th, and will be accompanied by the Excelsiors lacrosse team of that place, who will compete for the "Ed. Brown Cup."

	Thermometer.	Barometer.

On Cruise and in Camp.

On Monday morning early—while most of the town will be asleep—Messrs. W. Loch, D. Bellegham and D. Cameron will start with canvas and camping outfit for Mud Lake, on which they will embark for the back lakes, paddling the first day to Lovesick Rapids. They will spend a portion of the heated term in camping, cruising, fishing and general relaxation and enjoyment. We wish the party a pleasant trip.

The Market.

There was a very good market to-day, considering that this is the time when the sun shines for the farmers. The seats around the Market building were all filled with women, who disposed of their butter for 16 and 17 cents per pound, and their well-filled baskets of eggs for 11 and 12 cents a dozen, as well as scores of pails of raspberries at 90 cents and $1.00 per pail. Fowl was very scarce, and consequently chickens were very independent and could not be induced to fly from their owners short of 50 cents per pair. The Square contained the usual amount of potatoes, the newest of which were readily sold at 30 cents per peck. There were a few loads of hay, which were purchased at $12 per ton.

Fall of a Scaffold.

About 10 o'clock this morning Archie Moore and Robert McGregor were working on a new house being built by Mr. John Carlisle, on Park street. They were on a scaffold about twenty feet from the ground, and both happened to get together on the scaffold over a cross piece when the latter broke and both men and scaffold fell to the ground with great force. Mr. Moore escaped with slight bruises and scratches, but Mr. McGregor was not so fortunate. He was thrown sidewise and struck upon a heap of lath bundles with such force as to break the strong marling used to bind two of the bundles. He was badly hurt internally. He He was unable to stand and could hardly speak. A gentleman passing at the time kindly drove him to his home on Water street. Mr. Moore was so badly shaken up that he quit work and went home.

St. Andrew's Bard's Reflections

"There's a chiel among ye tak'en notes an' faith here'l print it."

A touching incident occurred on the day of our St. Andrew's excursion to Belleville. After partaking of a substantial dinner in the hotel in company with Mr. D. McLeod, President of the Peterborough St. A. S., and Chief Hugh McKinnon, President of the Belleville St. A. S., Mr. McLeod requested the piper to play a tune before returning to the grounds. When the music sounded my attention was attracted to an aged, but smart-looking, lady sitting in a chair. She seemed fascinated and spell-bound—not a move of her body, but her eyes steadily fixed upon the player. I did not know who she was until Mr. McLeod introduced her to the piper, as Mrs. McKinnon, mother of Chief Hugh McKinnon. The scene was an indisputable proof of the life-living love of the old Scottish Highland race for the pibroch's sound and their enchanting Highland home. The emotion she evinced so much touched my own feelings that I could not refrain from penning the following lines:—

Macdonald filled and tuned the pipes—for pleasure, not for war—
And in a sweet and touching strain struck up the Braes o' Mar;
Each ear attentive, every eye was fixed upon the player;
An aged Highland lady sat enchanted in her chair:—
Full eighty years and one had passed, with all their joys and ills,
Since first her infant eyes beheld her own dear native hills.
Though time stamped furrows on her brow, or silver tinged her hair,
It could not crush her inborn thoughts or love for home impair.
That music seemed to reach her soul and fill it with delight;
Her eyes, reflecting inward joy, shone like two orbs so bright;
Her heaving breast it rose and fell, moved by the well-known strain;
Her heart beat strong as if it was transformed to youth again;
The thoughtful, pleasing, happy smile beamed gently o'er her face,
Charming and kindling up that love long years could not erase;
It touched the main-spring of her thoughts, the chief chord of her heart,
Her place of birth, her childhood home, and distance now apart,
The pibroch's sound recalled to mind loved paths where she did roam—
They swiftly waft her fancies back to her dear Highland home.
The slogan o' the bagpipes was the first that tuned her ear,
Well may she love their thrilling notes, her waning years to cheer.
Her deep emotion silent told the import of her mind;
Love still unquenched for Scotia's hame and friends she left behind;
Distance nor time had not the power to change or take away
Such hallowed love true home desires evinced by her to-day;
The music ceased, she quickly rose and grasped the piper's hand;
Like magic two old hearts went back to youth and native land.
Life's early scenes, sweet bygone joys still smouldering in their breast.
Burst forth with all their vivid force in gaelic true expressed.

* * * * *

The scene must close, so touching, yet so grand,
Each nobly strove the starting tear to smother
When Chief McKinnon gently laid his hand
Upon her shoulder saying, "do come home mother."

We have received the sixteenth number of the Canadian Pictoral and Illustrated War News. It contains the following illustrations:—Arrival of the presents from the ladies of Toronto, in the camp of the Royal Grenadiers, from sketches by Mr. F. W. Curzon, the special artist of the Canadian Pictorial, with Gen. Middleton's command. Col. Otter's Brigade camp at Birch Lake, N. W. T., June 14th, 1885, from sketches by Pte. Chas. Norris, Q. O. R. Annual inspection of the 13th Battalion in the Drill Shed, Hamilton, from sketches by Mr. R. W. Morrison. The Alligators from a sketch showing how the 65th (Mount Royal Rifles) earned that sobriquet. The price is ten cents per copy, obtainable from local booksellers and from the office of publication.

The Poetry of Canada.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, THE EXAMINER, Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—Pardon the liberty I am taking in writing you on this subject. I am much pleased, indeed, with the series of articles appearing in your excellent journal on "The Poets and Poetry of Canada." The patriotism displayed is worthy of the EXAMINER and great interest is being manifested in them by a number of your readers in this section. I am sure they must be highly appreciated elsewhere. My only object in dropping you this brief note is to ask you to not overlook the late Mrs. Moodie, who has many friends in this section. With best wishes for your continued success,

I am,
Sincerely yours,

Lakefield, 17th July, 1885.

We omit the name of our esteemed friend, feeling that it was not his intention when writing that his note should appear in print. We can, however, assure him that it is not our intention to overlook the late Mrs. Moodie's writings. In alluding to the National literature of Canada it would be just as reasonable to pass by the name of Susanna Moodie, as to place the play of Hamlet on the stage with the principal character left out. In deference to the wish of our correspondent we will refer to her writings in our next article, which will appear on Thursday or Friday next.

A Lacrosse Suggestion.

The Montreal Witness makes the following suggestion regarding lacrosse:—"What is the use of a goal-keeper if he is not allowed to use his lacrosse to stop a ball? He should have a clear space across his goals of at least three feet, so as to permit him some freedom of action. At present the rule allows a player to impede him in any and nearly every way after the ball passes cover point's position and the game has become a critical issue. Thus, at the very time he is most required, the goal-keeper is hampered. His lacrosse is knocked, he is body-checked or anything else, and yet blamed if he allows the ball to pass between the goals. By all means make a goal crease in lacrosse as there is a bowling crease in cricket, and let the umpire rule a foul if the goal-keeper is impeded in the exercise of his proper functions."

HOME MARCH OF MIDLANDS

Enthusiastic Welcome in Toronto.

Feasted and Feted and Lionized.

About eight o'clock yesterday morning the C.P.R. Steamship Alberta, which carried the Ninth Battalion Quebec Voltigeurs and the Midland Battalion, was discovered on the horizon about twenty miles out from the enterprising town of Owen Sound, and instantly, by a preconcerted arrangement, the firebells of the town began to ring, and almost the entire population, as well as many who had come from the surrounding country, crowded down to the docks, which had been decorated by arches and bunting in royal style. The Alberta, with flags flying from every available rope and spar, and her decks covered with red and dark uniformed soldiers, presented a really beautiful spectacle. Cheer after cheer was given with all the might of lungs and throat, and the assembled crowd fairly danced with enthusiasm. The cheers were answered with deep feeling by the volunteers, some of whom afterwards confessed to have felt a rising lump in their throats as the kindly greetings met them.

Colonel Straubenzie, Col. Smith and Col. Amyot, on landing, were cordially welcomed by the Mayor, and Miss Allen gracefully pinned a rose on Col. Straubenzie's breast. The Volunteers were taken to a refreshment room at the dock and given a lunch. Everything was arranged in a thoughtful manner, and the refreshments were partaken of without the slightest confusion, the young sons of the most prominent people of the the town acting as waiters.

THE MIDLAND BOYS

got aboard the first train, and as it moved off the two battalions cheered each other in a manner calculated to leave no doubt of the fact that this campaign has knit together more closely these two regiments.

The Midland train left shortly after twelve o'clock, and during the journey the men conversed freely with the Globe reporter. One of the first to unbosom himself happened to be the chief cook, Tom Billings, "of ours," who informed him in confidence that the stove had been photographed. "You see," he said, "we had only three stoves, and two of these were no good the whole business was done on 'old Leader's Pet,' as she was christened. As soon as the tea was made the 'pet' was common property, and each man would take his turn at 'bannocks,' which some of the boys call 'slap jacks,' made of flour and water, fried in pork fat, and I tell you they were not bad either. One fellow would get his bannocks done, and another fellow would come up and steal the lot, and there was no end of fun and squabbling. The cook was always the supreme arbitrator, and his decisions were held sacred." The reporter was not long before he discovered

THE WIT OF THE REGIMENT.

He was surrounded by an admiring group of auditors and was talking of his experience with the musquitoes. "Why," said he, "I tell you it's an honest fact. I saw the teamster do it. He was driving a heavy load of ammunition and the mosquitoes were so large and so vicious that they bled the horses to death, dead as a door nail." And then after waiting for the encouraging ejaculations of surprise necessary in such cases, he added:—"But that wasn't the worst of it. He was bound not to be stuck, so he caught six of the biggest, hitched 'em up instead of the dead team, and drove off as unconcerned as you please." This was followed by roars of laughter.

The train made seven or eight stops between Owen Sound and Toronto, and it took six and a quarter hours to make the journey. Great crowds were gathered at all the stations on the road. Orangeville, Shelburne, Markdale, Dundalk, Flesherton, Woodbridge, etc., were in their glory. The largest crowd at any of the stations was at Orangeville. At Parkdale there was a regular jam, but the height of the ovation was reached when the train slacked up at the Union station. As the train slowed up every window in the cars was occupied by two or three heads, on which rested a miscellaneous array of coverings. A number of the boys wore what might be called a scull cap, made up of bagging, some had on broad brimed slouch hats, others Scotch caps, a couple straw hats, and one or two with no hats at all. The uniforms were about as varied as the headgear. The men wore pants of various colors and make, and of their tunics, or at least those of them who had tunics left, it was not at all easy to distinguish the original color. However, the battered, hardy appearance of the heroes made the citizens more enthusiastic, the men shouted themselves hoarse and threw their hats in the air, while the ladies twirled their spotless handkerchiefs in just the loveliest manner possible.

The total strength of the battalion as it reached the city yesterday, was 346 all told. There were 30 officers and 316 men. Both the officers and men were completely overwhelmed by the magnitude and enthusiasm of the reception they received. Some of them were nearly dumbfounded. The battalion was formed into companies beside the train, and when they were ready to march they were headed by no less than four bands.

crowd along the gaily decorated line of march was dense beyond comparison. The shouts of the multitude were continued and deafening. To the lively airs of "Marching Through Georgia." "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and "The British Grenadiers," the battalion made good time from the station to the Albion. Arms were stacked in front of the hotel, and the men filed into the ample dining-room in two relays. The regular corps of waiters was supplemented by Ex-Mayor A. R. Boswell, Ald. Mitchell, Ald. Defoe, Ald. Saunders, E. P. Roden, and others of the luncheon committee, whom the hungry heroes declared made very efficient and acceptable gentlemen waiters. John Holderness, the genial host of the Albion, just eclipsed himself in the excellence of his spread, which of quality was superb, and of quantity unlimited. The volunteers were pleased beyond measure with the tempting viands that were set before them. It was a welcome relief after living for four months on hard-tack and salt pork. Major Smith declared it was the sweetest meal he had ever eaten.

It was about 8.15 before every one had been fed. About this time the Midlanders began, between vigorous puffs at their cigars, to move towards the foot of East Market street, where their Grand Trunk special was in waiting to carry them home. It just took fifteen minutes for the men to board the train. The Grenadiers' Band was standing near by and gave the boys plenty of inspiring and lively music. At 8.30 the train moved off, and the cheers sent after it were as hearty as those which but two hours before greeted the arrival at the Union Station. The regiment went through to Port Hope last night. Most of the officers and men will attend Col. Williams' funeral tomorrow at that place, after which the boys will separate and return to their respective homes.

ARRIVAL IN PORT HOPE.

At 12.30 o'clock this morning the Midlanders arrived at Port Hope, and in spite of the lateness of the hour, a dense throng consisting of a large proportion of Port Hope thronged about the station and rent the midnight air with cheer after cheer. The men were marched to Penryn Park (the late Cpl. Williams' residence), to sadly await the solemn obsequies of the morrow.

The Saved Army have purchased the late Walton-street Methodist Church for an Army barracks for $2,100—this includes the church lot and vacant corner lot. It will not be opened for the Army use for some weeks, when a jubilee will be given to celebrate the event.—Guide.

Bobcaygeon.

The Steamer Ontario conveyed a party of berry-pickers to Ball Lake, on Wednesday. The wild fruit crop is immensely abundant this year.

Tenders are asked for the erection of a Methodist church, at Nogey's Creek, to be delivered at the Methodist parsonage, Bobcaygeon, by noon on Tuesday, 21st.

The luscious huckleberry came into the market on the 10th. They were taken from high ground. The low ground berries will not be ripe for some days.

Work on the agricultural grounds is progressing favourably, and marked changes have already been made. A stumping machine has cleared the grounds for the building, and a large area has been cleared of logs and rubbish. The contract for the building has been awarded to Mr. Wesley Dunn, who has already began to deliver the material. It is not expected that the entire grounds, some thirteen acres, will be got into order this year, but when they are, the Society will have park grounds unequalled in Ontario.—Independent.

The new improved Williams and the light-running Domestic Sewing Machines lead the trade everywhere. Light running, silent and rapid. For family use they have no equal, having all the best attachments. For a machine having a reputation above all others buy a Domestic or New Williams. The reputation they enjoy among our customers proves them to be the best sewing machine in the market. Terms to suit purchasers.

The Pecan Tree.

The pecan tree is found in a wild state in the woods of the various sections of the South and West. It grows to a very large size, and bears yearly many bushels of fine-flavored nuts. Though little or no attention has been paid to these valuable trees, cultivation greatly improves them, the nut growing much larger and improving in flavor. The pecan tree lives to a great age, and continues long in bearing. There is no good reason why it should not be grown extensively in all parts of the United States. It is well adapted to almost any kind of soil, doing well even on rocky hills and waste land. There is no nut or fruit tree more valuable and requiring so little attention. Every farmer, in my opinion, should have his nut orchard, and cultivate especially the pecan for home use or sale. The nuts always find ready sale at fancy prices. In planting the trees the only object is to obtain good fresh nuts, and of a good early variety, of large size, from which to grow the trees. If it is preferred to set out the plants, get healthy trees of a good variety 1 to 2 years old.

The Cherubs.

A friend sends the following: "Last Christmas eve Mrs. J—— went up stairs to see if the children had hung up their stockings for Santa Claus, and found that little Fred had pinned up his in a prominent place, with a little slip of paper attached, containing this suggestive sentence, 'The Lord loveth a cheerful giver.'" Old Skinflint puts in a bag of pop-corn. Skinflint's clerk gives a gold chain and locket.—Cambridge Tribune.

"Pa, why do we not need torchlight processions during the campaign when we have drump corps?" asked the 8-year old. "Give it up, my son." "Because the drums are tortures enough." Whack! Whack! Whack! fell the slipper.—Waterbury American.

An eminent astronomer says "it would take ten years to photograph the heavens. My! Pretty near as long as it takes to photograph the baby.—Burlington Hawkeye.

"Well, my young gentleman, and how would you like your hair cut?" "Oh, like papa's, please—with a little round hole at the top."—Rural New Yorker.

"Sweep it, mamma," said a bright little dot of a girl as she brought a piece of bread and butter to her mother which she had dropped on the floor, butter side down.—Rural New Yorker.

Stagnation prevails in the fruit canning industry on the Pacific coast. The San Francisco Bulletin predicts that the cheap glass jar will soon take the place of the cheap tin can. Even if it costs a little more consumers will willingly pay the difference to get a good article. Inferior fruit can not be packed with advantage in glass, because the buyer and consumer can see at once the quality.

Julian Hawthorne gets many requests for his own and his father's autographs, which he never answers, though he retains the accompanying stamps. "It stands me in from six cents to ten cents a day," he says; "quite an item to a man with a large family."

SLIGHTED AND SNUBBED AGAIN.

Peterborough and the Midland district have again been slighted and snubbed. Session after session the people have expected that the Government would submit another estimate for the Trent Valley Navigation and the Postoffice in Peterborough, and as surely have they been disappointed. This session the appearance of the Estimates was looked for with great anxiety, but in vain were they scanned; there was not a dollar appropriated for either of these purposes. The first batch of supplementary estimates left ground for hope, but that too ended only in disapointment, the second and last batch came out, and, in them, there were no figures relating to either the post-office or the Trent Valley Canal. There is no justification possible for such direct and open neglect of this district. Lack of funds can not be pleaded. Five millions were cheerfully given away to the the Pacific Syndicate: thousands were wasted on unnecessary advertising in and bogus printing by party papers; thousands were voted as a bonus to a railway running through Yankee territory: nearly $150,000 was voted as extra indemnity to members of Parliament: and, yet, two projects more important and necessary than any or all of these, especially to the inhabitants of this district, and as respects the latter, also in relation to the development of our great Northwest, are calmly given the snub direct. It is almost hopeless now to expect any consideration from the Government, whose extravagance is rapidly exhausting the resources of the country. The debt of Canada has mounted up to the startling figures of nearly 300 millions, while the annual expenditure has reached the alarming total of thirty-seven millions; still this district has nothing to show for its share in this gigantic expenditure, but a few locks on the central portion of the Trent Navigation route. There is no remedy for this, but a vigorous kick. If the Midland district should show its condemnation of such dishonorable and tricky treatment by returning a dozen opponents instead of supportors of the Government, a little different policy would be pursued. So long as the Government thinks it can count on the ridings of this district submitting to being snubbed and yet voting right, so long will they be snubbed and ignored.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Mail says Sir John Macdonald is ill again with his "old complaint of the stomach." Can this be retribution for the imposition of an extra tax on "the creature?" Have the dealers began to doctor their stocks so soon?

The Indian department at Ottawa in advertising for supplies specifies that the agricultural implements must be of American manufacture! A nice way this to foster home production. The people have to pay the shot and are not allowed to offset their taxes by being allowed to furnish Indian supplies.

The Mail says it was Grit settlers at Prince Albert who fomented the rebellion. Here is what one of them, Scott by name, who was a prisoner and afterwards released, says of himself to a Mail reporter:—"I am a Tory; I have always been a Tory; in fact, you can put me down as a Tory from away back."

A Remarkable Cow.

Mr. Frank H. McCrea, of Elizabethtown, has a cow of the Holstein-Frisian breed, that during the ten days from the 6th to the 15th July, inclusive, gave 708 pounds of milk. The largest quantity given in one day was seventy-five pounds. The cow that gave this extraordinary large quantity is Merrie, No. 5152. She was imported by Mr. B. B. Lord, of Sinclairville, N.Y. She was purchased by Mr. McCrea in September, 1883, and was three years old on the 26th of May last. Since she became the property of Mr. McCrea she has calved twice, the first time when twenty-one months' old, and the second at three years old. During these ten days that we speak of, the cow was milked only by Mr. Wm. Haskin, who also weighed the milk. He and Mr. McCrea will make affidavits to the truth of the above, in order to qualify the cow for the advanced register of the Holstein-Frisian herd book. — Brockville Times.

The Bitter Bit.

The Engineer Heist With his own Petard.

Hon. Mr. Blake showed too deep and intelligent an interest in Northwest affairs to make it comfortable for the Government. He could not get prompt and full information from the Government in respect to management of Northwest matters and therefore used perfectly legitimate means to secure such information from other sources. For so doing he was accused by Sir John of having been in communication with the rebels and thus abetting their schemes. The rebel in this case was, however, a tool of Sir John's who has since met with the reward of a tool of the Government. He was evidently set up to catch Mr. Blake in a trap, but the biter was bit and the ruse recoiled upon the concoctors. When Sir John had made the accusation, Mr. Blake promptly demanded that the letters purchased by Sir John from his spy be read—there was nothing on his part to conceal. Not only that, but subsequently he volunteered to read to the House the remainder of the correspondence, which, as the letters were addressed to himself, the Government had been unable to buy.

On the order of the day being called, Mr. Blake said—I desire to speak upon a personal question. I this morning found a further portion of the correspondence, a part of which the leader of the Government thought fit to read the other day. I present it to the House, as I observe from statements in papers that the member for east Toronto (Mr. Small) and the leader of the Government are anxious to have it. On the 7th of May I received this letter:—

55 Elizabeth street.
TORONTO, May 5, 1885

Hon. Mr. Blake, Ottawa:

SIR.—The undersigned is just down from the South Branch, Prince Albert. Settlements have been forming in that neighborhood for five years. I have been in the Northwest Territory for fourteen years and on surveys for seven years. I would very much like an interview on matters concerning the Government agents in the Northwest Territory and the Halfbreeds, the villianies practiced on the Canadian Pacific Railway surveys, and the wilful waste of both provisions and cash by J. A. C. E. I have been interviewed by reporters of papers here, but in keeping my own counsel until I have been at headquarters. I am a ruined, hard working farmer and have no funds or I would go straight to Ottawa. If you will send me a pass I will go and see you with my Indian whom I have here as a witness. He is a Sioux that I adopted when a small boy. Now he is a fine young man and a good specimen for the Government to look upon and treat accordingly. There would be no trouble in the West if my intended advice is noted down. Trusting you will kindly comply with my request, I beg to remain, sir, your humble servant.

J. E. BROWN.

In reply I sent the following, I suppose the leader of the Government in some way got the origional of my letter and quoted it correctly. I read it as he is reported to have given it:—

OTTAWA, MAY 7, 1885.

SIR,—I have your letter of the 6th, and should be very glad indeed to learn from you any facts connected with the management of affairs in the North-West Territory. I would willingly comply with your request for a pass to Ottawa if it were in my power, but I have no means of procuring railway passes. It is possible though by no means certain, that I may be in Toronto for a few hours within a few days, and if so I would try to arrange an interview with you, or if I am unable to manage that I can arrange an interview with a confidential friend of mine who would note down for my own ear all that you should choose to communicate, if this would be agreeable to you.

Yours faithfully,
EDWARD BLAKE.

J. E. Brown, Esq.

Subsequently I received the following:—

55 ELIZABETH-STREET, 5 a.m.

Mr. Blake, Esq.,

SIR,—In reply to yours just to hand, your friend can drop a line stating time and place. I will give him a few pointers that will bear weight with them. I think I stated to you in my last that I had to lose my home on the South Saskatchewan, Prince Albert, and after 17 days in snowshoes across the Birch Hills, lakes, and plains, arrived at Troy with just enough to pay our fares to Toronto, which was $50.75, and all are now here with no funds, not even a dollar to pay our board. Mr. C. F. Miles, D.L.S., invited me up to Dr. Johnson's, on Bloor-street, to-day, and gave me a recommend to Mr. H. B. Proudfoot, Dominion and Provincial Land Surveyor, Clinton, also to George Rainball, Dominion and Provincial Land Surveyor, of Pembroke, that are going out on surveys soon. Now, you will observe, if my name appears, at once, in any of those charges I shall not get a position in any surveys for a long time to come, so I hope for my sake you will not mention my name. They can easily investigate and find out what I state to be correct. If you can put in a word for me and my boy to any surveyor that is going out, I shall be most thankful. Trusting we soon shall have a change of Government for the sake of the whole of Canada, I beg to remain obediently yours, BROWN. (Cheers.)

To which I replied:—

OTTAWA, May 12, 1885.

DEAR SIR,—I have your letter and will ask a friend to make an appointment with you. I will take care, as you desire, that your name shall not be used to your prejudice. I will not discuss it until you have had ample opportunity of securing an appointment for the surveys this year, if you are fortunate enough to do so, but I fancy there will not be a great deal of surveying done. I should gladly assist you in procuring employment if it were in my power; but I have no means of forwarding your interests in this respect. With thanks for your good wishes,

I am yours faithfully,
EDWARD BLAKE.

J. E. Brown, Esq.

I requested a friend of mine to communicate with a friend in Toronto, asking him to seek an interview with Mr. Brown, and my friend received from his friend in Toronto this letter. I read all the parts that bear on this matter:—

TORONTO, Ont., 23rd May, 1885.

My Dear ——,—I have had Brown looked up, and have seen him twice to-day, and have come to the conclusion that he is trying what he can make out of either side, and is making the most of it. He has been to see Sir John and claims that he has agreed to appoint him a Government detective at $1,200 a year, to drive around the Northwest Territories, be provided with a horse and conveyance, and so on. He says he is now waiting on a telegram from Ottawa, that he is to have money to pay his expenses to Elk Horn. He showed a letter which he received from Mr. Small, saying he had sent him a copy of the Homestead Act, and asking him if he sent any letters to Mr. Blake, he would like to see them. He says he has not kept copies. I had a friend with me at each of the interviews. I am inclined to think his Indian is the same as has been on exhibition in a King street window for a month, and offered to be leased out for show purposes. He says he wants to sell his information to either party who will pay him, and tells me his cash price to our side is $1,200. On the payment, his lawyer will hand over the roll. He had been indulging, looks hard, and is evidently a tough citizen. I judge he has been fairly educated and has good ability, with a considerable amount of cunning. If I learn anything of consequence I will let you know. I have not had time to sit down to write letters or anything else. Brown did not turn up on Monday night. Considering it was a holiday I did not think it likely he would be in a condition to make an appearance, but he has not put in an appearance since. I think he sees there is little prospect of money, and my opinion, as well as that of those who have seen him, is that he is a dead-beat. (Loud cheers and laughter).

I will only say for the honorable member for East Toronto (Mr. Small) that the shortest way is the best, and if he wanted to see Mr. Brown's letters and had asked me for them I would have been happy to give them to him. (Renewed cheers and laughter.

Smith.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Tuesday, the 7th of July, a picnic was held in Cnemong Park. This picnic has become an annual one and the large number on the grounds testified to its increasing popularity. All the schools about Bridgenorth were represented. Farmers struck their ploughs for the afternoon to please the little ones and, perhaps, to have a chat with an old friend. Baseball, lacrosse and football were indulged in. All was mirth. In baseball, a match was played between the young men of Bridgenorth and vicinity and a team composed chiefly of "old reliables"—men who played in an old Smith nine. The result showed that there was mettle in the "old boys" yet. Sports were held for school children and small prizes given. These games were very keenly contested. On the whole a very pleasant day was spent.

PRESENTATION.

Mr. Hawthorne completed on the 3rd his two years as teacher of S. S. No. 3, Smith. We need hardly say that during these two years, by his obliging and genial disposition and by his intelligent and painstaking performance of his duties, he has gained the respect and friendship of the whole section. Their appreciation of him was shown by the following incident: On the 6th the children presented him with a handsome writing desk, penholder, etc. Mr. Hawthorne, although taken by surprise, warmly thanked them. Mr. Hawthorne carries with him the sympathy and good wishes of the section.

CALLED BACK

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Chapter I—Continued.

I crept softly from my bed, and slowly but easily dressed myself, hearing all the while the sleeper's regular breathing. Then, cautious as a thief, I stole to the door which led from my bedroom to the landing. I opened it without noise and stood on the thick carpet outside, smiling as I thought of the sleeper's dismay if she awoke and discovered my absence. I closed the door, then, guiding myself by the balustrade, passed lightly down the stairs and reached the street door without accident.

There were other lodgers in the house, among them young men who came in at all hours, so the door being always left on the latch, I had no bolts to contend with. In a moment I was on the doorstep, with the door behind me closed.

I stood for a short time irresolute, almost trembling at my temerity. This was the first time I had ventured beyond the house without a guiding hand to trust to. Yet I knew there was nothing to fear. The street—a quiet one—was deserted. The pavement was broad, I could walk up and down without let or hindrance, guiding myself, after the manner of other blind persons, by tapping my stick against the curbstone or the railings. Still I must take a few precautions to enable me to ascertain my latitude and longitude at will.

I came down the four steps which led from the front door, turned myself to the right, and, by aid of the line of railings, set my face toward the end of the street. Then I began to walk and to count my steps, sixty-two of which brought my right foot on to a road, which told me I had reached my limit. I turned, counted back the sixty-two paces, and then sixty-five more in the same direction before I found myself again off the pavement. My calculations were verified by my knowing that my house was very nearly in the centre of the row. I was now quite at my ease; I had determined the length of my tether; I could walk up and down the deserted street, yet, at any time I wished to do so, could, by counting from either end, arrest my steps in front of my abode.

So, mightily proud of my success, for a while I went up and down—up and down. I heard one or two cabs pass me, and also one or two persons afoot. As these latter seemed to pay no attention to me, I felt glad to think that my appearance and gait were not such as to attract notice. Most men like to conceal their infirmities.

This night excursion did me a great deal of good. Perhaps it was finding that I was not altogether so helpless and dependent that changed in a few minutes my whole frame of mind. The mental rebound took place. I went from despondency to hope—extravagant hope—even to certainty. Like a revelation it came to me that my malady was curable: that, in spite of my presentiment, what friends had been assuring me would prove to be the truth. So elated I grew that I threw my head back and walked with a firm quick step, almost forgetting that I was sightless. I began to think of many things, and my thoughts were happier ones than I had known for months. I gave up counting my paces, I walked on and on, planning what I should do; where I should go when my darkness was removed. I do not know whether I may have at times guided myself by the wall or pavement edge; but if so I did it mechanically and instinctively, without noticing the action or remembering it afterward.

I cannot say whether it may be possible for a blind man, who can divest himself of the fear of encountering unseen obstacles, to walk as straightly and accurately as one who can see. I only know that, in my preoccupied and elevated state of mind, I must have done so. Intoxicated and carried away by the return of hope, I may have walked as a somnambulist or as one in a trance. Anyway, forgetful of all save my brighter thoughts, I went on and on, heedless of the missing sense, until coming full against a person walking in the opposite direction recalled me from my visions and brought me back to my misery. I felt the man I had encountered shake himself free; I heard him mutter "stupid fool!" and go swiftly on his way, leaving me motionless on the spot where the collision had occurred, wondering where I was and what I should do.

It was no use attempting to find my way back unaided. Not having brought my repeater with me I could not even say how long I had been walking. It might have been ten minutes, it might have been an hour since I gave up counting my steps. Judging by the number of things I had thought of since that rapturous exaltation of mind commenced it seemed more likely to be the latter. Now that I had come back to the earth I must be content to remain on this particular spot of it until I heard the step of a policeman or some one else who might happen to be abroad at this unusual hour—unusual, at least in this quiet part of London. I leaned my back against the wall and waited patiently.

I soon heard an approaching step; but such a staggering, uncertain, lurking kind of step, that from the sound of the feet alone I was able to determine the condition of their owner, and was obliged to decide that he was not the man I wanted. I must let him pass and wait for another. But the feet staggered up to me and stopped near me, whilst a voice, jolly, but like the feet unsteady, cried:

"Nother feller worsh than me! Can't get on at all—eh, old chap? Comfort t' think some one's head 'll ache worsh than mine to-morrow!"

"Can you tell me the way to Walpole street?" I asked, standing erect to show him I was sober.

"Walpole street—course I can—closhe by—third to left I think."

"If you are going that way would you lead me to the corner of it? Unhappily I am blind and have lost my way."

"Blind, poor beggar—not screwed then. Guess I'm in nice state to lead any one. Blind leading blind—both tumble into ditch. I shay, though," he added with drunken gravity, "make a bargain—I lend you eyes, you lend me legish. Good idea. Come 'long."

He took my arm and we went yawing up the street. Presently he stopped.

"Walpole street," he hiccoughed. "Shall I take you to your house?"

"No, thank you. Please put my hand on the railing of the corner house. I shall be all right then."

"Wish I were all right. Wish I could borrow your legs to take me home," said my bibulous conductor. "Good-night—Blesh you."

I heard him tack away, then turned to complete my journey.

I was not quite certain as to which end of Walpole street I was starting from; that mattered little. Either sixty-two or sixty-five paces would leave me in front of my door. I counted sixty-two, and then felt for the entrance between the railings; not finding it, I went on a step or two until I came to it. I was glad to have reached home without accident, and, to tell the truth, was beginning to feel a little ashamed of my escapade. I hoped that Priscilla had not discovered my absence and alarmed the house, and I trusted I should be able to regain my room as quietly as I had quitted it. With all my elaborate calculations, I was not quite sure that I had hit upon the right house; but if they were incorrect I could only be a door or two away from it, and the key in my hand would be a certain test.

I went up the doorsteps—was it four or five I had counted as I came out? I fumbled for the keyhole and inserted the latch-key. It turned easily, and the door opened. I had not made a mistake. I felt an inward glow of satisfaction at having hit upon the house at the first attempt. "It must have been a blind man who first discovered that Necessity is the mother of Invention." I said, as I softly closed the door behind me and prepared to creep up to my own room.

I wondered what the time was. All I knew was that it must be still night, for I was able to distinguish light from darkness. As I had found myself so close to Walpole street I could not have walked for any length of time in my ecstatic state, so I fancied it must be somewhere about two o'clock.

[To be Continued.]

Made to be Painted, Not to be Kissed.

"Made to be painted"—a Millias might give
A fortune to steady that exquisite face—
The face is a fortune—a Lawrence might live
Anew in each line of that figure's still grace.

The pose is perfection, a model each limb,
From the delicate foot to the classical head;
But the almond-blue eyes, with their smiling, look dim,
And lips to be loved want a trifle more red.

Statuesque? No, a Psyche, let's say, in repose—
A Psyche whose Cupid beseeches in vain—
We sigh as the nightingale sighs to the rose
That declines (it's averred) to give sighs back again, * * *

If the wind shook the rose? Then a shower would fall
Of sweet-scented petals to gather who list;
If a sigh shook my Psyche? She'd yawn that is all,
She's made to be painted, and not to be kissed.

He Knew When the Bride was Born

A rather curious incident occurred lately at the Recorder's office. An old, white-haired darky, leaning on his cane, poked his head in the door of the marriage license department and, taking off his hat, said:

"Scuse me, boss, but I'se looking for de place whar dey git a license to marry."

"Come in, then," replied the clerk; "you've struck it the first time."

"Come on hyar, chillen," the old man said, beckoning to some one on the outside. "These 'ere two wants to get married, boss, and I came 'long wid 'em kase this gal ain't got no father nor mother 'ceptin' me."

"How old is she?" asked the clerk.

"She's berry nigh nineteen."

"Where's her father?"

"Dead, boss."

"And her mother?"

"Dead, too."

"How do you know she is nineteen? She looks younger."

"How'd I know? I know kase I brung her up."

"Where was she born?"

"Now, lemme see; her father died befo' de war, and she was born just after Marst' Lincoln was shot."

"Why, that was four years after her father's death!"

"I know it, dat's right, boss, she was born four years after her father died."

"Oh, that can't be!"

"But I tell you' boss, I knows it. Her mother war living' wid my folks at de time, and it war just four years after her old man died."

The clerk was stumped, so he called up Recorder Farrelly to know what he should do. The old darky failed to be shaken in his statement, and as it was certain that she had a father at some time the license was granted and the three sailed out to find a preacher.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Story of a Great Mine.

The owner of the Mala Noche (bad night) mine was in its time the richest man in Northern Mexico. The mine at the surface paid little or nothing, and after the owner had sunk his own capital he continued working it with borrowed money until his credit was gone and things had arrived at such a pass that the mine was in danger of being seized and himself thrown in prison. He then resolved to work it one week longer, and if nothing was struck to run away. The week passed and nothing was struck. On the afternoon of the last day he ordered his horses brought for flight at daybreak. He passed the night, this "mala noche," between hope and despair, when just before daylight a miner came from the mine bringing a "gallo" (a piece of rich rock) and the news that a bonanza had been struck. The bonanza proved to be an immense one. In memory of that night the mine was called Mala Noche.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AND HAVE THEM SUBSTANTIALLY BOUND.

READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS:

COBOURG WORLD.—"We have seldom seen better binding."

PORT HOPE TIMES.—"We are surprised at the excellent workmanship, which could not be surpassed by any establishment in the Dominion."

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed.

WEST DURHAM NEWS.—"We had our books very neatly bound at the EXAMINER Bindery, and they are, in every particular, a credit to the establishment."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Persons who have examined the binding and general finish of the work, pronounce it equal, if not superior, to any work of the kind turned out of city binderies."

BOBCAYGEON INDEPENDENT.—"The workmanship is in every respect first-class, and of a lasting and wearing character, and handsome design."

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Wandered Away.

An old man, named Charles Portsmouth, at one time a soldier, wandered from the Peterborough Protestant Home, on Saturday morning. Any information regarding him will be thankfully received.

Volunteers "Shun!"

The members of No. 1, 2, and 3 companies, 57th Batt., will meet in the Drill Shed this evening at 7.30 to make final arrangements for attending the late Col. Williams' funeral tomorrow, at Port Hope.

Journalistic.

On Friday the Brantford Weekly Courier celebrated the jubilee year (fiftieth) of its existence by coming out in a new form—the modern eight-page. We congratulate our venerable cotem., which is like wine in one respect—the older it grows the better it becomes. May it go on and prosper and reach the century in due time.

Picnic Postponed.

The annual picnic of the Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School has been postponed from Tuesday (to-morrow) to Tuesday, July 28th. The reason of the postponement is that the return home of the troops from the North-West renders it impossible for the railway company to supply cars for any other purpose.

An Exciting Chase.

During the progress of the game of baseball on Saturday last, a lively chase took place on the bank of the river, in which Constable Craig, of Ashburnham, took a principal part. A number of youths were in swimming in the mill race south of the baseball grounds, and the constable getting his eagle eye on them, from the small bridge, set out at a lively gait to capture them in their tracks, so to speak. The little urchins noticed him, being accustomed to the appearance of that gentleman, and not being particularly anxious to have an interview with him, without appearing in full dress, made their escape in canoes before he could get close enough to tell who they were.

Central Exhibition Committee Meeting

On Saturday afternoon a meeting of the Central Exhibition Committee was held in the council chamber. Mr. John Carnagie, M.P.P., president, occupied the chair. The majority of the directors were present and completed the prize list. It was decided to call for tenders for the printing of the posters and prize lists, which will appear in a short time. Among the attractions will be a bicycle race which will take place on the third day. The question of bringing the Caughnawagnas here for the first day, to play the home team, was discussed, and it was decided to negotiate with the Peterborough Lacrosse Club in the matter.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

On Sunday evening between the hours of five and six o'clock, the small stream which runs to the rear of Patterson's tannery, came very nearly adding another victim to the list of drowning cases which have occurred in Peterborough within a period of two months. Whilst George Halpin and his younger brother, children of Mr. John Halpin, carriage maker, were amusing themselves by making their dog swim across the stream, the former who is about eight years old, in his eagerness to witness the sport from the small bridge that spans the stream, fell off, and in a very short time was submerged in the water. Mr. Wm. Logan, who heard the cries of the drowning child ran to the spot and rescued him in a lifeless condition. Just about the time of the mishap, Dr. Pidgeon was opportunely crossing Hunter street from Mr. Green's store, and was on hand in a few moments. A messenger was despatched for Dr. Bingham who also appeared in a short time. After fifteen minutes application of appropriate treatment for the drowned, signs of animation become apparent and by degrees the patient returned to a state of consciousness and this morning was doing well.

Baseball.

The Bethany Boys Badly Beaten.

On Saturday afternoon the Riverside Park was the scene of a lively game of baseball, the nines contesting being from Bethany and the Peterborough club. Some very pretty playing was exhibited on both sides, the pitching and catching of Cameron and Billings, drawing forth loud applause at times from the hundred and fifty spectators who paid admission to see the contest, as well as from the hundred representatives of the great unlaundired, who were on hand, and who made themselves very useful at times when the ball went behind the catcher on a foul. For the home nine, Moore, Campbell, Dayman and Corcoran did some very good batting, and more than once relieved second and third basemen, and gave them a good chance to score. The catching of Metheral on first base, and Campbell on second, was good. They seldom failed to "catch on" whenever the ball was thrown them, when their opponents were trying to score on forced bases. Sanderson, the youngest of the team, did well, and promises to uphold the reputation of his brother Tom, whose playing in former years with the old "Pine Groves," won him prominence as a reliable ball tosser. The visitors, although being defeated, played an excellent game, and had it not been for their numerous errors in fielding, would have made it rather hot for our boys. The following is the score:

Troops Passing Through.

At 2.30 a.m. this morning a train of seven coaches passed through Peterborough on the C. P. R., having on board the Quebec Voltigeurs. The men seemed, from their appearance, to be in good health; but their clothes were patched in many places and showed signs of hard usage.

A Sudden Attack.

On Friday evening Rev. Alex. Bell, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was visited with a sudden and sharp attack of illness, which prevented him from conducting service in the church on Sunday. Those who assembled at the church relieved their disappointment by distributing themselves among the other churches. We are pleased to know that Rev. Mr. Bell is rapidly recovering.

Color-Sergeant Myles.

The Toronto World relates the following incident in connection with the arrival of the Midlands in that city:—"Lieut. Myles (Toronto Field Battery) was seen soon after the arrival of the Midlands toting a hero along King street in great shape. The hero was sunburnt up to regulation, but he had a smart new tunic, good boots, etc. He proved to be the lieutenant's brother, Percy, color-sergeant of Company "G" of the Midland. He was being conducted up to the lieutenant's house, in order that he might indulge in the luxury of a big wash. Every few steps he was stopped by some one who wanted to shake hands, and at last refuge had to be taken in a hack in order to reach the house.

A Great Improvement.

Mr. George Mitchell, of the Central Grocery, has fallen in line in the march of improvement of residence premises. He has just completed extensive improvements on the grounds of his residence, corner of McDonnel and Aylmer streets. The grounds have been enclosed on both sides with a well-built stone wall, with a wide wooden coping mounted with barbed wire on the Aylmer street side, and on McDonnel with a neat paling on top of the stone work. The grounds have been neatly leveled and terraced. A vast improvement is the result, and now Mr. Mitchell can boast of one of the finest properties in that part of the town. The stone work was done by Mr. Gaskin, the wood work by Mr. Roberts and the gardening by Mr. Charles Dredge.

Don't Forget.

Cobourg Saved Army Picnic.

The steamer Golden Eye will run an excursion to above picnic at Idyl Wild on Wednesday 22nd. The steamer will leave her wharf at 8 a.m. Tickets for round trip 50 cents. R. W. Carson, Master.

Volunteers Turn-out.

The volunteers who propose attending the funeral of the late Col. Williams at Port Hope to-morrow, are requested to meet at the Drill Shed at 8 p.m. this evening, to perfect arrangements.

Bicycle Race.

A bicycle race will take place on Friday evening next, the 31st inst., between Kent of Newcastle, and Gibson of Peterborough, for a medal. The track on the P. A. A. A grounds is in excellent condition, and a good race may be looked for.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Light to moderate winds, mostly east and south; fair, very warm weather with local thunder storms in a few places towards evening.

Accident at Forsyth's Mill.

This morning shortly before 11 o'clock an accident of a painful nature occurred at Mr. Forsyth's mill, situated on Dixon's race. Robert Sheridan was engaged in cutting some material for pumps on a butting saw, and in some way or other his left hand came in contact with the whizzing circular and in an instant he was minus the three last fingers of his left hand. Mr. Sheridan does not now remember how the accident happened, and, strange to say, the man who was working within a few feet of him, and helping him to hold the heavy timber in its position, did not notice how it occurred either. The sufferer was taken to the office of Dr. Fife, where his wounds were dressed. Mr. Forsyth informs us that this is the first accident of a serious nature that has taken place in his mill since its erection and the worst he ever saw in connection with any machinery with which he has been connected for the past twenty years.

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent,)

A DESERTED VILLAGE.

If from business or any other cause you may have occasion to look for merchant, mechanic or labourer, you will, on enquiry, receive the answer, "up the lake for huckleberries," in fact almost half of our inhabitants are "up the lake," and the "other half" intend to go next week. Canoes, tents, etc., are not to be had for love or money, while our steamers are doing a rushing trade.

OFFICIAL NEGLECT.

In a former letter I mentioned the sunken pier below the locks at Young's Point; it is still there not only an obstacle to the lumbermen but to the boats. Any of our steamers which have to pass up or down after dark, must now stop and send a man with a lantern, so as to be able to get past. Perhaps the Government intend to use it as a base for a light-house for the Trent Valley works.

DELAYED STEAMERS.

An official was appointed by the Dominion Government last year, and it was then stated the steamers would have no more trouble with logs or low water. On Friday evening the steamer Cruiser upon arriving at Hetherington's Narrows, on her way up to tow for Mr. Hilliard, found the passage boomed up and had to wait 28 hours. On Saturday the Fairy could not get down to the Point, and the Cruiser, with a load of passengers, lost 3 hours from the same cause. It is about time the officials waked up to their duty, and the Government to their responsibility. Others have rights as well as the lumbermen. With the large number of officials now looking after this section of the Trent Valley waters, some more satisfactory management might be expected, and we trust for the rest of this season.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The adjourned meeting of the Lakefield School Board was held in the Council Chamber Friday evening.

All present, Dr. Caldwell in the chair.

After discussing the merits of the different applicants, the board decided to accept that of Mr. Jas. D. Graham, of this place, a second year University student, at a salary of $500.00 per annum.

The Board then adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.

FORESTERS.

Court Lakefield, No. 43 C.O.F., meets next Thursday evening in "Foresters Hall." Every one should be on hand.

BEAR HUNT.

On Thursday while Messrs. A. Wilson, R. Darling and C. Crow were engaged laying in a stock of huckleberries for winter use they met a large bear engaged in the same pursuit only for present enjoyment. He seemed to consider the others as intruders and they were of different opinion. While two of them discussed matters with Mr. Bruin the third made quick time for their canoe and returned with a repeater which turned the tide and they had bear steaks for supper. It was a very large one, but in poor condition.

Colonel Williams' Funeral.

Peterborough Contributes Her Contingent

In spite of the apathy of the civic authorities respecting the reception to the volunteers, the people this morning seemed to take a deep interest in the funeral of the Hero of Batoche. At the 7.05 train this morning there was a considerable gathering. A few soldiers in uniform were among the 150 passengers, largely ladies, that filled three passenger coaches for the first run of the day to Port Hope.

For the 11.55 train there was a very large crowd gathered at the station. The train from Toronto brought a large number from Lindsay, composed of about 300 civilians, and about 30 members of the 45th Battalion in uniform, including Lieut. Graham, No. 6 Company, and Lieut. Jordan, of Fenelon Falls, No. 3 Company. Adjutant Garnet, of Col. Williams' battalion, who has charge of the elevator at Midland, was also on board, as well as the Mayor and members of Lindsay town council.

To the Lindsay military and civilians were added Peterborough's very respectable military turnout. The cavalry was represented by Col. Harry Rogers and Captain Snyder, the artillery by Capt. Sanderson and about 30 men. The infantry turned out enough to make, in addition to the above, about 100 men, composed of members of No. 1 Company, Capt. Edwards, Lieut. Dennistoun, 2nd Lieutenant Haultain; No. 2 Company, Captain Langford; No. 3. Company, Capt. Rogers. Major Bell, adjutant, was also of the party. Several of the members of the Town Council were on board, and they will be met by Mayor Cox at Port Hope. There were enough of civilians to fill, together with the Lindsay detachment, eight coaches. Shortly after twelve the train steamed out for where on their arrival they had hard work to get a foothold. The town to-day is literally overflowing with people. There are over ten thousand strangers in the place, consisting of Lieut.-Governors, Ministers of the Crown (Federal and Local), Judges of Superior Court and otherwise, senators, members of Parliament, mayors, councillors, common people and military. Every place of business is closed, and almost every private house is deserted. The streets, especially Queen, Walton, Bedford and Pine, are dense masses of humanity, all vehicles being prohibited. At 12 o'clock Queen, Hector and Elias streets were closed and the imposing procession formed there. The flags carried in the procession are trimmed with black; on every side are to be seen "the trapings and suits of woe." Many of the buildings, especially on the route of the funeral cortege, are draped in black and the town generally presents a sombre and funeral appearance.

The Revising Barrister Boom.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—It was reported to me to-day that every Conservative lawyer in Peterborough, with the exception of two, had applied for the position of "Revising Barrister," and that there is about to be a competition for the office in comparison with which the fight for the post-office site is as nothing. The Government here consider that the Peterboro' contingent of the great Conservative party is about as rapacious and disinterested a set of politicians as there are in the country. It is thought here that owing to the difficulty of settling conflicting interests the County Judge will receive the appointment. Still the contest goes on.

Yours truly,
OTTAWA.

Ottawa, July 20th, 1885.

Riel Before the Court.

The Question of Jurisdiction Raised.

REGINA, July 20.—Louis Riel was arraigned to-day before Stipendary Magistrate Richardson, with whom was associated Henry Lejune. General Middleton and staff were present. On the prisoner being asked to plead, his counsel at once raised the question of jurisdiction, holding that the court as then constituted was not possessed of power to try a capital offence. Counsel for the defence demurred and the defence joined issue. Argument was heard and the court adjourned until to-morrow. When the question of jurisdiction has been decided Riel's counsel will apply for an adjournment of six weeks for the purpose of gathering evidence.

Hard on the Boy.

A youth named William Tell was arrested for drunkenness by Policeman Gessler in New York on Wednesday, and was taken before Justice Duffy. "You have brought shame upon a noble name, William, by drunkenness," said the little judge. "The name heretofore has been associated in my mind with apples; now I can never think of it without being reminded of apple juice. The apple is an historical fruit. Eve ate one and left humanity the core; Tell shot one from his son's head and freed Switzerland; you take the juice of several and are fined $5."

PROROGATION.

Formal Closing of Parliament by the Governor-General.

The Speech from the Throne.

His Excellency Refers to the Late Rebellion.

The third session of the fifth Parliament of Canada was prorogued this afternoon by His Excellency the Marquis of Lansdowne, Governor-General; and the ceremonies were attended with the customary eclat, although, owing to the excessive heat of the afternoon, the attendance of spectators was a great deal smaller than at former prorogations.

His Excellency delivered the following

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I desire to convey to you my best thanks for the diligence with which you have performed your duties during this long protracted session.

It has been in many respects an eventful session—in none more so than because since its commencement the peaceful progress of the Dominion, unbroken for so many years, has been interrupted by a serious insurrectionary outbreak in the Northwest Territories.

I congratulate you upon the prompt and complete suppression of these disorders, and on the restoration of public confidence throughout the regions in which they occurred.

The insurrection has been encountered by the military force of the Dominion under Major-General Middleton in a manner deserving of the highest commendation.

The courage which our citizen soldiers have shown in the face of a formidable and determined enemy, their cheerful endurance of privation and fatigue, and the readiness with which they have submitted to sacrifices, inevitable whenever a force composed of citizens of all classes is called upon to relinquish the employments of civil life, reflects the highest credit upon them.

I am gratified to find that both Houses of Parliament have considered the conduct of Major-General Middleton and the officers and men under his command deserving of their formal thanks. It has been my agreeable duty to bring under the notice of Her Majesty's government the value of the services which have been thus rendered to the empire.

I cannot leave this subject without expressing my sorrow that the success of our arms should have been purchased at the cost of many lives which Canada could ill afford to spare. The memory of these who have fallen either on the field or from sickness contracted during their services will be gratefully cherished throughout the Dominion.

It affords me much pleasure to acknowledge the prompt action of the government of the United States in taking the precautions necessary in order to prevent any co-operation with the insurgents from the frontiers.

The measure of the adjustment of the representation of the people in Parliament will extend the franchise to numbers who have not hitherto enjoyed the right of voting for the election of members of the House of Commons, and render such representation free from frequent changes by the unconcerted action of the Provincial Legislatures.

The settlement of all matters in discussion between the Federal Government and that of Manitoba will, I trust, satisfy the expectations of the people of that Province.

The Bill regulating the influx of the Chinese people into Canada will, I doubt not, allay the feeling of discontent in relation to that subject, which has for some time prevailed in British Columbia.

The aid to the Canadian Pacific Railway company will secure the advantages which are justly expected from that great enterprise, whilst the grants in land and money to other railways in various portions of Canada may be expected to accelerate the progress of settlement and augment the commerce of the Dominion.

The ready conversion of our five per cent. bonds, which have recently matured into four per cent. securities, and the success of the loan for four millions of pounds sterling lately offered in the London market, show the satisfactory state of the credit of Canada.

I congratulate you on the other measures, both of a private and public nature, which you have passed.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In Her Majesty's name I thank you for the supplies you have granted for the public service.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The readjustment of the tariff will tend to increase the revenue and enable the government to meet the various engagements of the country.

I now, with reiterated thanks, relieve you for the present from your important duties.

THE BILLS

to which the Royal assent was given were as follows:—

REWARDING VOLUNTEERS.

The proposal by the Government to recognise the services of the volunteers in suppressing the Northwest rebellion is not characterized by the liberality which we would think such important services demand. The Governor-General-in-Council is empowered to grant to each member of the volunteer force who served in the Northwest a free homestead of two adjoining quarter sections (320 acres) of unclaimed and unoccupied Dominion lands. The conditions attached are that each volunteer, to perfect his entry, shall within six months after the first day of June, 1886, occupy the land in question himself, or by a qualified and recognized substitute. Instead of doing homestead duties, in person or by proxy, the volunteer has the munificent option of receiving in lieu of his 320 acres of land scrip to the face value of $80, which shall be accepted in payment of any lands in the Northwest not in the hands of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Hudson Bay Company or political colonization companies. Considering the hardships endured by the whole force, considering the hard labor done, considering the danger braved, considering the heroism shown, the proposed recognition seems to be indifferently inadequate. The least the Government could have done, one would think, would be to make the proposed grant of land an out-and-out, absolute gift. In the first place many volunteers entitled to the grant have suffered so greatly in health by the hardships of the campaign—especially the miseries of the Lake Superior route that they are not in a physical condition to do settlement duties, nor, many of them, to provide substitutes. The terms of the grant are very little better than those given the ordinary settler. The value set upon the land by the Government, is shown by making its equivalent scrip to the value of $80, which, if it were converted into cash, would amount to only $40. This is a munificent reward to make to our noble volunteers, for months of hard work, hard fare, hard beds, hard-tack and hard fighting. It savours very much of the old indifference with which the present Government has treated the volunteer militia in the past. Let the gift be a free and absolute one, irrespective of settlement duties. In the course of time the settlement of surrounding land and its improvement, will make the veteran's farm of some value, and a handsome provision, when the rheumatics contracted in the campaign shall place him prematurely on the shelf. He richly deserves this much, for it is due to his exertions alone that the land is now at the disposal of the Government. The amount of scrip which the whole force in active service, are, in virtue of the proposed recognition to receive, is very little more than the extra salary grab, voted without hesitation to members of Parliament. The offer of the Government is a narrow and niggardly one.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There will be any amount of fun in all the borders of all the ridings of the Dominion. The faithful among the legal profession are already quarreling over the positions of revising barristers under the Franchise Act.

The session of the Dominion Parliament which closed on Monday, was the longest on record in the history of the Dominion or of Canada. It lasted nearly six months—five months and three weeks. It opened on Jan. 20th and closed on July 20th.

A correspondent of the Globe who was on the steamer Northwest at the time of Col. Williams death, says that the cause of his disease was illness brought on by over-exertion, exposure and sun-stroke.

The accusations of disloyalty against any particular party of Canadians, made by journals of any stripe are, to say the least of it, in bad taste. The recent out-break in the Northwest showed that the members of neither political party can claim a monopoly of loyalty. True loyalty dwells in the heart not in the mouth.

Fenelon Falls.

Work on the Canal is being pushed as rapidly as possible, but it is somewhat interfered with by the logs in the river, which occasionally delay the arrival of the stone from Bobcaygeon, thus causing the masons to run out of stone. The walls of the locks are completed all but a few yards on the north side of the upper lock, and part of the wall of the raceway is also constructed. It was hoped that the masonry would be entirely finished by the 1st of August, but it will probably take a week or two longer in consequence of the drawback above mentioned. The entire force of men employed numbers between fifty and sixty, and on Wednesday some of them commenced work on the coffer dam at the railway bridge, as a preliminery to building the piers on which the railway company's swing bridge is to rest. Mr. Macdonald expects to have his contract completed some time in October; but, as expectations are seldom fully realized and there is a good deal to be done yet, we doubt whether the finishing touches will be given until the middle or latter end of the next month.—Gazette.

Paris Lump Sugar.

How Monopolists are Given the Control of Indian Supplies.

Mr. Paterson, M. P., showed the other night that the Government, while starving the Indians into rebellion with the one hand is feeding them with the other a better quality of sugar than the ordinary well-to-do Canadian family can afford. And the thing is done in such a way as to give the everlasting Redpath concern a monopoly of the business. Mr. Paterson said:

"The tender for the supply to destitute Indians provides that the sugar shall be Paris lump. Gentlemen in the grocery trade know that this is a kind manufactured by Redpath alone, and that it costs one cent per pound more than the best granulated sugar. We need to give destitute Indians Paris lump, when every Canadian family uses granulated, and pay for this lump one cent per pound additional. This limits the tender to the article supplied by Redpaths. There is no chance for the Halifax, Moncton, or St. John's refineries, because they do not make Paris lump, only granulated sugars. But granulated is good enough for the first Minister's house, and for the rest of us, but Paris lump at one cent per pound additional is needed for the destitute Indians."

An Extraordinary Tragedy.

A Man Kisses His Wife and Murders Her Companion Without Her Knowing It.

An Eldora, Iowa, telegram says:—Miss Grace Rand, a beautiful girl, 19 years old, was a member of the family of Geo. Johnson, whose wife was her sister. The ladies occupied one bed in the second story of the house, while Johnson and a hired man slept together down stairs. Last night the family retired as usual. Miss Rand fell asleep quickly, and just as Mrs. Johnson had nearly lost consciousness she was aroused by some one approaching the bed. It was her husband. He leaned over the bed and kissed her affectionately and bade her good night and left the room. Immediately her husband was gone Mrs. Johnson was attracted by the strange movements made by her sister. Putting her hand on her sister's face she was terrified to feel blood gushing from her throat. A moment later the girl, writhing in the agony of death, rolled from the bed to the floor. Mrs. Johnson struck a light and discovered the girl lying dead. The girl's throat was cut from ear to ear. The hired man came in answer to her screams, and found Johnson dying near the door with a broad gash in his throat and a bloody razor lying beside him.

The "Gazette's" Disclosures.

The Pall Mall Gazette has produced the greatest sensation that has existed in England for many a day, and it is not at all improbable that it will carry its point. Certainly we would be very sorry to transfer to our columns what has appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette, but if the condition of things is such as the Gazette represents it to be, its course was perhaps justified under the circumstances. It has no doubt produced a tremendous impression on public opinion in England, and especially in London. It has exhibited the immoralities of aristocratic society in such a way that it is impossible that Parliament can refuse to provide remedial measures, and the city authorities will be obliged to offer to certain classes of the population protection against the villainies of those in high life. The articles of the Pall Mall Gazette have done not a little to carry through the House of Commons the Criminal Law Amendment Bill. Parliament has been reluctant to legislate as proposed, but public opinion will not allow it to hesitate longer. The editor of the Pall Mall Gazette has enlisted Cardinal Manning, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Mr. Spurgeon and many prominent clergymen on his side, and it will be scarcely possible for those who favor the present condition of things to succeed now against the Gazette upon the cry that it has become an obscene journal, and ought to be repressed as such.—London Advertiser.

A Fortune.

Thos. J. Malby has resigned his position as superintendent of North End industrial school, and will go to Newfoundland and then to England to secure the Churchill estate of $35,000,000. Over a hundred years ago Nicholas Churchill came to Newfoundland and engaged in the seal and cod fisheries. He was very prosperous and invested his surplus earnings in real estate in England and Newfoundland. At his death, about 30 years later he left some $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 to his daughter, Elizabeth Churchill, a whimsical lady, living in England. Elizabeth died without marrying. She was a good business woman, and added much to the property. She died in 1876, at the age of 104 years.

She left no will, and as she was supposed to be without living relatives it was thought that the vast property would revert to the Crown. After several years an advertisetiament came to Mr. Malby, and he at once began to make investigation. It took some time to establish the proofs, but he thinks he now has made out a clear case. Mrs. Malby, the mother of the claimant, was a niece of Nicholas Churchill and cousin to Elizabeth. Church records have been searched and dates and names copied and arranged so that the American family have little doubt of success. In this belief they are supported by several lawyers in this city. There are eight relatives of the ancient fisherman living in this country and they have delegated Mr. Malby to look after their joint interests.

To Visit Canada.

London, July 20.—The Right Hon. Wm. Edward Foster, liberal member of parliament for Brantford, formerly chief secretary for Ireland, will, it is said, soon make a visit to Canada.

Cheap at any Price.

"My dear," said Mrs. Jones at the breakfast table, "I see it cost a man in New York $10,000 to get a divorce from a Boston woman. What do you think of that?

"I think it was cheap," replied Jones, and the meal was finished in silence.

Mrs. Jones was a Boston woman herself.

An Honest Confession.

Col. Yerger had just been paying a number of bills which his hopeful son, who is a student at the University of Texas, had contracted.

"I had no idea," said the old man to his son, "that studying was so expensive."

"Oh, yes, it costs money," replied the youth, "and I didn't study so very much, either."

Patti in Her Home-Nest.

Mme. Patti's castle, Craig-a-Nos, is perched high up on a cleft mountain picturesquely wooded. It is nearly at the top of this mountain and built after the common fashion of Welsh castles, with low bastions and what is called a curtain between — that is, a straight line of wall joining two semi-circular towers. The walls, which are of greyish-green slate, so plentiful here, are topped with battlements and covered here and there with ivy, while the windows are either arched or gabled. Spreading away in front are the gardens and lawns, all terraced because of the precipitous character of the ground, and so gradually coming down to the little valley which lies below. Through this valley runs a lovely river with an unpronouncible name, spanned by numerous pretty bridges and well stocked with fish. The valley opens into the great Swansea valley, while the whole country around is very mountainous, and abounds with game.

The castle contains twenty-two rooms, none of them very large, but all warm and cosy, as they should be in such a climate. Patti's own is hung with blue silk, all the upholstery being to match, while attached to it is a little dressing room that is complete enough in its appointments for a Princess. The drawing-room is charming, and he must be a dull person who cannot find something to interest him there. It contains two grand pianos, albums, statuettes, pictures and offerings from admirers, chief among the latter being a beautiful inlaid cabinet, containing gold and silver coronets, with which almost every nation in the world has crowned the diva "Queen of Song." The morning room is also a little beauty, but chiefly attractive because it contains a portrait of the poor late Duke of Albany, with his autograph and a modest, manly letter, begging Patti to accept his picture in return for one she had sent him. In the billiard room is an immense orchestrion, which is the chief source of amusement every day after dinner.—Keynote.

Irrigation.

West of the Missouri the majority of the surface of the earth is more or less neglected by the celestial sprinkling pot, and it behooves poor weak man to irrigate artificially wherever he can. Now you can go into California, Utah and Colorado, and by irrigation raise garden sass that will make your eyes bulge; but through Wyoming, especially on the Laramie plains, the growing season is confined to the time between July 31 and August 1. So that things don't have time to mature. I will except promissory notes paying two per cent. per month, however.

The season is so abrupt, and when it comes is gone again with that spontaneity and forthwith immediate movement peculiar to the flea, that before you can put ear muffs on your corn, the ears are frozen and the season's work is nothing but frost bitten chaos and wilted wreck.

Still with all this knowledge and in the light of a full experience we had years ago a man on the plains named Hayford, who had been a fever and ague doctor a year or two in the South till people told him that they preferred the ague to the style of knowledge he had. Then he drifted West, worked on the night shift in a Colorado mine and practiced law in a quiet, shyster kind of a way till the vigilantes got all his practice and threatened to get him. Then he came to Wyoming to grow up with the country, started a paper and printed it on one of those little amateur card presses that sell for three dollars. This paper he published every day, and in the old flush times during the building of the Union Pacific railway, sold it at twenty-five cents a week. He used it as a little pocket blackmailer and worried himself into office by knowing things about prominent men and threatening to publish them.

Well, he was the champion of irrigation in Wyoming, and he devoted a stickful a day to Wyoming agricultural possibilities. He favored the organization of a stock company for the purpose of constructing a canal thirty miles long to irrigate a dozen townships. He said we had heretofore raised nothing but hemp and hell, and he favored this great scheme. Finally he got it to going and the company was organized, and a civil engineer from Missouri named Crout took a cast-iron plow and a "bull team" and constructed the pioneer canal, as it was called. The canal worked well enough where the cuts were, but along the fill Mr. Crout found, when it was too late, that he had forgotten to put on any side boards, and therefore the water slopped over and went down the gulches and buffalo wallows and alkali flats that didn't need any irrigation. Altogether the scheme was a failure. There is some water back a mile from the river where it has run down during the June freshets when the snow melts in the mountains, and there the antelope comes to drink and wriggle his brief tail, but there are no fields of waving grain. Not a wave. Irrigation on the Laramie plains is still confined to that class of agriculture where two men soak slices of pine apple in spirits and greet each other with the Indian toast, "How!"—Bill Nye, in New York Mercury.

Chapter I—Continued.

Even more anxious than when I started to make no noise which might awaken people, I found the bottom of the staircase and began my stealthy ascent.

Somehow, blind as I was, the place seemed unfamiliar to me. The balustrade I was touching did not seem the same. The very texture of the carpet under my feet seemed different. Could it be possible that I had entered the wrong house! There are plenty of instances on record of a key having opened a strange lock. Could I, through such a circumstance, have strayed into a neighbor's house? I paused; the perspiration rising on my brows as I thought of the awkward situation in which I should be placed if it were so. For a moment I resolved to retrace my steps and try the next house; but I could not be quite sure I was wrong. Then I remembered that in my own house a bracket, with a plaster figure upon it, hung near the top of the stairs. I knew the exact place, having been cautioned many times to keep my head from knocking against it. I could settle all my doubts by going on and feeling for this landmark; so on I went.

I ran my fingers softly along the wall, but no bracket could I find. My hand touched the lintel of a door instead. Then I knew, for certain, I was in the wrong house. The only thing to be done was to creep out as quietly as I had entered and try my luck next door.

As I turned to grope my way back I heard the murmur of voices—late as it was, there were people talking in the room, the door of which my fingers had so lightly touched.

I could not distinguish words, but I was sure the voices were those of men. I stood irresolute. Would it not be better to knock at the door and throw myself upon the mercy of the inmates of the room? I could apologize and explain. My blindness would account for the mistake. Some one would, no doubt, be kind enough to put me on my right road home. Yes, this was the best thing to do. I could not go on creeping into strange houses like a midnight thief. Perhaps each house in the row had an equally common lock and my key might open all. If so the end would be that some alarmed householder would put a bullet into me before I had time to assert my innocence.

Just as I raised my fingers to tap the door I heard another voice—a woman's voice. It seemed to come from the back room and was singing to an accompaniment played softly on a piano. I paused and listened.

I have been so occupied with complaining of the hardships of my lot I have not told you I had one solace to my misery; that merciful gift, so often bestowed on the blind, music. Had it not been for this I believe those weeks of darkness and uncertainty would have driven me mad. Had it not been that I could pass many weary hours away playing to myself, that I could be taken to concerts and hear others play and sing, my days would have been unbearable, and I shudder to think of what aid I might have called in to render them less burdensome.

I waited and listened to the song. It was taken from an opera recently produced on the Continent, an opera not yet popularly known in England, and the song was one that few amateurs would dare to attempt. The singer, whoever she might be, sang it softly and under her voice, as though fearing to throw it out with full force. The lateness of the hour might well account for this restraint. Nevertheless, any one capable of judging must have known he was listening to no ordinary singer. It was easy to recognize the trained skill and dormant power, and imagine what, under favorable circumstances, that voice might accomplish. I was enchanted. My idea was that I had stumbled into a nest of professionals—people whose duties ended so late, that to enjoy any evening at all, night must be greatly encroached upon. All the better for me! Bohemians themselves, my unexpected nocturnal intrusion might not frighten them out of their wits.

The singer had now commenced the second verse. I placed my ear close to the door to catch every note. I was curious to hear what she would make of the effective but trying finale, when—oh horrible contrast to the soft sweet liquid notes and subdued words of passionate love!—I heard a gasp, a spasmodic fearful gasp, that could convey but one meaning. I heard it succeeded by a long deep groan, which terminated in a gurgling sound which froze my blood. I heard the music stop suddenly, and the cry, the piercing cry of a woman rang out like a frightful change from melody to discord, and then I heard a dull heavy thud on the floor!

I waited to hear no more. I knew that some dreadful deed had been perpetrated within a few feet of where I stood. My heart beat wildly and fiercely. In the excitement of the moment I forgot that I was not like others—forgot that strength and courage could avail me nothing—forgot everything save a desire to prevent the accomplishment of crime—the wish to do a man's duty in saving life and succoring the ones in peril. I threw open the door and rushed headlong into the room. Then, as I became aware of the presence of strong light, but light which revealed nothing to me, the folly and rashness of my proceedings came fully home to me, and like a flash it crossed my mind that unarmed, blind and helpless, I had rushed into that room to meet my death.

I heard an oath—an exclamation of surprise. In the distance I heard the cry of the woman, but it sounded muffled and faint; it seemed to me that a struggle was going on in that part of the room. Powerless though I was to aid, I turned impulsively and took a couple of steps in the direction whence the cry came; my foot caught in something and I fell prostrate on the body of a man. Even in the midst of the horror that awaited me I shuddered as I felt my hand, lying on the fallen man, grow wet with some warm fluid which slowly trickled over it.

Before I could rise strong muscular living hands were upon my throat, holding me down, while a short distance off I heard the sharp click of a pistol-lock. Oh, for a light for a second! If only to see those who were about to take my life, if only—strange fancy—to know in what part of me to expect the fatal bullet. And I, who some hour or two ago lay and dared to wish for death, felt at this moment that life, even my darkened life, was as dear to me as to any creature under the sun. So I cried aloud, and my voice sounded to me like the voice of a stranger—

"Spare me! I am blind! blind! blind!"

[To be Continued.]

Watered Their Stock.

In Peoria, Ills., was a stock company of three brothers, having a capital of $20,000. The dividends were so large and the opportunity for increasing the business so fair that one of the brothers went to a lawyer and explained:

"Fritz und Jacob und me talk it all over, und we conclude to put some water in our stock. Shust how we should do him we dunno."

"How much do you want to increase your stock?"

"Vhell, aboudt $10,000."

"Well, we'll get some more certificates printed and I'll see to the watering. Just leave it all to me."

And as the partners remarked to each other about three weeks later:

"How vash it dot lawyer put all dot vater in his own pocked und calls for some dividends on us?"—Wall Street News.

HENRY CLAY'S HORSE.

The Nag the Greatest Statesman Won at a Game of Poker.

A Washington letter in the Houston Post says: "I recollect Henry Clay's turnout very well." said an old-timer; "he had one of the old style Concord buggies, with a top that suggested a Mother Hubbard bonnet. It was evidently a second-hand affair that Mr. Clay had picked up in a trade, and nowadays would do very well for a woman to haul vegetables around town in. The cushions were stuffed with moss and were so well worn you could see the moss, sticking out at the sides. I'll bet Henry Clay didn't know what a lap-robe was, and, as for a whip, he didn't have any. He used to slash his old sorrel stallion with the ends of the reins so loud you could hear it a block off. The steps to the buggy were gone and Mr. Clay used to jump over the wheels. When he wanted to get in he put one foot over the hub and swung the other around over the wheel and dash-board. The wheels were so high he had to let the top down to get out. They had axle-grease in those days, but Mr. Clay had evidently never found it out. He always drove his horse at a canter, you could hear the front wheels of his buggy squeaking as many notes as there are on a piccolo.

"Ah, well do I remember that sorrel stallion," continued the old-timer. "Henry Clay won him one night at poker in John Hancock's saloon, which is still running on the avenue, from Col. Jim Bright, who lived at Falls Church, Va. Bright used to come over every week and play with Clay, and he generally went back to Falls Church with a pocketful of money. But that was Clay's lucky night. He got away with $1,200 of Bright's money, his watch, saddle and bridle, overcoat, saddle bags, a new suit of clothes that were in the saddle-bags, three finger-rings and a breastpin, a brace of pistols and a bowie knife, and a pair of boots——

"Oh, you needn't laugh," said the old-timer, with great animation; "that's the way they played poker in them days. [illegible] for nothing. Why, didn't you never hear of the time Henry Clay bet himself clean down to his undershirt, and he offered to pull that off, but the other fellow didn't wear an undershirt to put up against it. Well, sir, it's so, any how, and the very table he played the game on is now in the front room, up-stairs, in Hancock's saloon. It is an old pine table about three feet square, with a hole in the middle to drop the percentage through for threes, fulls, flushes, and jack-pots. Well, sir about that old stallion. He was well known around Washington for several years. He always nickered when Clay came near him. Clay carried a pocketful of shelled corn, and he gave the horse a handful every time he got into the buggy. The boys knew the stallion well, and they used to give him pieces of bread, cake, nuts, or anything of the sort. He'd eat watermelon and meat, and I've seen him eat wads of paper as though he was trying to make the boys laugh. Well, sir, Clay had a nigger named Sam. One day he loaned the stallion to Sam to drive to Alexandria. Sam got drunk before he left town, and he started out on a gallop. He didn't stop till he got to Mount Vernon, twenty miles off. There he turned around and galloped all the way back. The old stallion dropped dead at the edge of South Washington. There were over one hundred boys at the funeral. In revenge Clay sold the nigger to a Louisiana sugar-planter, with a proviso in the bill of sale that the planter should hitch Sam in shafts and work him in the cane-mill. Fact, sir."

Welcomed Home.

He arrived home from Europe a day or two ago. He hadn't the least idea that any one would turn out to welcome him, and his surprise can therefore be imagined when he reached the Central depot to hear a hurrah and to see thirty or forty different persons pressing forward to shake hands.

"My dear fellow-townsmen, I—I—," he began as he removed his hat, but he suddenly restored it to his head and made a rush for the side door. They were all bill collectors.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Changed Hands.

Mr. S. W. Cross has entered upon the proprietorship of the Wiarton Echo and has issued his salutatory.

Bridgenorth Regatta.

The postponed regatta at Bridgenorth has been fixed for Thursday, August 6th. Full particulars will be given in a few days.

Off for Port Hope.

This morning the 7.05 train for Port Hope took about 100 persons to that place to attend the funeral of the late Col. Williams. Among them were a few soldiers, the majority evidently waiting for a later train.

Health of the District.

The health of the Midland District for the month of May showed the following percentage of diseases :—Consumption, 12.3; Anæmia, 9.9; Goitre, 9.5; Bronchitis, 9.1; heart disease, 7.1; neuralgia, 6.4.

Egg Shipment.

Though the production of eggs is limited this season, Messrs. Scott & Scrimgour have ready a shipment of about five thousand dozen eggs, which will be sent off to-morrow for the Boston market.

The Lansdowne.

Ladies and gentlemen visiting the Lansdowne Roller Rink as spectators will be charged an admission fee of five and ten cents respectively. Rates to parties skating will be the same as heretofore. Geo. Stevenson, Manager.

Cobourg Saved Army Picnic.

The steamer Golden Eye will run an excursion to above picnic at Idyl Wild on Wednesday 22nd. The steamer will leave her wharf at 7 a.m. Tickets for round trip 50 cents. R. W. Carson, Master.

Willow and Wicket.

The following team of the Peterborough Cricket Club leave town to-night by the 11-11 C. P. R. express for Ottawa, where they will play to-morrow :—Messrs. Grundy, Rutherford, Hammond, Hamilton Max., Hamilton Miles, Strathy, Carter, Craven, Montgomery, Hatton and Norley, (coach.)

The Ladies Come to the Rescue.

Several of the noble ladies of the town determined to retrieve the reputation of the town. The failure to accord the returning volunteers a general reception such as has or will be done in all other towns and villages of the district, put them upon their mettle. Accordingly, though the excessive heat of the weather would have been a sufficient excuse from making any exertion not absolutely necessary, several ladies have collected the sum of a little over two hundred dollars for the purpose of presenting each member of "G" Company with a souvenir five dollar gold piece. His Worship Mayor Cox will, on behalf of these noble ladies, make the presentation.

Accident on the C. P. R. Track.

Last evening Charles Portsmouth, a pensioner, over 80 years of age, met with an accident near the Roman Catholic Cemetery which came very near resulting in his instantaneous death. The man, who, for some time, has been living at the Protestant Home, left that institution on Saturday last, and since that time has been roaming around town without food. He was walking on the track, near the place mentioned above, when a heavy freight train, which was going west, struck him, and when picked up by Mr. O'Brien, section boss, was bleeding profusely from a deep wound inflicted over the right eye. The injured man, on being taken to the depot, gave his name and the place of his recent residence to Mr. C. B. Smith, who accompanied him to the Home in a cab. Dr. Pidgeon was sent for and on his arrival examined the wounds and discovered that his right arm was also badly hurt, but thought that with careful treatment he would recover in a short time.

The "Ten Cent" Store has removed one block South, opposite Alexander's Dry Goods store.

Another Paddler Provided For.

This morning Mr. Wm. English shipped another of his excellent canoes—this time to Brantford. The craft is a double canoe, provided with mast step, sail, etc.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer :—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.

1 o'clock	86°	29.69°
3 o'clock	83°	29.16°

The Late Mrs. John Hall.

We heard with deep regret of the death of Mrs. John Hall, Lakefield, which was announced yesterday. The deceased lady has been ill for some time and her death, therefore, was not unexpected. The funeral, which took place to-day, was very largely attended and testified to the respect in which she was held. In common with Mr. Hall's many friends we extend him our sincerest sympathy in his great bereavement.

Masonic Funeral.

The Worshipful Masters of Corinthian and Peterborough lodges of Masons have been notified of the death of Mr. J. A. Butterfield, Post-master at Norwood, which event took place at noon on Monday. The deceased gentleman will be buried on Wednesday next, July 22nd at 2 p.m., with Masonic ceremonies. His many friends will regret to hear of the demise of Mr. Butterfield, whose many excellent qualities have made him popular with all classes. It is expected that all of the brethren of Peterborough who can possibly do so will make it convenient to attend the funeral on Wednesday.

A Thoughtful Butcher.

It is generally supposed that the truculent trade of a butcher has a tendency to make the members of this class cruel, but there is at least one in town a creditable exception, and example of the motto, "a merciful man merciful to his beast." Mr. Harry Wi[illegible]as seen driving into town yesterday aft[illegible]n with a fine load of sheep and lam[illegible], such as he generally picks up. The lambs for the slaughter were carefully shaded from the blistering heat by a thick covering of cool boughs on top of the portable fold in which the animals were conveyed.

Chance for an Easy Shave.

We have great pleasure in advising all and every one in need of good razors to go to Stethem's hardware store for them. He has just received a splendid lot of the celebrated Clarke's Neva razors, which have the name, among the barbers of the large cities of the United States, of being the best tempered and the best ground razors now made in the world, and Mr. Stethem tells us that he can sell them cheaper than they can be had from New York or Boston, and that he can give the same warrantee, he being the sole agent in Canada.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

In anticipation of the increased poverty and suffering, which, owing to the late rebellion, must inevitably prevail amongst the Indian families of our Northwest, the executive committee of St. Paul's auxiliary of the above society have agreed to send a box of clothing suitable for the approaching winter season. They hereby notify the members of the W. F. M. S., the congregation worshipping in St. Paul's church, and other friends, that contributions for this purpose will be most thankfully received in any of the following articles :—Cast off woollen clothing (not too much worn), woollen under wear of all sizes and both sexes, but specially for children that they may go to school; jackets, coats, skirts, stockings, socks, yarn, clouds mufflers and mitts. The box must leave Peterborough on August 15th. Contributions marked, "For Indians of N. W." will be received by Mr. Stewart, sexton of St. Paul's Church, at his house, Murray street.

Magnificent Floral Cross.

Another instance of the enterprise and thoughtfulness of the ladies of Peterborough: They contributed funds for the supply of a magnificent in memoriam floral cross for the funeral of Colonel Williams, and this morning it was shipped by the 7.05 train, Mr. J. Job accompanying it as special messenger. It will have been noticed that other towns in the district sent to Toronto for the floral crosses they contributed, but the Peterborough ladies, thinking they could do as well at home, gave the order to Mr. Frank Mason, and the result justified their preference, for the order was filled in an exceedingly prompt and creditable manner. The length of the arms of the cross are three and two feet respectively, and the breadth about eight inches. The flowers composing the beautiful cross were calla lilies, lilia candida, white and pink roses, bouvardia, smilax, and other appropriate flowers, all blended and arranged with such taste and skill as to produce a most delightful effect. The cross bore a card with the words: "In memoriam; from the ladies of Peterborough."

All Goods selling cheap at the "Ten Cent" Store.

They Stand at the Head.

The new improved Williams and the light-running Domestic Sewing Machines lead the trade everywhere. Light running, silent and rapid. For family use they have no equal, having all the best attachments. For a machine having a reputation above all others buy a Domestic or New Williams. The reputation they enjoy among our customers proves them to be the best sewing machine in the market. Terms to suit purchasers.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

Mortuary Statistics.

The Dominion monthly return of mortuary statistics, relating to the town of Peterborough, contains a record of seven deaths for the month of June—two from typhoid fever, two from rheumatism, one from puerperal fever, one from violent death and one from old age.

The Golden Eye

Will commence running regular trips, from Peterboro' to Harwood and Idyl Wild every Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, leaving her wharf at 7:30 a. m. Thursday will be excursion day, fare only 60 cents, for return tickets. The boat is open to charter for excursion or moonlight parties at reduced rates.

Probs Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office :—Light to moderate south-west winds, fair, continued very warm weather, with thunder storms in Northern Ontario; fair, with cooler north-westerly winds to-morrow.

The Excursion to Ottawa.

The excursion run in the interest of Court Peterborough, Canadian order of Foresters, this morning, was fairly patronized. At 7:30 a train consisting of ten coaches steamed out of the C. P. R. station, having on board the lacrosse team, the Fire Brigade Band and about three hundred excursionists. It is expected that additions will have been made at Norwood and other points on the line.

"Worth Losing a Leg For."

Mr. Archie Moffat, travelling representative of the Powell & Jones stove works, Peterborough, passed through town at noon to-day, on his way to Port Hope. He witnessed the reception of the Midland boys in Toronto on Sunday. The reception, he says, was a magnificently enthusiastic one, and, as he expresses it, "was worth losing a leg for." The Midland boys were overcome more by their feelings, at the splendid enthusiasm of their reception than by fear of rebel bullets in the trenches at Battoche.

Personal.

Messrs. Johnston, Fowlds and others, of Hastings, came to town this morning on their way to Port Hope to attend the grand funeral occasion in that town.

Mr. Geo. Walton, of Emmerson Man., a former Peterboroughian, surrendered his grounds the other evening for the purposes of a Methodist lawn social.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tully left this morning for Detroit, where they intend to visit friends for a short time.

Mr. T. Menzies furnished Miss Veal and Miss Ritchie with tickets, this morning, for Chautauqua, N.Y., where they intend spending a months vacation in the vicinity of Mayville and Chautauqua lakes.

Deliberate Suicide.

This afternoon Thomas Hadden, a sectionman employed on the Grand Trunk Railway, deliberately committed suicide by throwing himself under a passing train. As the regular train from Peterborough, heavily laden with passengers, proceeding to Col. William's funeral, Port Hope, was steaming swiftly along, about two miles this side of Millbrook, the suicide was seen to rush out of the bushes by the roadside and throw himself in front of the train, which, of course, crushed his body to atoms. So sudden was the action that any attempt to stop the train was futile.

BURYING A DEAD HERO.

Funeral of the Late Colonel Williams.

Monster Tribute of Respect.

The Last Honors to a Statesman and Warrior.

The town of Port Hope was draped in mourning yesterday. The stores were closed. Flags hung half-mast from the public buildings and many of the private residences. All traffic was stopped, and the whole town devoted itself to expressing its esteem for the late Col. A. T. H. Williams. The town was filled with visitors from all parts of the Dominion to attend the funeral. The streets were crowded. The windows were filled with ladies, nearly all of whom seemed to be in mourning. Pictures of the late Colonel of all sizes were in nearly all the windows, and were being sold rapidly by boys in the streets. Red coats and uniforms were seen thickly dispersed among the crowds, while here and there was seen a volunteer whose weather-beaten, sun-browned face and stained or ragged uniform indicated that he was one of the famous followers of the dead officer. Each of these was treated by the assembled crowd with the greatest respect, and they were followed everywhere by a little buzz of excitement and complimentary remarks. Festoons of sombre black were hung from window to window along the main streets of the town. A massive arch of evergreens was erected near the Town Hall, bearing the inscription, "We Mourn the Hero of Battoche."

In the morning the remains were brought down from Pearyn Park, the residence of the late Colonel, and laid in state in the Drill Shed. The casket been opened at the house. The body was as well preserved as could be expected, considering that his death took place on the fourth instant. There was not much discoloration. It was, however, not considered safe by the doctors to allow the corpse to be exposed to the public, and the coffin lid was again fastened down before the removal to the Drill Shed. The arrangements were of the most orderly and methodical character. After gaining admittance the people were kept moving, being ordered by the inside sentries to walk around the central dias containing the coffin and pass out at a different door. The dias on which the coffin was plad was was erected in the centre of the large Drill Shed. From the numerous rafters of the shed were hung the mourning draperies, placed in tiers, systematically arranged, while from the centre of the lofty roof long festoons of black fell in graceful folds over the top of the huge black canopy that covered the coffin The canopy was supported by four black pillars, while the bier was completely covered with the floral offerings, some of which were said to have been the most magnificent that have ever been seen in this country.

THE FLORAL OFFERINGS, which were effectively mounted on a draped car, were 48 in number, conspicuous amongst the others for beauty being the "Floral Cross—Ladies of Peterborough" and "Gates Ajar—Council of Peterborough."

While the public were passing through the drill shed the various military and civic bodies which were to attend the funeral were assembling at the various appointed places. Shortly after 3 o'clock the doors of the drill shed were thrown wide open, the coffin was reverently carried by the pall-bearers, and placed on a gun carriage drawn by six horses.

THE PROCESSION

then fell in, and began its melancholy march. A slight mistake was made in the route at the start, but the procession was soon turned into the route advertised, which was from the drill shed to Queen street, along Queen to Walton street, Walton street to Brown street, Brown street to Bedford street, Bedford street to Pine street, Pine street to St. John's Church, St. John's Church to Walton street, and thence to the cemetery.

THE FIRING PARTY,

consisting of the Midland Battalion, headed the procession with genuine sorrow expressed in every action. The party was commanded by the veteran Colonel Deacon. They marched in columns of half companies. On each side of the firing party was a file of the Northumberland Cavalry under command of Capt. Casey. Before the procession had gone far it became evident that some of the horses were likely to cause trouble. Three were especially restless, and when the bands struck up they began to dash into the firing party, kicking and rearing in a manner which would have scattered green Volunteers in short order. The experience in the greater dangers which they have just passed through apparently make them regard the rearing and kicking of a few horses with just a shade of contempt. They soon pounded the horses into quietness with the butts of their rifles, and the cortege proceeded. The firing party were followed by the bands of the 45th and 46th Battalions playing the "Dead March in Saul." The officiating clergymen, Rev. Dr. O'Meara and Rev. C. J. S. Bethune, D. C. L., of Port Hope Trinity School, preceded the gun carriage on which the body was placed.

THE PALL-BEARERS were:—Col. Villiers, Deputy Adjutant-General; Col. Bolton, Cavalry, Cobourg; Col. Kirkpatrick, 47th, Kingston; Col. Cubitt, 45th, Bowmanville: Col. Rogers, 57th, Peterborough; Col. Gravely, 49th, Cobourg; Col. Benson, 46th, Port Hope.

Behind the gun carriage and the pall-bearers was the Colonel's horse, a fine dark bay, led by his groom. The Colonel's boots were slung over the saddle, spurs forward. Then came the carriage with the floral offerings, the beauty and size of which caused exclamations of surprise and appreciation along the entire route of the procession.

The non-commissioned officers and men of the 49th (East Durham), the 45th (West Durham), 57th (Peterborough), 40th (Northumberland), followed, their neat bright uniforms, carefully whitened belts, and well cleaned arms offering a strange contrast to the appearance of the firing party. The Cobourg Artillery, under Capt. Macnachtan, followed in uniforms of black and gold. The officers of these regiments followed two and two in inverted order of seniority.

During the march the heat was intense, but no cases of sunstroke were noticed.

IN THE CHURCH.

The late colonel had always been a strong churchman, having held for many years the position of churchwarden. The church of St. John was erected largely by his energetic working and generous subscriptions. In his honour the church was heavily draped. All of the choristers were in deep mourning. The chancel, the organ, and the pulpits were all covered with black. In the centre of the chancel was a raised dais, at the head of which was a large cross of white lilies. Admission to the church was by ticket. The centre aisle was reserved for the chief mourners and officers of the military. The slow tolling of the bell overhead, and the measured tread of the thousands of approaching feet, with the strains of the dead march, gradually growing plainer and plainer, were calculated to make a powerful impression on the minds of those who were seated in the side aisles and were waiting for the approach of the funeral. The front of the procession had now passed through the gates and entered the church. No one looked around. A thrill ran through the church as the deep powerful tones of Dr. O'Meara's voice penetrated the building, slowly chanting, "The Lord gave; the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord." The coffin was borne up the aisle and laid on the dias, while the low strains of the organ added to the impressive solemnity of the action. Dr. O'Meara read the 39th Psalm, and Dr. Bethune read the powerful passage of scripture beginning, "For now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept." After singing the hymn, "Days and moments quickly flying," the procession again moved on. The march to

THE CEMETERY

was very fatiguing, being mostly up-hill. The family plot is about the centre of the cemetery, and is oval shaped and bordered with sandstone. A handsome grey granite cross towers above a single grave and bears the inscription:—

"In memory of Emily Seymour, beloved wife of Arthur T. H. Williams, died Dec. 24, 1882."

A new grave had been dug besides this one. It was lined with evergreens. Dr. O'Meara and Dr. Bethune conducted the service at the grave, and the coffin was lowered. Instead of keeping those present waiting while the earth was being filled in a fine field of evergreens was placed over the grave, bearing in large letters of white daisies and immortelles with red wax flowers the word

WILLIAMS.

The word was then given the firing party, consisting of nearly 200 men to load. After cautioning the men to fire high, Colonel Deacon ordered three volleys to be fired into the air. As the last reverberation died away the vast crowds began to move back to the town. All the trains leaving the town were so crowded that it was almost impossible to obtain even standing room for a time.

It is estimated that there must have been between fifteen and twenty thousand people in Port Hope yesterday.

When the Volunteers returned down town they noticed that the former inscription on the large arch had been replaced by "Well Done, Comrades."

Groups of the returned Volunteers could be seen after the funeral talking over the valour of him whom they had just laid to rest, and recalled reminiscences of little acts of kindness done by him during the campaign. "There was one thing about him," said one, "which made us love him. If there was any comfort which the men were deprived of he would never indulge in it himself. For instance, if we were in a place where we could not erect our tents he would never have his tent erected, but would lie out with the rest of us." Another said: "He was always in front of us when leading to a charge. It was always 'Come on, boys, and never 'go on.' He always carried his revolver in one hand and his hat in the other when leading us on. He would often say, 'Well done boys, I am proud of you," as the rebels would be forced to abandon one rifle pit for another farther back. Several said that the Colonel was a splendid shot. One day seeing three or four Halfbreeds trying to make cover, and firing as they ran, the Colonel borrowed a rifle from a private near by, and after taking a quick but steady aim, dropped his man.

Bridgenorth.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Last Wednesday a sporting party from Peterborough, accompanied by Mr. T. Fitzgerald, went for a few days' fishing to Bobcaygeon, but without success. They then returned to Bridgenorth, where a 'bus was ordered from Peterborough to convey them to Burleigh. While waiting for the arrival of the 'bus they engaged target and pigeon shooting. After several successful shots Mr. Fitzgerald, not content with this, observed a bee on the building close by and intended to draw a bead on him. He stood back about twenty feet, replaced a cartridge in his rifle, took a deadly aim, and down came Mr. bee, amid the shouts and applause of well done. This is allowed to be good shooting. When the 'bus arrived they set off for Burleigh Falls. We hope to see them return with more game than they did from Bobcaygeon.

Prof. Verey gave a grand exhibition of his moving panorama last Thursday and Friday nights, 16th and 17th instant. The scenes were really instructive and beautiful; also Mr. Verey's running commentary as the grand scenes passed before the eyes of the audience, which are calculated to afford valuable information. The hall was well filled with spectators both nights. He is now taking his last tour through the country, after spending over a week in this place; he will proceed by way of Lakefield.

The proposed regatta will take place on the 6th of August. A large number of entries have already been made.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Berry picking of all sorts seems to be the principal employment of the youngsters, and some oldsters too, this week.

The clover crop is almost a failure, owing to an insect which some pronunce to be the weevil, destroying the head before it blossoms.

The Presbyterian pulpit in this place and Westwood was occupied last Sabbath by a young student of Knox College, Mr. Hunt, who is also mathematical master in the Agricultural College, Guelph. He is extremely talented, and was well appreciated by all who heard him. He will conduct the services next Sabbath also.

The Church of England has opened service in the town hall here, and there will be regular preaching every two weeks, at three p. m. Two services have already been conducted by the Rev. Mr. Softley, incumbent of Greystock, and he will hold another on the 2nd of August, (D. V.)

To-day (Wednesday) at six p.m. a garden party is to be held in the grounds of Mr. Kenneth Mark, teacher, for the purpose of tendering a "welcome home" to the volunteers who so bravely took their lives in their hands and dared perils of war, wind and wave to keep peace within our borders. There is some talk of a local testimonial of more solid character to each of the "boys," but we have not learned the decision arrived at by those holding the funds.

A little girl, aged six years, daughter of Sylvester Fife, of this township, met with a bad accident on Saturday last, 18th instant. She was sitting on a horse that had been led to the barn, and, just as she was sliding down, the horse kicked forward and struck the little one half way between the knee and the hip, breaking the leg, but not otherwise injuring her. The flesh was not cut, and the break was a straight one, so she will probably be on her feet again soon.

Mrs. Geo. Burkell, widow, mother of Mrs. John Frost, also had an accident this week. Sitting in a large folding chair, and noticing it beginning to give way at one side, she placed her hand beneath it to save herself from falling, and her finger caught between the bars and was severed below the first joint—a singular cutting instrument.

Mrs. J. B. Fife, who has been so long ill, we are glad to say, is recovering, though slowly.

The date of the Union pic-nic of the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday Schools is still a matter of conjecture, owing to the difficulty of procuring proper steamer conveyance. The bar at the mouth of the river prevents the screw propellers from going out with a load, and the side-wheel vessels are hard to get.

The sudden death of Mr. J. A. Butterfield, of Norwood, who has so long and honorably occupied the positions of Clerk of the Court and Postmaster in that place, has given a shock to all who heard it. He was well known in this section, and all regret him deeply. He is to be buried to-day, with Masonic honors.

The Lives of Parliaments.

The Ottawa Free Press compiles the following table, that shows at a glance the comparative duration of parliaments since Confederation:

The first session after Confederation was a dual session with an interval of nearly three months—the interval is of course not included as a part of the session. The session of 1873 was the Pacific Scandal session, and the House adjourned from May 20 till August 13, when it was immediately prorogued against the protest of the Liberal members. In 1880-81, the Pacific contract session, there was a fortnight's adjournment for Christmas, which adjournment is deducted from the actual duration of the session. With these explanations and the note that the brief Easter holidays have been included in all cases as parts of the session, the basis of the calculation is clear. On this basis it appears that Parliament has sat continuously later this year than ever before—the nearest date being prorogation on June 22 in 1869. The dual session at confederation lasted 116 days with a recess of three months not included in these figures; but the present has lasted 172 days without any considerable recess—the Easter holidays were even restricted. The session has been really twice the average length of sessions since confederation. From an Ottawa point of view this is a great recommendation!

Dominion Doings.

The abattoirs at Montreal, which cost $300,000 to build, have been handed over to the city for $70,000.

Wm. Arnott, a young farmer belonging to Rawdon, near Montreal, has been arrested in Newport, Me., and taken to Montreal on a charge of poisoning his mother, a widow, to get the farm left to her for life by the father of the prisoner. He fled across the border at the time of his mother's death, three years ago.

The Central Prison investigation was recommenced in Toronto Tuesday. The first charge, that of giving diseased meat to prisoners was called, but no witnesses appeared.

D. McNamara, a Hamilton hotel-keeper, has disappeared, leaving large unpaid bills.

Mrs. Mann, wife of Indian Instructor Mann, of Fort Pitt, arrived in Lindsay Tuesday with her three daughters. They were prisoners of Big Bear.

Sing, the sewing machine fraud, who swindled the Wanzer Co., has cleared out from Montreal.

Evidence in the case of Mary Power, whose release is sought from Longue Point asylum, goes to show that the woman is not insane.

A Toronto street car conductor was "spotted" Tuesday robbing the fare box.

Belgian, French and German newspapers have praised the Canadian exhibit at Antwerp.

A two storey rough cast house on Dundas street, Toronto, fell Wednesday, burying Jas. Jenkins in the ruins.

Another Secret Out.

A Vassar graduate, being out in the country, went into the stable of a farm house.

"Dear me, how close the poor cows are crowded together," she remarked.

"Yes, mum; but we have to do that."

"Why so?"

"So they will give condensed milk."

One Thing a Woman Can't Do.

Woman, God bless her bright eyes, can make roses blossom in the desert, and when so minded she can give to the most commonplaced affairs of life rather much of a rainbow look, but to save her eyebrows she can't use a pen without getting ink on her fingers any more than she can remember the day of the month.

Destructive Fire at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 20. Late to-night three successive alarms turned on from the southwestern part of the city heralded a fire which according to the latest estimates, has destroyed upwards of $300,000 worth of property. It was nearly 11 o'clock when the buildings of Wells & French's Car and Bridge Company were discovered to be on fire. At midnight the several buildings, together with contents, were a total loss

Suiting the Words to the Action.

A New York Sunday School teacher told her pupils that when they put their pennies into the contribution box she wanted each one to repeat a Bible verse suitable for the occasion. The first boy dropped in his cent, saying, "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." The next boy dropped his penny into the box, saying, "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." The third and youngest boy dropped in his penny, saying, "A fool and his money are soon parted."

Suspicious Solicitude.

The following from the Independent Toronto Telegram, hits the situation exactly:—

"The Conservative organs are saying that Mr. Blake has failed as a leader, and that under him the Liberal party will never emerge from the cold shades of Opposition. It is rather odd to see Conservatives worrying over Mr. Blake's misfortunes, but this is a world of oddities, and people often worry about things that are of no earthly concern to them. In the case of the Conservatives it is hardly likely that they are wildly anxious to have Sir John turned out of office for the sake of seeing Mr. Blake taken in, and yet they are just as much worried by Mr. Blake's failure as if instead of being the leader of their opponents he was the leader of themselves. In their hearts they know that Mr. Blake is not the failure they represent him to be. Their object in saying he is a failure is simply to discredit him in the eyes of his country. At Ottawa Mr. Blake is looked upon by every body as the coming man. He is not forging ahead by spurts, but is moving steadily in the direction of the treasury benches and all eyes are turning towards him. He and Sir John Macdonald represent the rising and the setting suns of Canadian politics. All the Tory talk about Blake being a failure is simply the beating of the tom-toms to dishearten the enemy.

Died in Jail.

An inmate of the county jail named George Carlisle, died last night in his cell. The formal inquest took place this afternoon.

Boys for Hazel Brae.

A party of 120 boys for the Hazel Brae branch of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, sailed on the 10th, and are expected to arrive here on Monday.

Sunday School Excursion.

The Sabbath School of the Mark street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, holds its annual pic-nic to-morrow at Mud Lake. Preparations are being made for a pleasant time. Busses leave the church at 9.30 a.m. Charges: adults, 25c.; children, 10c.

One by One they Go.

We forgot to notice the marriage of Mr. John Sargent, eldest son of Samuel Sargent, Esq., Otonabee, to Miss Mary L. Armstrong, which happy event took place some time ago. We extend to the happy couple our best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Sargent, we understand, have settled on their new farm in Cavan.

There is scarcely a symptom belonging to chronic complaints but that is common to the poor dyspeptic, and he often feels as if he had every disease in the catalogue. Burdock Blood Bitters cures the worst form of Chronic Dyspepsia. 29-26

THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC.

Recent despatches from Madrid show that the cholera in Spain is gradually spreading. Day after day some new cases are reported in cities hitherto free from its ravages. In the eight provinces along the Mediterranean, fifty-one towns are suffering from the terrible scourge.

Still the disease is not spreading with that rapidity which characterized previous attacks of this worst of epidemics. This is no doubt due to the better observance of the laws bearing on sanitary affiairs. The Spanish cities are in a much better condition in this respect than they have been, when the plague formerly visited the country. In Madrid, particularly, the efforts made to keep the city pure and clean are productive of excellent results. All cows and donkeys are driven out of the city limits. Fires are kept burning in the worst streets during the night. The sewers are constantly sprinkled with lime. Hitherto the capital has been free from the plague, but many of the inhabitants are leaving in terror. Twelve thousand left during one week.

The city of Murcia seems to suffer most. It is in fact the very centre of cholera infection at present. The disease found its way in by the river, and the water has infected the whole town. Business has been suspended to a very great extent, and a general exodus of all persons able to leave has taken place. Most absurd and curious laws prevail in the city. One enactment proposes to fine all persons leaving from terror, for the benefit of the sanitary fund! It is expected that great difficulty will be met in securing the attendance of delegates at the provincial congress. The Governor proposes to inflict a heavy fine on all who refuse to attend.

Great difference of opinion exists regarding the new method of inoculation against cholera, which was discovered by Dr. Ferran. It is said that over 13,000 persons in all have been inoculated with the cholera microbe. At Valencia, however, Ferran's plan has not been satisfactory. An asylum is established there in which about eighty Sisters of the Poor labor with great devotion and assiduity. When Ferran visited the place the cholera was raging in the asylum and several of the sisters had fallen victims to it. Forty-seven of those remaining were inoculated and since then these have all died.

The doctor, however, urges that many of his patients who have died fell victims to disease acquired previous to inoculation. His experiments, he claims, show that at Alcira, where the population was estimated at about 18,000, and where about 9,000 were inoculated, the results were most gratifying. The deaths, he said, were in the ratio of 10 to 120 among these and among persons who would not accept this specific remedy. Where his system has been thoroughly tried it is claimed that the method saved the life of 19 out of every 20 who submitted to inoculation.

It is greatly to be desired that the Government may adopt such stringent measures as will show whether the proposed remedy is effectual or not. So far the results are by no means satisfactory. Indeed it is thought that Ferran, instead of being considered the greatest benefactor of his age, is an ignorant pretender and quack. We hope, for the sake of suffering humanity, that such a thorough investigation will now be made in Spain as regards inoculation with graduated virus, that no possible doubt will remain in the minds of scientists and physicians in reference to its value as a preventive against cholera. So far as our own country is concerned we do not consider Canada is in any danger from the epidemic at present. Another year the tale may be a different one, and it is for this, among other reasons, we trust strenuous efforts will be made to prove whether cholera inoculation is really effective as a remedy or not.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

U. S. Crop Prospects.

According to the latest reports of the Department of Agriculture at Washington there has been no improvement in the prospects of the winter wheat crop, but rather the reverse. In some States the harvest has been a total failure and in others a great damage has been done by the rains. Michigan is the only State that will harvest a full crop. As to the spring wheat crop it is now approaching its most critical stage. The area is somewhat less than last year, and while giving unusual promise, in some sections it is reported thin, and weedy in others. With favorable weather till harvested it would make a good crop. Outside of winter wheat the crop outlook is encouraging.

The "Protection" Humbug.

The pluckiest man who ever failed to see the signs of the times and fought against fate is Mr. John Roach, who, in his old age, has had to succumb to a principle in which he was an earnest believer. He could not believe but that protection was a panacea for all commercial ills, even for a nation's shipping trade, and he went on gallantly building ships and making efforts to sail them after the whole mercantile marine of his country had disappeared from the sea. What a difference between him and that shrewd seaking, Commodore Vanderbilt, who owned one of the largest fleets that was anywhere possessed in private hands, but who, when the Morrill tariff passed, took immediate steps to dispose of all his ocean tonnage and invest his means in railways. If we have men still in Canada who are fighting Mr. John Roach's fight over again they will find that protection succeeds best in one thing, and that is in driving the shipping of the country from the seas.—Witness.

Central Prison Commission.

The Inquiry Commenced—Another Week Allowed to Make Charges.

Judge Sinclair of Hamilton. J. W. Langmuir and D. A. O'Sullivan of Toronto, took their seats in the assize court-room of the Adelaide street tombs at 3.25 Monday afternoon as commissioners to enquire into the charges against Warden Massie and the general management of the Central prison.

The commission proceeded with the first item, viz.: the charges against the warden. There are twelve in number, and comprise improper punishment, cruelty, favoritism, giving the convicts diseased meat to eat, unjustifiable flogging, etc. Mr. Irving wanted to know if the list was complete. Mr. Murphy replied in the negative. Mr. Idington contended that it would be unfair to his client to proceed until all the charges were formulated; he also thought they should be more specific. A long and desultory talk ensued, the result being that the investigation was postponed until Monday, July 27. In the meantime the convicts will be afforded an opportunity to put in writing what complaints, if any, they have against the warden, Mr. Massie, and Mr. Murphy, undertaker, and to have their complete list of charges in by Saturday.

A Voice From the North

Respecting the Coe Hill Iron Mines.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—I went to see the iron mine at Coe Hill on the 11th of July, the mine is about 20 miles from Apsley. The Chandos road is very good, but there are a lot of hills on it. Crops look good all along the 12th concession of Chandos. But when I got into the township of Wollaston, the road is very bad. For three miles from Mr. McKee's saw mill to Mr. Shorts saw mill, there is only one settler between the two mills, the land is rough and hilly but all hard-wood except swamps and swales. The land at the mine is timbered with hard-wood, but it is very sandy. When I passed Mr. Short's saw mill I came into a very nice country. I came to a fine store kept by Messrs. Walsh & Bro. They sell thousands of dollars worth of goods every year, Mr. Walsh was making great preparations for the Orangemen, he expected them on Monday, the 13th; he had killed a beef, and a hog and 6 sheep; he had six women baking. He built a house 70 feet long, with tables in it for dinner; he had an arch made with evergreens, and two flags on it. On Monday he sold 600 tickets for dinner. I heard that the was as big as Lakefield, but, to my surprise, I saw only about 20 houses there; but most of them are very fine double houses.

VILLAGE OF COE HILL

The Central Ontario Railroad comes into Coe Hill Mine. Trains bring in passengers and store goods and carry away iron ore. They are shipping off 10,000 tons of No. 1 ore. The greater part of the ore from the Coe Hill mine has been shipped to Cleveland, Ohio. This ore was there tested as to its suitability for the manufacture of steel rails. The test made proved it so satisfactory for this purpose that a considerable quantity of the ore sold was placed to this use. One establishment used it for making crucible steel, which is the higher grade of steel for making cutlery.

DEVELOPEMENTS OF THE COE HILL MINE.

The excavations already made on the surface of this deposit are a thousand feet long and from twenty to sixty feet wide. There are now three shafts on the vein. No. 1 shaft is seventy feet deep, and is opened eighteen feet wide at the bottom from the hanging wall. There looks to be any amount of the very best ore in it. Every thing taken out of this shaft has been ore of the very best quality, not a single load of rock has been separated from it. No. 2 shaft is 105 feet deep, and is developed by means of drifts or tunnels in each end of the shaft. This shaft is located 500 feet from No. 1 and shows a width of sixty-five feet of ore. They tested this part of the property with the diamond drill to the depth of 240 feet before sinking the shaft, and got at that depth sixty-five feet of ore.

Number three shaft is ninety-three feet deep, and is also developed by means of drifts east and west of the main or hoisting shaft, with pillars in each end of the shaft the same as number one and two. Tumber three is situated 400 feet from number two shaft.

The company has now a 24 by 36 inch cylinder engine. The engine is 270 horse power, and there are two new steel boilers 312 inches long by 54 inches in diameter. The drums are supplied with 1⅛ inch steel wire rope. At the end of this rope is an iron skip or tram car, which holds 4,500 pounds of iron ore.

The engine and boiler houses are connected, the former being 62 by 34, and the latter 51 by 21 feet. These were erected by Messrs. Rathbun & Sons, of Deseronto. Messrs. Coe have spent over $94,000 on this mine. If our Government would give them a bonus to put up smelting works it would help this section of country.

I will write you about Chandos mine next.

Yours truly,
JOHN YOUNG.

How He Was Hurt.

"Poor fellow! poor fellow!" murmured a sympathising old lady at the Broad Street Station, as the form of a man all wrapped in bandages was born in a litter from an incoming train to an ambulance. "Poor fellow! He seems to be very much hurt. Do you know how it happened?"

"No, mum," answered a polite station hand.

"Maybe it was a collision," suggested the old lady.

"There has been no collision on the road that I know of was the reply.

"Could he have been run over?"

"He is not hurt enough for that."

"True. His limbs seem all right. The hurts seem to have come from bruises or blows," added the old lady.

"Yes, mum. Looks like it."

"But can't you guess how it happened?"

"I don't know, mum, unless he tried to take up a presidential vote."—Philadelphia Call.

Noah's Ark.

Some years ago I met in Egypt Mr. Garvy, then, and probably still, an engineer of high position in the service of the Egyptian government, and who distinguished himself during the late war by his heroic efforts to aid the English residents to embark in the vessels sent for them. He had previously for many years been in the service of the Russian government, and had been sent to the neighborhood of Mount Ararat for some object which I now forget. But I recollect, as likely many other's do who had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Garvy, hearing him mention that, prompted by curiosity, he had ascended the summit of the mount and remained for some days on a visit at the monastery that was then there; that the monks stated to him that the roof of the apartment assigned to him, and I think some others, was composed of the ribs of the Ark. Mr. Garvy said that he examined the structure very closely and that it bore all the appearance of the roof being supported by the ribs of a vessel, and the wood appeared very old. He also said that a few years after his visit the monastery was destroyed by an earthquake, and that he never heard what had become of the alleged ribs of the Ark. I do not profess to believe that part of the Ark was incorporated into the monastery. I merely tell the tale as it was told to me—so, I am sure, too, did Mr Garvy—so, too, probably, did the monks, who, no doubt, got the story from their predecessors.—London News.

Food Fishes of Lake Erie.

In a paper read before the Buffalo Naturalists' Field Club it is stated that Lake Erie and the Niagara River furnish thirty-seven marketable varieties of fish. But their numbers are becoming rapidly reduced in those waters, owing in great measure to so many fish being taken when they are full of roe. Some fish spawn late in the fall; the eastern salmon, salmon-trout, whitefish, brook-trout and lake-herring belong to this class, but the majority spawn in April, May or early June. Black bass choose a place for their spawn-beds where the water is shallow and the bottom is sandy gravel. They leave their winter quarters in deep water a month or six weeks previous to spawning. The eggs hatch in from one to two weeks, according to the temperature. Bass are very prolific, yielding fully one-fourth their weight of spawn. The bass and the muskallonge are the recognized game-fish of the lakes. Whitefish do not take the bait readily, but are caught in gill-nets, and can be taken in great numbers just at the time they are ready to spawn. They average three and a half pounds in weight, though some are taken weighing ten to eighteen pounds. Sturgeon average fifty pounds, but occasionally one is caught that weighs a hundred pounds or over. Fish differ greatly in rapidity of growth. Some grow in one, two or three years to a definite size, and then growth seems to be arrested. Such fish are short-lived. Other kinds, which slowly and steadily increase in size, attain a great age. Pike have been known to be over a hundred years old.

Rich By Falsehood.

Whatever prejudice may be popularly felt in this country against very rich men relates not so much to the fact of being rich, but as to the probable means by which it is acquired. A man who succeeds by being able to look farther ahead than other people, and to calculate cause and effect in trade, as real statesmen do in politics, is a natural financier and is respected. Such a man may work no harder to gain a fortune than thousands who are trying about him and yet fail, nor does he necessarily compromise his chances for eternal happiness by success. He simply follows a natural bent, and if success does not deprave his manhood, he is all right. But there are rich financiers of quite another class, and unfortunately so many of them as to almost give character to the whole fraternity of rich men. They are those who, with a good deal of financiering talent, have also very unscrupulous moral natures at the outset. We do not refer to those who openly and without disguise break the laws of the land, but, instead, the class next below them, who nominally respect the civil law, but break any moral law at any moment when the act promises profit. The first considerable success of a now famous millionaire is said to have been in his management of a certain railroad as its superintendent. He secretly depressed the stock, partly by neglect of the road-bed and rolling stock, and partly by falsehoods about its condition, and, when it had dropped enough to meet his then resources, with a few hundred thousand which he had scraped together, bought a majority of the stock. Then he worked it up and sold out.

That one step outlines not only his policy, but that of a great mass of men who are getting rich through stock speculations. Their one great business qualification is falsehood. They practice this so much that they eventually look upon it as a legitimate business weapon. How much harm may be done to others is not a matter of the slightest moment. How much harm it may do to either the material or moral interests of the country at large is also a matter not to be considered. Their business is to get rich if they can, and "others must look out for themselves."—Philadelphia Press

CHAPTER II.

DRUNK OR DREAMING.

The hands pinning me down did not for an instant relax their grasp; yet they might safely have done so. Situated as I was I felt that my only chance of life was to lie still and convince, if I could, the persons in that room of the truth of my assertion. Nothing could be gained, but everything would be lost by resistance. I was strong, but, even if all the senses had been mine, I doubted if I could compete successfully with the man who held me down. I could feel the nervous power of his hands and arms. Certainly, now that I was blind and helpless, the struggle would be a short one. Besides he had companions, how many I knew not, ready to help him. The first movement I made would be the end of everything so far as I was concerned.

I made no further attempt to rise, but lay as still and unresisting as the prostrate form across which I had fallen. Every moment seemed an hour!

Think of my situation. A blind man in a strange room in a strange house—held down on the body of a man whose last groan he had just heard—held down and at the mercy of those who it was certain had just taken part in a black and cowardly crime! Unable to look into the faces of the murderers around him and learn whether their looks meant life or death to him! Expecting every moment to feel the sharp stab of a knife or the fiery sting of a bullet! Seeing nothing and feeling nothing save the hands upon his throat and the dead body beneath him! Even hearing nothing save that stifled moaning in the distance! Can the wildest flights of fiction show a parallel to my case?

Since that night I have quite disbelieved in the possibility of people's hair turning suddenly gray. If such a thing can be I must have left that room with the locks of an old man.

I can only say that even now as, after the lapse of years, I write this; even as I see everything around me safe, still and at peace; even though I know the ones I love are close at hand, my pen trembles, my blood feels chilled and a faintness steals over me as the recollection of the most terrible moments in my life comes to me with a vividness I cannot describe.

It was well for me that I could keep still and cry again and gain "I am blind—look and see!" My quiescence, the tone of my voice, may have turned the balance on which my life hung—may have carried conviction to my hearers. Presently the strong light of a lamp was perceptible to my obscured vision; a lamp placed so close to me that I could feel its hot glow upon my face; and I was aware that some one was stooping or kneeling down and peering into my eyes. His breath struck against my cheek; a short quick excited breath—how could it be otherwise after the deed in which he had just taken part?

At last he rose; a moment afterward the restraining hands moved from me, and then, for the first time, I began to hope that my life might be spared.

As yet none of those around me had spoken. Now I heard voices; but whispering so softly that even my sharpened ears could not catch the purport of a single word, although I could gather that three persons at least were engaged in that hushed consultation.

All the while, like a dreary and fitting accompaniment, I could hear that stifled moaning—a woman's moaning. I would have given all I possessed—all save life—in exchange for a minute's sight, that I might have been able to comprehend what had passed and what was passing around me.

Still the whispers continued. They came thick and fast, running into and interrupting each other, as from men in hot but guarded discussion. It needed little intelligence to guess the subject of that debate! Presently they died away altogether, and, for a time, the only sound I heard was that terrible, muffled moan—that continued with a dreary monotony.

A foot touched me.

"You may stand up," I heard some one say.

When I burst so recklessly into the room I fancied the exclamation with which I was greeted came from foreign lips, but the man who now addressed me spoke in pure English. By this time I was beginning to recover self-possession, and was able to make a mental note of these facts.

Thankful at being allowed to quit my ghastly couch, I rose. As I could think of nothing better to do, I stood motionless.

"Walk this way—straight on—four paces," said the voice. I obeyed. The third step brought me in collision with the wall. No doubt this was an extra test as to the truth of my statement.

A hand was placed upon my shoulder, and I was guided to a chair.

"Now, sir," said the speaker who had before addressed me, "tell us, in as few words as possible, who you are—how and why you came here. Be quick, we have no time to spare."

I well knew they had no time to spare. They had much to do—much to hide. Oh, for the gift of sight for one moment! I would purchase it, even if the price were years of darkness!

Shortly and simply as I could, I told them what had brought me into such straits. The only thing I concealed was my true name. Why should these assassins know it? If I revealed it they might set a watch upon me, and at any moment their safety demanded it I might share the fate of him who lay within a few feet of my chair. So I gave a fictitious name, but everything else I told them was true.

All the while I was speaking I heard that distressing sound at the other end of the room. It drove me nearly mad. I believe, could I have made sure of reaching through my darkness and catching one of those men by the throat, with the certainty of crushing life out of him, I should have done so, even had such an act sealed my own fate.

When my explanation was over another whispered consultation took place. Then the spokesman demanded the key which had so nearly cost me my life. I suppose they tried it and found it acted as I said. It was not returned to me, but I heard the voice once more.

"Fortunately for you we have decided to believe your tale. Stand up." I did so and was led to another part of the room, and again placed in a chair. As, after the manner of the blind, I stretched out my hands, I found I was in a corner of the room, my face turned to the angle of the walls.

"If you move or look round," said the voice, "our belief in your blindness will vanish."

It was impossible to misunderstand the grim threat conveyed by the last words. I could only sit quiet and listen with all my ears.

Yes, they had much to do. They moved about busily and rapidly. I heard cupboards and drawers opened. I detected the sound of papers being torn and the smell of papers burning. I heard them raise some dead weight from the floor—heard a sound as of rent cloth and linen—heard the jingle of money, even the tick of a watch as it was drawn forth from somewhere and laid on the table near me. Then I felt a breath of air and knew that the door had been opened. I heard heavy footsteps on the stairs—the steps of men bearing a weighty burden, and I shuddered as I thought what that burden must be.

[To be Continued.]

Five Thousand Tortoises.

In the back yard of the house next door but one to my abode there are stored at the present time no less than nineteen casks full of tortoises. This morning complaint was made to me of the smell they were making, and accordingly I examined the casks. One had been opened and I removed the head and looked inside. The cask was simply full of tortoises thrown in anyhow. One poor creature at the top had its shell crushed in, which speaks volumes about what they must have undergone. And the smell—well, we are used to smells here in the East End, and do not mind them very much, but the smell of these poor creatures was too much for even our practiced nostrils; many of the tortoises had evidently died, some of them perhaps long ago. Now these casks were brought into the yard last Tuesday, and no attempt has been made even to sort out the living from the dead. From a rough calculation, I should say that there were at least 5,000 tortoises packed into the nineteen casks. The owner does not reside upon the premises; but he rents the house and lets it out to tenants, and every year about this time uses the yard to store tortoises in. Thus he is himself free from the nuisance they cause. I have complained to the medical officer, and the result will doubtless be that the casks will be removed, and, as far as we are concerned, the nuisance will be at an end. The tortoises will undoubtedly be taken to another yard, and then as they are wanted each cask will be unpacked and the contents exposed for sale upon the costermonger's carts. The casks ought to be unpacked at once and the contents sorted, the dying dispatched without delay, and the living at least allowed some place where they can stretch their legs.—Letter to London Standard.

DIAMONDS IN THE GUTTER.

A little girl sat on a doorstep, watching the rain-drops as they splashed in the puddles, stopping to count them in her misery, for she had nothing to do, nothing to think of, and nothing to hope for.

Her clothes were shabby, her arms were scarcely more than skin and bone and her large wistful eyes seemed big enough to swallow up the rest of her face. Poverty was stamped on every childish feature, and their beauty had been driven away by that harsh fiend, starvation.

The door behind her opened, and a man with a red beard came out, nearly stumbled over her, and gave her a curse instead of an apology; then he went his way down the watery pavement, stepping into every puddle he came across, as if he were in too great a rage to see them.

Lottie Smith watched him, and said to herself:

"My! how he'll spoil his shoe-leather!"

Then he passed out of sight, and she drew her tattered shawl round her with a shiver, for the street seemed to have grown darker and colder than it was before.

Presently a window behind her opened, and something flashed down like a falling star on to the pavement.

In an instant Lottie jumped up and secured the prize, holding it up to the light of the lamp-post in her dirty fingers.

It was a diamond ring.

She had never seen such a thing in her life, and she thought the beautiful jewel flashing radiantly in the gas-light was a star fallen from its place in the sky.

"Poor 'ickle 'tar," she said, wiping it with the corner of her shawl, "me can't take 'on back just yet, but me goin' afore long, doctor says, and then me take 'ou with me."

Holding it tight in her little bony fingers, she dragged her tired feet down one dirty street after another; out there was a new light in her eyes, as if a small hope had risen up in the darkness because of the star in her hand.

Another gentleman came to the door-step on which she had been sitting, and being admitted after a resounding knock, made his way unannounced to the drawing-room.

"Sir Felix has been here again, Marion," he said angrily. "Don't deny it, for he told me so himself."

"I sha'n't deny it, because it is true," and Marion Dearsley rose slowly from the sofa. "If you wish me to say 'Not at home' to every man but yourself, I must tell you that I can't do it."

"Do you ever do anything to please me?" in bitter resentment.

"Yes, but I sha'n't for the future, now that I know——"

"You know what?" looking at her in surprise.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

The Great Bicycle Race.

The public should bear in mind that the bicycle race between Kent of Newcastle, and Gibson of Peterborough, on the P. A, A. A. grounds on Friday evening next, will be one well worth seeing. Gibson is known here to be a fast rider with good staying power and as Kent is claimed to be a good match, the race will be an exciting and interesting one.

Scott Act.

As the House of Commons has prorogued without action being taken on the amendments of the Scott Act the promoters of the Act in Peterborough intend bringing on the vote now as soon as possible, which will probably be in September. Accident to a Lakefield Man.

On Monday morning, while Mr. George Tanner was returning from the country, where he had been on business, in coming down hill the waggon tug became unhitched, at which the horse took fright and started on a run, and endeavoring to stop him by drawing him into the fence a large stone was struck, which precipitated Mr. Tanner in the road before the waggon, which, passing over him, he received injuries about the head and back, which, although serious, he may recover from.

Chance for an Easy Shave.

We have great pleasure in advising all and every one in need of good razors to go to Stethem's hardware store for them. He has just received a splendid lot of the celebrated Clarke's Nova razors, which have the name, among the barbers of the large cities of the United States, of being the best tempered and the best ground razors now made in the world, and Mr. Stethem tells us that he can sell them cheaper than they can be had from New York or Boston, and that he can give the same warrantee, he being the sole agent in Canada.

A Chance for Photographers.

The work of building the new spire of St. Peter's Cathedral is going on rapidly and from the point where the workmen's scaffold has reached a splendid view of the town is obtained. Some with nerve enough to make the ascent have been richly rewarded by the magnificent view of town and country spread out before them. To the south rise the blue hills of South Monaghan, the spires of Millbrook showing plainly. Even Rice Lake can be discerned on a clear day. Some enterprising photographer should seize the opportunity to take a series of views which can be secured in no other way. When the scaffolding is removed and the spire finished the chance will be gone. Mr. Carveth, the contractor, admires the magnificent views he enjoys every day and will, no doubt, give every facility and assistance to any enterprising photographer who may desire to secure a splendid series of rare and magnificent views.

Foresters' Excursion.

The Lacrosse Match.—A Victory for the Mets.

The C. O. F. held their annual excursion this year to Ottawa. Ten coaches left the O. & Q. depot at 7.20 a.m., comfortably filled with pleasure seekers. Owing to an unavoidable delay at the famous sink hole, the excursionists did not arrive at Ottawa until about 4 p.m. The main event of the day was the lacrosse contest between the Mets and the Peterboroughs. As soon as our boys arrived at the hotel they immediately set out to the lacrosse grounds, where, after unnecessary delay on the part of the Mets, the game began at 5.15. The field was by no means propitious for the Peterborough's, being covered with weeds and high grass, which had the effect of losing the ball frequently and facing was the order of the day. Kelly secured the ball on the face and after some skillful manouvering passed it to Sheehy who dropped it to the home men, but the Mets secured it and worked it back to the Peterborough goals where some effective defence work was put in by Hall and Tierney assisted by [illegible] rubber fluttered for a time around centre where Henderson, Halpin and Kelly struggled vigorously to keep it in the neighbourhood of the Mets goals. The ball, however, was once more forced up to the home goal and after much resistence it was finally passed through; time 20 minutes. The second game was merely a repetition of the first in point of play, and after a series of facings, bad plays and scrimmages the game was scored by the Mets, time 25 minutes. The third game was a continuous and fierce strife for victory by the home team, Cameron especially, although it was his first match, showed some fine play. On the part of the Ottawas, Kent, Devine and Grant did some effective work, by their brilliant and scientific play. The Mets again secured game after a vigorous struggle, thus winning the match in three straight games. It must be remembered that the Peterborough players were heavily handicapped. Rising early in the morning, riding cramped in railway coaches for between eight and nine hours, and going at once to a lacrosse field, miserably rough and uneven, and playing against perfectly fresh men, it is a wonder that they succeeded in making the Mets fight so hard as they had to do to secure their games.

The lacrosse players started home on the regular train at eleven o'clock and arrived home about six o'clock this morning. The other excursionists who did come, several remaining in the city, left Ottawa on a special train at 9 o'clock and got home at an early hour this morning.

Personal.

M. Flannigan, Esq., City Clerk of Kingston, who is in town visiting his son-in-law, Dr. O'Sullivan, gave us a call to-day. Mr. Flannigan and the Mayor were delegates to the funeral of the late Col. Williams.

A Cow Crusade Needed.

A justly indignant citizen writes as follows:—"It is really too bad that the cow by-law is not rigidly enforced. Cows, horses, geese and a donkey may be seen almost at any time of day and any of our citizens strolling about of an evening, or later, may see quadrupeds at large. There are cows turned out at night by parties who should know better, and it would be well for the police to take a walk up around the district not five miles from the Court House, and also in that region not five miles from—say St. Peter's Cathedral, and they will be almost sure of bagging some game. Poor encouragement for citizens to improve their premises, and the Horticultural Society in what they are doing at Court House Park."

The Kaladar Sink-Hole.

The trip to the Capital would have been most delightful yesterday had it not been for the unavoidable detention occasioned by the Kaladar Sink-hole. The necessary transference of the excursionists was not very pleasant, especially on the return at the small hour of 2 o'clock. The troublesome spot is about three miles west of Sharbot Lake, and a few days ago showed such signs of sinkage that it was deemed advisable to suspend freight traffic for a short time. After the gap being filled traffic was again resumed but on Monday, unfortunately, the ground gave way on each side of the recently repaired portion, and since that time freight has been suspended once more and passengers have been obliged to make a change on the arrival of the train at the place. An obliging corps of officials are on the spot, however, and the delay, by their efforts, is made as little vexatious as possible.

The Cherub's Enquiry.

Children's ideas of usefulness in this world are primitive, to say the least. A Boston editor has a five-year-old boy who has pronounced views on this subject. He said the other day at the table :

"Papa, I wish you were a bakeshop man!"

"Why, my boy?"

"Because then you could bring home cakes and things, an' we could go in and get cookies when we wanted to. Or if you were a meat man, or a grocery man, or a carpenter and made nice things, or a blacksmithshop man—that would be awful fun. Say, papa, is it any good what you do.

A Considerate Colored Man.

He tapped the egg gently with his knife, and it popped, and people all over the house began to examine the gas fixtures to see if the gas was properly turned off.

"This egg doesn't seem to be quite fresh," remarked Gilhooly, having opened the window.

"I spected dat egg wasn't all right," remarked the colored waiter.

"Why then did'nt you tell me so?" exclaimed Gilhooly.

"Bekase, sah, I wasn't quite sure ob hit, and I'se always willing to gib a gemman de benefit of de doubt."

"But you told me the egg was perfectly fresh; that it was laid yesterday."

"I told yer dat bekase I didn't want to be too previous-like in spiling yer appetite."

The Salary Grab and its Opposite.

Forty dollars each for a Volunteer who has carried his life in his hands for four months in the service of his country!

Twenty-two and a half cents a day to the widow of a Volunteer whose life has been laid down for his country!

Five hundred dollars extra to the traitors at Ottawa who have been selling their country and disgracing Volunteering!

Five hundred dollars extra for Senators who have done absolutely nothing, and have been absent from Ottawa nearly all session! —Globe.

An Awful Big Price.

Two "mourners" were returning from a funeral at a very fashionable cemetery.

"Dr. Intone reads the service beautifully," said one.

"Don't he?" said the other. "Do you remember how impressively he uttered the words 'O death, where is thy sting, O grave, where is thy victory?'"

"Yes, very beautiful. How much do those lots there cost?"

"I think they sell from $500 to $5,000.

"Gosh! It may be not much of a 'victory,' but it's an awful big price."

A Narrow Escape

When he had laid down his fork, swallowed the last of his coffee, and wiped off his chin with a red bordered napkin, he leaned back and said :

"Gentlemen, I wager two to one that New York Central makes a new issue of bonds within ninety days."

No one responded; but after he had gone a man at the foot of the table with a squeaky voice called out :

"Yes—h'm—yes! He said ninety days, and wouldn't take an hour off. If he'd made it eighty-nine days and a half I'd have pulled out $500 on him quicker'n lightning.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

HOME, SWEET HOME.

Company "G" gets Home from the Wars.

Enthusiastic Reception.

Grand Welcome to the Sun-Burned Veterans.

The Ladies Banquet the Boys.

The Mayor Presents the Golden Guerdon.

Complimentary Addresses.

The appearance which Peterborough presented yesterday, will live in the memory of the inhabitants of the town for many a day to come. At noon the merchants and other business men of the town began to make preparations, and at three o'clock in the afternoon, a piece of red, white or blue flannel, in fact any material of those colors could not be procured for love or for money. There was scarcely a building on George street that did not have those shades flying from the windows of nearly every story; and from many of the business places there were suspended across the streets hangings of different colors bearing suitable tokens of joy and gladness, such as "Welcome home brave boys," "God save the Queen," "Welcome home brave Defenders of our Dominion," Some of the private residences were not behind in adding to the decorations.

THE FIRST TOKENS

of welcome that greeted the returning veterans were in front of the residence of Mr. E. E. Henderson, an old volunteer, on Charlotte street, where evergreens were planted, bearing in flashing letters, the words, "Welcome Home Brave Boys." The principal, and at the same time, most attractive decoration on George street, was in front of the Bon Marche, the proprietor of which was one of the first to begin. R. W. Muncaster was not behind. From the second story of his building tri-coloured buntings were gracefully festooned from the windows, and the word "Welcome," shone out in letters of white on a crimson background. The Indian Queen, in front of George Rubidge's tobacco store, seemed to have forgiven the part that Company "G" took in subduing her compatriots in the Northwest, for she was observed above the heads of the people, on the outer edge of the sidewalk on George street, holding a flag and bearing other symbols of royal welcome.

THE GOLDEN LION,

evidently considering himself the representative of the British Lion, bore up majestically under the brilliant display of red, white and blue, which flaunted over his head. The show made by H. LeBrun and Giroux & Sullivan was most profuse. In front of the store of the former was suspended a hanging basket of flowers, decorated with ribbons, whilst the front of the latter store

WAS LITERALLY COVERED WITH FLAGS

of all nations. At the crossings of Simcoe and Hunter streets buntings were crossed diagonally by Messrs. T. Dolan & Co., W. Fairweather & Co., A. Mercer and T. Kelly, and a large streamer with the word "Welcome" was stretched from China Hall to the Burnham block. The effect produced by such displays was beautiful. The side streets were nicely trimmed, the store of J. Erskine displaying the prettiest decoration, the light shades which were hung out looked nice over the contrasting color with which the building has recently been painted. The whole scene was indeed beautiful to behold, from the corner of Charlotte street, as

BANNERS, BUNTINGS AND WAVING FLAGS,

and cheering mottos of welcome and approval, greeted the eye at frequent intervals. The beautiful perspective was closed by the huge "Welcome" suspended between streamers of red, white and blue extended from the Cox block to the EXAMINER office, and a similar motto extending from the post office block to the opposite building. In front of the residence of Dr. Kincaid, Surgeon of the 57th, who otherwise took an active part in the reception, were the words, "Welcome Home Brave Defenders of Our Country." It must not be forgotten that the representatives of the signal corps of the battalion, occupying the Canadian express and telegraph office, creditably added their quota to the reception, in the words on a streamer extending across their doorway, "Welcome to Our Comrades." It was announced on bulletin boards in front of the newspaper offices on George street, that the train would arrive in town from Port Hope at 5.15 p.m., with the Peterborough contingent of the Midland, and for over an hour before that time the platform of the Grand Trunk station was paraded by hundreds of persons, principally of the fair sex, who were eager to catch the first glimpse of the gallant lads. When the hands of the town clock pointed to the hour of five the spacious platform was literally packed with people, and when at twenty minutes later the locomotive whistled south of the diamond crossing, the eagerly pressed forwards the outer edge, whilst every elevated position was occupied by individuals who contributed cheer after cheer, as the train drew up to the platform. The members of companies No. 1, 2 and 3 of the 57th Battalion, as well as the Peterborough portion of the Durham Field Battery with the Fire Brigade, had previously marched to the depot and were drawn up at the outer edge of the platform in double file. The City Band which mustered especially for the occasion, struck up the welcome air of amidst a scene of the wildest enthusiasm. The scene which followed, when Captain Burke was noticed standing on the platform of the car, was indescribable. Men, women and children cheered themselves hoarse, as they saw the volunteers descend from the cars, their bronzed faces, and, in most cases, tattered clothing, adding more to their appearance of ruggedness. At the command of Captain Burke the men drew up in company line, and were afterwards faced inward in open order, the veterans standing with ordered arms. At this juncture Miss Gilmour, Miss Cox, Miss Maud Beck and Miss Haultain stepped in between the ranks and inserted a lovely bouquet of flowers in the muzzle of each of their rifles. A similar bouquet was also impaled by their fair hands on the point of each officer's sword. At the command of Col. J. Z. Rogers, the troops then moved forward preceded by the City Band playing the British Grenadiers. Next followed the Peterborough wing of the Durham Field Battery, and then the observed of all observers the who marched with a steadiness of soldiers of the line. In spite of their cat sack helmets, their stained and faded tunics, tattered trousers and travel stained shoes, every man with his bronzed face and well-set-up military physique, looked every inch a soldier. The ringing cheers that greeted them in continuous chorus from the dense crowds that lined the streets on either side of the line of march were an earnest of the enthusiastic welcome that awaited them, as well as a tribute to their valour and soldierly endurance of hardship throughout the campaign, and of rejoicing at their safe return. Following them were companies No. 1, 2 and 3 of the 57th Batt., their neat and clean appearance and good, steady marching, drawing forth many plaudits from the spectators. Then came the Peterborough Fire Brigade, twenty-two in all, with Capt. Craig in charge, and then a jostling and anxious crowd of citizens. The line of march proceeded up George street and across the Central Park to the drill shed, through the eastern doors of which the veterans and their military escort entered. The surging mass of people on the outside was excluded until after the dinner was over, when they were admitted to witness the presentation and listen to the speeches.

VAST ASSEMBLAGE

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

THE BANQUET.

In the Drill Shed complete preparations had been made for feasting the returning veterans. The north front of the shed—the gallery—had been beautifully festooned with vari colored bunting and draped with British and Canadian flags. The ladies had perfectly fulfilled their part of the programme. Two long tables had been erected and were laden with a most sumptuous collation, consisting of meats of half a dozen different descriptions and ways of preparation, with a due proportion of other edibles. The decoration of flowers and silver were exceedingly profuse and tasteful. There was overflowing abundance of, not only every kind of solid food, but of all the luxuries of the season in the way of fruits, vegetables, sauces, relishes, etc.

While waiting supper the steadiness of the men in the ranks showed how in actual they had come under the influence of discipline. With all their hunger and fatigue, with all the trappings of preparation, parade and pomp around them, with anxious friends crowding near to have a shake of the hand and bid a welcome home, the members of "G" Company stood in the ranks "eyes front" like so many statutes in bronze, neither looking to the right nor the left. Capt. Burke gave the order and the front and rear ranks respectively upon the two tables, and, after Rev. Mr. Clementi had said grace, the rattle of knives and small arms showed that the veterans were deeply engaged on both flanks and centre. The first and fairest young ladies of the town waited upon the tables with a cheerfulness and assiduity which were greatly appreciated. It is needless to say that the boys did full justice to the repast provided, and very naturally so; for during their campaign in the North-West they subsisted for a month at a stretch on "hard-tack" and tea alone, and the magnificent feast they were partaking of must have been a welcome change.

The general character of the welcome extended the boys—all classes, creeds and countries heartily co-operating—was further shown by the clerical guests at the officers mess. These were His Lordship, Bishop Jamot, Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector and Rural Dean of Peterborough, (St. John's); Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rector of St. Luke's; Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D., pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church; Rev. Alex. Bell, pastor of St. Andrew's; Rev. I. Tovell, pastor of the George street Methodist church; Rev. Mr. Clementi, Rev. Mr. Davis and Rev. Mr. Bennett, Presbyterian. The tables and their fittings were of an equal denominational diversity. The tables themselves belonged to the George street Methodist church; the seats, to show the cordial co-operation of the army and navy, were provided by the Baptist church, while the dishes were those belonging to the Sunday school pic-nic and church feast department of St. John's Church of England.

After the meal had charged upon the tables, and retired flushed with victory and victuals, they were drawn up in line in front of the platform for dessert. The platform was occupied, in addition to the reverend gentlemen already mentioned by the members of the town council, by Capt. Burke, commanding "G" Company, Lieut. Brennan and Lieut. Weller. Mayor Cox occupied the position of chairman and addressed the volunteers, remarking that as the younger ladies had mantled the guns of the soldiers with the emblems of peace, and as the elder ladies had furnished him with a supply of golden ammunition he was of the Midland battalion. (Cheers.) His Worship alluded to the re'eau of ten dollar gold pieces, lying on a stand beside him, which were to be presented to each non-commissioned officer and man in the company—42 in number. Capt. Burke then called out the names of the men, and as each one advanced, Mr. Cox, calling on him by name, addressed him as follows:—"Allow me to present you with this slight token of the appreciation by the citizens of Peterborough of the prompt response made by you in obeying the call of duty to suppress the Northwest Rebellion," at the same time placing a ten dollar gold piece in the soldier's palm. This was evidently a surprise to some of the members, at least, for as he stood at attention, as moveless as a statue, his face for a moment wore a puzzled look, but when he heard the Mayor's words and felt the weight of the souvenir coin in his hand, that gave way to a gleam of gratitude and appreciation.

PRESENTING THE MEDALS

The non-commissioned officers and men were called up in the following order:—Sergeant Myles*, Sergeant Tytler, Sergeant Marks, Sergeant Hendren, Corporal Hogan, Corporal Graham*, Corporal Roberts*, Privates Desford, Ross, Matheson*, Parks*, Chrow*, Sedgwick, Cook*, Phillips, Wedlock, Lynch*, Hannah*, Downer, Tanner, Cochran, McFarlane, Reynolds*, Breakenridge, Thompson, Daly, Weir, Rush, Woods, Kelly*, Hill, Crouter, Crouter, Cummings, Billings* (head cook), Heston*, Browne*, Seery, McFee and Beech* (bugler). Private Samuel Bell, of Keene, did not arrive with the rest of the company, having been left behind in hospital at Winnipeg. While helping to unload a steamer on the Saskatchewan, he fell, striking the side of his head on the guard rail of the steamer, the sack of oats he was carrying falling on his head and injuring him severely. He was progressing favorably, however, when his comrades left the capital of the Prairie Province. [In the above list those names with an asterisk appended belong to Peterborough and Ashburnham.]

Mayor Cox then addressed the volunteers and asked, on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough, to be allowed to extend to them a most cordial welcome and to thank them for the brave and efficient services they had rendered in quelling the rebellion. After explaining the cause of the detention of the company in Port Hope to-day, he said that those who had formed the idea that they were to get no reception, must have been pleasantly reassured by the enthusiastic welcome extended them and the splendid repast provided by the exertions of the noble ladies of the town, and must, to a certain extent feel rewarded that at a moment's notice they left for the front to defend their country, their mothers, wives and sweet-hearts, (great cheering.)

Captain Burke, in rising to reply on behalf of "G" Company, was greeted with tumultuous applause and the cry of "Three cheers for Company 'G,'" met with a response that made the rafters ring, the band playing "For they are jolly good fellows." When the cheering subsided, a vigorous volley of bouquets was aimed at Captain Burke from the gallery behind crowded with ladies. He acknowledged himself vanquished, for the Midlands were most accustomed to contending with foes in front and never had been assaulted from behind. When silence was restored, Captain Burke proceeded to say, that, as officer commanding Company "G," of the Midland Battalion, which had successfully assisted in quelling the rebellion, he returned most hearty thanks for the magnificent reception and welcome home accorded them. When he and the members of his company left Peterborough they intended to do their duty, and as to the manner in which that duty had been performed, the enthusiastic spontaniety of this reception, spoke louder than any words. Not since they left had the Midland Battalion received such a welcome as the reception of the evening, and the company had great reason to feel the pride they did feel on the occasion. At Toronto Sunday evening it was a surprise to witness the magnificent reception given to the Midland Battalion. From the time they entered the city, and during their whole progress through the city, one continuous chorus of cheers greeted them. It was impossible for him to find words to convey the feelings of gratitude felt by him and his men for the manner in which they had been welcomed home. He was deeply pained that their rejoicings were overshadowed by sorrow at the loss of the Colonel of the Battalion. He was a brave man and bravely he led the volunteers who would follow him anywhere. (Cheers.) Though Company "G" was not in actual engagements, they had put forward the most vigorous efforts to get to the front. But they creditably performed other arduous duties and every man felt sorry that he could not get a chance at the "Breeds." When on the Saskatchewan "G" Company learned that Riel was captured and the fighting was over, there was universal regret that they had been deprived of their share of fighting. He returned thanks again and was sorry he could not find words to thank the people for the glorious reception given the returning volunteers.

Lieut. Brennan was received with rousing cheers and another fusilade of flowers. He had no language, he said, that he could command to express thanks for the grand welcome accorded the company and also for the highly appreciated supplies that came in such good time and not only added to the comfort, but cheered the hearts of the soldiers, and he took this opportunity of attempting to thank those whose thoughtfulness forwarded the supplies. Company "G," though they had not seen any fighting, distinguished themselves in less showy duties. Twice at the butts had Private Reynolds proved himself the best shot in the Battalion; and in doing guard duty the cleanest soldier reporting for that duty was relieved for the day, and in succession five members of Company "G" earned this honor, Privates Breakenridge, Rush, Desford, Daly, and Seery. While going down the Saskatchewan he had the honor of commanding 25 men, and if he ever had command of another company he would ask no more than to have as good men as those of Company "G." (Cheers.) Words could not express the sense of appreciation and gratitude felt by Company "G" and its officers.

Capt. Weller, who was also received with ringing cheers, said that the Midland was one of the best battalions in the North-West. And when Gen. Middleton had experience with part of the Battalion in action he was anxious to have the remainder. The speaker had charge of 16 men of the Midlands. They had hard work—up to their waists in water day after day, yet there was never a grumble. Officers of high rank had given them great praise, and they were worthy of every word of it. The ladies were again to be thanked, for they had not forgotten the boys, neither when in the field or when they came home. (Cheers.)

Rev. Mr. Clementi then addressed the company. It was a great satisfaction to meet and welcome so brave a band of men. When, three months ago, they had gone to the front, every one felt they would do their duty, and that confidence had been amply justified. The charge of Batioche was one of the most brilliant on record. It would be placed on the page of Canadian history in letters of fire. It was equal to the glorious deeds of Balaklava. A high tribute was paid to General Middleton, and the volunteers were fortunate in having served under so great and good a general. He was no carpet knight, and one thing was in his favour, that he won his victories with the least possible sacrifice of life. His hardest task had been to hold the volunteers back, but when he saw that a supreme effort must be made, he gave the order to charge and nobly had it been responded to. The speaker also paid a high tribute to Colonel Williams whom mourned as a personal friend. He returned thanks again to the boys who had been to the front, and was sure if they were again called on they would as promptly respond to the call of duty, and discharge it as nobly and efficiently as they had done on this occasion.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Jamot, next addressed the gathering. He was glad that circumstances that he feared would prevent his being present had allowed him to be present to welcome the brave volunteers. They had his most cordial thanks as men who had done their duty so well. It was one of the duties which he, as a representative of his church had to impress, to pay honor to whom honor was due. (Cheers). He was pleased to notice that the clergy of his church had carried this into practice in the North-West, to help in the maintenance of authority and order. He paid a tribute to General Middleton for his efforts to induce the settlers to lay down their arms because he did not want to spill their blood. He was happy to have a chance of assisting in giving this fine demonstration to the Midland Battalion.

Rev. Mr. Beck was greatly pleased to be able to join in the reception to Company "G." He heartily thanked them, for they were thoroughly deserving of it; they had well earned this reception, and are entitled to the thanks of the people of Peterborough and Canada. The people had watched their career with fear and anxiety, for their dangers were great, they were untried men; everybody sympathized with their hardships. The manner with which they had performed their duties was a great satisfaction; we saw volunteers acting with the steadiness of well drilled British troops, and endowed with an intelligent perception of their duties and responsibilities, which General Middleton highly appreciated. The troops had found that it was no holiday work. We had a nation to defend, and if we had the pomp and glory of war we had also to pay for it. He thanked Company "G," as far as he could, on behalf of the people of Peterborough. The discipline and habits of self control they had learned had better fitted them for the duties of life.

Rev. Alex. Bell only wished to congratulate Company "G" on its safe return. He had been nine years in close connection with the British army and had seen regular troops returning from war but he had never seen a steadier lot of men than Company "G." And though they had not had the chance of being in actual engagement, yet he felt sure that if they had the chance they would have gone lower, higher, deeper and further to find the enemy than any other corps. (Cheers). He again expressed his thanks to them, but would not detain them for he knew that if they thought it their duty they would stay there till 12 o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Tovell said that although he did not personally know any of the company, he never felt prouder when he looked on them of being a native Canadian. (Cheers.) We might well feel jealous of the bronzed faces of the veterans. When they were at the front the churches in town were on their knees praying for them. He gave them most cordial thanks on behalf of his congregation.

Rev. Mr. Wallace was brought up near the historic ground of Lundy's Lane, and was proud to see that the spirit of loyalty and valor that had won that victory had come down from the fathers to the sons. The outcome of the rebellion would be that a national spirit would be developed and Canada be knit more closely as one people. The volunteers had only one feeling and that was to do their duty and to get at the front.

Rev. Mr. Bennett said he was not a Canadian, but an Irishman, and he would give them an Irishman's best welcome, cead mile failthe. The result of the campaign, if their experience was improved upon, was to make them better citizens in every way.

Rev. Mr. Bradshaw thanked the Mayor for the privilege of adding his thanks and congratulations. The soldiers were worthy of all the honor they received. When they went out all hearts went with them, all knew that they would do their duty. They had demonstrated the fact that Canada must be one, and that in defence of that our volunteers could be always relied upon. On behalf of his congregation, which was worthily represented in company "G," he again thanked them and made them welcome to their homes.

Rev. Mr. Davis briefly thanked the men for what they had done, and said they were worthy of all honor.

Mr. Thomas Cahill, the senior member of the town council was glad to see the members of Company "G" all safe at home again. They had done their duty nobly and well. He knew they would do it. He was glad they were entirely worthy of the brilliant reception that had been accorded them. The Peterborough people, like the Midlands at Batoche, carried things by storm.

The chairman explained that Mr. Carnegie, M.P.P., had been called away on the evening train and could not be present. He then called on Dr. Kincaid, surgeon of the 57th battalion, who made a rousing speech. He said that we had reason to feel proud of the volunteers to-day. They had gone to the Northwest and made history for Canada. They showed that our citizen soldiers were the full equals of those of any nation in the world. (Cheers.) They had braved the storms of winter and the fatigues of the march, and they had begun the campaign by emptying their whiskey flasks on the ground. They had done their fighting and work without grog. (Cheers.) Peterborough is proud of Company "G" who were with good reason, proud of this reception. Things in the morning were in confusion, but the Mayor set to and this great demonstration was the result. Dr. Kincaid repeated that he was proud of the volunteers; we did not want to fight but he had faith in the citizen soldiers of Canada that they were able to wipe out any foe they might meet. (Loud cheers.

Cheers were then given for the Queen and the Midland Battalion. Company "G" was then called on for "Three cheers for the ladies of Peterborough" which was given with an emphasis which showed their hearts were in them and that they were as perfect in this as in every other part of their drill. The men then "broke off" and were allowed an opportunity to receive the personal welcome of their relatives and friends and the immense crowds dispersed, though hundreds loitered looking with admiring glances on the returned veterans.

NOTES.

The Mayor explained the reason of the delay of the boys at Port Hope. Peterborough did not feel certain that a reception following so closely on the funeral of Colonel Williams would be advisable, but when it was seen that other towns were not restrained by such considerations, the people took hold with a will and the present enthusiastic welcome was the result.

The Norwood, Keene and Hastings detachments of "G" Company took the C. & G. and G. T. R. trains for home this morning.

The Lost Codfish.

The following story is told of an Eighth avenue grocer, celebrated for the size of his hands and feet. He was waiting upon a fat German woman the other day, and among the purchases made by the customer was a dried codfish. After making numerous purchases, the woman started to leave the store, but got no further than the door when she found that her codfish was missing. Search was made for it everywhere, but without success. The fat and good natured grocer was telling his anxious customer that possibly some one had stolen her property when he lifted his hand from the counter. The woman stepped forward and cried out, "Dash ish meine fish!" at the same time pointing to the place on the counter where the grocer's hand had reposed. Sure enough there lay her purchase.—New York Tribune.

The Electric Wonders of the Age.

Hon. S. S. Cox, in the annual address delivered before the Indiana Asbury University, at Greencastle, said:

"The electric monograph transmits messages in the original handwriting. The hektograph multiplies your epistles; the telephone enables people to make contracts through an orifice; but as there is no witness, photography comes in and records the shadow of the sound by curves in vowels and consonants!

"Electricity is an element elusive and subtle, yet it is stored in a box and imprisoned in a metal to be used at pleasure for portraiture, sound, light, or power. I have seen an organ in Berlin played by electricity, but this is simple when compared with other experiments. Is it not a marvel that we can telegraph from the moving railroad car, or the speeding steamship? A California photographer obtains six photographs in one leap of a clown in six different positions. He catches a horse on the gallop, a rabbit on a run, and a bird on the wing. By means of a wire a circular saw or a locomotive may be—nay, has been—run miles distant from its source of force. Electricity is born of the sun. It may be converted back to its source, so that when one talks by telephone he may see his distant colloquist. It is shrewdly believed that nerve power depends for increased strength on light. It will not be strange if the polyscope illuminates the animal organism, rendering the body transparent. The vast current of liquid force which we call electricity is condensed in boxes like desiccated meats, or spread over continents to convey intelligence. Men can never overdraw from this vast, bankruptless depository of nature.

He Didn't Collect the Bill.

There is a woman residing on Croghan street who has been owing a down-down firm a matter of $14 for three or four years past. One collector after another has worked every sort of game to get hands on the money, but in vain. To one the window was "up the lakes;" to another "gone South for her consumption;" to a third "would pay next week," and soft talk or threats failed to reduce the amount by one single cent. The other day a collector, noted for his cast-iron cheek and silver-plated perseverance, took the bill with the understanding that he was to have half for collecting. He gained admittance to the house under pretense that he was a census-taker, and when he inquired for the widow was told to walk up stairs. He had ascended about half way, when a voice commanded him to stop, and he discovered the widow and an old bureau at the top step. The widow was behind the bureau, being evidently about to "tote" it down stairs.

"What do you want?" she asked.

"Ahem—well—I called, madam, to—to——"

"To what?"

"About a—a little bill, madam."

"Can't pay it this week."

"But, madam this bill has stood for several——"

"Can't nay it, I say, and I'm getting awful tired of holding this bureau!"

"Madam, the bill is for $14. If you could pay me half to-day I would call next——."

"Can't hold it more than a minute more!" she interrupted.

"While our house aims to deal in the most lib——."

She let go of the bureau, and his first jump landed him in the hall. He was about a second ahead of the furniture as he shot out the open front door, but it caught up with him on the step and took a heel off his boot and rolled him over on the grass. He thought the bureau would stop there, but it didn't. It pursued him down to the gate, bumping his back at every jump, and he thought he was half a mile away before the knobs and casters quit whizzing past his ears.—Detroit Free Press.

Sleeplessness by a Physician.

"Go home and eat a good supper, that's all the medicine you want," and the medical gentleman to whom a Mail and Express reporter had gone for a nervine, a sedative, or sleeping potion, opened the door to show him out.

"But, doctor, it's 11 o'clock at night!"

"Well, what of it? Oh, I see. The popular prejudice against eating at night. Let me tell you, my young friend, that unless your stomach is out of order, it is more benefit to you to eat before going to bed than it is harmful. Food of a simple kind induces sleep. At what hour did you dine?"

"Six o'clock."

"Humph! Just what I thought. Six o'clock. Fourteen hours between your dinner and your breakfast. Enough to keep any man awake. By that time the fuel necessary to send the blood coursing through your system is burned out. Animals sleep instinctively after meals. Human beings become drowsy after eating. Why? Simply because the juices needed in digestion are supplied by the blood being solicited toward the stomach. Thus the brain receives less blood than during the hours of fasting, and becoming paler the powers grow dormant. Invalids and those in delicate health should always eat before going to bed. The sinking sensation in sleeplessness is a call for food. Wakefulness is oftentimes merely a symptom of hunger. Gratify the desire, and sleep ensues. The feeble will be stronger if they eat on going to bed. Some persons are exhausted merely by the process of making their toilet in the morning. A cup of warm milk and toast on retiring or of beef tea on awakening will correct it."

"But is it not essential that the stomach should rest?"

"Undoubtedly. Yet, when hungry we should eat. Does the infant's stomach rest as long as the adults? Man eats less often only because his food requires more time for digestion. Invalids and children at night may take slowly warm milk, beef tea, or oat meal. The vigorous adult can eat bread, milk, cold beef, chicken, raw oysters, or some other such food. Of course, it must be done in moderation. You start home now, and take a cup of tea and a beef sandwich on the way, and I'll risk your sleeping."

All Sorts of Flavoring.

"We manufacture most of the flavorings you see here," said a merchant to a reporter of the New York Mail and Express. "Some little is imported from Italy, France and Germany, but the duty is so heavy—$2.50 a pound—that it does not pay."

"What kind of extracts do you use principally, and who buys them?"

"Fruit-syrups, oils, perfumes, bottled extracts, colorings and tobacco flavors. They are used by confectioners, soda-water bottlers, perfumers, druggists, brewers, and cigar and tobacco manufacturers."

"Can you explain the manufacture and use?"

"The manufacture is a secret, and it would not do to give it away. They are principally extracts from pure fruit but in some instances chemicals are used, but never so as to be injurious. The uses they are applied to are many; all the nice confectionery is flavored with some fruit syrup, extract of oil of almonds being very popular, and costing about $12 a pint, free from prussic acid. You may be surprised to know that as a rule the various brands of tobacco are formed through the use of some flavor. See, here we have Havana cigar flavor, Santiago smoking tobacco flavor, and even cigar colorings; here are the directions: Dissolve one pint of this flavor in four gallons of water, or in one gallon of alcohol and three gallons of water."

"Are not some of these flavors very expensive?"

"They vary in price from 50 cents a pound to $1.50. Oil of attar of roses is $12 an ounce. Oil of cinnamon, used in confectionery is $2 an ounce. Root beer, sarsaparilla, lemon, strawberry, and such like are worth $40 per gallon."

The Polar Sea a Myth.

One of the most intelligent views of Arctic exploration is furnished by Sergeant Brainard, of the Greely expedition. He says that they found nothing to show that the open polar sea existed. He believes it a myth. The space beyond their highest point of exploration and the pole, he says, is open in places a little while at a time, but this space opens and shuts arbitrarily, and any vessel trying to penetrate it may meet the fate of the Proteus, and be crushed at any moment. On the other hand, it cannot be traversed by sledges, because the open water might come and swallow them up. He says there is much yet to be done in exploration, and properly supported and supplied at a fixed station, a party could stay there a long time. Had the Greely party remained at its station it would have been alive to-day, for the provisions and the fuel would have held out. But they returned according to orders, failed to find the provisions and fuel they expected below, and so miserably perished.

Coupling Leather and Sense.

Mr. Jobbleswizzle, says the Merchat Traveler, was taking his wife through the penitentiary, and was playing guide and stuffing her with all sorts of miraculous yarns. Finally they reached the kitchen, and Jobbleswizzle, after looking around a minute, picked up a piece of leather and said to her:

"Look at that, my dear; can you see how a man could eat that sort of stuff."

"Gracious heavens, what fiends the officers of State must be to make the poor prisoners eat it."

"Yes, my dear, and look at this tallow and that box of garbage, what do you think of that?"

"Why, Mr. J., it is awful, simply awful, and just as soon as I get home I'm going to the Woman's Christian Association and have the ladies get up petitions to stop the nefarious business."

"And my dear," he continued, without noticing her remarks, further than to stop long enough to let her make them, "see that bucket of slops. Now what do you think of men and women, thinking, sentient, human beings, with souls to save and bodies to nourish, eating and drinking such stuff as I have pointed out to you?"

"I shall report it at once, that's what I'll do, and I'll show the officers of State that the women of this country will not permit such brutal inhumanity to exist in the public institutions. Are you sure that they have to eat and drink that?" and her eyes blazed and her hair stood up.

"No, love," he answered, backing over behind that stove, "on the contrary I am sure they do not. Nor did I say they did. I merely asked you what you thought of feeding men and women on such stuff, and, my dear, you have given me your opinion and I am satisfied. Now let us go to some other point of interest."

But Mrs. J.'s feelings were totally wrecked, and she absolutely refused to see any more penitentiary, and she wouldn't speak to Jobbleswizzle for three days.

Mr. Garrett's Wealth.

Mr. Garrett himself has said more than once during the past few months to gentlemen intimately concerned with business affairs in which he was prominent that he had so provided and arranged in his will that there would be no such change in the existing status of his holdings of various securities as would at all disturb other interests. Of greatest importance, of course, is the stock of the Baltimore and Ohio, of which he was not only the largest individual shareholder, but even a holder to a greater extent than the city of Baltimore or the Johns Hopkins estate. The "Garrett interest," in fact, amounts, it is stated, to very nearly two-sevenths of the entire capital of the company. The aggregate capital stock is $14,792,266, or 147,925.66 shares, of the par value of $100. It is estimated that the Garrett interest amounts to about 40,000 shares. The market quotation of the stock is 175—or 75 per cent above par.

Estimates of the wealth of Mr. Garrett, made by persons who have had close business relations with him, vary greatly and range all the way from $5,000,000 to $30,000,000. Besides the common stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, he owned, it is said, considerable amounts of the preferred stocks and bonds of the railroad, and had invested largely in the securities of the branch and connecting roads of the system. Among these have been most prominently mentioned the Pittsburg and Connellsville, the Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore, the Central Ohio and the Washington branch. He is said to have been a holder, too, of stocks or bonds in various Eastern, Western and Southern railways, of government bonds, of Maryland and Virginia state securities, of Baltimore city stock, and of stock in a number of banks and other financial and commercial corporations in the city. The banking house of Robert Garrett & Sons has a large and very valuable business and Mr. Garrett was also a special partner in the firm of Pope & Cole, extensive copper and general metal dealers.

His investments in real estate were very large and widely distributed. Besides his residence he owned other property on Mount Vernon place. "Montebello," his country place, is splendidly improved, embracing over one thousand acres of fine land, and is stocked abundantly with the best and most valuable cattle, sheep and swine. In his farming and stock raising operations, Mr. Garrett took great personal interest, and also in his gardens, hothouses, and conservatories. His horses were not the fastest, but they were all of fine stock, and from his pairs, driven to a broad, strong, but rather light, double buggy, he got very good speed always. Besides Montebello, he owns several fine places in Baltimore County. In the city his real estate embraced factories, warehouses, office buildings, and dwelling houses. Some of the best warehouse property in the city belonged to him, and he had added largely to the number of his office buildings in the past fifteen years, particularly in the neighborhood of South and German streets.—Baltimore American.

Chapter II.—Continued.

Before the last task was completed the woman's moan had ceased. For some time it had been growing fainter and only sounding at recurring intervals. Now I heard it no longer. This cessation was a great relief to my overwrought nerves, but my heart grew sick as I thought it may be there were two victims instead of one.

Although at least two men must have borne that weight away, I knew I was not left alone. I heard some one throw himself into a chair with a half weary sigh and guessed he had been left to guard me. I was longing to make my escape—longing to wake and find I had been dreaming. The suspense or the nightmare was growing unbearable. I said, without turning my head.

"How long am I to be kept amid these horrors?"

I heard the man move in his chair, but he made no answer. "May I not go?" I pleaded, "I have seen nothing. Put me out into the street—anywhere. I shall go mad if I stay here longer."

Still no answer. I said no more.

By and by the absent men returned to their companion. I heard the door close after them. Then came more whispers, and I heard the drawing of a cork and the jingle of glasses. They were refreshing themselves after the night's dark work.

Presently a curious odor—that of some drug was perceptible. A hand was laid on my shoulder and a glass full of some liquid was placed between my fingers.

"Drink," said the voice—the only voice I had heard.

"I will not," I cried, "it may be poison."

I heard a short harsh laugh and felt a cold metallic ring laid against my forehead.

"It is not poison; it is an opiate and will do you no harm. But this," and as he spoke I felt the pressure of a little iron circlet, "this is another affair. Choose!"

I drained the glass and was glad to feel the pistol moved from my head. "Now," said the spokesman, taking the empty glass from my hand, "if you are a wise man, when you awake to-morrow you will say, 'I have been drunk or dreaming.' You have heard us but not seen us, but remember we know you."

He left me, and in a short time, do what I would to struggle against it, heavy drowsiness came over me. Thoughts grew incoherent and reason seemed leaving me. My head fell first on one side, then on the other. The last thing I can remember is a strong arm encircling me and keeping me from tumbling out of my chair. Whatever the drug was, its action was strong and swift.

For hours and hours it held me senseless, and when at last its power faded and my mind struggling back to a clouded sort of consciousness, made, after many attempts, the fact apparent to me that I was lying on a bed, and, moreover, as I found by stretching out my arms and feeling around, my own bed, is it to be wondered at that I said to myself, "I have dreamed the most frightful dream that ever came to a tormented mind." After this effort of mind I sank back once more into a semi-conscious state, but fully persuaded I had never quitted my bed. My relief at this discovery was immense.

Yet if my mind grew easy, I cannot say the same for the body. My head seemed preparing to split in two; my tongue was dry and parched. These unpleasant facts became more and more noticeable as consciousness gradually returned. I sat up in the bed and pressed my hands to my throbbing brows.

"Oh dear heart!" I heard my old nurse say. "He is coming round at last." Then another voice—a man's voice, soft and bland.

"Yes, your master will soon be well again. Kindly let me feel your pulse, Mr. Vaughan."

A soft finger was laid upon my wrist.

"Who is it?" I asked.

"I am Dr. Deane, at your service," said the stranger.

"Have I been ill? How long? How many days?"

"A few hours only. There is nothing to be alarmed at. Lie down again and keep quiet for a while. Are you thirsty?"

"Yes, I am dying with thirst—give me water."

They did so. I drank greedily, and felt somewhat relieved.

"Now, nurse," I heard the doctor say, "make him some weak tea, and when he wants anything to eat let him have it. I will look in again later on."

Dr. Deane was shown out, and old Priscilla, returning to my bedside, patted and punched the pillows to make me more comfortable. By this time I was wide awake and the experiences of the night were coming back to me with a distinctness and detail far above those of a recalled dream.

"What is the time?" I asked.

"Nigh upon noon, Master Gilbert." Priscilla spoke in a sorrowful, injured manner.

"Noon! what has been the matter with me?"

The old servant was weeping. I could hear her. She made no answer, so I repeated my question.

"Oh, Master Gilbert!" she sobbed, "how could you do it? When I came into the room and saw the empty bed I thought I should have dropped."

When she saw the empty bed! I trembled. The horrors of the night were real!

"How could you do it, Master Gilbert," continued Priscilla. "To go out without a word, and wander half over London, all alone and not able to see a thing!"

"Sit down and tell me what you mean—what has happened?"

She had not quite aired her grievance. "If you wanted to get tipsy or to take any of them stuffs to send you to sleep and make you insensible, you might have done it at home, Master Gilbert. I shouldn't have minded once in a way."

"You're a kind old fool, Priscilla. Tell me all about last night."

It was not until she saw I was getting quite angry that her tongue would consent to run pretty straight, and when I heard her account of what had occurred my head was whirling. This is what she told me.

It must have been about an hour after my stealthy exit that she awoke. She put her ear to the door to make certain that I was asleep and wanting nothing. Hearing no sound of life in my room, she entered it, and found the bed untenanted and me gone. Probably she was even more frightened than she owned to being. She knew all about my despondency and compliments of the last few days, and I have no doubt but her first fear was that I had destroyed myself. She started in search of me, and at once recognizing the impossibility of finding me without assistance, turned to that first and last resource of an Englishwoman in such a difficulty—the Police. Having told her tale at the nearest station, and by entreaties, and by enlarging on my infirmity, made known the urgency of the case and secured sympathy, telegraphic messages were sent to other police stations asking if any one answering to my description had been found. Priscilla waited upon thorns until about five o'clock in the morning, when a reply came from the other end of the town. It stated that a young man who appeared to be blind, and who was certainly drunk and incapable, had just been brought in.

Priscilla flew to the rescue. She found me lying senseless, and destined, upon my recovery, to be brought before the magistrate. A doctor was soon procured, who testified to my innocence so far as alcohol was concerned. The energetic Priscilla, after placing me safely in a cab, gave the officers a bit of her mind as to the discomforts under which she had found me laboring. She then departed triumphantly with her unconscious charge, and laid him on the bed he had so rashly quitted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Vat? You have never been in France, Meesa! Zen 'ow are you arrived at so vell speaking ze French?" "Oh, well, Monsieur! at school, you know, the girl who sat next to me at dinner used to eat my fat, and I used to do her French exercises for her; so I got lots of practice!"

Telemachus, don't let me hear you laughing at a woman again because she can't sharpen a pencil. When you want something in that line to laugh do you just contemplate a man cutting out a paper pattern with a pair of scissors by the united efforts of his right-hand, lower jaw and two-thirds of his tongue.—Burlington Hawkeye.

"Yes," he said, "we were out sailing and noticed a yacht some distance off flying signals of distress, and when we came up with her we found affairs in a fearful state." "What was the trouble?" asked his friend; "was she sinking?" "Worse than that—all the liquor had given out." "Indeed! Well, that was terrible."—Boston Post.

The chemist is happy. He hasn't time to sleep nights, so busy is he extracting the pure essence of lemon, orange, strawberry, and other delicious fruits from coal tar for the soda-water fountain. And the fruit-grower, who has the real thing, feels blue because he can't sell it at a paying price. This is how nature gets left sometimes.

There is a story told of Lord Hardcastle meeting Poole on the chain pier at Brighton. He stopped him and said: "Look here, Poole, I got this coat of you, and see how badly it fits." Poole took a bit of chalk out of his waistcoat pocket, and marked His Lordship's coat all over, and said: "Take that coat to my cutter, My Lord, and he will make the necessary alterations."

A German gentleman of æsthetic proclivities recently sat in a London restaurant where Oscar Wilde occupied a table. Oscar called for a bunch of violets, stuck his nose into them, inhaled their perfume, and remarking, "I have dined," paid his bill and passed out. The German æsthete reflected for a moment and then ordered a cake of Limburger cheese. After inhaling the perfume he exclaimed, "I also haf mittag gehaben," and followed Wilde.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Herald.

Col. Yerger has a son named Leonidas, whom he is having taught music; but he is the laziest boy in Austin, and prefers lounging on the sofa reading dime novels and the Texas Siftings to practicing on the piano. A visitor recently overheard Col. Yerger remark: "You miserable whelp, if you don't get to that piano and play 'Beautiful Dreams' over ten times I'll make the neighbors think somebody is sawing you in two with a dull saw. Get at them 'Beautiful Dreams,' will you?"

Sam Kalleton, a member of the Arkansas Legislature, was very fond of offering amendments to bills introduced. That was the limit of his Legislative capacity. One morning after a night's hilarity, he entered the legislative hall just as the chaplain was asking divine aid. The old man took a chew of tobacco, and listened attentively until the chaplain closed his petition with an effective recitation of the Lord's prayer. "Mr. Speaker," said the old man, arising, "I move to strike out the words 'daily bread' and insert 'as much bread as may be found necessary for twenty days.' We have already done enough for the flood sufferers."

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Moderate easterly winds, generally fair weather, not much change in temperature.

Bicycle Race.

Remember the match bicycle race on Friday evening in the P.A.A.A. grounds, Ashburnham, between Kent, of Newcastle, and Gibson, of town. The men are closely matched and an exciting contest will be the result. Don't miss the sport.

Visitors in Town.

About two hundred excursionists arrived in town to-day from Uxbridge. The party comes with the Methodist Sunday School and includes the lacr se team from that place, who are playing tch with our juniors as we go to press.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock	76°	29.29°
1 o'clock	81°	29.38°
3 o'clock	80°	29.36°

Passage of Troops.

This morning at 2.15 No. 43 train of the C. P. R. passed through Peterborough with the Toronto Body Guards on board. The men were sleeping, with a few exceptions. This contingent was delayed at Tweed last night for over two hours, as well as at Sheffield; the object for this being to have them arrive at Toronto at the same time with the other volunteers from the Northwest who were expected to arrive in the Queen City to-day at 12 o'clock by another route.

Willow and Wicket.

Tuesday night, an eleven of the Peterboro' Cricket Club started for Ottawa to play their first match with the well known Ottawa team, and arrived in the capital city next morning about 7 a. m. Promptly at ten o'clock the cent was "flipped," and Ottawa winning the toss, elected to send Peterboro' to the bat, and Max Hamilton and Rutherford were sent in to represent Peterborough. An over-anxiety to amass runs quickly told against the latter, and he retired without scoring. Strathy then filled the vacancy, and matters began to brighten, but, unfortunately, Hamilton was run out, and the same fate overtook the next batsman, Carter. Shortly afterwards, Strathy also retired, with no runs to his credit. When Hammond and Hampshire entered the arena, runs came fast and free, both gentlemen collaring the bowling and battering it in excellent form. The whole team retired for 81 runs—a fair score under the circumstances. The fielding and bowling of the Ottawa men were exceptional. Smith and Steele were the first to take the bat for Ottawa, and 52 runs stood to their joint credit before their separation. The splendid batting of the latter for 46 runs, and Brunel, who subsequently followed him for sixty runs, were the great feature of the game. When Ottawa retired, their score stood at 228. Hamilton and Strathy then took the bat for Peterborough and together they made a good stand for 50 runs before the latter was bowled by Little. Miles Hamilton, Hampshire and Morris strove hard to supply the deficit between the sum total of the opposing teams, and contributed 17, 11 and 8 respectively; but the task was too great, and Peterborough retired in this innings with 113 to their credit. The batting of Max. Hamilton, who accumulated 50 runs, was free and strong. Our boys consider that the Ottawa men possess the beau ideal cricketing spirit, and speak very highly of the manner in which they were treated as visitors.

The Finest Floral Emblems.

At the funeral of Col. Williams, the floral cross contributed by the ladies of Peterboro', and the emblem "Gates Ajar," by the town council, were considered the finest on the floral car in the procession. That his handiwork should take so leading a position in competition with Queen City florists, is highly creditable to Mr. Frank Mason and the town.

That Bicycle Race.

A parade of the Bicycle Club will be held to-morrow evening (Friday) from the Drill Shed Park to the P. A. A. grounds in Ashburnham; start to be made at 6.15 sharp. As a number of visiting wheelmen are expected to take part the members of the club are anxious that all local riders should turn out. Mr. Kent, Newcastle's champion, and Mr. Gibson, Peterborough's ditto, will supple their limbs by joining in the parade before engaging in the struggle for the gold medal.

Our Civic Holiday.

A communication was received to-day from Brampton, stating that the civic holiday for that town will be on the same date as that of Peterborough. The Excelsior L. C. have arranged to run a monster excursion to this town, and one of the biggest day's sport ever held in Peterborough will be carried out at the Driving Park, where the grand lacrosse tournament will take place.

Mr. Butterfield's Funeral.

In spite of the attractions in town yesterday, about fifteen members of the Masonic fraternity proceeded to Norwood by the midday C.P.R. express to attend the funeral of the late J. A. Butterfield, which was conducted with Masonic honors. A very long cortege of brethren and citizens (there was not a carriage in the procession) followed the remains to the cemetery.

A Bad Smash.

Yesterday afternoon a man named I. McCormick was engaged in exercising Mr. A. P. Morgan's fast horse on Hunter street. When near Heffernan's blacksmith shop the light vehicle collided with a heavy wagon which knocked a wheel off. This frightened the animal and in less than no time he was off despite the efforts of the driver to hold him in. When caught on the edge of the river the buggy, for which Mr. Morgan paid the sum of $130, was not worth one-sixth part of that amount.

Nearly Drowned.

Last evening Miss Maggie Lundy, accompanied by her two nieces, went to the Little Lake near Peck's brewery to bathe. One of the children getting beyond her depth, sank in the water, and Miss Lundy going to her assistance, was in a short time placed in a very dangerous predicament, and both would have been drowned had it not been for the timely arrival of Mr. W. Murphy and a man named Campbell, who went to their assistance in a large punt and saved them, when both were about exhausted from struggling to reach the shallow part of the lake which extends out about sixty feet from the shore.

Personal.

Mr. Harry Sears arrived in town from Brantford a short time ago, and will spend a few weeks with his brother-in-law, Mr. John McKee.

R. S. Latimer and J. Fitzgerald departed this morning for Nipissing, where they go to work on the C. P. R. survey for Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald.

Messrs. K. Bowie, W. Kent, A. Kent, T. Miller, C. Wilmot and J. Tuff arrived in town this morning from Newcastle. They are members of the Newcastle Bicycle club and intend taking part in the P. A. A. A. sports to-morrow evening.

We notice with pleasure, that Private Mark Orde, of the 90th, Winnipeg, was presented with a cheque for four month's salary by the manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, in that city, on the arrival of that battalion. Mark is an old Peterborough boy and went through the engagements at Battoche and Fish Creek.

Belleville.

The first public meeting to consider the formation of an Amateur Athletic Association was held in the Police Court Rooms Tuesday night. The attendance was good and considerable interest was manifested. Geo. D. Dickson, Esq., occupied the chair, and made a few remarks in favor of such an Association. He was followed by R. C. Clute, Esq., H. McKinnon, Esq., and Wm. B. Bigger, Esq., who were all in favor of the scheme. A committee of several gentlemen were appointed to gain information as to the best place of location, and submit a scheme for the aim of the Association, committee to report at a public meeting to be held on Monday night next. The right class of men are agitating the scheme, and it is not likely that it will fizzle.—Intelligencer.

Small Hands and Feet.

A very much in earnest Philadelphia editor talks with emphasis about small hands and feet. He says the hand of the finest lady, be it ever so soft and dainty, should be able to grasp with the full fervor of friendship and do any act of benevolent service. Even should all the lines in the palm indicate characteristic virtues, if the hand may be so small and meaningless that it can oppose the veracity of the lines, no dependence can be put upon it in an emergency, and it is no credit, no matter how pretty it is, to either man or woman. The notion that exists among certain people that a lady's hand must be of this kind, is in the real sense of the word vulgar. Delicacy is delightful, but weakness must excite either pity or contempt, according as it is self-imposed or not. Hands are no more beautiful for being small than eyes are for being big—out of proportion—but many a modern girl would ask her fairy godmother, if she had one, to give her eyes as big as saucers and hands as small as those of a doll, believing really that the first cannot be too large nor the last too small. Indeed, we know a young lady who was one of the excitements last summer at Saratoga because she kept her eyes so staringly wide open that they looked as if they were popping out of her head. She thought that by so doing she gave them the appearance of enormous size. Tiny feet and hands are terms constantly used by poets and novelists in a most misleading manner. It cannot be that they are intended by the writers to express anything but general delicacy and refinement; but a notion is encouraged that results in the destruction of one of the most beautiful natural objects—the human foot. This unfortunate notion that the beauty of the foot depends upon its smallness leads to the crippling of it until it becomes, in many cases, a bunch of deformity. It is a most reprehensible practice, alike revolting to taste and good sense, to put the foot of a growing girl in a shoe that is not only too short, crumpling the toes up in a bunch, but, being pointed, turns the great toe inward, producing deformity of the general shape, and, in the course of time, the inevitable bunions; the only wonder being that steadiness in standing or any grace of movement at all is left.

The Late Robert Goodfellow.

Robert Goodfellow, whose death we announced in yesterday's issue, was a native of Scotland. He came to Canada with his parents at the age of five years, and in course of time settled in the township of North Monaghan, where he remained till about three months since. His wife in her maidenhood was Hannah, second daughter of the late Robert Lang, whom he leaves behind, as well as three daughters and three sons. The two youngest daughters. Lily and Minnie, died last year. About three months ago Mr. Goodfellow sold a part of his farm to Mr. John Whitfield, whose son resides on it, and purchased from Mr. William Brownscombe ten acres of land south and west of the Driving Park. He had a house erected thereon and almost ready for occupation at the time of his death. The disease that ended his life was an affection of the heart, which resulted in general debility. After selling his farm, he removed to town, and resided with his son-in-law, Mr. Josiah Robertson, Stewart street, where he died. Deceased was in religion a Presbyterian, and in politics a Reformer. The funeral, which took place this afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery, was largely attended, and was a testimony to the high respect enjoyed by Goodfellow.

Peterborough's Prime Cheese.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held yesterday in the usual place. There were present Mr. Wm. Drummond, President, in the chair, and Warren Taylor, Secretary, and a large attendance of sellers. The buyers present were Messrs. Cook Flavelle, Wrighton, Bartlett, Cluxton, Green and a buyer representing Grant & Co., foreign dealers.

Mr. Cluxton offered 8 cents per pound for selections which was not accepted. Westwood produce was sold to Grant & Co's representative for 8¼ cents. Six factories' cheese, representing two car-loads, were bought by Mr. Cluxton for 8¼ cents. The remainder were held over for the next meet. The factories sold were Keene, South Dummer, Warminster, Myrtle, Lilly Lake and Westwood. The market reports were dull and declining. The following is a list of the factories represented with the number of boxes offered by each :—

Trewerne	Colored	150
Norwood	Colored	200
Westwood	White	150

All of the cheese offered was of the first half of July manufacture, with the exception of 100 boxes from Lily Lake, which were of the last half of June.

Council Meeting.

Nine Councillors Met and After Attending to a Small Amount of Business Adjourned for a Week.

A meeting of the Town Council was held on Thursday evening. In the absence of his Worship the Mayor, Mr. Rutherford was voted to the chair.

There were present : — Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, Yelland, Hartley and McClelland.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the following communications were presented to the meeting.

From Edge Pearse with reference to town trust.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From the Rev. J. W. R. Beck and fifteen others, asking for more gas light.—Referred to Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

From Dr. Kincaid and others with reference to Central Park.—Received.

From T. Giroux with reference to the steps leading to his hotel.—Referred to Building Committee.

The following accounts were referred to the Finance Committee with the exception of J. Strain's, which was ordered to be paid :

J. Strain	$ 1 00
Mrs. Brown	11 77
Wm. Hamilton, Mfg Co	16 00
W. H. Law, stand pipes	214 00

Mr. Cahill then read the following report from the Street and Bridge Committee.

To the Mayor and Councillors of the Town of Peterborough :

GENTLEMEN.—Your committee for streets and bridges beg leave to report that they have this day made further examination of the streets and bridges and respectfully recommend as follows :

Smith street bridge—Repairs which it was supposed would be only of a temporary nature, were ordered on this bridge, but upon examination we find that the whole superstructure is completely rotten, and that a large amount would be required to put it in thorough repair. We do not feel safe in recommending so large an expenditure, in view of the fact that the bridge affords accommodation to only a very few, if any, of the ratepayers of the town, and has been used almost exclusively by the county, since its erection in 1876, although the county did not contribute anything towards its erection and maintenance since. Your committee deem it not in the best interests of the ratepayers of the town that so large an amount be granted as will be necessary to rebuild the bridge for that purpose, and therefore recommend that the bridge be abandoned and closed to traffic of any kind. Your committee, however, believe that this council is willing to make any reasonable sacrifice, in order to maintain the friendly feeling existing between the town and county, therefore we make the further recommendation that the town should pay one half of the cost of an iron bridge, should the county deem it in their interest to build one on the present site. In their report of last year your committee recommended that the Grand Trunk Railway Company should be required to build over-head bridges, as required by law, where their railway crosses Rubidge and Stewart streets. No steps have been taken by the Company, so far as your committee is aware of, to comply with the law in this respect. We again recommend that the Clerk be instructed to write to the Company, requesting them to have those bridges built as soon as possible.

Dublin street—Sidewalk from Water to Harvey street to be repaired.

Water street.—To be watertabled from Antrim to Smith street, and sidewalk on west side from Antrim to present sidewalk. to be laid.

Harvey ttreet.—To be watertabled, and a narrow sidewalk to be built on east side.

Street leading to the Methodist Cemetery. —Sidewalk to be built as far as Midland Railway.

Smith street.—Sidewalk west from Midland Railway to be repaired as far as may be found necessary.

Stewart street.—To be graded from Hunter to Brock streets.

Reid street.—Sidewalk on east side to be repaired from Hamilton's foundry to kirk street.

Downie street.—New sidewalk to be built from Hunter to Brock streets.

Park street.—Water table from Brock street to the creek.

Weller street.—To be graded from Park street to the foot of the hill on the west end.

Elm street.—The stones on centre to be taken off and the roadway repaired where necessary.
